ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, OCT. 24, 1881.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

Our advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Oct. 6; Madras and Allahabad, Oct. 4; Calcutta, Oct. 3.

THE following are the reports of the Revenue and Agricultural Department on the state of the season and prospects of the crops throughout India for the week ending Sept. 27:—There has been more or less rain in all districts of Bengal as well as in Assam and British Burma, and prospects of the crops, except where damaged by floods, are generally favourable. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh light showers fell in the eastern districts and elsewhere, but more rain is now everywhere required for the rabi sowings, though crops are on the whole in good condition. In the Punjab, in the Central Provinces, and in the Central India and Rajputana States rain fell in some places, and agricultural prospects are satisfactory. In the Bombay Presidency prospects have been improved by rain in a great part of the Deccan; but in the Southern Mahratta Country and Satara crops are suffering from drought. In the Mysor State rain has continued to fall in more or less abundance, and crops are thriving except in a few taluks. In the Nizam's territories the kharif is now doing well. The Berar and Coorg reports continue favourable. Prospects seem good throughout the country, except in the Southern Mahratta Country, where rain is much required. Harvesting has begun in places, and the reports which refer to the outturn indicate the probability of a good general yield.

THE telegraphic advices of yesterday's date are not quite so satisfactory in regard to the state of the crops in Mysor. The Times telegram is as follows:—

"Very little rain has fallen in Mysor, and the crops are, consequently, suffering. The north east monsoon is now anxiously awaited."

"The crops in the Shimoga district have been much benefited by the recent showers. Prices are easy, but are rising slightly."

THE same telegram has the following in regard to the epidemic now raging in Amritsar:—

"Choleraic fever is still raging in Amritsar. Business is said to be at a standstill and nine-tenths of the shops have been closed. A correspondent of an up-country paper describes the appearance of the place as a city of the dead. He adds that not a single European has escaped the attack, and that the railway, post, and telegraph officers are working under great difficulties owing to sickness among the employees."

ON the subject of this terrible outbreak a Lahore telegram to the Bombay Gazette, dated Sept. 29, had the following:—

"The pundits and sirdars of Amritsar, in order to avert fever of a singularly virulent description, which destroys from one hundred and fifty to two hundred daily, and is regarded as another form of cholera, have begun the ceremony known as 'Akhand Path,' or continuous unbroken reading of the Granth, or bible of the Sikhs. Simultaneously the municipal committee have given orders for the thorough cleansing of the streets; but, as the Civil and Military Gazette points out, the labourers will have to be imported, for the sweepers, like almost all the clerks in the public offices, are incapacitated by illness."

AND a further telegram from Lahore, dated Oct. 4, ran thus:—

"Two thousand two hundred and sixty-five persons died at Amritsar during the eleven days ending with the 1st inst. One half of these were children. The heavy mortality is almost wholly owing to choleraic fever, which still prevails in many towns in the Punjab. Considering that the Amritsar medical and municipal staff is greatly overworked, and that natives are always reluctant to give information of deaths, the foregoing register figures must be below the mark."

By a combination, which the Times correspondent at Quetta rightly describes as "entirely fortuitous," the Amir Abdur Rahman is at last lord of the whole of Afghanistan. Herat has fallen to his general, Abdur Kudus Khan, after a severely contested engagement. Ayub is in Persian territory. We reproduce elsewhere an interesting extract from an article in the Pioneer, received by this mail, giving a sagacious estimate of the broad political results of the recent change of situation. The two questions now remain—How long will the present state of affairs in Afghanistan last?—and (of more importance to us) how long will it be before we obtain information of the extension to Afghanistan of the vigorous advance now being made by the Russians in the direction of Herat.

FOR, simultaneously with the news of the conquest of Herat by the Ameer's troops, we hear from Tabriz of the concentration of Russian troops at their "advanced post," Askabad, of the construction of a Russian fort twenty miles further on towards Merv, of the bribing of the Merv chiefs with a view to the surrender of their guns and their peaceful submission, and of the completion of the Kizil Arvat and Herat Railway to a station within ninety miles of Askabad. An article in the Bombay Gazette received by to-day's mail, which we give in another column, is chiefly interesting as showing the rapidity of the Russian advance within the last three weeks. And not the least significant item of the intelligence reaching us from Tabriz is that the Sipah Salar is travelling on the frontier between Sarakhs and Kelat-i-Nadiri. We would notice, par parenthese, that this morning's daily papers, in giving this telegram, speak of "Sipah Salar" as if this title were a proper name—they all seem to forget that the Sipah Salar, whose biography we extracted a few weeks ago from the Englishman, is at present perhaps the most important factor in Perso-Russian politics, the soul of those Russian intrigues in Persia that are now securing for Russia a safe and easy road to Herat. The significance of his presence in the neighbourhood of Sarakhs and Kelat-i-Nadiri is well illustrated by the Bombay Gazette. The morning papers again render this announcement unintelligible except to the initiated, by putting it thus—"Sipah Salar is travelling on the frontier between Serrekhs Kelati and Nadiri!" Reuter's telegram runs thus:—

"TABRIZ, OCT. 23.—According to letters dated the 8th inst., received here from Khorassan, the Russian troops of all arms at Askabad number 8,000 men. A small detachment is engaged constructing a fort twenty miles further east on the Merv road. Russian engineers are working between Kuchan and Kadkan. The presence of a few troops at Kuchan had led to some disturbance. Tekhme Sirdar, by means of a present of 50,000 roubles, had induced some Merv chiefs to go to Askabad and declare themselves willing to submit to the Government of the Czar. The Russian commander demanded as a guarantee that the guns at Merv should be given up. The railway between Kizil Arvat and Askabad had been completed to within ninety miles of Askabad. Arrangements were being made for establishing regular postal communication between Meshed and Askabad. The Sipah Salar is travelling on the frontier between Serrekhs and Kelati Nadiri."

THE Afghan news is thus given by the Quetta correspondent of the Times, telegraphing on Oct. 23:—

"The Ameer has written to Col. St. John, informing him officially of the occupation of Herat by his troops on the 4th inst., after a third and bloody battle fought at Shafan, thirty miles east of the city, on the 2nd. Accounts of the battle have also reached Quetta from other sources. After defeating the Luinab at some place not mentioned, but, probably not far east of Obek, Abdur Kudus Khan, who, it now appears, had with him a regiment of infantry and some guns, was joined by the Ghilzai colony at that place, and by several minor chiefs who had hitherto remained neutral or adhered to Ayub's party. Thus reinforced, he moved towards the city; but one march distant from Obek he found his passage barred by a force from Herat commanded by General Abdur Rahman Khan, and composed of two and a-half battalions of infantry, presumably the same who were defeated under the Luinab, with one heavy and four mountain guns.

"The next morning the battle took place, and, after an obstinate struggle, the heavy gun caused such havoc among the Cabul force that it began to fall back in confusion, and all would have been lost had not Abdur Kudus, at the head of a few horse, charged, sword in hand, and captured the guns. At least this is his own story.

"The Char Aimak sowars who were present say that the Cabulis held aloof during the action and left the tribesmen to do the fighting.

"The loss on neither side would have been heavy but for the following circumstance:—Early in the day the leading Herat regiment made signs that it wished, in accordance with what seems to be the recognised custom in Afghan battles, to transfer its services to the opposite side. The firing was accordingly stopped, and the Herat regiment approached to within a few yards of the tribal militia in its front, when its commander drew his pistol and shot dead the chief of the militia, who was holding out his hand to greet him. On this a hand-to-hand fight ensued, in which many lives were lost, every man in the Herati regiment being either killed or taken prisoner. An advance of the Char Aimak force drove off the rest and captured the guns.

"Whichever story is true, it is certain that the action was decisive, for Abdul Kudus pursued his march and reached the environs of the city early on the 4th. Here he was met by the mollahs and merchants, who informed him of the flight of Moosa Jan and his adherents, and that the fortress was unoccupied. Exactly a fortnight had passed since the battle of Kandahar, of which the news had reached Herat a few days previously, and was known before the battle of the 2nd to the leaders of the Herat force, but not to the troops.

"Ayub Khan had not got further than Anardareb, where he left his women in July, and appears to have crossed into Persia before the battle of the 2nd. If he had reached Herat he would probably have stood a siege, and the struggle might have been prolonged indefinitely. As it has turned out, the Ameer's long hesitation before Kandahar was most fortunate, and the combination, though entirely fortuitous, could not have succeeded better."

APPROPRIATELY enough, with the news of an unprecedentedly vigorous and rapid advance of the Russian power in Central Asia, comes the mournful intelligence of more "scuttling" on our part. The Times telegram, quoted above, continues thus:—

"Chaman was evacuated on the 20th, and remains in charge of the local Atchakzai levies. Gulistan and Kushdil-Khan are now the only posts held in Pishin.

"The 13th Hussars, a field battery, and the left wing of the Manchester Regiment march for India by the Bolan Pass in the course of the next few days.

"Brigadier General Wilkinson's column starts for Thul-Chotiali on November 1. General Hume will then break up his division and march via the Hurnai route to Sibi."

THE Times Calcutta correspondent, dating from Darjiling, October 23, gives, as usual, a useful review of the situation in Afghanistan as seen in India:—

"The news of the fall of Herat has not yet been confirmed, but as a report has reached India, via Meshed, as well as from Kandahar, there seems to be little doubt of its truth. It would appear that Abdul Kudus Khan, whose force was much smaller than was originally supposed, marched from Bamian to the upper valley of Harirud, and being joined by the Char Aimak tribes under Aubia Khan and Yalantush Khan, fought a battle under the walls of the city. Ayub's Herati regiments followed the example shown by their comrades at Kandahar by deserting, and their defection decided the fate of the day. The city was occupied without resistance, and the Ameer is now master of the three chief towns and almost the whole of the country of Afghanistan; but, in view of the uncertainty of Afghan politics, it is as yet too soon to say that his throne is absolutely safe. It is true that, according to the latest accounts received at Simla, Ayub is said to have fled to Meshed, but it is also said that the notorious Mir Butcha has turned up among the Lughman Khugianis, and these and other tribes may yet give much trouble. There can be no doubt that the Ameer's position is now immensely improved, and, apparently, all chances are in his favour. That Ayub should ever again succeed in making a head against him seems to be most improbable, but the experience of the last forty years teaches us that in Afghanistan it is often the most improbable contingency which eventually comes to pass.

"The troops to be withdrawn from Quetta will be quartered as follows:—The 63rd Foot at Sealkote; the 13th Hussars at Muttra; the 2nd Sind Horse in Sind; A Battery, 4th Brigade, the 5th Battery of the 4th Brigade, and the 5th Battery of the 8th Brigade, Royal Artillery, with the 4th and 9th Bombay Native Infantry, in the Bombay Presidency. Part of this force, consisting of four companies of the Manchester Regiment, one battery of Artillery, the 4th and 9th Bombay Native Infantry, a squadron of Sind Horse, and a company of Sappers, under the command of Brigadier General Wilkinson, will march by the Bozdar route. The remainder of the returning force will take the railway from Sibi. The brigade to be left beyond Sibi will consist of the 15th Battery, 9th Brigade, Royal Artillery; No. 1 Mountain Battery, the Gloucester Regiment, the 7th Bengal Cavalry, the 1st Sind Horse, the 3rd Bengal Native Infantry, and three Bombay regiments. General Hume will make over the charge to Brigadier General Edwardes and will return to India to assume the command of the Lahore Division."

THE following telegram has been received from the India office for publication:—

"FROM VICEROY, DATED SIMLA, OCT. 21.—News requiring confirmation has been received in Quetta that Abdul Kudus Khan had written to Ameer announcing capture of Herat by himself and Char Aimaks under Yalantush Khan and Aubia Khan. A battle was fought outside city, in course of which Herati infantry deserted Ayub Khan, and city was occupied without resistance. A salute was fired in Kandahar on receipt of news, and Ameer ordered illumination of city. Ameer has publicly announced rebellion and defeat of Wardaks and Kohistanis by Cabul Governor, and complete restoration of tranquillity. Chaman was evacuated by troops this morning, and is now held by local levies."

LORD RIPON and Major Baring, having been "verted" to the financial views of Lord Lytton and Sir John Strachey, are distinguishing themselves by the zeal, not always tempered by discretion, which is usually characteristic of "verts." Yesterday's telegram of the Calcutta correspondent of the Times gives a summary of a most important letter of Lord Ripon's Government to the Bengal Government, carrying the policy of financial decentralisation, so admirably and cautiously laid down by Lord Mayo and Lord Lytton, far beyond the limits to which (as we believe) Lord Lytton ever thought of going. With the limited information before us we are unable to commend this further advance. Its tendency is to throw on rates under local control an amount of the public expenditure that is, to say the least, startling. The imperial expenditure—that part which alone comes under parliamentary supervision—will become delightfully small; but it may fairly be doubted whether this will encourage economy in the financial administration. Lord Ripon thinks that the local control of the expenditure will "tend to reconcile the public to the burden of taxation." This may be so; but, even if it does not so reconcile the Indian public, it will at any rate effectually prevent their groans under that burden ever becoming audible in England.

A FURTHER possible tendency of the new departure in Indian finance may be found to be an increase of the burden on land, even in permanently settled districts. We have promised the zemindars of Bengal never to increase their land tax; and, since the land tax is of course entirely paid by the poor ryots, it is well that it should be so. But it was held in Sir George Campbell's time that, though we had promised never to increase imperial taxation on land, we had not pledged ourselves to anything with regard to local rates, such as the road cess, &c. We think that a moment's consideration will show the immense importance of the new financial scheme and the terrible possibilities involved in it. It is possible that English public opinion in regard thereto may be misled by the words "local control" into some notion that the payers of the taxes will henceforward be consulted as to how much shall be imposed on them. Of course such an idea, suggested to an Anglo-Indian, would only provoke a smile. And on this account we confess that we cannot regard the startling innovations of Lord Ripon and Major Baring, as now announced, with any other feeling than one of grave apprehension. In carrying the decentralisation policy so far beyond the limits contemplated by Lord Lytton they have altogether altered its character and its tendencies. We fear the scheme will provoke the strongest hostility, especially in Bengal and Madras. Its utility from any point of view seems doubtful, whilst its obvious tendencies are much to be dreaded.

THE Times telegram on the subject runs thus:—

"The Official Gazette contains a letter of the Supreme Government to the Bengal Government in continuation of the resolution on the further decentralisation of the finances. The letter refers especially to local self-government. The Governor General expresses an opinion that the heads of the provincial expenditure which may be most advantageously transferred to local control are the medical service, education, and public works. He will gladly consider any recommendation for the transfer of other items. He would entirely relieve the municipalities of the cost of the police, a body over which they have no control, and suggests that the money thus saved should be expended on education, medical charity, and public works of local importance. The despatch concludes with an expression of the confidence of the Supreme Government that no efforts will be spared to ensure the success of the scheme, which will relieve the provincial authorities, tend to reconcile the public to the burden of taxation, and lead to the more extended employment of natives. Local Governments are requested to report on the whole subject in time to allow the necessary arrangements to be made before the close of the financial year."

WE learn from the same source that the Gazette of India of last Saturday, October 22, publishes a notification of the scale of the pensions of officers entering the Staff Corps after July 1 last. The pensions are £250, £365, £500, and £700 allowed after 20, 24, 28, and 32 years' service respectively. No colonel's allowances are to be paid to future entrants. The furlough rules of 1875 are applicable to them. The commutation of one-third of the pension is permissible, payable in India at the official rate of exchange. Officers entering after July 1 are to be subject to such further conditions on retirement on attaining the ranks of colonel and general as may hereafter be prescribed. The Secretary of State reserves full power as to the suspension and limitation of retirements whenever necessary.

It has been resolved to make Darjiling a military station for a wing of a European regiment and a battery of artillery. Committees are now assembled to determine the best site for a barracks.

WE are told by the Calcutta telegram in the Times that the Government has sanctioned a scheme for the transfer of savings banks from local treasuries to the post-offices. Thus 3,800 savings banks will be established throughout India. This scheme, which doubtless owes its inception to Mr. F. R. Hogg, promises to be a useful one if the details can be satisfactorily arranged, but it will largely increase the responsibilities of the poorly-paid village postmasters.

A GRAND durbar for the purpose of investing the young Gaikwar will be held at Baroda on Dec. 28. The festivities in connection with the event will commence on the 24th and continue for eight days.

LAST year's returns show that the number of persons killed throughout India by wild beasts or snakes has gradually increased from 19,273 in 1876 to 21,990 in 1880. The largest number of deaths occurred in Bengal, where 10,064 persons died from snake bites and 359 were killed by tigers. The increase is not large considering the increase of population and the greater accuracy of the registers.

A TELEGRAM from Lahore to the Bombay Gazette, dated October 3, referring to the Mooltan riots, says:—

"Mr. Roe, the deputy commissioner of Mooltan, describes as a malicious invention the assertion of a native paper that during the riots the Sikh troops sided with the Hindus on the ground that they owed duty to their religion as well as to the Government. He also denies the charge of having made changes in the old regulations regarding conveyance of meat through special routes, the truth being that the rules made thirty years since are still in full force. There were no restrictions regarding routes. As to slaughter and sale the rules are the same as elsewhere—that cows be slaughtered at a distance from the city, and that no shops for the sale of raw beef be permitted within the walls. Mr. Roe informs the Civil and Military Gazette that he means to institute an immediate action against the native paper which characterised in libellous language his conduct during the riots. He adds that there are other parts of the article which contain various false statements, calculated and probably intended to cause general excitement amongst the Hindus, and make it appear that the present disturbance is a dispute between them and Government, instead of a quarrel between two factions in which Government, as represented by the local authorities, is doing its best to maintain peace and effect a reconciliation."

THE Government of India has addressed to the Secretary of State for India in Council a strong recommendation that he may be induced to reconsider the clause in the recently promulgated pension rules which has caused so much disappointment to the officers of the Indian army, by which leave or furlough is not allowed to count as service for pension; and we believe that it is not at all improbable that the Marquis of Hartington will be advised to remove this stipulation, or, at any rate, modify the clause.

WE understand that the existing arrangement, by which regiments are known by territorial designations, has resulted in so much confusion that Mr. Childers is to be most strongly recommended to return to the old system of numbers, the present plan being found to be quite unsuited to an army such as ours, which is not permanently located in the district from which it takes its name, and one battalion of which is always on foreign service. In India, especially, the confusion is very great.

THE appointment of Col. R. D. Osborn to a lectureship in Indian History in the University of Cambridge is much criticised in the Indian papers. There can be little doubt that the extreme severity, and even bitterness, displayed in all that gallant officer's published writings against Mussulmans and the Mahomedan religion make the appointment an unfortunate one; especially when it is borne in mind that Col. Osborn's pupils will be for the most part young civilians shortly to be placed in a position of absolute authority over a large Mussulman population. And the extreme character of the political views advocated by Col. Osborn in the London Statesman and the Calcutta Statesman and Friend of India does not argue either the moderation or the impartiality that should be conspicuous in a teacher of history. The following astonishing statement from the pen of Col. Osborn—authenticated, somewhat audaciously, by his initials—appears in the last Friend of India to hand:—

"The fact is that nobody who has mastered the elementary rules of arithmetic, nobody who, from given premises, can draw a correct inference, nobody who knows so much of the world's history as to recognise that a principle of change acts unceasingly upon human relations, can remain a British Tory without constant outrages on his reason and his conscience. From the very nature of the case, a conscientious British Tory must be an individual who is either devoid of the logical faculty or has smothered it under an immense heap of prejudices and passions."

If this is Col. Osborn's reading of the teachings of English history during the present century, is the University of Cambridge likely to get from him more sober and accurate views of the history of India under its Mussulman rulers?

THE Indian Mirror says that, according to native gossip in Hyderabad, Sir Stuart Bayley's sudden departure for England on three months' leave is not wholly unconnected with Mr. Robert Knight's charges against the late Resident. A well-known official of the Berars, Major E. J. Gunthorpe, goes home in the same steamer as the Resident.

WE understand that until the result of the recommendations of the Simla Army Commission, which are now under the consideration of the home authorities, are made known, all departmental appointments made by the Government of India and local Governments of Madras and Bombay are to be considered as provisional only, and subject to any changes which it may be deemed expedient, in the interests of the public service, hereafter to introduce.

THE Gazette states that the Queen has been pleased to confer the decoration of the Imperial Order of the Crown of India on Olive, Lady Fergusson, wife of the Right Hon. Sir James Fergusson, Bart., K.C.M.G., Governor of the Presidency of Bombay, and on Mrs. Emily Adam, widow of the Right Hon. William Patrick Adam, C.L.E., lately Governor of the Presidency of Madras.

THE Government of India has sent home to the India office a scheme for the reorganisation of the Finance Department in India, which has been drawn up by Major Evelyn Baring. According to this scheme—which, we understand, is about to be placed on trial—the higher ranks in the department are to be held by forty-four gazetted officers, eight of whom will be recruited, according to standing and merit, from the ministerial ranks of the several accountant generals' offices. These officers will be designated chief clerks, instead of assistants to the accountant general, as heretofore.

MAJOR GENERAL SIR FREDERICK ROBERTS has, we understand, resolved to accept the offer which has been made to him of the Quartermaster Generalship of the Army, and it is very doubtful whether he will proceed to India to assume command of the Madras army, to which he had been appointed. Sir Frederick Roberts had arranged to leave England this month, but his departure has been delayed pending the final decision with regard to the filling of the vacancies about to be created on the staff of the Horse Guards.

THE death of the enlightened Dewan and almoner of the Maharani Shirmomoyee, of Cossimbagar, will be universally regretted in Bengal. For years past his name has been well known and respected throughout the land, chiefly as the discreet and ever-liberal adviser of the noble lady whose munificent charities had given her a place in the front rank of India's philanthropists and public benefactors.

WE are glad to learn that Mr. W. T. Blanford, F.R.S., the famous geologist, has been ordered to visit Quetta in the cold season and report on the coal beds in that neighbourhood.

THE Times of India gives the following obituary of the week ending October 6:—Mr. P. Ruthnavaloo Chetty, Madras Civil Service; Rai Rujib Lochan Rai Bahadur, Dewan to the Maharani Shirmomoyee.

THE OPIUM TRADE.

ON Friday the Lord Mayor presided at a meeting in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House in support of the movement against the opium trade. There was a large attendance, including many ladies. The Lord Mayor was supported on the platform by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Cardinal Manning, the Earl of Shaftesbury, and a large number of gentlemen. The Lady Mayoress occupied a seat immediately under the platform with several ladies. The proceedings were opened by prayer said by the Rev. R. J. Simpson. Letters were announced from the Dean of Westminster, Mr. Spurgeon, the president of the Wesleyan Conference, Mr. W. H. Gladstone, and others, regretting their inability to attend.

The Lord Mayor, in opening the proceedings, said that our war with China in support of the opium trade was a most unjustifiable war. He fully agreed with Mr. Gladstone that this war was unjust in its origin and was a permanent disgrace to this country. (Hear, hear.) England had spent a great deal of money on the abolition of the slave trade, to the very great honour of this empire. England had, however, on the other hand, contributed to the slavery of the Chinese by the encouragement of a trade destructive both to the body and the soul of the people of China. He hoped that that large and influential meeting would have the good effect of attracting the attention, not only of the whole of the people of England, but of the Government of England as well. (Hear, hear, and applause.)

The Archbishop of Canterbury, who was very enthusiastically received, moved the first resolution, "That in the opinion of this meeting the opium trade, as now carried on between India and China, is opposed alike to Christian and international morality, and to the commercial interests of this country. That in the opinion of this meeting it is the duty of this country, not only to put an end to the opium trade as now conducted, but to withdraw all encouragement from the growth of the poppy in India, except for strictly medicinal purposes, and to support the Chinese Government in its efforts to suppress the traffic. That in the opinion of this meeting it will be the duty of this country to give such aid to the Government of India as may be found reasonable, in order to lessen the inconvenience resulting to its finances from the adoption of the policy advocated in the previous resolutions." His Grace said that of the financial side of the question he did not presume to know anything. As to all the other phases of the question, he was satisfied that the time had arrived when the people of England should state distinctly their opinion as to the course pursued by us in India and China as to the opium trade, and see whether that trade should not be abandoned at any cost. (Hear, hear.) They had come to that point when it became necessary for the people of this country to make known their views on the subject, and to say that they were determined by God's help to do their utmost to call the attention of their rulers, in as powerful language as possible, to this grievous wrong, and to ask them to have nothing more to do with it. (Hear, hear.) The advocates of the continuance of this trade stated, in a defence of it which they had issued, that opium was smoked by only 1 per cent. of the population of China, and that, therefore, we were exciting ourselves about what was in China a very small evil. When, however, the figures supporting this statement were looked at carefully, it would be seen that the people who endangered their minds and bodies by the consumption of opium numbered, even according to the supporters of the trade, two millions. That might be a small number of human beings in China, but two millions of people constituted as many persons as made up the inhabitants of the diocese of London, and were half of those who formed the whole population within the metropolitan district of this city of London, so that what they had to deal with, even according to the defence he referred to, had to do with the rescuing from thralldom of the worst description of two millions of human souls. Speaking as a minister of religion he had no hesitation in saying that missionaries from China, whom he had met with from time to time, while speaking in satisfactory and hopeful terms of the progress of Christianity in China, agreed that the opium trade had the most deleterious effects on the rising population of that empire, and stated that one of the commonest impressions in China was, that if the English were not the persons who first introduced opium into China they were the persons who kept it up. He had recently read with great interest a letter from the Secretary of State of China, addressed to our Ambassador in London, in which he urges the question of this traffic on the attention of the people of England. His Grace trusted that the letter would make a strong impression on the people of England. The Lord Mayor had referred to the abolition of the slave trade. His Grace remembered the time when it was said that to have a squadron on the West Coast of Africa to keep a check upon the slave trade was useless, as the slave trade would never be got rid of. Had they been deterred then by such statements England would not be able to congratulate itself on the abolition of the slave trade. In the same way he hoped they would not be deterred by what was said in support of the opium trade from carrying to a successful issue the movement for the furtherance of which the meeting was held. (Applause.) The Canadian Government, were at the present moment, greatly to their honour, endeavouring to protect the inhabitants of that colony from the importation of spirituous liquors. (Applause.) How could the English people reconcile to their consciences the keeping up of the opium traffic in India and China whilst they were doing their best to put a stop to somewhat similar traffics in other parts of the world. One of the articles in a treaty with China was to the effect that the English should no longer be looked upon as barbarians. What was of far more importance was to show to the Chinese that as Christians they did not forget their duty, and that they were as ready to introduce into China the virtues of civilisation as its vices. (Loud applause.)

The Earl of Shaftesbury seconded the motion, which was supported by the Rev. E. J. Jenkins and carried unanimously.

Cardinal Manning, who was also very cordially greeted, moved — "That, in the opinion of this meeting, the results of the sale of opium in British Burma are a disgrace to our Government of India, and demand the most thorough and immediate remedy." He fully agreed with all that had been said as to the disgraceful and demoralising effects of the opium trade. The Emperor Nero wished that the Roman people had but one neck, that he might cut it through in one blow. Cardinal Manning was glad to find that a sword was hanging over the opium trade, which he hoped would ere long fall. In support of the resolution, the Cardinal adduced the evidence of several missionaries and other reliable authorities. If this trade was not put down, he feared that a severe chastisement would come upon England, and perhaps sooner than was generally anticipated.

Mr. J. PALMER, M.P., seconded the motion, and it was carried with unanimity.

Mr. Donald Matheson moved, and the Bishop of Bedford seconded, the following, which was also agreed to unanimously:— "That a deputation from this meeting be appointed to lay before the Prime Minister the foregoing resolutions, and to press upon him the duty of adopting the policy therein approved; and that the Lord Mayor, chairman of the meeting, and the Earl of Shaftesbury, president of the society, be requested to take the necessary steps to give effect to this resolution."

Mr. Albright (Birmingham) stated that Birmingham would furnish £3,000 to a fund to carry on the movement, and he hoped that London would be asked to make three times that amount.

A vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor concluded the proceedings.

INDIAN LOVE FOR THE QUEEN.

IT is given to few to create precedents, and, as a rule, the privilege is seldom judiciously exercised. But the precedent just set by Queen Victoria, by ordering her Court into mourning out of respect for the memory of the late President Garfield will be acknowledged by all as an act of grace in perfect harmony with her own character and the character of the times on which she has shed lustre for nearly half a century. It is but natural that England and America should, above and in spite of everything else, seek closer ties of sympathy for each other; and her Majesty has only sealed with her sanction this more than tacit contract which has been in process for years past. We cordially sympathise with both; nothing could be more welcome than this social alliance between the cousins of the United Kingdom and of the United States. As for Queen Victoria, well has the Laureate sung :—

“Revered, beloved—O you that hold
A nobler office upon earth
Than arms or power of brain or birth
Could give the warrior kings of old.”

Let us only wish, with Tennyson, that she may rule long and leave us rulers

“As noble till the latest day.”

THE INDIAN CENSUS.

WE have already published in telegrams from Calcutta the rough totals of the census of India, which was made in February under the charge of the Census Commissioner, Mr. W. C. Plowden. The following memorandum by Mr. Plowden accompanying the tables is dated Simla, August 27 :—

“The tables appended to this memorandum deal with the population as recently ascertained at the enumeration effected in the various British provinces and in the independent and feudatory States of India on February 17, 1881. This census may fairly claim to be the largest work of the kind, of which the record is available, undertaken in any country. Practically speaking, a population numbering 252,000,000 was enumerated on one and the same day. With the exception of the native States of Rajputana, for which, as yet, only, the number of the people, without distinction of sex, has been given, the statements now printed show the number of males and females making up this large population. In the numerous cases where a previous census of any province or State has been made the figures of the former enumeration are recorded side by side with the figures ascertained at the enumeration of 1881. Columns have been added, giving in each instance the date of the census immediately preceding that of 1881, and the percentage of increase or decrease of the population observable on a comparison of the figures of the two enumerations. Taking the statistics for those provinces and States where the present census is not the first, it will be observed that in a population of 218,000,000 there has been an apparent increase of 12,750,000, or 6·2 per cent. on the population as enumerated in previous years. The present is not the time for attempting to draw any conclusions as to the growth of the population evinced by these figures. That can be more appropriately discussed when the provincial reports are submitted. In some cases, however, the increase is believed to be more apparent than real, and as an example of this I may note the Central Provinces, where a figure addition to the population in a term of nine years of one-quarter is mainly accounted for by the inaccuracy in the figures of the preceding census. It is satisfactory to note that where the recorded increase in the number of the people has been most conspicuous, as in British Burma, Assam, Berar, and Sind, there was ample room for the population to expand. The only provinces or States which show a very perceptible decrease are Mysor (17 per cent. decrease), and Madras (2·4 per cent. decrease). These figures, I fear, give mournful evidence of the check to growth in numbers which famine and consequent disease have imposed on the population of these two countries.”

[FROM THE “TIMES.”]

THE details of the Indian Census intensify the amazement produced by the original outline of results. A population so vast in the total that the imagination only deludes itself by supposing that it can comprehend the number has been catalogued with as much apparent ease as the population of Jersey. The inability of the enumerators in one division of the Peninsula, with a population of eleven millions, to classify it by sexes only augment the admiration at the success with which similar and greater difficulties have been overcome in the census of the other two hundred and forty-one millions. India is a geographical name and little more in many respects. It stands for a huge collection of different races, different religions, different modes of government. Its peoples are as diverse as their climates, and the plains and mountains, fruitful valleys and savage jungles, they occupy. None are more jealous of trespasses beyond the threshold of their homes. None are more suspicious of the curiosity of superiors about their families and resources. Their religions isolate them. Their history has trained them to be timid. Yet at the will of a Power seated at the other end of the earth this enormous accumulation of contrasted humanity has in a single day been brought together to render an account of itself. That the work was believed to be practicable and that it has been accomplished creates a surprising impression of the perfection of Indian administrative centralisation. That it should have been done so well and so smoothly adds, from another point of view, to the perplexity, bordering on despair, at the gulf, wide and deep, between peoples administratively so within control, in every other relation so remote. There in Asia are two hundred and fifty-two millions, all in some respects, and most in every one, politically fellow-citizens of Londoners and Yorkshiremen. How many they are is known, what they do, and where and how they subsist. They pay taxes, they acknowledge the sovereignty of the British Queen and the supremacy of the British Parliament. For any true perception of their nature, or insight into their minds, they are as mere a denomination as the inhabitants of Annam or of New Guinea. How they became subjects of England is matter of history. The schoolboy can relate the wars and the treaties, with their dates, by which the two hundred millions, more or less, the ancestors of the present two hundred and fifty-two fell under British sway. Every British town comprises residents who have helped to subdue those millions or to govern them by British authority. All that has been effected by Englishmen in India has been to teach Englishmen what they are and of what they are capable. Only one now and then has educated himself to feel with Maharatta, Bengalee, Madrassese, or Sikh. An Englishman is endued with an instinct which tells him the thoughts and emotions traversing other English breasts. He comprehends how he can awaken or how he can soothe them. After a feebler sort, he has an instinct which can track, though less surely, the course of the moods of other European nations. The tendencies and susceptibilities of these two hundred and fifty-two millions of English subjects are as dark and untrodden a wilderness for him as if they still prayed for the Great Mogul. Inquirers go among them from these islands and record their views and propensities. Englishmen at home are taught mechanically what they are, as they are taught the anatomy of an antediluvian animal. In time the instruction may be so complete that it will do duty for the species of common atmosphere within which brethren of the same lineage or usages are lapped and coalesce. That day seems at present very distant. Members of the same nation in reality, and not in title alone, act and react upon one another in an infinity of ways. It would be an impossible calculation to compute the influence of any district of the United Kingdom upon the rest, or the change in the whole which its separation would cause. Morally and intellectually, and more or less physically, national blood runs through the entire mass. From each it gathers as it passes, and it distributes to all some special element. In that sense neither these two hundred and fifty-two Indian millions nor any part of them can be said to have been fused as yet with their British fellow-subjects. Materially the reduction of India under British dominion is sufficiently perceptible. England materially is different by reason of its Indian Empire from what it would else have been. Particular portions of England feel its effects conspicuously. Many individual lives are altogether transformed by it. Of any interchange between the two countries of spirit and sentiment there is scarcely more evidence now than when Clive conquered on the field of Plassey. The obedience of all these millions of human creatures to the British Crown is a radiant jewel in it. Indirectly it is a source of wealth to the kingdom and a brilliant arena for careers. It is not depreciating what India gives and has given to Great Britain to wish it could or would yield something higher and greater. An increase of twelve or thirteen millions in ten years is honourable to the efficiency of British rule. Lancashire may take note with pleasure of an addition of possible millions to the consumers of its prints. The mere bristling tables represent a multitude of facts and phenomena abounding in essential interest to the provinces in which the tide of population has been flowing highest. Their importance for uncommercial and unofficial England is hardly emphasised at all by the fact, in appearance so astounding, that since 1871 Englishmen have received of new fellow-citizens as many within three hundred and fifty thousand as their own whole number equalled half a century ago. The census of India, with its battalions of gigantic figures, suggests to Englishmen how much those statistics might signify which they fail to signify in the relations subsisting between the populations of the suzerain and its splendid dependency. The British people, as an assemblage of human beings, does not seem to derive its rightful degree of variety and freshness of vitality from the incorporation into it of this tremendous total of life. The two hundred and fifty-two millions of India might with yet more reason retort the complaint. Indian humanity contains elements by which Englishmen might not disdain to profit. The value of its hereditary intuitions of art is already recognised, though their secret is ill apprehended. Ingrained in the depths of Indian domestic traditions are a delicacy and refinement to which European observers of the luxury of indolent native nobles do little justice. But if a sentiment of fraternity between people so strangely conjoined would not be without its use to the dominant race, the subject race or races might learn on their part the more precious art of national existence and growth. India and Great Britain are bound together as solidly by political ties as if only the Severn or Trent divided them, and not continents and oceans. Hereafter, in the revolutions which wreck States, they may be parted. No signs, however, of such a catastrophe can be discerned, except by eyes which love to foresee evil. Should they be severed, it would probably simply be for India to fall under a heavier alien yoke. At present, at all events, they have to walk hand in hand. For their mutual advantage their leaders on both sides should strive to infuse into them the sense of national unity by which they might learn to benefit by one another's virtues, as well as to take warning by one another's errors. An India which should accustom itself to feel British in more than name would be an India with a future as well as a past. Under the British standard alone can its inhabitants hope to attain the substantial consolidation of which the want has been its undoing. The native of India may find it as hard as the Englishman—he cannot find it harder—to realise how it happens that he and his two hundred and fifty-two millions of countrymen are come to be subjects of a couple of petty Atlantic isles. If he try, he will find it at least as difficult to understand by what strange process those two hundred and fifty-two millions, with their mixture of hostile constituents, have been brought to dwell in peace and been qualified for representation, with no ostensible violence of metaphor, as a single people in one census paper. British rule has united India better than did its most potent Moguls. It is for the Indian populations to gain their highest advantage out of the destiny which has turned them into British subjects by claiming their share in the spirit and pride of British nationality.

THE AFGHAN CAMPAIGN.

MR. LEPEL GRIFFIN, agent to the Governor General for Central India, has addressed the following letter to the editor of the Times, dated Indore Residency, Sept. 27:—

"Sir,—If you have not yet seen a book entitled 'Personal Records of the Kandahar Campaign,' edited by a person who styles himself Major Waller Ashe, late King's Dragoon Guards, I venture to invite your attention to it. If you would intrust its review to some officer of the Kandahar army or of the relieving force of General Roberts, I believe the public would receive infinite amusement. Major Ashe first became known to fame by publishing in the Morning Advertiser an account of the battle of Maiwand, which, however unrecognisable by the survivors of that engagement, bore a striking likeness to the Times' account of the action of Ahmed Khel, fought by General Stewart when marching from Kandahar to Cabul. On the genuineness of his letter being questioned, Major Ashe asserted that the writer of the Maiwand letter had been in both engagements, although it is well known that no British officer was present both at Ahmed Khel and Maiwand. In the preface to his present book I notice that Major Ashe abuses the anonymous critics who had questioned the authorship of his letters, and who, he asserts, was afraid to disclose themselves, while he would have the public believe that he retired with flying colours from the controversy. I have no intention of discussing the merits of the Maiwand and Ahmed Khel case, which are obvious enough; but seeing that I am about to show that Major Ashe's present volume is, so far as I have space to dissect it, a tissue of extravagance and falsehoods, I will not shelter myself behind a pseudonym, and I will further only comment on such statements the truth or falsehood of which are absolutely within my own knowledge as Chief Political Officer in Afghanistan, and regarding which no officer can possibly be better informed than myself.

"For the sake of brevity, I will select only four Cabul letters, the first three forming chapter four of the book, and purporting to be by the same hand, pages 112-143; and the fourth letter, pages 170-178, from, it is pretended, another hand. The first letter is dated July 26, from the 'cantonment of the Bala Hissar.' No officer who had ever been in Cabul could so head his letter, the Bala Hissar being a fortress, not a cantonment. The letter commences with a circumstantial account of the friendly meeting of the writer, who was deer shooting in the neighbourhood of Charikar, with the Ameer Abdur Rahman, then on his road from Turkestan to Cabul. The chief's camp, the furniture of his tent, his appearance and that of this troops are minutely described, as is a high flown conversation on Afghan politics, society, and religion. The six pages of description are but one continued impudent untruth. Charikar is the town in Kohistan where the Turkestan road leaves the hills, about forty miles north of Cabul. No officer could have visited it at the time mentioned and returned alive, much less have been deer shooting for several days in that neighbourhood, where, indeed, there are no deer to shoot. Had such an excursion been possible, the hero of it would assuredly have found himself court-martialed the moment he returned to Cabul for gross disobedience of orders. But I affirm that no English officer visited Charikar or its neighbourhood while I was in Cabul, nor did any English officer see or speak to the Ameer Abdur Rahman before I met him at Zimma on August 3, 1880. This letter pretends to be written on July 26; the interview with Abdur Rahman is said to have taken place a few days before; yet our correspondent continues—'Two days after the interview I had with Abdur Rahman a formal meeting was arranged between the Ameer and Sir Donald Stewart,' at which our correspondent was, of course, present, and which he carefully describes. But as the only interview I was able to arrange between the Ameer and the General was on the morning we left Cabul, August 11, a fortnight after the letter describing it was written by this prophetic correspondent, a few inaccuracies have, not unnaturally, crept into his statement. For example, he says that as the Ameer approached, our 'band played the opening eight bars' (it is as well to be precise) 'of the National Anthem.' We had no band. 'Our chief then dismounted and hastened forward to hold the stirrup of his Highness, a mark of respect and etiquette still preserved in Persian and Russian Courts.' The general was not near the Ameer when he dismounted, and, whatever the Persian and Russian custom may be, I am sure that no subaltern in the British Army would have performed this menial service. 'About two dozen seats were placed for the chief actors in this impressive scene.' There were only four chairs—for the Ameer, Sir Donald Stewart, the general commanding the Cabul Division, and myself. General Hills is spoken of as interpreting, although he is not conversant with Persian, and the speech put into the mouth of the Ameer is apocryphal.

"The second letter is dated August 5, 'Racecourse Camp, Siah Sung Ridge, Cabul.' This address is a worthy pendant to 'the Cantonment of the Bala Hissar.' It could never have been written by anyone who had been at Cabul; for the Racecourse and Siah Sung are far apart; and the address is equivalent to 'Thames Embankment, South Kensington.' I shall not, however, discuss this letter, which professes to describe the arrival at Cabul of the news of the battle of Maiwand, the conferences between Generals Stewart and Roberts regarding the relief of Kandahar, and the preparations for the march. The statements of the letter, so far as my personal knowledge goes, are untrue, but it chiefly concerns military matters, with which I am not now concerned. We will turn to the next despatch, of August 10, which describes the farewell dinner given by the political officers at Cabul to General Roberts on the eve of his march to relieve Kandahar, and my interview with Ameer Abdur Rahman at Zimma. The 'banquet' is described with all that exactness of detail which might be expected from a correspondent who states that he had 'the honour of a special invitation.' It took place, he assures us, in the same 'marquee' in which I had a few days before received the Ameer. This is a mistake which could not have been made by one who was present at both dinner and interview, as the tent I sent for the interview to Zimma was a large and handsome one, which might have seated eighty persons, while General Roberts's 'banquet' was given in my small camp tent. 'The tent was most artistically decorated with flags, trophies of arms, and wreaths of beautiful flowers, while over the President's chair a floral device was hung with the words "God speed" in large letters.' There were neither flags, trophies of arms, nor wreaths of flowers, nor any device whatever. 'As the dinner hour drew near, the portion of the marquee partitioned off to form an ante-room began to fill, &c. In fact, we assembled in the sitting-room of the political mess, and my tent had only room for the dining table. General Hills, who was just now seen interpreting from a language which he does not understand, is again represented as superintending the menu, with which he had nothing to do, and the detail of which includes everything which did not appear at the dinner.

"Leaving the 'banquet,' which is after all but trifling, our correspondent on the next page attempts a more daring flight. After referring to his previous apocryphal meeting with Abdur Rahman at Charikar, he says that he was fortunate enough to accompany me on the occasion of my interview with the Ameer at 'Zernina, about ten miles from Cabul.' The village is described as most picturesquely situate on the banks of a clear, running stream, surrounded by groves of mulberry, date, and palm trees, pine apples, custard apples, and mangoes, which last formed a grateful shade to the horses of the escort. These included some Bombay Cavalry. The crowds of villagers who came out to look at us, the handsome picturesque dresses of the women, the jewels on their feet and hands, their faces and figures, are described with the hand of a master, till 'passing through the village we reached the open space near a tope or groves of mangoes, where the tents were pitched.'

"The whole of this is an elaborate romance. Zimma, not Zernina, is from twenty to twenty-five miles from Cabul; the interviewer was not near a village at all, consequently there were no villagers, men or women, to look on at us. Not a woman was to be seen, and, indeed, I have never seen in Afghanistan a single respectable woman unveiled. Our correspondent's glowing imagination alone has invented these beautiful creatures, with silver braided hair, and pearls and gems strung over their mouths. Nor is the correspondent more happy with the vegetable than with the animal kingdom. Zimma is some 7,000ft. above the sea in the 35° of latitude. Yet we have dates and palms, and pine apples, and custard apples, and mango groves, all trees of the tropics, and none of which anyone except our correspondent, has seen in North Afghanistan. At any rate, there were none at Zimma; and as for the mango grove, so 'grateful a shelter to the horses of the escort,' I had, in order to prevent a surprise, ordered the audience tent to be pitched on the summit of a bare hill, without a tree near it, and the escort remained in the August sun the whole time of my interview—so unsheltered, indeed, that both days I closed the interview earlier than I should otherwise have done in order not to expose the English troopers too long. No Bombay Cavalry, I may further mention, were included in my escort, or were ever present in Cabul at all.

"We now proceed to the interview. The Ameer is described as offering me his arm and conducting me 'to the marquee, where tea, coffee, sherbet, and pipes were handed round by handsomely dressed attendants.' The Ameer struck our correspondent as better looking than when he saw him at Charikar, which is likely enough. After the usual compliments had been exchanged and the presents sent by our general had been examined most minutely, a conversation ensued on an infinite variety of topics, the Ameer passing from one topic to another with the greatest rapidity. The correspondent himself dashed into the conversation, and explained to the Ameer how it was that Generals Primrose and Burrows were defeated at Kandahar, while 'Abdur Rahman spoke freely of the late defeat of General Burrows, which he characterised as unaccountable and almost inexcusable.' After this, we are told, the letter from the General enumerating certain details in the convention was translated to the Ameer, to which he listened attentively; and a long conversation is reported between the Ameer and myself which is not to be found in my full notes of the interview, and most resembles passages from a national schoolboy's essay on Afghanistan.

"Every item in this interview is erroneous. The Ameer did not offer me his arm, and neither pipes, coffee, sherbet, nor tea were handed round by attendants dressed handsomely or otherwise. No presents of the General were minutely examined, for none were given, the only presents ever given to the Ameer being a few of small importance, which, with the sanction of the Viceroy, I sent him the day before we left Cabul. No letter of the General's was read, because none was sent, and as to the conversation reported and the Ameer's criticism of General Burrows' defeat, the Ameer did not know that we had met a reverse until I told him of it in very general terms, and entering into no particulars. The correspondent says that he explained the position to the Ameer; but, during the two interviews, lasting some six hours, there were only present, besides the Ameer and myself, four officers of my political staff, Colonel Hastings, C.B., Colonel Ridgeway, Mr. Cunningham, C.I.E., my first assistant, and Mr. Christie, C.I.E., my second assistant. No one addressed the Ameer excepting myself, or Mr. Cunningham interpreting for me, when I wished for greater precision, as he is a better Persian scholar than I am. The first two of these officers are in England, and should Major Waller Ashe attempt to defend the mendacious and audacious statements of his pretended correspondent, I have no doubt they will be quite ready to answer him.

"The next letter purports to be from another hand, but the style is suspiciously similar. The hands are still, whatever the voice, the hands of Esau. It is dated August 23, and describes the meeting of the Ameer with General Stewart and myself on August 11. Here we have the same rich and Oriental colouring which distinguishes our correspondent of the Zimma interview; 'the gorgeously trimmed robes of the principal sirdars and palace officials' being truthfully rendered, the plain and even rude dress of the Ameer's followers. We have the 'marquee' doing duty again; and, as at the Roberts banquet, it is again 'decked with boughs and flowers, and hung with coloured drapery.' The audience was held in my own plain camp tent, which I gave to the Ameer as a parting present; and on that last anxious morning, when it was doubtful, till the Ameer came in sight, whether his wild troops would allow him to leave the camp, we were in no humour to play the fool with boughs and flowers. 'The friendly sirdars' described as present were conspicuous by their absence, only one, Muhammad Yakooob Khan, being in attendance. General Hills again figures as interpreter, while the conversation is as incorrect as before. After some presentations of officers we are told that 'we now moved outside the tent to allow the Ameer, our political, and the chief to be alone.' While waiting outside the tent our correspondent and his friends amused themselves by watching the Ameer's troops, whom he compares to the Chasseurs de Vincennes. Unfortunately for the narrative, it happened that no officers retired outside the tent, as the interview was a merely formal and public one, at which only common-places were exchanged, while none of one Ameer's troops came within sight or hearing, by special agreement.

"The next and last falsehood I shall refute—for it is one of historical importance—describes our finally leaving Cabul after this memorable interview. The correspondent describes the heights around our camp as in possession of 'a mob of fanatics and hill robbers,' dancing war dances, beating drums, and working themselves up to the wildest state of excitement. 'Scattered parties on the hilltops around followed each other with a succession of shouts and yells of the most demoniac description. It is almost impossible to describe the excited appearance of these men and the wild antics they performed; while it was wonderful they did not wound each other in their intricate and rapid evolutions with unsheathed knives. As we moved along, these ruffians, having failed to irritate our men into retaliatory measures, sought to provoke our fellows by their taunts and jeers.'

"There is a good deal more of this melodramatic trash, only fit for a South London music hall, which, being interpreted into sense and truth, means that, as General Stewart and myself rode out of Cabul its aspect was as a city of the dead. There was, it is true, no friendly greeting, no God speed; but there were, on the other hand, no bands of fanatics, no war dances, no shout, no yell, no single sign or sound of hostility or dissatisfaction as the British army turned its back for the last time on the city of Cabul. The whole account is a stupendous falsehood.

"And now I would ask Major Waller Ashe what he means by so impudently offering to the English public these vamped-up rechauffés of newspaper correspondence, liberally garnished with ignorance and falsehood, as genuine letters from real officers at the seat of war? Major Ashe has not only been unfortunate in one or two Cabul correspondents. Those pretending to write from Kandahar are as lying prophets as those writing from Cabul, as a clever war correspondent has shown in the Pioneer newspaper. The correspondents do not exist. I promise to pay £1,000 to any charity Major Ashe will name if he can produce the correspondent who interviewed the Ameer at Charikar and who afterwards shared my interview with his Highness at Zimma.

"I would not have condescended to criticise this rubbish had I not noticed in the preface to Major Ashe's book that he has ready for the press a 'History of the Afghan War,' constructed from the journals and correspondence sent him from the scenes of action. It is thus necessary to warn the public of the kind of history they must expect. The present volume is dedicated to Lord Lytton, whose political opinions Major Ashe appears to share. I trust he will not insult his lordship by dedicating to him the second volume, which, if it be constructed from the narratives of the same correspondents as the first, may most appropriately be dedicated to the Father of Lies."

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

COL. CORY ON "THE EASTERN MENACE."*

[FIRST NOTICE.]

COL. ARTHUR CORY, formerly of the Bengal Staff Corps, retired from the service a few years ago, mainly with the view of obtaining a perfectly independent position for himself, as an ardent patriot determined to convince his countrymen of the deadly peril to which the Empire was being exposed by the criminal folly and imbecility of the "masterly inactivity" party. The peril was equally obvious to every other Indian officer of Col. Cory's experience and sagacity; but to Col. Cory, in addition to a clear insight into the intricacies and perplexities of frontier and Central Asian politics, were given both the pen of a ready and powerful writer and the devoted energy and burning zeal of an apostle. His acquaintance with European politics, and especially with the various ramifications of the Eastern Question, was hardly less extensive and accurate than his knowledge of questions more directly affecting the Indian frontier. Altogether, there were few persons more competent to express an authoritative opinion on the merits of our Afghan policy, and few likely to put their opinions more effectively before the public. His first indictment of the masterly inactivity policy was published in 1875, and was entitled "Shadows of Coming Events: The Eastern Menace." We believe that it was impossible for an unprejudiced man, possessing any acquaintance whatever with Asiatic affairs, to read that book without becoming convinced of the general accuracy of the views expounded in it. There can be little doubt that, taken concurrently with the works of Sir Henry Rawlinson, M. Vambéry, and other writers on the same side, it contributed in no small degree to the temporary enlightenment of English and Anglo-Indian public opinion in regard to "The Eastern Menace," with which temporary enlightenment the late Conservative Administration was identified, but which (as we have often declared in these columns) ought never to have been degraded to the level of an English party question at all. It probably never would have been so degraded but for the mistakes of the Duke of Argyll in 1873, and the "exigencies" of Mr. Gladstone in opposition in 1876-1880; and Col. Cory has been careful to point out in his writings that Lord Northbrook's impulses in 1873 directed him aright, and would have directed the empire aright if there had been no telegraphic communication between the Viceroy and the Secretary of State.

Content with the effect produced by his "Shadows of Coming Events," Col. Cory determined to leave the field at home for the time to other writers less qualified for the task of watching events on the spot. He took up his quarters permanently at Lahore, to be within touch of the frontier and in personal communication with Afghans. The information thus obtained and the results of his observation of the course of events in Afghanistan from day to day he made accessible to the world and helpful to the Empire by publication in the columns of the Civil and Military Gazette. The value of the services rendered to the public by that journal, under the editorship of Col. Cory, during the war and the troubled times that preceded and have followed it, is probably known to most of our readers; for thorough mastery of the Afghan Question in all its branches, political as well as military, its articles have been unsurpassed by those of any other journal in India or England.

Many of the predictions hazarded by Col. Cory in his "Shadows of Coming Events," have been fulfilled to the letter within six years of their publication. He now comes again before the English public, in a book that amplifies his former work and brings it up to date, to claim that respectful hearing which is due to the proved truthfulness of his earlier warning. A large part of "The Eastern Menace" is devoted to a terribly severe dissection of the Duke of Argyll's "Eastern Question." Another large portion is given to an exposition of the lessons of the late war. The utterly untrustworthy character of Mr. Grant-Duff's "Afghan Policy of Lord Beaconsfield's Government" is fully and clearly set forth, and all the fallacies and dangers of our recent policy are exposed in the most forcible and conclusive way. To a consideration of the various divisions of Col. Cory's new book, as here indicated, we hope to return in an early article.

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE NATIVE PRESS ON THE LIBERAL MINISTRY'S INDIAN POLICY.

It is said that the office of Minister of Public Works will be revived. So the Liberal Ministry, instead of curtailing expenditure, is going to increase it. It has revived the Agricultural Department and will revive the Minister of Public Works. It seems to be bent upon undoing what had been done by the past regime, and that to the direct detriment of India. When the appointment of Minister of Public Works was first proposed Lord Northbrook was opposed to it, and the wisdom of his lordship's opinion was vindicated when the office was abolished two years ago. But rumour has it that this office is to be revived. It is said that the new public works policy requires the revival of the appointment. We hold that the less the direct responsibility of the Government for the execution of public works, the less necessity for a separate Minister of Public Works. We think the Public Works Secretary is strong enough for the work.—Hindu Patriot.

THE DURGA PUJA HOLIDAYS.

WE publish below the correspondence between the British Indian Association and the Government of Bengal regarding the Durga Puja holidays. We have nothing to add to what the association have already said on the subject. If the facts stated by the association be correct it seems that there has been a compact as it were between the Comptroller General and the Bank of Bengal to nullify Lord Lytton's resolution on the subject of the holidays. It was Mr. Westland who first suggested that the Council bills should be paid at the Bank of Bengal during the holidays, and that the currency office should be kept open to a limited extent during the vacation. The directors of the Bank of Bengal to meet the wishes of the Comptroller General have resolved to keep the bank open. Thus there has been a mutual understanding. If the bank had not been kept open the Council bills could not have been paid, while the bank directors have got a pretext to keep the bank open, because the Government wishes to pay the Council bills during the holidays. The Government of India, in a resolution of August, 1880, had approved the arrangements recommended by the Comptroller General. The history of this resolution is instructive. It was passed after Lord Lytton had left the country. Lord Ripon had newly arrived, and his lordship could not be expected to know anything about the deep game which was being played. Those who concocted this resolution had, of course, their heart in the work, for it was they who had originally framed the anti-holiday resolution, which we need hardly say would not have been cancelled but for the firmness of Lord Lytton. But when the cat was away the mice began to play. It is observable that this nullifying resolution was passed in the secret department, the public had no knowledge of it, and could not therefore protest against it. To put the public off the scent no action was taken under it last year. Now it is said that the Comptroller General is simply acting under the orders of Government. Surely Lord Ripon would not have given his assent to the resolution in question, if his lordship had known its real scope and tendency.—Hindu Patriot.

THE AMEER'S VICTORY.

FINALLY, it must be remembered that, in being saved the immediate annoyances which would have ensued from Ayub's victory, we are not in any way identified with the existing settlement. It is hardly to be supposed that the Ameer's retrospective gratitude to the British Government for having accepted him faute de mieux, as a person under cover of whose nomination to the throne we could escape from the tedium of the Cabul occupation, will bear up against the reflection that in his recent death-struggle we did not see our way to help him. True, he did not ask to be helped: he behaved very loyally as regards the understanding on which he was raised to the throne. We refused from the beginning to guarantee his tenure of power; we started him on the clear understanding that he was to stand or fall as best he could; and when the peril came he was man enough to face it without a word to the British Government in the nature of an appeal for aid. Still it is one thing not to ask for help—especially under circumstances which make you think asking would probably be useless—and another to remain perfectly content with the attitude of the friend who offers no help. In the Ameer's mind the seed must be laid of a state of feeling closely resembling that which grew up in the mind of Sher Ali eventually, and made him absolutely mistrustful of the British Government even when the British Government, animated by a new impulse in 1876, might really have been trusted. The Ameer has held his own without our help; and he will naturally steer his future course without much reference to our wishes or interests. Of course in all these remarks we are criticising the general outline of the policy that has latterly been pursued, as this has been defined from home. The Government of India has had nothing to do but look on; and it has looked on accordingly without doing anything. The present doctrine, that the highest duty of the Government of India is to be the loyal executor of the will of the Cabinet at home, is one which we have never for one instant in these columns pretended to approve. It was not the doctrine on which the greatness of the British Empire in India was built up, and it is not a doctrine which in the long run can ever sustain that greatness; but it operates for the time being, at all events, to throw back political criticism on to the persons from whom all important manifestations of policy, while it lasts must be supposed to spring. And for the moment we are chiefly concerned to guard public opinion from the assaults to which it will be exposed when the partisan supporters of the present Ministry endeavour in due course to coin the recent victory into so much party capital.—Pioneer.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

UNIVERSITY DINNER AT SIMLA.—At the Oxford and Cambridge dinner at Simla on the 29th ult. Oxford was represented by the Hon. Sir R. Egerton, K.C.S.I. (Exeter); Colonel O. R. Newmarch (Merton); the Hon. H. S. Cunningham (Trinity); Colonel Fryer, C. B. (Exeter); Mr. R. J. Crosthwaite (Brasenose); Captain J. L. Aberigh-Mackay (Worcester); Mr. H. W. Primrose (Balliol); Mr. C. L. Tupper (Corpus); Mr. F. C. Channing (Corpus); Mr. T. W. Holderness (University); Mr. J. Wilson (Balliol); Mr. J. M'C. Douie (Balliol). Cambridge was represented by:—Mr. A. B. Sampson (St. Catherine's); the Hon. L. D. Broughton (Trinity Hall); the Hon. C. Grant (Trinity); the Venerable Archdeacon Matthew (Trinity); Mr. T. W. Rawlins (Clare); Mr. A. Mackenzie (Trinity); Mr. H. M. Plowden (Trinity); Mr. W. M. Young (King's); Mr. D. C. J. Ibbetson (St. John's); Mr. F. C. Daukes (Downing); Mr. F. Hadden Cope (St. John's); Mr. R. H. F. Lombe (Corpus).—Pioneer.

THE PIONEERS.—By recommendation of the Commander in Chief the 23rd and 32nd Pioneers are to be localised at Rawul Pindi and Mian Mir, the two regiments exchanging stations from time to time, as may appear advisable.—Bombay Gazette.

COLONEL STEWART.—It is stated that Col. J. M. Stewart, deputy judge advocate, Peshawur and Rawul Pindi Circle, is about to take two years' furlough, and that Lieut. W. H. F. Macmullen will probably be brought in to officiate in the department.—Ibid.

SIMLA.—At Simla the monsoon is now fairly at an end, and the magnificent weather which prevails in the hills for many weeks before the commencement of winter has set in. Tourists are taking advantage of this bright season to take trips into the interior, and all the dak bungalows between Simla and Chini, on the borders of Thibet, are crammed with travellers.—Ibid.

MILITARY OFFICERS IN CIVIL EMPLOY.—Considerable discussion has been excited by a statement that the Commander in Chief intends to extend the examination test to military officers in civil employ. The latter admit that steps should be taken to exactly define their status, either as civilians or military men.—Pioneer.

SIMLA JEWEL CASE.—An interesting case is now being tried in Simla. Major General Hamilton, of the retired list, purchased large quantities of precious stones and jewellery from a lapidary, named Jacob, who assured him that he would realise 500 or 600 per cent. by selling the goods in England. This General Hamilton failed to do, or even to realise the cost price, and he is now suing the vendor for Rs.46,000 damages.—Ibid.

TENURE OF COMMAND IN NATIVE REGIMENTS.—We hear that the home authorities refuse to entertain the proposal of the Indian Government that the tenure of command in native regiments should be limited to five years.—Ibid.

CALCUTTA FREIGHTS.—We have had a strong freight market since last mail, and large forward engagements have been made in the steamers for London for October and November shipment both in wheat and jute at former rates. Some eight or ten steamers for forward loading, November and December, have been chartered in the home markets at rates generally 2s. 6d. to 5s. under what could have been obtained here. In sailing ships business has been brisk chiefly for forward loading; for immediate loading high rates had to be paid for London. Our unfixed tonnage continues very limited, amounting to only 1,000 tons.—Englishman.

TEA FOR AUSTRALIA.—The quantity of tea exported from Calcutta to Australia and New Zealand from the 1st to the 22nd of September was 172,320lb., which, with 148,981lb. previously exported between the 1st of May and the 31st of August, makes a total for this season of 321,301lb.—Ibid.

THE MHOW AMMUNITION CASE.—Saraf Ali, the principal offender in what is known as the Mhow ammunition case, has been sentenced to three years' imprisonment and a fine of Rs.2,000, in default of payment one year's further imprisonment. Dowdji, the other prisoner, has been sentenced to one year's imprisonment and a fine of Rs.250, in default of payment six months' further imprisonment. The arms and ammunition have been confiscated.—Ibid.

THE INSPECTOR OF GYMNASIA.—A contemporary understands that it has been decided to abolish the appointment of the one inspector of gymnasia for the whole of India, at present held by Major Hallows, East Yorkshire Regiment, and in place thereof to create four distinct appointments, one with staff salary of Rs.400 per mensem, for Bombay, Bengal, Madras, and Burma.—Pioneer.

THE EDUCATIONAL COMMISSION.—A commission is to assemble in Calcutta during the cold weather to examine into the working of the educational despatch of 1854.—Englishman.

THE BAREIL-KUMAON RAILWAY.—The report that the Bareil and Kumaon Railway scheme had been abandoned is denied. The present prospects of the undertaking are said to be brighter than ever.—Pioneer.

MR. WHITLEY STOKES.—The Hon. Whitley Stokes, law member of Council, will continue in office until next April.

THE CABUL ROYAL FAMILY.—A contemporary states that during "the present season" Yakub Khan's ladies have presented their lord and master with no less than five young Afghans, two sons and three daughters.—Englishman.

SALARIES OF HIGH COURT JUDGES.—Sir Richard Garth, Chief

Justice of Bengal, has written a protest against the order of the Secretary of State making a large reduction in the salaries of future judges of the Calcutta High Court and placing them in that respect on a level with judges of the Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad High Courts.—Englishman.

THE EAST INDIAN NAVAL STATION.—The authorities at Ceylon, with the assistance of Admiral Gore-Jones, are about to inquire into the state of the military defence of that island. The news that Sir William Hewett has been selected by the Admiralty to succeed Admiral Gore Jones has given great satisfaction to naval men employed on the East India station. Admiral Hewett has the reputation of being not only one of the ablest but one of the most popular men in the service. The flag-ship Euryalus is at Trincomalee, where she is expected to remain till the middle of December; and Admiral Jones will probably pay a last visit to Calcutta before returning to Bombay.—Times of India.

MADRAS.

THE "AFRICA."—The British India Company's steamer Africa went ashore near Tellicherry on Saturday, Oct. 1 and has not yet been floated. A portion of the cargo was saved and landed at Tellicherry.—Times of India.

LIEUTENANT CHAMBERLAIN.—It is stated that Lieutenant Neville Chamberlain, 2nd Central India Horse, nephew of Sir Neville Chamberlain, has been appointed aide de camp to Sir Frederick Roberts, the new Commander in Chief of Madras, vice Captain Pole-Carew, Coldstream Guards. Mr. Chamberlain is, among other things, a clever draughtsman, and some of his sketches of episodes in the late Afghan war, which appeared in the Graphic, were the subjects of very favourable criticism in artistic circles.—Ibid.

BOMBAY.

A FALSE RUMOUR.—A Bombay paper gave currency some days ago to a rumour, since exploded, that the Government were in treaty with the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway for the sale to that company of the Rajputana State Railway.—Pioneer.

THE SAWANTWARI DIVORCE CASE.—The Sawantwari divorce case, in which a decree nisi was granted recently against Captain King, lately assistant political officer at Sawantwari, has entered on a fresh stage. The respondent's solicitor has intervened and prayed for a new trial, denying most of the allegations made by the petitioner, and alleging adultery and violent conduct towards her husband on her part. Captain King says he did not meet the charges at the late trial out of consideration for his children. The court has decided to call upon the petitioner to show cause why the decree nisi should not be set aside and a new trial had.—Ibid.

THE PUNA RIFLE MEETING.—The Bombay Central Presidency rifle meeting at Puna closed on Saturday last and the prizes were distributed by Lady Fergusson the same evening. The shooting throughout the meeting was very good. In the Viceroy's Plate competition, corresponding to the distances of the Queen's Prize at Wimbledon, the best score in the first stage (200, 500, and 600 yards) was ninety-five, and in the second stage (800, 900, and 1,000 yards) seventy-eight.—Ibid.

BOMBAY DOCK ACCOMMODATION.—The Prince's Dock at Bombay has proved such a great success that the construction of another wet dock is already under contemplation. At a recent meeting of the Port Trustees it was proposed "that a committee be appointed to consider whether the necessities of the trade require an addition to the dock accommodation, and if so to report on the best method of providing such addition, and the means for procuring the necessary funds."—Ibid.

COL. EDWARDES.—Col. S. De B. Edwardes, Bombay Staff Corps, has been appointed to the command of the Infantry Brigade at Quetta with the rank of brigadier general. He was director of the transport train on the Kandahar side in the late war.—Ibid.

QUETTA APPOINTMENTS.—His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to sanction the following appointments in the Quetta Division:—Col. S. De B. Edwardes, Bombay Infantry, to command the Infantry Brigade with the rank of brigadier general, vice Brigadier General J. H. Henderson, deceased; Capt. A. M. Hogg, 2nd Regiment Sind Horse, to be brigade major, Cavalry Brigade, vice Capt. W. Christie, vacated on being appointed a probationer for the Army Pay Department.—Times of India.

DRUNKENNESS IN THE SUBORDINATE MEDICAL SERVICES.—It is notified in the Bombay general orders that H.E. the Commander in Chief will dispense with the services of every medical subordinate convicted of the crime of drunkenness.—Ibid.

ANOTHER CLERICAL V.C.—A gentleman writes to a contemporary pointing out that the Rev. J. W. Adams is not the only clergyman who enjoys the proud distinction of being a V.C. The Rev. Arthur Mayo, now resident in the north of England, won the decoration before he left the Indian Navy for the Church. The circumstance is fully described in Low's "History of the Indian Navy."—Ibid.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, OCT. 24, 1881.

AN EDUCATIONAL COMMISSION FOR INDIA.

A FORTNIGHT ago we discussed at some length the instructions, as telegraphed by the Times Calcutta correspondent, drawn up to guide the deliberations of the Educational Commission, which, the correspondent tells us, is to sit in the coming cold weather at Calcutta. We promised to return to the consideration of the subject; and, although no further information in regard to the constitution and objects of the proposed Commission has as yet reached England, we commence the fulfilment of our pledge to-day, as we are very sure that the questions involved are of vital importance, not only to the popularity, but also to the efficiency, of our administration of the Indian Empire. We shall assume, for the present, that the Times telegram accurately and adequately expresses the general intention and aims of the proposed conference, as formulated in the minds of the present advisers of his Excellency the Viceroy. On this assumption it will be at once clear to any one at all conversant with the history of the educational controversy in India, that one of the first and most important questions to be discussed by the Commission may be thus broadly and roughly stated: Is it advisable for us to divert, to the laudable purpose of mass education, any of the money now spent on "high education" in maintaining the State colleges and high schools, and, if so, how can we induce private enterprise to step in and take up the work of high education? Whether the first branch of this question be decided in the affirmative or the negative, we may presume that the Commission will in any case proceed to the consideration of the action to be taken on an affirmative decision. The extension of elementary education among the masses of India is obviously of such tremendous importance in itself that a properly constituted educational commission cannot fail to direct its best efforts to the elaboration of a scheme that may conduce to such a desirable end. Major Baring will probably feel compelled, however sorrowfully, to inform the Commission that the state of the finances will not admit of a larger aggregate allotment of funds for education purposes than that already granted; and the Commission must then debate the question, stated above, whether funds for the desired purpose can be obtained by diverting some of the money now spent on the colleges. We propose, in the present series of articles—whilst honestly noting various possibilities on both sides—to endeavour to show that any sudden withdrawal of the State aid to high education is most strongly to be deprecated; and that any effort in the direction of encouraging private enterprise must be made with the utmost caution, and not without full knowledge of the agency into whose hands would fall the task resigned by Government.

In this connection, the first point we would propose for consideration is—How would a change in the direction suggested be regarded by those most nearly concerned, the people of the country?—and how far is native public opinion justified in the view it adopts? There can be no manner of doubt as to the answer that must be returned to the former of these questions. In India the Government that is friendly to high education is at once idolised by the people; the belief that Sir George Campbell was inimical to high education made that Lieutenant Governor the most unpopular ruler that ever occupied Belvedere. This fact is unquestioned, even by those who advocate withdrawal; and it is generally explained by reference to the fact that the classes who make themselves heard, both in the press and in the counsels of Government, are exactly the classes that benefit most by State-aided colleges. We have no hesitation in saying that this explanation is a gross injustice to the many liberal-minded native gentlemen who deprecate the transfer of the State's task to private enterprise. In Calcutta, in Bombay, in Madras, in every great centre of enlightenment in India, we could name many native gentlemen of standing and repute who are far above the suspicion of such selfish motives for their advocacy. And even if this were not so, it must not be forgotten that the cause of withdrawal has always been known to have the strong sympathy of some of the most powerful among the ruling body; and, if selfish motives were the only ones that actuated the native side in the controversy, we should surely find many who would prefer their own personal interests to the interests of their class, and would sooner have the favour of a powerful Secretary than a good education for their young kinsfolk.

And what are the chief points on which native gentlemen insist when they demand the continued maintenance of the State colleges? We will simply state a few. First, India's greatest want is a class of highly educated men, who shall act as pioneers to guide their ignorant countrymen into the promised land of civilisation. Secondly, the aid now given to the higher education by the State is not out of proportion to the revenues of the country; it is not for a moment comparable in amount to the vast endowments (in many cases originally derived from public sources) of our English universities; and, after all, it leaves the cost of an Indian university degree quite as high (taking into consideration the difference in the standards of living) as that of an English university degree. Thirdly, the comparative poverty of the learned classes in India renders it impossible at present for the higher education to do without those aids which are not denied to the far wealthier community of England; endowments, like that of the Kishnaghur College, will in course of time be founded; independent colleges, like that excellent institution the Metropolitan College of Calcutta, will gradually spring up, manned by graduates trained in the State colleges; and in this way the task of the State can be gradually lightened, but it should never be entirely given up. Fourthly, the withdrawal of the Government from the State colleges will immediately increase, to a degree utterly intolerable to native feeling, the importance and the power of the missionary colleges. The latter colleges—entirely apart from their religious teaching—at present do a most useful work in supplementing the Government efforts, and in providing (by the aid of their subscriptions from the charitable classes in England) a somewhat cheaper university education than that otherwise obtainable. But, whilst we can entirely sympathise with that work as at present carried on, it will be readily allowed that Hindu and Muhammadan susceptibilities would be justly outraged by any arrangement that would tend to throw the whole higher education of the country into the hands of Christian missionaries; and, moreover, it is more than doubtful whether the Societies themselves would consent to such a remarkable diversion, from their supposed objects, of the funds of which they are the almoners.

We might name other points, on which native public opinion in India would found its strong objection to any withdrawal of the State from the work of higher education. But we believe we have said enough to convince any impartial person that there is much to justify the view so universally taken in the Indian community.

RAILROADS TO INDIA.

THE opening for traffic, a few days ago, of the Transcaspian Railway from the Caspian harbour of Michaelovsk to the Turkoman caravan centre of Kizil Arvat, and the predictions made by its constructor that a few years will suffice to see the completion of the line to India, suggests the very natural inquiry as to whether Annenkoff's scheme has annihilated the older and more famous project of connecting England and India by a railroad along the Euphrates Valley. The question, it will be at once observed, concerns not only the English public generally, but also the very large number of eminent men who have interested themselves at various times in the Euphrates Valley Railway, and who still regard it in the light of a waiting project. To them, in particular, it must be of importance to know whether the efforts of half-a-century have been destroyed by the Russians at a stroke, and whether they must leave off for the future speculating any more about an English-built railroad to India. Moreover, all persons connected with India must feel an interest in the question as to whether it will not be possible very shortly to run from Charing-cross to the Indies in ten or eleven days, never leaving the railroad once except to cross the Channel and to traverse that narrow sea, or rather lake, the Caspian.

As is tolerably well known, a very large number of projects exist for constructing a railway from the Mediterranean to the Persian Gulf for the purpose of abridging the distance to India, and scarcely a year elapses without a further addition being made to their number. At the head of them all, however, both on the score of simplicity and original merit, stands the Euphrates Valley scheme, with which the name of Mr. W. P. Andrew is so honourably and indissolubly associated. Forty-five years have now elapsed since Mr. Andrew first took up the question in a practical form, and he has continued agitating for the adoption of the scheme down to within the last few months. At several periods there have been excellent prospects of the matter being taken seriously in hand by the Government, but every time obstacles of various kinds, mainly political, have arisen to prevent its adoption. Perhaps, however, the worst obstacle of all the Euphrates scheme has had to contend with has been the multiplicity of rival projects, which have confused English statesmen and impeded them in arriving at a definite decision as to the right policy to pursue. It would appear from an impartial examination of the controversy that the aim of most eminent men interested in the question of a railway to India has been not to patriotically co-operate in the furtherance of any single scheme, but to trot out a fresh one of their own, and to do their utmost to blacken the reputation of all rival projects. Without in any way dealing too severely with unrestrained discussion, it may be truly said that if there had been loyal co-operation on the part of English Projectors, instead of acrimonious self-assertion and egotism, the overland railroad from the Mediterranean to the Persian Gulf would have probably been in mature working order to-day. While English projectors have been squabbling in the newspapers and on the platform Russia has quietly, without any discussion at all, taken the wind out of everyone's sails. Even Annenkoff, proud as he is of his scheme, would not dare to say that his route is the very best that could have possibly been adopted, but any scheme, no matter how great its drawbacks may be, that has elements of success and is swiftly and thoroughly worked out, is better than the best of projects tossed helplessly on the sea of endless discussion. Had it been left to experts to decide which was the best port for communication between England and the United States Liverpool would never have been chosen, and for that matter the question would probably not have been settled yet. However, Liverpool got the start, and soon made up for deficiencies, while Bristol, with all its superior advantages, was left altogether behind in the race. In the same manner the Transcaspian Railway has got the start, and, with the prospect of success it enjoys, many English projectors must feel sorry they did not curb their vanity and give loyal adhesion at the outset of the original Euphrates Valley scheme. Discarding all collateral projects, the English schemes for shortening the distance to India may be briefly represented by two: the Euphrates route, connecting the Mediterranean with the Persian Gulf, and involving a sea voyage both from Brindisi to Alexandretta, and from the head of the Persian Gulf to Bombay; and the direct overland route from Constantinople, through Asia Minor, South Persia, and Beluchistan to India. Among the rival routes associated with both, many started from the Black Sea, but they had a fatal objection that killed them all off, and that was, that the Black Sea stood every chance of eventually becoming a Russian lake, which would render them useless as a means of unassailable communication between England and India. To a certain extent this objection exists also with the direct route through Constantinople, for, with the probability yearly growing less of England always being able to keep that city out of Russia's hands or beyond her influence, he would be a bold statesman who would propose that this country should subsidise railway communication with India in that direction. Further, a part of the European portion of the line would run through Bulgaria, and would thus be under Russia's control, while the whole of the Asiatic portion, consisting of 2,000 or 3,000 miles, would traverse country more or less barbarous and disturbed, and interspersed with numerous deserts. In this matter the question of overland communication with India, thoroughly controllable by England, and capable of easy construction, really resolves itself into a selection of the Euphrates or Tigris routes, which run parallel; and of which the balance of advantage lies with the former, if only for the circumstance that it is far less assailable by Russia than the Tigris route Commander Cameron so strongly advocated a year ago. Having thus eliminated every other scheme except the original Euphrates one, recommended all along by Mr. Andrew, we may proceed to briefly compare it with General Annenkoff's.

To carry out the former it would be necessary to construct a railway from Alexandretta on the Mediterranean, to Grain on the Persian Gulf, 920 miles in length, and costing about ten millions sterling. Its main result—we have no space here to discuss side issues—would be to reduce the journey from England to India by about 1,000 miles, and enable troops to reach Karachi in fourteen days, and Lahore, Delhi, and Peshawur in two or three days more. The distance from London to Karachi would then be 4,823 miles. On the other hand, Annenkoff estimates the distance by his route, from Paris to Sukhur, on the Indus, via Warsaw, Moscow, Baku, Michaelovsk, Kizil Arvat, Sarakhs, Herat, Kandahar, and Quetta at 4,326 miles. Besides being thus 500 miles shorter, it would be traversed by rail the whole way, except in the case of the Channel and the Caspian, and could be performed, he says, in ten or eleven days, making it a good three days shorter than the Euphrates Valley Railway. To complete the link between the Russian system at Kizil Arvat and the Indian system at Dadur, at the entrance to the Bolan Pass, would need very little more mileage of new railways than the Euphrates scheme, and would, moreover, be constructed by two empires instead of by one, Annenkoff proposing that Russia should run on her Transcaspian line to Herat, a distance of 450 miles, and England, on her part, forming a company to extend the railway from Dadur to Herat, 490 miles. There would still remain one or two small links in the Russian railway system to complete before unbroken communication with India could be effected; but the finishing touches are now being given to these links, and the only section needing attention is the line from Kizil Arvat to India. An examination of the Russian system of railways will further show that a more southerly route could be taken than that through Moscow, which would save a deal of time, and remove the objection to travelling through northern latitudes in the depth of winter. Taking into consideration the circumstances of the line throughout, no one can question that Annenkoff's route, besides being the shortest and quickest to India, would be sure to be a favourite one, because it passes mainly through temperate or only moderately hot and cold climates. There would be no heats experienced, as at present in the Red Sea or Persian Gulf, excluding the few hours' run in the summer across the Transcaspian steppe between Michaelovsk and Kazantchik. While, however, pointing out Annenkoff's route as being likely to be the favourite one with private individuals, and hazarding the prediction that it will be opened up in advance of any other, we cannot but express our firm conviction that the very construction of his line will render the opening up of the Euphrates Valley Railway a necessity. However valuable the Herat Railway might be for certain purposes, it would never do for the most essential of all—the conveyance of English troops to India. No one would ever think of proposing the despatch of English troops through Europe and Russia to India, no matter how much the Herat line might be used by individual officers and officials; and hence, if Russia pushed on her railway to Herat (causing us thereby to advance from Dadur to join it) we should need at once some quicker mode of our own of reaching India than that via Suez, in order to counterbalance Russia's increased ability to invade India. It stands to reason if Russian troops could arrive by rail on the Indus in eight or nine days it would never do for us to rest content with the twenty-five days' voyage at present necessary for English troops to reach Karachi. In this manner Annenkoff's success, in completing his line as far as Kizil Arvat, really revives the Euphrates Valley scheme, although, at the same time, the question arises as to whether some modification of it is not needed to make it run on direct through Persia and Beluchistan to India, instead of stopping short at the Persian Gulf. This is a point that ought to be taken up without delay by those interested in the matter, and we would throw out the suggestion that experts should for once let their vanity give way to their patriotism, and, by graceful concessions, endeavour to arrive at unanimity in regard to a practical route. Years ago the Euphrates line could have been constructed without fear of competition. Now, however, it must expect inevitable rivalry on the part of the Herat Railway.—Globe.

BELLARY.—The troops at Bellary, paraded in review order to witness the presentation of medals to two men of the Royal Fusiliers for distinguished service in the field. The brigade was formed up in line, after which three sides were formed close to the flag-staff, where a goodly number of spectators had assembled. The two privates were then called out, and Col. Claridge, the officer now commanding the force in the absence of General Burton, presented them with the medals, making a short speech, which unfortunately was not heard at the flag-staff. The circumstances, under which the medals have been awarded are briefly these:—During the action in front of Kandahar last year these two men carried Lieut. Wood, of their regiment, who was at the time very severely wounded, off the field, under a heavy fire. An officer and two other men, who were assisting them, were shot dead; but these two brave men succeeded in conveying their officer, who was in a dooley at the time, into the city, where unfortunately he expired shortly after arrival. After the ceremony of presentation the troops reformed line and marched past very steadily. The united bands, under the direction of the bandmaster, Royal Fusiliers, played them past in good time.—Times of India.

MR. GRANT-DUFF.—"Words fitly spoken," says the wisest of men, "are like apples of gold in pictures of silver." Not a very good simile; one would expect something happier from a man of Solomon's reputation. For instance, apples of gold and pictures of silver fail to give a correct idea of the value of Mr. Grant-Duff's valedictory remarks at the Richmond dinner. They would be more accurately described as elegant patchwork, a salad full of palatable ingredients, a field glowing with blossoms of pleasing reminiscences, a little choked, perhaps, here and there, by wild flowers of imagination. Mr. Grant-Duff will discover before he has been in the country many weeks that Madras is not all his fancy painted her, not lovely, certainly not divine; on the contrary, extremely commonplace and earthy. He says (a sentence which will probably haunt him all his Indian days) that he is "going forth to write another page in that action, reaction, and interaction of the East and West which forms the most poetical volume in human history." Very pretty! but thou hast left out of thy oratorical category a fourth action, which is rather prevalent in the land whither thou goest—inaction. I would speak to thee also in poetry and ask—

Know'st thou the land where sleep and inaction

Are emblems of life that is liv'd in that clime,

Where a mistri well nigh drove a lord to distraction,

And all through the country no object is time.

Know'st thou the land where once a Trevelyan

Rebell'd and waged war with ink, paper, and pen,

Where two years it took to quell petty rebel'ion

Despite the duke's horses and all the duke's men.

Where loyalty and time have been known to decide

To keep the Queen's birthday about Christmas tide.

Where a century behind man contentedly jogs,

And the mails are said once to have been carried by dogs.

'Tis Madras of the East, the land where the sun

Shines on aught else but what rulers have done.

Your speech notwithstanding, you'll find, my Grant-Duff,

Your "shield" a delusion and your fancies all stuff.

(now Brevet Major) William John Vousden, Bengal Staff Corps, for the exceptional gallantry displayed by him on Dec. 14, 1879, on the Koh Asmai Heights, near Cabul, in charging, with a small party, into the centre of the line of the retreating Kohistani force, by whom they were greatly outnumbered, and who did their utmost to close round them. After rapidly charging through and through the enemy, backwards and forwards several times, they swept off round the opposite side of the village and joined the rest of the troop. Capt. (now Major) Arthur George Hammond, Bengal Staff Corps, for conspicuous coolness and gallantry at the action of the Asmai Heights, near Cabul, on Dec. 14, 1879, in defending the top of the hill with a rifle and fixed bayonet, against large numbers of the enemy, while the 72nd Highlanders and guides were retiring ; and again, on the retreat down the hill, in stopping to assist in carrying away a wounded Sepoy, the enemy being not sixty yards off, firing heavily all the time. Lieut. William Henry Dick Cunyngnam, the Gordon Highlanders, for the conspicuous gallantry and coolness displayed by him on Dec. 13, 1879, at the attack on the Sherpur Pass, in Afghanistan, in having exposed himself to the full fire of the enemy, and by his example and encouragement rallied the men who, having been beaten back, were, at the moment, wavering at the top of the hill. Lance Corporal George Sellar, Seaforth Highlanders (Ross-shire Buffs), for conspicuous gallantry displayed by him at the assault on the Asmai Heights, round Cabul, on Dec. 14, 1879, in having in a marked manner led the attack, under a heavy fire, and, dashing on in front of the party up the slope, engaged in a desperate conflict with an Afghan who sprang out to meet him. In this encounter Lance Corporal Sellar was severely wounded.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

On Wednesday the silver market was quiet, though the price of bars was maintained unaltered at 51 13-16d. per ounce. A small addition was made to the supply of Mexican dollars from abroad, but, although these coins were dull in consequence, the quotation was unchanged at 51d. per ounce. The exchanges from Bombay and Calcutta were telegraphed as previously at rs. 8½d. the rate from Hong Kong being 3s. 9d., and from Shanghai 5s. 1½d. Rupee Paper was offered at a decline, the Four-and-a-Half and Four per Cents. being ¼ lower, at 90½ to ¾ and 83½ to ¾ respectively.—On Thursday, beyond the entire absence of business, there is nothing to report in the silver market. Bars were quoted at 51 11-16d., and Mexican dollars at 51d. The exchanges from the East were unaltered. Rupee paper was flat, the Four and Four-and-a-half per Cents. being 1-16 lower, at 83½ to ¾ and 90½ to ¾ respectively.—On Friday the silver market remained without alteration, bars being quoted at 51 13-16d., and Mexican dollars 51d. per ounce. Business was limited both in the coined and uncoined metal. The exchanges from Bombay and Calcutta were telegraphed at rs. 8d., the rate from Hong Kong being 3s. 9J., and Shanghai 5s. 1½d.—On Saturday prices were unaltered.

CHARTERED MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LONDON, AND CHINA.—The half-yearly general meeting was held on Tuesday, at the banking house of the corporation, 65, Old Broad-street. Mr. Geo. G. Nicol, who presided, in making the usual statement, remarked that, following the usual custom, he would go over the items contained in the accounts on both sides, in order that the shareholders might understand the position of the bank. Turning to the balance-sheet, he said the reserve fund now stood at £65,248, whilst the special reserve fund, which represented the balances, loans, &c., was £73,125, in all amounting to about £600,000. The deposits showed a small increase. Bills payable had increased about £200,000, which did not call for remark. Notes in circulation showed a small decrease, and loans payable stood at £245,000, as against £681,000 last half-year. Cash in hand represented much about the same as it did this time last year. The item which was likely to call forth attention was the great falling off in the Indian Government rupee paper, which had decreased somewhat about a million sterling. At the last meeting he stated that the board expected to realise a profit upon the paper, but the result had not been attained. The other securities did not call for observation. Bills receivable stood at £4,073,125, against £3,751,000 last half-year, showing an increase of about £320,000. Bills discounted also showed an increase of about £60,000. The item freehold banking premises showed no alteration. The profit for the half-year was considerably less than they anticipated. The past half-year had been the most difficult during his connection with the board. The principal cause of this failure—if he might call it failure—was due to the silver conference. At the last moment the French and American Governments declined to do anything. He was astonished to find that at the close of the conference the result of their deliberations came to nil. He expressed a hope that when the congress met again in April next that something would be done. Unless something was done to restore the position of silver—and the whole world was now scrambling for gold—he was afraid that some very serious embarrassments would follow. With regard to the prospects of the half-year, he thought the result, so far as they could judge, had been fair and satisfactory. Competition was so great that profit and exchange were not like they used to be. The merchants' profits were equally small. Another source of profit was the telegraph working. The telegraph was good for the whole community, and, although it might make some difference to them, they ought not to complain altogether. Although it reduced the scale of profits of the bank, still, as it was good for the general community, they ought not to be too selfish. He might mention that the Indian business was never so satisfactory as it was at the present moment. Having alluded to the law charges, which, he said, were always a source of difficult calculation, he stated that unless the shareholders had anything to ask, the business was then, that being an interim meeting, at an end.—A Shareholder called the attention of the meeting to the increase in the item of management, &c., whereas the deposits, loans, and receipts were less.—The Chairman, in reply, said no doubt the expenses were a little more, but since the last meeting they had opened the Japan branch, and that accounted for a certain portion of the increase.—The usual compliment was then paid to the chairman, directors, and officers of the company, and the meeting terminated.

CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA, AND CHINA.—An extraordinary general meeting was held on Wednesday, at the City Terminus Hotel, for the purpose of declaring an interim dividend for the half-year ended June 30 last. Mr. W. Paterson, who presided, in opening the proceedings said that in asking the sanction of the proprietors to the payment of an interim dividend he had to assure them that the accounts fairly admitted of the division. Their general business, on the whole, was going on satisfactorily. It was increasing in volume; but, unfortunately, rates of interest in India were not as remunerative as they used to be, and owing to active competition it was more difficult to make profits on ordinary exchange operations. Under these circumstances he hoped the dividend of 7 per cent. would be considered satisfactory. When they last met the conference on national currency was going on in France. It was continued for some months, but it ended in leaving the whole question in a state of uncertainty for another year. Meanwhile America wanted to take more gold than all the world was producing. Their policy was to keep their transactions as short as they could, avoiding speculations as to what might or what might not happen six months hence. When the accounts were made up for the whole year he believed they would show favourable results. The cotton corner in Liverpool had had little effect in India, nor had the grain ring in Chicago. At present shipments of wheat from Calcutta and Bombay were going on in quantities which would have been considered incredible some years ago, and improved communication up the country also was stimulating the production of other important articles besides grain and seed. The dividend for the half-year at the rate of 7 per cent. having been declared, the proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman, directors, and manager.

EASTERN EXTENSION, AUSTRALASIA, AND CHINA TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—The half-yearly general meeting was held on Wednesday at the Cannon-street Hotel. In moving the adoption of the report, Mr. Pender, M.P., chairman of the board of directors, who presided, said that the gross receipts during the half-year, including Government subsidies, amounted to £191,580. In the corresponding period in 1880 the gross receipts were £173,020, showing an increase of £18,560. Of this increase £9,820 was owing to additional traffic, and the balance represented additional subsidies. The expenses during the half-year, including repairs of cables and expenses of ships, as well as income-tax, absorbed £55,230, against £50,384 for the corresponding half-year, showing an increase of £4,846, which was caused by the additional expense requisite for renewals of cables and the maintenance of ships, by additional income-tax, and by contributions to the staff insurance company. From the balance of £136,350 had to be deducted £41,595 for interest on debentures and contributions to sinking funds, for redemption of the Australian Government subsidy and Manila debentures, leaving £94,755 as the net profit for the half-year, as against £95,535 for the corresponding period. This was a decrease of £780. Out of the half-yearly revenue, however, £13,295 had been set aside for the redemption of the Australian Government subsidy and the Manila debentures, and £2,500 for interest on the Manila debentures. Only for these special charges, the net revenue would have been at least £14,000 more than it had been. An interim dividend had been already declared at 1¼ per cent. It was now proposed to distribute another dividend of the same amount, together with the a bonus of 1s. per share, payable that day. This would make a total dividend of 3 per cent. for the half-year, after paying which they would carry forward £34,830. There was one paragraph in the report to which he desired to draw special attention. He alluded to the one informing the shareholders that the Singapore-Batavia cable had for some time past been a source of anxiety, owing to the increasingly numerous and costly repairs which had been necessary to maintain the line in working order. The directors had decided to replace it with a brass ribboned cable, 580 miles in length, designed to resist the attacks of a marine insect called the teredo, which had been very destructive to the old line. The chairman produced some of the cable after its interior had been scooped out and rendered positively useless by the insect referred to. A satisfactory arrangement had been entered into with the Telegraph Construction Company to carry out the work and pick up existing cable for £95,000, which it was proposed to pay out of revenue by instalments. It was hoped that by this means a large annual saving would be effected on the cost of repairs, and that by the arrangement made for payment of the new cable the dividend to the shareholders would not be interfered with. From £7,000 to £10,000 had been lost during the past three years by the ravages of this little insect. He hoped that when next he met them—six months hence—to be able to report that the new cable was laid and that the old one had been taken up and repaired in such a way as to render it proof against the ravages of the teredo. It was with much regret that the directors had to report the death of their colleague Colonel Glover, who had been in the service of the company since its formation, and who was generally esteemed and prized. The Marquis of Tweeddale seconded the motion for the adoption of the report, and it was agreed to unanimously. A vote of regret at the loss of Colonel Glover and sympathy with his widow and family, proposed and seconded by shareholders, concluded the proceedings.

OBITUARY.—We have to record the death, on the 17th inst., of Mr. Gabriel B. Worms, who was born in 1801, and was one of the founders of the modern prosperity of Ceylon. Writing, about forty years ago, of the Rothschild estate in Ceylon, called so by Messrs. Worms after their grandfather, Sir Emerson Tennent said, "No capitalists in the colony have contributed more to its advancement by judgment and moderation in times of excitement, and by firmness and perseverance in times of difficulty. Hereafter, when the great project to which they have devoted their lives shall have attained its full development, Ceylon, in the plenitude of commercial success, will remember with gratitude the names of men like these, who were the earliest pioneers of its prosperity." Mr. Gabriel Worms was brother of Baron Solomon de Worms, and uncle of Baron Henry de Worms, M.P. He has bequeathed £4,000 to the United Synagogue, the interest to be applied to its poor; £1,000 to the Berkeley-street Synagogue; £1,000 to the Rev. A. L. Green, of the Central Synagogue; £1,000 to Professor Marks. During his life the late Mr. Worms gave the greater part of his annual income away in charity.

CEYLON.—The development of the coasting trade of Ceylon by the establishment of a safer and more convenient mode of transit than at present exists there, both for goods and passenger traffic, has for some time past been occupying the attention of those who are interested in the commercial progress of the island. In furtherance of the object which they have in view, it has been determined to construct a new line of coasting steamers, and the first of these is now being built by Messrs. Forrest and Son, at the Britannia Yards, Millwall. This vessel, which is to be called The Lady Longden, in compliment to the wife of the Governor of Ceylon, Sir J. Longden, is to be 125ft. long, with 20ft. beam, and a draught of about 9ft. She will be made of steel, and will be provided with engines of forty horse-power. Her accommodation for passengers will be ample, and she is to have a speed of nine knots. The new steamer is, in accordance with contract, to be delivered to the owner, Mr. Tambya Pillay, at the end of the month. It is to the exertions of this gentleman that the project of having a line of steamers to trade round the island is mainly, if not entirely, due; and, as it is, we understand, the first enterprise of the kind which has been started in Ceylon by native energy and at the expense of the natives themselves, it is hoped that it will be attended with the success which its authors anticipate.—Times.

THE STAFF CORPS AND INDIAN ARMY FUND.

The following letter has been addressed to the editor of the Morning Post:

"Sir,—Will you permit me to supplement the correspondence on the subject of the new Indian Army pension rules by pointing out yet another consequence of the penalties on account of leave. It is one which I think is of more public interest than any. It has not, so far as I am aware, been adequately noticed as yet either in the newspapers or elsewhere that the rule by which officers are compelled to make good the leave they have had beyond prescribed limits causes the highest and most important posts to be inevitably filled by the most sickly and bad constituted officers. The reason is obvious. The more sickly a man is the more leave is he obliged to take on medical certificate, and the more healthy he is the less is he likely to require such leave. The healthy and strong men have therefore a less amount of leave to make good under the penal clauses before they qualify for pension, and they are in consequence almost always able to retire some years before their weaker brethren. Thus are the weaker ones always in the position of seniority, and the principle of compelling them to take good the leave which sickness has obliged them to make good would really seem to be a contrivance for apportioning regimental command by the survival of the weakest instead of the fittest. I am well aware that the time during which command can be held is to be limited, but owing to the present block there are plenty of officers who have not yet risen to command, but are none the less old and effete. Leave penalties may be described as 'a scheme for always retaining the worst officers.'—Yours obediently, W. ALLISON, Secretary, Barrister at Law, 22 Grosvenor-mansions, Oct. 18."

COLONIAL HANDBOOKS, MAPS, &c.

NOW READY.

CANADA—including Ontario, North-West Territory, Manitoba, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, &c. With New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo., 288 pp. Cloth, 6s. "Athenaeum," June 26, 1881.—"Full of information and statistics, which ought to prove very serviceable to any visitor to the Dominion."

"Times."—"Under the above title Messrs. Silver have brought out much more than a mere 'Handbook to Canada,' an historical, political, social, geographical, and topographical guide for the use of travellers and settlers over the greater portion of our North-American possessions. The need of such a work, at once handy, comprehensive, and trustworthy, has long been felt both by intending settlers and by readers at home, who are surprised, and not unnaturally, at the scanty information about so important a territory which is accessible to them. The volume is illustrated by a map, showing the whole extent of the Canadian Confederation from the shores of the Atlantic to those of the Pacific, and exhibiting all the details of inland communication, whether by Railway or the long chain of inland lakes. Those who have friends in British Columbia, Manitoba, &c., will find this map most useful; and it may be added that the historical chapters are full of materials for the future historian of Canada, or for the writer of an article on that subject in an encyclopaedia."

"Manitoba Daily Free Press."—"Comprised in this book is a mass of valuable information, which cannot fail to impress every reader with an intelligent idea of the great resources and capabilities of our country. In fact, we are convinced that in the words of the preface, a comprehensive, reliable, and at the same time cheap and handy work has been produced, which will furnish the kind of information most sought for in regard to the Dominion, and especially in regard to Manitoba and the North West territories. We have every reason to think that this handbook to Canada is one of the best contributions to immigration literature yet produced. It is also very handsomely got up tastefully bound, and very well printed."

"Graphic."—"We are already acquainted with Messrs. Silver's Handbooks to Australasia and South Africa. They are concisely written, accurate in information, and full of practical details. The same praise may be accorded to the volume now before us, which comprises a survey of the whole of British North America, the reader's researches being aided by an excellent map. To the intending emigrant the descriptions of Manitoba and British Columbia will be especially attractive."

Shows more impressively than probably any other kind of publication could the immense activity of our Australian Colonies and the rapid advances they have made since their very recent foundation. . . It is a creditable and useful, and, we believe, trustworthy publication."

A MILITARY HISTORY OF THE MADRAS ENGINEERS AND PIONEERS.

VOL. I.

Compiled by Major H. M. VIBART,

Royal (late Madras) Engineers.

The Work will be completed in Two Vols.

THESE Corps were raised last century by the Honourable East India Company. As the power of the Company increased, these bodies were enlarged from time to time. Up to 1740, the Company being mere traders, it was of course unnecessary to call in the assistance of Engineers. Shortly after that time, however, it was found imperative to obtain Engineers to enable the Company to hold its own in contests with the French and the Native Powers.

Up to 1770 the Company found it sufficient to obtain Engineers from any sources which were at the time most convenient to them, but in that year it was considered necessary to establish their Corps of Engineers on a strictly military basis, with an experienced officer of Royal Engineers as Commandant.

It is proposed in this compilation to trace the gradual increase of the Corps, and in doing so to detail the manner in which it has been utilised to assist in extending the dominions of the Company.

After the great Indian Mutiny, the power of the Company merged into the Crown, and since then the Madras Engineers has become a part of the distinguished Corps of Royal Engineers. The officers of the Indian Engineers are still retained on separate lists, but their complete absorption is merely a matter of time. It seems, then, appropriate that before this occurs a record of their services should be drawn up.

In recording the campaigns and sieges in which they have been employed, the reports of the Engineers themselves will be made use of as largely as possible.

At first no regular Sappers were employed, but bodies of men were, as occasion required, trained as Pioneers to assist the Engineers.

In 1780 a regular body of Pioneers was formed, and up to 1881 this body was employed with considerable success in both civil and military operations.

In 1831 the Pioneer organisation was altered, and the regiment became the Madras Sappers and Miners. From 1831 to 1876 they retained that appellation.

In 1876, when H.R.H. the Prince of Wales visited India, their title was altered to the Queen's Own Sappers and Miners, while H.R.H. was appointed Honorary Colonel.

The Corps has greatly distinguished itself in many campaigns, and being still in a highly efficient state, is as ready as ever to do good work for the country.

In this publication it is intended to incorporate their services with those of the Madras Engineers, a corps with which they have naturally been closely connected throughout their career.

The First Volume will be illustrated by more than Twenty Plans and Maps, and will contain a View of Addiscombe College.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, OCT. 31, 1881.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Oct. 13; Madras and Allahabad, Oct. 11; Calcutta, Oct. 10.

THE following are the reports of the Revenue and Agricultural Department on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending Oct. 4, 1881:—

"GENERAL REMARKS.—Beneficial rain has fallen in the Deccan and Southern Mahratta Country of the Bombay Presidency, and there has consequently been a continued improvement in prospects there. Rain has also again fallen in the Nizam's territories and in the Mysor State, and the outlook continues favourable. In the Madras Presidency, excepting a few districts where more rain is wanted, the general prospects are good. In Assam excessive rain has done some damage to crops in parts; but prospects are, on the whole, favourable. In Bengal also there has been too much rain in some districts, but in others the fall is reported insufficient. The harvesting of autumn crops is nearly finished, with a fair average outturn. From the North West Provinces and Oudh light local showers are again reported in the eastern tracts; but more rain seems required in parts for the rabi sowings. In the Central Provinces there have been more or less heavy showers. The prospects of the kharif crops are good, and preparation for the rabi sowings is being made. In the rest of the country, i.e., in the Punjab, in the Central India and Rajputana States, in Berar, in Coorg, and in British Burma agricultural prospects are, on the whole, either fair or good. Generally the season has been favourable and harvesting continues. The usual autumnal fevers are, however, prevalent.

"MADRAS, Oct. 5.—General prospects good.

"BOMBAY, Oct. 5.—Beneficial rain in Nasik, Ahmednagar, Khandesh, Satara, and Southern Mahratta Country; cholera disappearing, excepting in Ahmednagar and Satara; fever and cattle disease continue in parts; general tendency of prices downwards.

"BENGAL, Oct. 5.—Rain in most parts of province during week; prospects of late rice good; more rain still required in some districts in Cooch Behar; late rice in low lands and tobacco seedlings have suffered from too much rain and floods; some damage to rice crops also reported in a few other places; rats have destroyed much paddy in Chittagong Hill Tracts; in Lohardugga and Manbhoom insects in places injuring rice; harvesting of autumn crops nearly finished with a fair average outturn on the whole; fever prevalent in many districts and cattle disease in some.

"N.W. PROVINCES AND OUDH.—Light local showers in eastern districts and Saharanpore, elsewhere no rain has fallen during the week; more required; crops slightly injured in places, but generally good; prices rising in Lucknow, Partabgarh, Allahabad, Farukhabad, and Meerut, elsewhere stationary; fever everywhere prevalent, and increasing in eastern districts; measles in Kumaon; cattle disease in Kumaon, Jhansi, Cawnpore, and Gorakhpur, is decreasing in Fyzabad, but has appeared in Rae Bareilly.

"PUNJAB, Oct. 4.—Rain has fallen in the Rawul Pindi district; agricultural prospects good, except in the Hissar district, where the late kharif crops are suffering for want of rain; cholera disappearing, but the usual autumnal fever is prevalent in the districts of Delhi, Hissar, Jullundur, Lahore, Ferozepore, and Rawul Pindi; prices fluctuating.

"CENTRAL PROVINCES.—Weather cloudy and closer with rain; prospects of kharif crops good on the whole; preparation being made for rabi sowings; cholera abating; fever prevalent in some districts; prices stationary.

"BRITISH BURMA, Oct. 1.—Public health good; a little sporadic cholera in some places; a good deal of cattle disease in one district of Bassein, elsewhere very trifling; crops continue to do well.

"ASSAM, Oct. 5.—River falling; some damage caused to crops on low lands; weather seasonable; aus rice in neighbourhood of Dinjan seriously damaged by the rain of last month; cattle disease still reported; public health good.

"MYSOR AND COORG, Sept. 28.—In the Mysor State generally prospects good; crops everywhere continue good except in the Maidan taluks, Shimoga, and Kadur districts, where deficiency of rain is still felt, and prospects are unfavourable; at the headquarters of those districts no rain fell; slight fluctuations in prices of food grain.

"BERAR AND HYDERABAD, Oct. 5.—Crops progressing favourably; ground being prepared for rabi sowings; water in tank still insufficient for rabi crops; cholera abating; cattle disease prevails in places.

"CENTRAL INDIA STATES, Oct. 5.—Recent heavy showers have been beneficial to the kharif crop, and will be of much advantage for rabi sowings.

"RAJPUTANA.—Tanks and wells good; crops good; weather seasonable.

"NEPAL, Sept. 29.—Heavy damp weather continues at Katmandu, and is telling against the prospects of the late rice; a plentiful fall of rain in and about Gorhha and in the Eastern Terai has removed the fear of scarcity in those parts.

At the date of the departure of the mail the severe outbreak of choleraic fever at Umritsar was still causing great mortality. There had been only eight deaths from cholera in the city of Bombay during the preceding week. The latest reports from Aden respecting the recent outbreak of the disease were favourable. Cholera was reported to be still severe at Sialkote, but with that exception the disease had died out in Northern India.

THE interruption on the Indo-European line of telegraph from India to England—caused by a break between England and Germany—has delayed the transmission of the usual Monday telegrams to the Times, on which we Anglo-Indians at home are now accustomed to rely so much for our telegraphic news.

A REUTER'S telegram from Bombay, dated to-day, October 31, announces that the Right Hon. E. Grant-Duff, the newly-appointed Governor of Madras, landed there this morning, and was received with the usual honours.

THE papers received by the mail teem with comments on the extension of finance decentralisation announced in the Government resolution, of which we gave a telegraphic summary three weeks ago. The extension, so far as it was carried by the distinct wording of the resolution—which may be said roughly to correspond with the extension ultimately contemplated by Lord Lytton's Government—is received with universal approbation. At the time of the departure of the mail the further extension indicated by the Government of India's letter to the Government of Bengal (of which we gave a telegraphic summary a fortnight ago) had not been made public. It was, however, "adumbrated" in the resolution; and the Calcutta Englishman, in an article, which we reprint elsewhere, takes a view of the hints therein thrown out identical with the opinion expressed in our columns—we, too, "doubted whether the country is yet ripe for any comprehensive advance" in the direction of the transfer of certain branches of revenue and expenditure from provincial to local heads. We must frankly confess that we fear local extravagance; and, since extravagance must be paid for, we dread an elasticity of conscience on the part of local committees in the enhancement of the easily-imposed burdens on the land, i.e., upon the poor ryots.

WE learn from the Englishman that the Government of India has under consideration an important scheme, emanating from Calcutta, for the construction of the long-proposed railway from Raipur, in the Central Provinces to Barakar, on the East Indian line. The negotiations are proceeding favourably, and are likely to be shortly concluded. The projectors, among other terms, are desirous of acquiring a considerable extent of waste land along the line. To this the Government are inclined to agree. A guarantee is also likely to be granted, but it will extend only to the period of construction. This railway would form the connecting link in a direct line of communication between Bombay and Calcutta.

SIR F. J. ROBERTS's family left last week by P. and O. steamer for Madras. We understand that Sir Frederick himself will follow this week in the Bangalore, via Venice.

A SIMLA telegram to the Times of India, dated October 12, states that Daoud Shah, Commander in Chief of the late Shere Ali's army, and Mustapha Hubibulla Khan are negotiating with the Ameer for leave to return to Cabul.

THE Viceroy and party left Simla on the 8th inst. for their trip into the interior. Lady Ripon, not feeling well enough for the trip, has remained behind.

It is notified that the Viceroy leaves Simla on November 1 for his tour. H.E. the Commander-in-Chief had already left for his tour in Assam before the departure of the mail.

MR. W. DIGBY, C.I.E., formerly editor of the Madras Times, whose fame as the indefatigable and able secretary of the Madras Famine Relief Fund is well known to most of our readers, has submitted a series of proposals on Indian policy to the consideration of the council of the Liberal Federation. Mr. Digby, though a sound Liberal, is not a violent partisan in regard to matters of Indian policy. His numerous articles on the Afghan and Central Asian questions that appeared in the Madras Times showed that he was entirely free from the Liberal craze on those crucial points, and the general attitude of his mind, though it is not altogether free from the usual fault of pronounced Liberals in Indian matters, a tendency to insist on "progress at any price," is far more judicial than is usual in ardent "reformers." So that, if Indian questions must be brought into the arena of English party politics at all, there are probably few better qualified for the task of introducing them than Mr. Digby. But we protest, most earnestly and most sincerely, against their introduction. Not many weeks ago we endeavoured to show, in an article on "Indian Difficulties caused by English Party Spirit," that some of the wisest measures ever attempted in India have been utterly spoilt in this way; whilst to the same baneful source we owe some of the most pernicious innovations.

THE alarming tendency of the present day, in regard to the point here noted, is warmly deprecated by the Pioneer received by to-day's mail, in criticising some of Mr. Cunningham's remarks in his "British Rule in India":—

"Lord Northbrook was as 'straight' a man as ever lived, and an never have been guided by crooked motives. But none the less he set the frightful example of resigning because he had fallen out with the Secretary of State. 'Then came the sin of Tristram and Iseult.' And here we are landed in a state of things in which Viceroys actually talk as if it was their first duty to obey the Secretary of State! The theory is not so much a good theory pushed so excess as a theory which is radically wrong and based on a total misconception of the true theory of the government of India. What would happen now if Mr. Gladstone's Ministry were turned out, and if the Conservatives came in with a hundred majority, as might happen any day if a fit of ill temper impelled our wonderful Premier to make an appeal to the ridiculous weathercocks called constituencies? Would Lord Ripon be the third Viceroy to go out with his party? Though sympathising very little with the particular piece of party policy he came out to put in force, we hope most sincerely he would do nothing of the kind; but the situation would inevitably be strained, and ten to one a most embarrassing state of relations would arise between him and the new man at the India-office. Surely this great question about the government of India, as an imperial and not a party task, is one which no influential writer ought to treat on the see-saw principle. With which protest we close Mr. Cunningham's book for the present only."

UNTIL India is represented at Westminster, the only result of bringing Indian questions before the tribunal of an ill-informed and selfish public opinion in England must be the subordination of Indian interests to English interests, or else the regulation of Indian policy by English sentimental folly. And the most intelligent of our Indian fellow-subjects are quite acute enough to see this. Hear what the Indian Spectator, of Bombay, to hand by this mail, says of a case supposed—wrongly, we believe—to be a case in point:—

"What is this we hear about the resuscitation of the 'Naval Adviser' to the Government? Cannot Simla society live without this costly superfluity? We remember having read the Bombay Review's slashing criticisms of the Bythesea job; and we thought that with the retirement of the gallant admiral there was an end to it. But here we see the authorities are at it again. We are afraid this preying on Indian revenues is the besetting sin of both the parties—the Liberals are not a whit more scrupulous than the Conservatives. We think the whole Indian Press ought to denounce the appointment with one voice."

THE Journal of the National Indian Association has the following notes on the movements of some of our Indian visitors in England:—Mr. Satish C. Mukerji has passed the examination required for the M.D. degree by the University of Aberdeen, and also the Sanitary Science Examination of the University of Cambridge. Mr. M. L. Dey has passed the Second M.B. Examination of the University of Glasgow. Arrivals—Assistant Surgeon N. P. Sinha and Mr. S. P. Sinha, from Beerbhoom, Bengal; the former on a visit to England, the latter for the Bar. Mr. Narendra Natha Mitra and Mr. M. M. Ghosh, from Calcutta, for the Bar. Departure—Surgeon J. K. Kanga, of the Indian Medical Staff, in the Crocodile, for Bombay.

WE take from the same useful magazine a notice of Mr. R. Chetti, M.C.S., whose premature death we recorded last week:—"With deep regret we record the death, September 28, of Mr. P. Ratnavelu Chetti, C.S., aged 25, at Palghat, Madras, from the effects of a gun accident. He was the only native covenanted civilian of the Madras Presidency, and his career was one of bright promise. While at Oxford and in London Mr. Chetti made many friends, who will lament his early death, and he is mourned by a wide circle in India."

THE current number of this Journal is perhaps the best that has yet appeared, and bears testimony to the valuable work that is being quietly and unobtrusively done by the association. We shall take an early opportunity of noticing some of the articles in detail; meanwhile, we append a list of them:—"On Eastern Proverbs," "The Sports and Amusements of the Natives of India," "Hindu Widows," "An Address to Students," "The Mysor Ryot," "The Cultivation of Science in India," "A Literary Suggestion," "The Popular Dramas of Bengal," "Receptions at Patna," "Schools at Bangalore," "India's Duty to England," "Indian Intelligence," "Personal Intelligence."

A PROJECT for the extension of the Southern India Railway to Travancore is under consideration.

MR. K. F. NORDMANN, executive engineer, has been appointed by the Madras Government to make a preliminary examination in view to the selection of the best line for a railway between the littoral of Vizagapatam and Raipore in the Chattisgarh district of the Central Provinces.

THE Director General of Stores for India notifies, by order of the Secretary of State for India in Council, that he is prepared to receive tenders up to the 8th prox. at the India-office for the supply of locomotive engines and tenders for metre-gauge railways.

THE following promotions and appointments have been made:—Lieut. Col. H. McLeod, Royal Artillery, first class commissary of ordnance, Bangalore, has been appointed superintendent of the Gun Carriage Factory, Madras, in succession to Col. S. H. E. Chamier, Royal Artillery, who has succeeded Major General R. Cadell, C.B., Royal Artillery, as inspector general of ordnance in India, that officer's period of staff service in that appointment having expired. Lieut. Col. and Brevet Col. J. J. McL. Innes, V.C., Royal (late Bengal) Engineers, accountant general and deputy secretary, Public Works Department, India, has been appointed deputy inspector general of Military Works, India, in succession to Major General A. Cadell, Royal (late Bengal) Engineers, who has succeeded Lieut. General C. W. Hutchinson, Royal (late Bengal) Engineers, as inspector general of Military Works on his retirement. Major Alex. J. Filgate, Royal (late Madras) Engineers, deputy accountant general and ex officio under secretary to the Government of India, has been selected to succeed Lieut. Col. and Brevet Col. J. J. McL. Innes as accountant general and deputy secretary, Public Works Department, India; and Major L. C. Conway-Gordon, Royal (late Bengal) Engineers, commandant of the 2nd Infantry, Hyderabad Contingent, succeeds Major Filgate as deputy accountant general, Public Works Department, India. The latter officer is, however, to continue in his present appointment as officiating manager, Indus Valley State Railway, until further orders.

We hear that Lieut. Col. G. S. White, V.C., C.B., Military Secretary to the Marquis of Ripon, will vacate his appointment on the Viceregal Staff in India before the close of the year, and proceed to England, in anticipation of the return of the 2nd Battalion Gordon Highlanders from Natal. Col. White will assume the command of the Gordon Highlanders immediately after their arrival, in succession to Col. G. H. Parker, C.B., who retires, and it has now been definitely arranged that he shall be relieved in his duties in Lord Ripon's household by Capt. Lord William Beresford, V.C., 9th Lancers.

This is what the Army and Navy Gazette says about the recent marvellous advances of the Russian troops in Central Asia:—"In this manner, before many months have passed, Russia, besides being able to march an army from Michaelovsk to Herat a week more quickly than ourselves, will be able to despatch a force from Odessa to Michaelovsk in nineteen days' less time than reinforcements could be sent from England to Sukhur via Karachi. Consequently, Russia, to-day a week nearer Herat than we are, will, by next year, be twenty-six days nearer the key of India. Such a prospect is so alarming, that we are surprised it has not yet drawn forth a warning from Rawlinson or other Central Asian experts." But of what avail are warnings from "Rawlinson or other Central Asian experts?" Mr. Gladstone is convinced that the Russians' advance towards the gates of India is "a mission of civilisation;" and he will not be persuaded of his error even though one rose from the dead to persuade him. Rawlinson, and every other Central Asian expert that we have ever heard of, have never indeed ceased their warnings; but the voice is that of one crying in the wilderness, as far as our Premier is concerned, who prefers the Central Asian experience that is acquired in Downing-street.

The decorators and furnishers are at last out of the beautiful new club-house of the Empire Club, 4, Grafton-street, Piccadilly, and on Friday next it will be ready for the use of members. The club now numbers close on six hundred members, including nearly every Anglo-Indian of note now resident in or near town. The committee, already a particularly strong one, has been further strengthened by the election thereto of the following members:—The Duke of Manchester, K.P., his Highness the Maharaja Duleep Sing, G.C.S.I., the Right Hon. Sir Bartle Frere, G.C.B., G.C.S.I., the Hon. J. A. Chapeau, Q.C., Premier of Quebec; and the Hon. Sir Samuel Wilson, late of Melbourne.

The Times of India gives the following obituary for the week ending October 13:—Col. Willoughby Osborne, C.B., Political Agent, Gwalior, and Surgeon Major J. W. R. Amesbury.

On the career of the distinguished officer whose name unhappily heads the death-list of the week the same paper has the following:—

"The death is announced at Mussoorie, on the 4th inst., of Col. Willoughby Osborne, C.B., Political Agent, Gwalior. The deceased officer had been seriously ill for some little time past, and on his arrival at Mussoorie it was seen that he was in a very critical state. Col. Osborne belonged to the Madras Staff Corps and had greatly distinguished himself during the Mutiny. The following is the official record of his services:—"Served throughout the Indian Mutiny campaigns of 1857-59. Was engaged in nine affairs between June and December 1857 (wounded). Commanded in the operations against the 3-gun Fort of Runchundpore, and present at its capture on Dec. 7; Joorah on Dec. 17; fortified town of Myhere on Dec. 23; the 22-gun Fort of Myhere, on Jan. 3, 1858; Jokehaie, on Jan. 19; Kunwarrah, 3-gun Fort, on Jan. 21; Bigirigoogurh, 13-gun Fort, on Jan. 24 (wounded); Fort of Jigneehut, on May 22. Also present at the action of Kurereah on Jan. 1, 1859 (wounded); and at Kentee on March 5, 1859 (C.B., honorary aide de camp to the Viceroy of India, medal with clasp for Central India.) Col. Osborne was the type of a brave, true-hearted soldier and gentleman, and in private life his hospitality and generosity were proverbial. He was devoted to his work, and his kind and humane disposition made him exceptionally popular with all classes of natives. So great was Sindiah's attachment to him that the Maharaja used in the evening to gallop into the Residency from Gwalior and sit with him during his sickness. By his death the State has lost a valued and trusted servant."

WOMEN DOCTORS IN INDIA.

THE October number of the Indian Female Evangelist contains an interesting description of an interview last April between the Maharanee of Punnah and Miss Beilby, a lady medical missionary at Lucknow. We make the following extracts:—

"Punnah is the capital of a native State in Bundelcund, Central India, a city of 12,000 inhabitants, situated above 200 miles south of Lucknow and 100 south of Allahabad. The sovereign of this State, the Maharaja of Puna, applied to Miss Beilby last year for medical attendance for his wife, the Maharanee, who had long been suffering from a painful internal disease. It would have been impossible for her to have obtained relief at the hands of any but a lady doctor, as native customs wholly preclude an inmate of a zenana from being seen by any man but her father, husband, or brother. The call was an urgent one, and Miss Beilby went to Punnah to attend the Maharanee, residing many weeks in the midst of this heathen court, and in a native city where there is no other European.* Her skill and care in the treatment of this Indian Princess were blessed of the God she serves, and a cure effected. She was also able, while in attendance on the Maharanee, to relieve many poor patients in the city and in the native hospital. When the time of her departure from Punnah arrived, she was desired to present herself at the palace to take leave of her Royal patient, on Wednesday, April 13 last. The Maharanee received her in her private room, and almost immediately dismissed all her attendants and ladies, so that she might be quite alone with her. The Maharanee then said she wished Miss Beilby to make her a solemn promise. Without knowing what it might involve she was reluctant to do this, but at length the Maharanee said:—"You are going to England, and I want you to tell our Queen† and the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the men and women in England, what the women in the zenanas in India suffer when they are sick. Will you promise me to do this?" She explained that it was no social change in their condition she sought, but relief in their cruel sufferings. She charged Miss Beilby to give this message herself to the great Queen of England, not to send it through any other channel, but to take it herself, or her Majesty would think less of it.

"Miss Beilby represented to the Maharanee the difficulty she would have in getting access to the Queen—that with us it is not as in the East, where anyone can go to the palace and lay a petition before the native Sovereign. Besides, she told her she hardly knew what good it would do if she could do as she wished and take her message to our Queen. The Queen could not make lady doctors, or order them to go out. It was not in the power of even the great Queen of England to do this. 'But,' said the Maharanee, 'did not you tell me our Queen was good and gracious, that she never heard of sorrow or suffering without sending a message to say how sorry she was, and trying to help? Did you not show me a picture of a train falling into the sea, where a bridge broke, and did you not tell me how grieved our Queen was? Well, it was very sad those people should have been killed, but our condition is far worse. If you will only tell our Queen what we Indian women suffer when we are sick I am sure she will feel for us and try to help us.' Miss Beilby felt she could no longer refuse to promise to convey this message, if possible. The Maharanee next bade her write it down at once (giving her pen, ink, and paper) lest she should forget it, and added, 'Write it small, Doctor Miss Sahiba, for I want to put it in a locket, and you are to wear this locket round your neck till you see four great Queen and give it her yourself. You are not to send it through another.'

"On Miss Beilby's return to England, the Queen having been told by some of the ladies of her Court of Miss Beilby's work and her message, determined, in spite of all difficulties and many engagements, to see her and hear all for herself, and accordingly sent for her. Her Majesty listened with great interest, asking many questions and showing the deepest sympathy. Turning to her ladies she said, 'We had no idea it was as bad as this; something must be done for these poor creatures.' The Maharanee's locket, with its message, was given to the Queen, and her Majesty entrusted Miss Beilby with a message in reply, which was intended for the Maharanee alone. But the Queen also gave Miss Beilby a message which might be given to everyone with whom she spoke on the subject:—"We should wish it generally known that we sympathise with every effort made to relieve the suffering state of the women of India."

"The Maharanee, in parting with Miss Beilby, said, in solemn and earnest accents, 'If you forget your promise your God will judge you.' She did not say 'my God,' or 'this or that God,' but 'your God.'"

[FROM THE "TIMES."]

IT is one of the merits of missionary societies that they now and then furnish us with interesting information, which would not readily reach us through other channels, about the many millions of alien races subject to British sway or dependent on British protection. Mission agents penetrate where officials or private persons have no wish and no call to penetrate, and they enable us to realise wants and needs of whose existence we should often otherwise be but dimly conscious. The zenana, the Hindoo counterpart of the Mahomedan harem, with its hidden life and jealous seclusion, is one of those social phenomena of India which are accepted by us without comment and excite little attention. Occasionally, however, they emerge into notice through some such incident as that of which we published a few remarkable details in another column. The Maharajah of Punnah, the capital of a native State in Central India, applied for the assistance of a lady medical missionary at Lucknow for his wife, the Maharanee, who was suffering from an internal complaint. It is a dishonour for a Hindu lady of high caste—in the Bengal Presidency, at all events—to see or be seen by a man other than her husband, father, or brother. Rather than take advantage of the professional skill of the English civil surgeon, death is preferred. He can do no more than prescribe for a case, according to the imperfect description given of it by the native nurse or midwife. Good and charitable persons at home have seen their opportunity, and started a zenana and medical mission, which gives lady missionaries to India a medical training peculiarly fitting them to relieve Hindu women. Miss Beilby, the lady medical missionary sent for by the Maharaja of Punnah, traversed the 200 miles between Lucknow and that place, and by her skill restored the Maharanee to health, besides relieving other more humble patients. Miss Beilby's departure from Punnah was the occasion of a touching interview with the Maharanee. This distinguished patient preferred a request and exacted a promise which testify remarkably to the confidence felt in the remotest corners of the empire in the Queen's womanly sympathy. "I want you," said the Maharanee, "to tell our Queen and the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the men and women in England, what the women in the zenanas in India suffer when they are sick." Miss Beilby was made to write down the message in small characters, and to put it in a locket, which was to be given by her own hands to the Empress of India, who, as the Maharanee has been told, "never heard of sorrow or suffering without sending a message to say how sorry she was and trying to help." The message was duly delivered, and we may be sure that the answer entrusted to Miss Beilby carried the assurance of the Queen's warm sympathy and desire to mitigate the sufferings of the many millions of women among her Mahomedan as well as her Hindu subjects. The appeal made by the Maharanee of Punnah is one which can be practically met. She asked for no change in the social condition of Hindu high-caste females, but for European women trained as doctors who should attend them in sickness. Dr. Francis, of the Bengal Medical Service, in a paper contributed to the missionary journal from which we quote elsewhere, points out the opportunities thus opened to lady practitioners who are willing to adopt India as a field for the exercise of their profession. These would obtain a practical monopoly of attendance upon high-caste female patients in Bengal, where seclusions in the zenana is more rigidly enforced than in the other presidencies. The zenana is a comparatively modern imitation of Mahomedan institutions, which has only taken root in certain parts of Hindustan. In Bengal a man doctor is only allowed to see the patient's tongue, or feel her pulse, through a hole in a curtain. The female population of the Bengal Presidency, according to the census of the present year, is no less than 34,600,000. Of this immense number perhaps only a small proportion are subject to the scruples which prevent them from obtaining relief from male doctors. But even 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 of women, whose families are mostly well able to pay for medical attendance, present a lamentable picture of suffering which might be alleviated, and at the same time offer a goodly field for the employment of educated European women. Obstetrics as practised among Hindus are of the rudest kind. Midwifery is confined to an hereditary guild of low-caste, ignorant women, whose skill may, perhaps, be gauged by their fee—a few annas, about 3d. They do their work better than might be expected, but they are, of course, helpless in the more critical cases. Ordinary female sick nurses have a still worse reputation. They know nothing of doctoring, but they try to conceal their ignorance by recourse to the coarsest superstitions. Incantations to drive out the evil spirit are their sovereign remedy whenever they are at fault; and altogether they are as thorough impostors as the African medicine man. Dr. Francis would give the Indian lady doctor a training, not so thorough as that required for the medical practitioner in these islands, but one, nevertheless, fitting her to cope with cases of ordinary difficulty, and especially with the diseases of women and children. A general knowledge of anatomy and physiology, of minor surgery, of the oculist's practice, and especially of obstetrics, are the qualifications with which a lady practitioner should be armed in order to embark with confidence upon her charitable enterprise.

It is highly creditable to missionary societies that they should have initiated this method of spreading Christianity. The combination of the minister to the soul with the minister to the bodily health is not an original, but it is certainly a happy thought. The physician carries in the healing art an infallible letter of introduction. The penetralia of an alien religion and an alien social system are thrown open to the doctor, whether man or woman. Missionary societies, too, will not blame those who, taught by them in the first instance, seek to extend the lesson. There is no reason why in India the profession of the doctor should be inseparable from that of the missionary. A stream of lady practitioners, as thoroughly qualified as the profession in this country, may well flow to Bengal. If these superadd missionary zeal to their professional training, so much the better; but it must be conceded that a good physician, who is nothing more, is more valuable for the special purpose than a good missionary who is also a bad physician. Obvious benefits, indeed, would result from the direction of an independent supply of lady doctors to India. No effort of missionary enthusiasm could contribute funds adequate to supply so large a demand. The Queen herself can do little more than give her gracious sympathy to the cause. But if it becomes a recognised fact here, as it may, that an honourable and lucrative profession in India is open to numerous ladies whose tastes lie towards a medical education, the demand may be trusted to create the supply. Prejudice, reasonable or unreasonable, interposes a bar to the success of more than a very few women-physicians at home. Englishwomen still prefer the attendance of one of the opposite sex. Instead of prejudice, hearty wishes for success would accompany the migration of lady doctors to India. In an indirect way, the same good that is aimed at by medical missionaries will be attained by the lady doctor pure and simple. She will carry enlightened ideas into the darkness of Hindu homes; and when the mass is once melted it will be ready to receive the impressions which our Christian missions seek to convey. It is not well, meanwhile, that any unfair obstacles should be interposed in the way of the medical education of those Englishwomen whose tastes or necessities may lead them to seek for such a training, to be turned to some account afterwards either in India or at home.

"TO THE EDITOR OF THE 'TIMES.'"

"Sir,—In your interesting article in the Times of to-day, respecting the opening in India for the practice of medicine by lady doctors among the high class Bengal women, there are quoted some remarks of Dr. Francis which give the impression that a partial training would suffice for a woman doctor. But this, I believe, is a mistake. In a letter I received from Miss Beilby last spring, written while at Punnah in attendance on the Maharanee, she states it is her opinion that no lady ought to be a medical missionary unless she is fully qualified. This opinion is founded on her own and others' experience. The cases which come to a woman doctor in India are generally of a complicated character, such as do not recover spontaneously nor yield to the treatment of the native women, and they consequently demand the fullest experience and the widest medical and surgical knowledge. Ladies intending to practise medicine in India should go there armed with all that a thorough education can bestow. Now that the London School of Medicine for Women, of which I am honorary secretary, in association with the Royal Free Hospital, provides a curriculum qualifying for the examinations of the University of London, of the Royal University of Ireland, and of the King and Queen's College of Physicians, there is no longer any obstacle to female students of medicine becoming fully trained practitioners, and thus competent to respond to the touching appeal to the Maharanee of Punnah on behalf of her millions of native sisters and co-agents in the good work which three students of the school have already qualified themselves for. These ladies are Miss Waterston, L.K.Q.C.P.I., who has been for nearly two years a medical missionary at Dovedale, South Africa; Miss Butter, L.K.Q.C.P.I., who went out to India more than a year ago; and Miss Marston, L.K.Q.C.P.I., who has been for some time one of the resident medical officers at the Children's Hospital, Birmingham, and is now on the point of starting for Lucknow to replace Miss Beilby, while the latter comes home for enlarged medical study. It is women such as these who will be able to realise the wishes of our gracious Queen for the relief of the suffering women of India.—Yours truly, "ISABEL THORNE.

"TO THE EDITOR OF THE 'TIMES.'"

"Sir,—The tone of your article on this subject in the Times of to-day will, I am sure, give satisfaction to all who are interested in the work of introducing women into the medical profession. To them the message of the Maharanee of Punnah to our gracious Sovereign tells only what they have long known—viz., that there is in India a field almost indefinitely large in which competent medical women would be of the greatest value. It may, however, be well to say once more what was well said by Miss Beilby to the Maharanee—that it does not rest with the Queen whether Indian ladies are to be enabled to get medical advice from physicians of their own sex. The days are gone by when royal influence could do very much in the way of helping or hindering a social change of this kind. The question must be settled by the two parties directly concerned with it—i.e., by the leaders of the native society of India on the one hand, and by the medical women themselves on the other. The Hindu ladies and their advisers must in the first instance decide what it is precisely that they wish to have—whether thoroughly trained medical women or ladies with a little medical knowledge and much zeal as missionaries. Probably, as you suggest, there is room in India for representatives of both these types; but the native ladies should at any rate know which of the two kinds of doctors they wish to have. The plan of combining medical and missionary work has no doubt some merits, and in a case like that of Dr. Livingstone, where the medical training had been complete, it would probably work very well. But it has also disadvantages. One profession firmly grasped is enough for most people, and till a medical woman knows what the practice of medicine demands of her she will do wisely not to count upon being able to do much more than her own proper work as a doctor, whether in England or in India. It will not commend Christianity to Hindu ladies to send them missionaries in the disguise of indifferent doctors. Already there is a suspicion of this having been done, and we have heard in various quarters of native ladies inquiring critically as to the diplomas or credentials possessed by the medical missionaries specially provided for their benefit. Nor would it be safe to assume that any important part of the knowledge required by a good practitioner in this country would be superfluous in India. Some of what may be called 'the frills' of fashionable practice might no doubt be dispensed with. It would not be necessary to have a decided opinion as to the comparative merits of the various German baths, or as to the winter resorts in the south of Europe; as to the special qualities of Hautbois strawberries, or a good many other such points. But this after all is only 'frilling.' When we come to the essentials of medical practice it is clear that, instead of the doctor's work being easier in India than in London, it is likely, from the difficulty of language, the absence of consultants, and the unfamiliar habits of life, to be more difficult, and women who propose to practise in India need the very best and most thorough medical education which they can obtain.

"The council of the London School of Medicine for Women have, therefore, never thought it well to provide for those of its students who were preparing themselves for missionary work a training which should 'peculiarly fit them to relieve Hindu (or African) women.' They have thought it best to insist upon their students, whether missionary or not, going through such a course of medical study as should qualify them to obtain a legal recognition as medical practitioners and enable them afterwards to practise where they like.

"The zeal for good works, which is happily so conspicuous a feature in the character of many women, has already led two of the very best students of this school to devote themselves to medical work in India and Africa, and others are preparing to follow their example. But to most women life in India will always be exile, and if any considerable number of qualified female practitioners are desired then they will have to be attracted by inducements similar to those which it is found necessary to hold out before Englishmen agree to spend the best years of their lives out of their own country. Those medical women who have capital enough and friends enough to start in England will probably always prefer doing so, and taking their chance, as men do, of in time building up a practice. They need not despair of succeeding, strong as I admit the prejudice is in the minds of many against them. There is room in England for a good many more medical women, who will succeed in making practices if they are well prepared for their work and can afford to be half as patient as men usually have to be. Many of the ladies, however, who study medicine cannot afford to wait. They have spent their patrimony in getting a thorough medical education, an education which has extended over four, five, or even six years, and in living in London while they get it. But neither can they without capital and without an Indian connection go and settle in India. If the leaders of the native community want qualified medical women to go to India it is women so circumstanced that they must aim at getting, and in order to get them they must organise some way by which they can be invited to settle in different parts of the country and an adequate income assured to them during the first four or five years of their time abroad. The London School of Medicine for Women, 30, Henrietta-street, Brunswick-square, could, I believe, provide a succession year by year of thoroughly well-trained and trustworthy female practitioners holding an English diploma who would be willing to settle in India for eight or ten years and practise among the native ladies and poor women if the first expenses of starting, a residence, and an income of £300 a year for three or four years were assured to each such practitioner. Even twenty or thirty appointments of this kind filled by thoroughly trained women would be of great service to the native ladies and poor women of India, and would serve as centres to which other medical women could go, and from which they could work if experience proved that the demand was large enough to justify their enterprise.—I am sir, yours, &c.,

LIGHTFOOT'S DRY-AIR REFRIGERATOR.

ON Tuesday afternoon a number of gentlemen interested in mechanical refrigeration visited the Royal Victoria Docks to witness the working of a dry-air refrigerator, constructed on the patent of Mr. S. B. Lightfoot, of 116, Fenchurch-street, London, which is in operation there in connection with a suite of cold storage chambers for the preservation of meats and other perishable foods. The machine is capable of delivering about 10,000 cubic feet of air per hour at a temperature of from 40deg. to 50deg. below zero, Fah., and is arranged in a very compact and simple manner on one bedplate, similarly to an ordinary horizontal engine, to which indeed it bears a strong resemblance. The air is compressed in a double acting cylinder and then passed through a series of tubular coolers arranged in a bedplate, where the heat of compression is taken off and imparted to the cooling water. The cool compressed air is then admitted to the expansion cylinder, and expanded on Mr. Lightfoot's system, by which practically all the moisture is abstracted from the air as water, and discharged before the temperature is reduced to the freezing point, obviating by this means the formation of large quantities of ice, with the attendant loss in efficiency and other troubles. The finally expanded air contains merely a trace of snow, and is perfectly dry. The chambers at present cooled by this machine are two in number, each of about 3,000 cubic feet capacity, and they are intended as a temporary store for a portion of the cargoes of frozen meat now being imported into this country from Australia. At the time of our visit the temperature of the chamber was 18deg. Fah., and the machine was in operation for the purpose of freezing some fish and fruit in connection with experiments now being conducted by Mr. Lightfoot. The fish was frozen perfectly hard. Besides the preservation of foods, such as meat, we understand Mr. Lightfoot intends applying his cooling machines to a variety of purposes both in manufactures, as oil, tallow, candle, and chocolate works, and in other trades as dairy-keeping. A special dry-air refrigerator, to be driven by a belt, is now being constructed to meet the requirements of those who are in want of a small, reliable, and cheap cooling power. Messrs. Douglas and Grant, of Kirkcaldy, are manufacturing the refrigerators for Mr. Lightfoot, and arrangements have been made for producing them at as low a cost as is compatible with excellence of workmanship, so as to place the machines within the reach of small dealers and manufacturers. The trade being quite in its infancy it is, of course, impossible to more than indicate a few of the many cases to which cooling machines of this class can be economically applied, but there is a large class of persons to whom, in their ordinary business, a cheap and reliable air refrigerator would, no doubt, be a great boon. Besides this, there is the important question of ventilation and cooling of buildings, especially in warm climates, a purpose to which Mr. Lightfoot's machines would seem well suited, on account of the simple and efficient method of abstracting the moisture from the air, and thus avoiding the troubles and nuisance which arise from the formation of ice during expansion if the water is not so efficiently taken off beforehand.

PROFESSOR MONIER WILLIAMS ON GOVERNMENT ENCOURAGEMENT TO ORIENTAL LEARNING.*

THE two addresses that were delivered before the International Congress of Orientalists at Berlin by Professor Monier Williams, C.I.E., have been republished in a separate form by Messrs. W. H. Allen and Co. These addresses are of great value and importance in themselves, as they deal with subjects of considerable interest that are little known to the world of European Orientalists; while some of the secondary points that are elucidated in connection with the more immediate subjects of discussion are such as well deserve the attention the learned professor has devoted to them.

The first address is on "The Place which the Rig-Veda occupies in the Sandhya, or daily morning and evening prayers of the Hindus." Professor Williams's travels in India, and his life-long connection with that country, eminently fit him to deal with this subject in the most interesting and thorough manner; and the abstract of the paper that is now before us affords ample proof that he has done so. Much of the information given us by the learned professor in regard to the use of the Rig-Veda in the daily Hindu liturgy is, we believe, quite new to science.

As the delegate of the Government of India Professor Williams very properly thought it his duty to show that hardly sufficient justice had been done, in the preceding addresses of Professor Max Müller and others, to the generosity of that Government and our own in encouraging Oriental studies. After noting the donation of 200 guineas annually made to the Royal Asiatic Society, he proceeded to speak of the munificent grants made to Professor Max Müller himself:—

"The total amount paid as remuneration by the Government of India to Professor Max Müller for editing the Rig-Veda was £5,851, two thousand pounds of which were given to him in one sum in May, 1875, as an extraordinary honorarium on the conclusion of the work. This was exclusive of the expense of printing and publishing—also borne by our Government—which amounted to £3,779. Yet Professor Max Müller, in his address at the opening of the Congress said:—'Another impediment in the cultivation of Oriental studies in England is the absence of all support which in other countries is given by academies, by wise Ministers and even by enlightened Sovereigns, to Oriental undertakings. No encouragement whatever is held out for purely scientific work, &c.'—Times Report, September 15, 1881. With regard to the 'Sacred Books of the East,' the present cost includes, 1.

* "Two Addresses delivered before the International Congress of Orientalists at Berlin." By Monier Williams, C.I.E., D.C.L., LL.D. Boden Professor of Sanskrit in the University of Oxford, Honorary Delegate of the Government of India. London: W. H. Allen and Co. 1881.

£300 per annum paid as remuneration to Professor Max Müller; 2. £4 per sheet to the translators; 3. Expenses of printing, &c. Under each of the first two heads the Government of India pays half, and in addition takes 100 copies of each volume at 10s. 6d. a volume. Half of the whole cost is paid by the University of Oxford. Twenty-four volumes must be completed in eight years from the date of the agreement."

And again :—

"Perhaps no one is better able than I am to answer any charge of remissness in encouraging Oriental studies that may be brought against the Viceroy or any other representative of the Queen in India. In my travels through India I had frequent occasion to admire the sensitiveness of our Government to its duty of fostering and promoting Indian learning. It has established throughout the country great universities, colleges, and schools, where even more attention is given to the study of the classical languages of India than to that of the vernaculars, and it is doing what it can to preserve from destruction every kind of literary and archaeological monument, including important inscriptions and manuscripts."

Professor Williams criticises with much severity the selection of works chosen by Professor Max Müller for inclusion in the series of "Sacred Books of the East" referred to above—especially with reference to the omission of the Reg-Veda from the list. He says :—

"Nor can further translations of works already excellently translated, such as the Upanishads, the Bhagavad-gita and the Muhammadan Kuran, compensate us English Orientalists for the want of a trustworthy version of the oldest, most important, and by far the most sacred of all India's sacred books."

Professor Williams's second address was an able plea for the universal adoption of some fixed system of transliterating Eastern languages. His suggestion, that a competent committee of Orientalists should elaborate such a scheme, is probably the only true solution of the difficulty. His allusions to the more remote, but not absolutely hopeless, possibility of introducing the Roman alphabet into general use in India are interesting. He directs attention to the work in this direction of the Lahore Society and the "Roman-Urdu Journal;" and in addition to this might be noticed the exertions of the Calcutta Society, at the head of which are Mr. F. J. Browne, C.S., the judge of the 24 Pergunnahs ("Pandit Browne"), and Mr. C. H. Tawney, M.A., the well-known Sanskritist, Principal of the Presidency College.

CONSUMPTION.*

MR. GEORGE THOMAS CONGREVE, of Combe Lodge, Rye-lane, Peckham, has discovered a remarkably successful treatment of Consumption; and, to make it more widely known, has published the little book before us. A large number of cases are cited; and, as reference is made in very many of these cases to persons in well-known and responsible positions, there seems to be no reason whatever to doubt the perfect bona fides of all of them. And the book gives a particularly simple and clear account of this terrible disorder and its cure, as well as chapters on the cognate pulmonary diseases. The chapters on "Cough accompanied with Liver Derangement," and on "Chronic Bronchitis," will be found useful by many Anglo-Indians.

MR. EDWARD THOMAS ON THE GUPTA DYNASTY.*

THE last number of the Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland is a particularly valuable one. Besides some other papers of considerable interest, Mr. Edward Thomas's article on "The Epoch of the Guptas" is the most important contribution to the history of that interesting and obscure era of ancient Indian history that has yet appeared. Mr. Thomas has collected, within the limited space of some twenty-eight pages, all the light on the subject that is afforded by the epigraphic and numismatic materials at the disposal of the historian, as well as by the writings of Albiruni, by traditions collected on the western coast of India, by Tod, by General Cunningham, and by every other investigator of note.

THE APOSTLES OF SERAMPORE: WILLIAM CAREY.*

THIS charmingly-written biography is really of historical importance. The "Apostles of Serampore"—Carey, Ward, and Marshman—exercised a potent influence over the destinies of the British Indian Empire; and we have not seen an account of any one of them at all comparable in point of freshness, simplicity, and vigour with Dr. Culross's life of William Carey, now published in Messrs. Hodder and Stoughton's series of "Men Worth Remembering." It shows the devoted band, in the first place, as pioneers of missionary work in Bengal; it also shows them, of more importance from the historical point of view, as the fathers of the Vernacular Press, of Oriental biblical translation, and of missionary educational efforts. Dr. Culross has had access to valuable stores of original materials for this work and has succeeded in making it most interesting; it should be consulted by all who would rightly understand the growth of the influence of the Serampore school in India.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE OPIUM MONOPOLY.

[TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL"]

SIR,—The question of the opium monopoly is not understood by either party. Two objects should be kept steadily in view :—

1. The increase of the price of opium as much as possible without encouraging illicit cultivation and smuggling or foreign competition.
2. The realisation of as large a revenue as possible without encouraging consumption.

In Western India both of these objects are realised to a considerable extent: a very large revenue is collected by heavily taxing the export of opium. In Bengal, Behar, and the North Western Provinces the Government is beguiled by the delusive charms of monopoly and enraptured by its lying pretences. We are positively told by those who ought to know better, and who profess to have had great experience and knowledge, that under the Government monopoly the price of opium is kept higher, and illicit cultivation and smuggling more discouraged, than under a proper system of excise and export duties. As long as the Government monopoly shall be continued so long will all Government servants, European and native, and all the natives of India, be impressed with the idea that the great object to be attained is to increase the quantity of opium produced. How was it that during the so-called famine of 1874 the area under opium cultivation in Behar was increased? Could starving multitudes be fed upon opium? How do the advocates of monopoly account for the enormous consumption of illicit opium in the cities of the Gangetic plain, which consumption could soon be checked if the monopoly were abolished? Ask the Government contractors for the local sale of opium how they make their profits? Ask the wretched inmates of brothels how much they are made to pay to the contractors? If the Government monopoly were abolished there would doubtless be a decrease of patronage, but the servants of Government and the population in general, instead of aiding consumption, or being passive spectators, would actively exert themselves to assist the police and revenue officials in prosecuting smugglers and those who might attempt to cultivate the poppy contrary to the excise laws. Conceive for one instant the British Government undertaking a monopoly of the sale of gin, rum, whisky, and brandy, and boasting periodically in Parliament of the enormous sales and immense revenue!—Your obedient servant,

CLERICAL V.C.'S.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—In your issue of Oct. 24, 1881, under Bombay you quote from the Times of India that the "Rev. J. W. Adams is not the only clergyman who enjoys the proud distinction of being a V.C." The Rev. A. Mayo was not a clergyman when he obtained the V.C.; he joined the Church afterwards; but the Rev. J. W. Adams obtained his V.C. for his gallant conduct whilst exercising the duties of chaplain to the forces, and any one who knows the hard work which for years the Rev. J. W. Adams has done in the Punjab will rejoice at the well-earned reward. Long may he live to enjoy it.—Yours, &c.,

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

KELAT-I-NADRI.

THAT the Russian Government should abjure all intention of marching on Merv is, perhaps, only what ought naturally to be expected under any circumstances. And few would attach any serious importance to the assurance. When, however, officers in the Russian army regard it as a matter of course that Merv will not be attacked—or that at any rate an expedition to that place has not yet come within measurable or visible distance of practical politics—we may safely regard their view of it as being trustworthy. We have been assured by an officer who accompanied General Skobelev to the Turkoman country, and who enjoyed the intimate confidence of that distinguished soldier, that the Russians had then, and have now, no more intention of going to Merv than of going to Mecca. Why should they wish to go to Merv? To procure the military and political support of the Mervli. But they can do that without putting a foot on Mervli territory. Most probably they have done it already. The Mervli know too well that they have not the remotest chance of receiving assistance, direct or indirect, from India; and, therefore, even if they wished for one, they have no alternative left but to submit. The Russians are good paymasters; the Turkomans love money, and Mr. O'Donovan has graphically described how they, like all other dwellers in that part of the world, will do anything to procure it. The next objective of Russia is the famous plateau of Kelat-i-Nadri, of which Mr. O'Donovan has given a capital description. Kelat-i-Nadri, between Askabad and the Herat frontier, consists of a plateau surrounded by lofty mountains which afford ingress only at three or four points. The plateau produces every thing requisite for man and beast; and situated there a Russian force could, as the Duke of Wellington would say, "defy the whole of Asia." According to Baker, McGregor, Napier, and other travellers, Kelat is one of the wonders of the world. But the railway will be required to bring the Russians to Kelat-i-Nadri; and the officer alluded to shows us, in a sketch map which we received by last mail, that the railway had only reached Kizil Arvat by the beginning of September. According to a telegram published in the Indian papers the line had reached Bama, a place forty or fifty miles on this side of Kizil Arvat, but the statement was erroneous. It is, however, being pushed on rapidly to Askabad, which is about four hundred miles from the Caspian. Again, some have described Askabad as Turkoman; it is, or rather was, Persian; and we have come to know that a very considerable sum was paid to the Governor of the place as an inducement to him to surrender it peaceably.

THE NATIVE PRESS ON AFGHANISTAN.

THE news of the last week has been, from the British point of view, of a very satisfactory character. The long expected engagement came off a few miles outside Kandahar in which Ayub lost his former prestige and Ameer Abdul Rahman recovered his. That the latter should come off victorious was the general opinion of the country. Previous reports of the strength of the two combatants, their daily or weekly progress, their relations with the different tribal feudatories—these were ample, though not sufficiently so, for a fair conjecture. We say not sufficiently ample, because it is now known that the Press Commissioner's office has all along doled out to the India Press meagre information compared with the copious telegrams from the Viceroy to the London Press. The complaint made in the Bombay Gazette of the 28th inst. under this head is, we are disposed to think, quite justified, and it is to be hoped the Supreme Government's attention will be drawn to this matter with the view of supplying the Indian Press with more accurate and amplified details in the future.

And now it remains to be seen whether the Government of India is disposed to continue the construction of the railway from Bolan to Kandahar. With the Russian railway ready from the Caspian to Kizil Arvat, with Askabad as the most advanced outpost on the hither side of India, with the predatory and "man-stealing" Turkomans subdued, it would be false economy to refrain from pushing our frontier railway in Southern Afghanistan as far as Kandahar. We have more faith in the civilising influence of railways than of conquests. The Central Asian trade requires vast development. Our trade with Yarkand is nowhere, while the Muscovite is making every exertion to have his goods popularised from Kuldja to the very farthest limit of the Great Wall on one side; and from Astrakhan to Herat, via Meshed, on the other. It is but meet, therefore, that our British trade should compete with it. And the only hope of successful competition lies in the construction of the Kandahar Railway, which is sure to open a great highway of Anglo-Indian Commerce to the very gate of Herat. Financial consideration may, for a time, interfere with its construction. But we believe the Government could not make a better use of the estimated four millions sterling which would be poured into its treasury by sale of the Rajputana railway than in utilising the sum for this new politico commercial railway—that is if the sale becomes au fait accompli.—Indian Spectator.

PROGRESS OF THE VERNACULAR PRESS.

Two holiday numbers of the Sulabha Samachar are out, one in yellow paper and the other in red. The popularity of this paper may be imagined from the fact that some seven or eight thousand of those impressions were sold within a few days. In this respect the revolution created in the public taste is somewhat remarkable. Shopkeepers and hackney carriage drivers are found among its diligent readers, and as for school-boys and clerks in offices, their fondness for it is equally noticeable. These pujan numbers contain well-written articles on a variety of topics, and among these drunkenness is the most prominent. The stories are well-chosen, and the style is as simple and amusing as may be expected from a pice paper.—Indian Mirror.

FAIR TRADE FOR INDIA.

THE discussions connected with "fair" and "free" trade in England, as given by the press, have, for the moment, almost as much interest with the Indian public as any passing events here, even the progress of the civil war in Afghanistan. The attitude of the people of this country has always been one of waiting expectation, in regard to public opinion and movements in England, on any great economic question or principle being sifted out there. That something may result from such discussions has hitherto been the constant unflinching hope of the vast population of the Indian Empire. "Hope on, hope ever," has been almost a creed with these people. It is weakening fast, under the frequent antagonistic action of the Government to their interests, and the avowed protection of foreign interests, as in the case of Manchester, and the duties on imports of British cotton piece goods. To give up these, and to give India the benefit of the reduction on the price of those imports, an inequitable imperial tax on trades in India has been levied—one which the Government itself does not defend. A greater anomaly in economic legislation was probably never recorded than this removal of import duties and the alternative license tax present. The import duty is removed entirely in the interests of that section of the English people classed under the general term Manchester. The license tax on trades in India goes to cover the gap in the revenue caused by the removal of that duty. The traders in India to recoup themselves for the tax add most of it to the cost of the commodities in an unseen way which they supply to England. The English people who consume those commodities have Manchester's burdens adroitly shifted on to their shoulders. Such is the principle involved. But the whole mischief to the people of this country embodied in this alternative tax is not represented in the mere determination of the principle. India may well hang with earnest attention on a national discussion of the principles involved in the discussion of fair and free trade. From the advanced opinions of both parties in England, which the question of the new commercial treaty with France has evoked, it is evident that some great economic change is probable. Indian traders, who comprehend the vastness of the subject, do not anticipate any decided retrogression from her free-trade principles by England. On the question of reciprocity they watch anxiously, and with the deepest interest, any changes or modifications in the trade policy of England which might throw a greater demand on their own productions and industries. What results to India and its Government are involved in that issue! It is one which casts into comparative shade, at the moment, every other subject in Indian public opinion. Within its bounds, much, if not the entire regeneration of the financial condition of this country, is compassed.—Indian Daily News.

THE NEW DECENTRALISATION SCHEME.

IN the measure of financial and administrative reform the Government of India is about to take a step in advance which surpasses in importance even that taken by Lord Mayo's Government in 1870. For it embraces not only a surrender to the provincial Governments, for better or for worse, of more important sources of revenue, accompanied by an enlargement of financial responsibility which reduces their dependence on the Imperial Government to cases of extreme emergency, but an extension of the principle of local self-government which comes very near to the grant of a liberal constitution. Under Lord Mayo's decentralisation scheme certain minor branches of revenue, together with certain liabilities, were transferred to the provincial Governments, and then, to cover the estimated excess of their outgoings over their receipts, a further assignment of a lump sum, modifiable from time to time, was made to them out of the imperial revenue. Besides its limited character this scheme was attended by the obvious objection, from a provincial point of view, that it left it in the power of the Imperial Government, by reducing its assignment, to keep the provincial resources down to mere subsistence level, and to neutralise any advantage the provincial Governments might otherwise have derived from the development of their own branches of the revenue, or from economy. How far the Imperial Government might take advantage of its power to act in this way, would, of course, depend on the degree of its liberality and the pressure of its own wants. But it possessed the power, and the principle on which the assignment was made, to meet an unexpected deficit, was such as to justify its using the power, whenever the thrift or the good fortune of the provincial Governments reduced their deficits or converted them into a surplus. An element of uncertainty was thus imported into the calculations of the provincial Governments and the stimulus to economy correspondingly impaired. This objection is, of course, entirely removed by the substitution of a definite proportion of the land revenue for the previous variable assignments.

Whether the immediate result of the entire change contemplated will be advantageous or otherwise to the provincial Governments, whether, that is to say, these Governments will start under the new scheme with as favourable a ratio between total liabilities and total income as they enjoyed under the old scheme, can be ascertained only by a close examination of the figures involved. As, however, the contingent liabilities of the local Governments for such emergencies as famine are to be sensibly increased, it is to be presumed that the scheme contemplates their starting with a surplus of income over expenditure commensurate with the risk.

If this is the case it need hardly be said the ultimate tendency of the change is largely to their advantage. For not only will any increase in the branches of revenue wholly transferred to them be exclusively theirs, but they will share in any future increase of the land revenue, and, judging from what has already taken place under Lord Mayo's scheme, the additional temptation to economical and skilful management thus held out to them is likely to be liberally rewarded.

Of the proposed scheme of secondary decentralisation by the transfer of certain branches of revenue and expenditure from provincial to local heads and the machinery by which it is to be worked, little can be said with advantage at present, for it is only dimly adumbrated in the summary of the Government resolution that has reached us. We think, however, that it is open to grave doubt whether the country is yet ripe for any comprehensive advance in this direction.—Englishman.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE FRONTIER.—The Afridis are to be dealt with summarily on account of the attack on the picket of the 19th Bengal Lancers at Peshawur last month. The terms to be meted out to them are as follows:—First. The surrender of Kamal alive, or his expulsion from Afridi limits, together with a fine of Rs.2,000. Second. The surrender of Kamal's associates, or the payment of a further fine of Rs.1,500. Third. The payment of blood-money at the rate of Rs.500 for each sowar killed or wounded in the attack on the picket. Now, it is the twentieth time that this sort of punishment has been meted out to the Afridis, so we should not be surprised if they continue to indulge in their usual pastime of plundering and murdering British subjects even if the terms are seriously imposed upon them, which, is, however, very doubtful.—Amrita Bazar Patrika.

THE TELEPHONE.—The Oriental Telephone Company have been granted the requisite license to commence operations in India.—Times of India.

STOWAWAYS.—At a meeting of the Viceregal Legislative Council on the 5th inst. a bill was introduced prohibiting the landing of certain stowaways, and providing for the recovery of expenses incurred by Government in respect of such persons.—Ibid.

THE CALCUTTA VOLUNTEERS.—The Viceroy is pleased to sanction the augmentation of the Calcutta Volunteer Rifle Corps by a company of mounted infantry.—Ibid.

MR. MONTEATH.—Mr. Monteath, the director general of the Post-office, who was supposed to have left India for good, will, it is said, resume his post at no distant date. The Pioneer says both the Government and the public are to be congratulated on his impending return to duty. This is hardly complimentary to Mr. Hogg, the present incumbent.—Bombay Gazette.

A SAD ACCIDENT.—An extremely sad accident is reported from Cossipore. Miss Brander, the eldest daughter of the late traffic superintendent of the Eastern Bengal Railway, who himself died quite recently, was shot by Mr. George Walker, assistant to the agent of the Eastern Bengal Railway. The accident occurred on the evening of the 5th inst., in the compound of Mrs. Brander's bungalow, and the unfortunate lady died on the morning of the 7th. Deep sympathy is felt generally for her relatives.—Ibid.

RUSSIANS IN BOMBAY.—The Russian steamship Poccia, which left Bombay harbour on the 9th inst., for Jeddah, with a cargo of hajjis, was one of the "volunteer fleet" of privateers called into existence before the Treaty of Berlin was signed. She is a very fine ship and is fitted to receive guns. A large number of the hajjis on board—she could carry 1,200, but she had not so many when she sailed—were Turkomans. With a delicate attention which deserves credit, fifteen Turks were provided by these Russians to supply the Turkomans with water and make them comfortable generally while on board. The vessel is the property of a Russian company and employed in trade. Her captain is an officer of the imperial navy. She was last year engaged in the China tea trade, and brought the first cargo of that season's tea to Odessa, and received a bonus for doing so.—Ibid.

RESETTLEMENT.—The Gazette of India contains a resolution on the subject of resettlements of land revenue, in which the instructions of 1879 to local Governments to review any resettlements in progress and contract the work where it did not seem likely to be remunerative are reiterated, and their application extended to other provinces. No further revision of settlement is to be commenced without the sanction of the Government of India. The resolution lays it down as a general rule that where a resettlement would yield no increase of revenue, or less than a profitable rate of interest on the expenditure, it would be preferable not to enter on it unless special administrative reasons can be shown, such as inequality of the incidence of land revenue.

[FROM THE "ENGLISHMAN."]

THE HOME CHARGES.—The value of the various articles enumerated in the series of resolutions of the Financial Department that have appeared regarding the purchase of stores in this country amounts already to over thirty lakhs. In other words, the home store charges have, by these measures, already been reduced for the future by that sum.

THE COMING COMMISSION.—An important resolution on the subject of education is likely shortly to make its appearance.

EMIGRATION.—In the month of July last 216 emigrants left the port of Calcutta for Natal.

THE SILHET CROP.—There has been an unusually high flood in Silhet, and the crops on the lowlands have suffered accordingly.

RAILWAY FOR THE GARO HILLS.—A survey party starts in the cold weather to survey the country between Maimansingh and Gowhaty across the Garo Hills, with the view of ascertaining whether a direct line of railway is feasible.

BULLION MOVEMENTS.—In the first five months of the current financial year, the value of gold imported into India was Rs.1,61,48,981, and of that exported Rs.50,656, whilst the value of silver imported was Rs.1,58,08,665, and of that exported Rs.62,78,036. This leaves a balance of both metals in favour of imports of Rs.2,56,28,957.

CALCUTTA WEATHER.—The hottest day in Calcutta in the month of September last was the 7th, when the thermometer rose to 92.8, and the coldest the 17th when it fell to 74.8. The total rainfall of the month was 7.56in., and there were nineteen rainy days.

FLOODS IN BEHAR.—Heavy floods have done some damage to the crops in parts of both the Patna and Bhagalpur Divisions, whilst on the other hand rain is wanted for the rice crop in other parts of the same divisions. In Kattak also rain is very much wanted.

BURMA.—Communication by telegraph with Mandalay has again been opened. It is rumoured that Mr. Bernard will shortly vacate the chief commissionership of Burma, and Mr. Chichele Plowden, census commissioner, is spoken of as his probable successor.

INDIAN TEA.—We see from the latest Australian market reports that Indian and Ceylon teas of all descriptions are realising steady values, and are quite up to those at late sales.

MR. GRANT-DUFF'S STAFF.—Mr. Cadwallader Waddy, barrister at law, of Negapatam, informs the Madras Mail that he was strongly recommended to Mr. Grant-Duff for the appointment of private secretary to his Excellency "by two members of the Cabinet; but as the reorganisation of the Department of Public Works and the Department of Local Funds is to be carried out at once, Captain Awdry, R.E., who is said to be up in all details, was found to indispensable.—Times of India.

BANGALORE RIFLE MEETING.—The team of the 39th Regiment N.I., sent up from Madras recently to Bangalore to compete at the S.I. Rifle Associations, has won Rs.550 and a silver medal.—Madras Times.

A WIDOW MARRIAGE.—Widow marriages are made mention of in several newspapers as taking place in Northern Hindustan. But to the people of this Presidency it is a strange thing. In a village in the Coimbatore district a girl eight years old became a widow. She is now thirteen years old, and was offered in marriage to a Brahman orphan boy of sixteen. A sum of Rs.1,000 was paid in cash to the bridegroom. The relatives and friends of the parties refused to be present on the occasion. The services of a Brahman priest to conduct the ceremony were secured for a sum Rs.200. The father of the bride has taken upon himself the task of educating the bridegroom.—South Indian Post.

A CURIOUS CHARGE OF FORGERY.—A charge of forgery was a few days ago preferred against a Mr. Browne by his brother-in-law, Mr. Beryman. The forgery consisted in the accused sending two chits to a shopkeeper for two bottles of brandy. The chits were signed "T. Beryman." The case was called on for hearing before Mr. Scharlieb last week, and judgment was deferred till Wednesday last, when his worship directed the discharge of the accused, as he was of opinion that a prima facie case had not been made out against him. There were several inconsistencies in the evidence, and the surrounding circumstances of the case were altogether so suspicious as not to warrant the committal of the prisoner.—Athenæum.

THE MADRAS DEATH RATE.—From the 24th to the 30th inst. 3 Europeans, 3 East Indians, 6 Native Christians, 241 Hindus, and 37 Mahomedans died in Madras, making a total of 290 persons. The average of the corresponding week for the ten previous years was 280. The deaths are thus classified:—12 from small-pox, 2 from measles, 78 from fever, 31 from dysentery, 15 from diarrhoea, and 152 from other diseases. The population, according to the last census, being 379,552, the death-rate in the week under notice was at the rate of 37'9 per 1,000 per annum. The mean of the ten previous years was 36'7 per 1,000 per annum.—Madras Mail.

SHARKS IN MADRAS HARBOUR.—The sharks in the Madras harbour are assuming some importance. Government rewards are now offered for the destruction or capture of the durrea ke bagh, or the sea tiger; so the marine shikarees will soon be busily at work, incited by the prize of Rs.3 for every shark of over 5 ft. long, and Rs.2 for sharks under that size, produced at the master attendant's office; but we doubt if the number of the sharks will decrease to any extent.—Madras Times.

CEYLON.—Ceylon is not just now in a very prosperous state. The session of the Legislative Council was opened the other day, and the Governor (Sir James Longden) read his annual address. The revenue last year was nearly a million rupees below the estimate, being only Rs.13,849,127, against Rs.14,448,668 in 1879, and this year's revenue is expected to be even less, and that of 1882 still smaller.—Times of India.

PERSONATION.—Mr. Edward Seymour Austin Burch, the personator of the Viceroy's chaplain, who obtained Rs.200 from the Rev. Father Colgan, vicar general of Madras, by writing to him under the name of the Rev. H. S. Kerr, was charged with forgery and cheating in the Madras Police court. The case was adjourned for the evidence of Father Kerr, which was ordered to be taken by commission.—Ibid.

BOMBAY.

THE VAISHNAVA MAHARAJ.—Replying to the petitions of the Vaishnav community and others against the conviction and sentence by the Kathiawar Chief Court of Maharaja Vrijeshji Vrijnathji, the principal prisoner in the Jamnagar postal robbery case, the Government of Bombay says:—"If the punishment of imprisonment falls on him with exceptional severity in consequence of his social position and circumstances, and of the sanctity which attaches to his personality in the minds of a large section of his countrymen, it must be remembered that those same considerations constitute an aggravation of the disgraceful offence of which he has been convicted." And the Government, while quashing the conviction of one of the minor offenders in the case, direct that, in the case of the Maharaja, the term of imprisonment to which he was sentenced shall be increased from two to five years.—Pioneer.

The decline in assessments between 1869 and 1879 represents a loss to the municipality of four lakhs of rupees a year.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that the limited quantity of plantation Ceylon and East India coffee brought forward has met with buyers upon previous terms, although the tone generally is quiet. The importers have again brought a large quantity of Indian upon the market, part of which found buyers, and prices have in many instances given way. The moderate quotations of medium to fine grades induce some feeling of confidence, and fine Da-jilings have not participated in the depression. Rice cargoes are even lower than last reported, Burma being worth about 7s. to 7s. 9d. per cwt., according to conditions. Black and white pepper are firmer, and Zanzibar cloves rather dearer.

COFFEE.—At the public sales, of 4,874 bags Costa Rica about two-thirds sold at full rates to some advance for the better kinds. Good to fine ordinary, 57s. 6d. to 63s. 6d.; low middling to middling, 68s. to 73s.; fine, 80s. to 82s. 6d. 583 cases 233 bags East India sold steadily—for medium, 79s. to 84s.; bold, 86s. to 90s. 6d.; one lot, 95s. 79 packages plantation Ceylon, middling to bold, 76s. to 99s. 6d.

Forward delivery, American, December-January, 6¾d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

FRIDAY EVENING.

INDIAN TEA.—Continued heavy supplies and free selling by importers have at length affected prices, which are lower all round for the week, the decline being heaviest upon fine grades, of which the supply largely consists, owing to the season being a good one. Common kinds are only ½d. cheaper. The catalogues have comprised upwards of 16,000 packages.

COFFEE.—The market is firmer and 631 casks 213 barrels and bags plantation Ceylon sold by auction at 1s. advance on the rates of last week—low to good middling at 75s. 6d. to 88s. 6d.; fine middling to bold at 90s. to 107s.; 293 packages Mocha chiefly withdrawn above the value; 1,080 bags foreign partly sold; Guatemala at 52s. to 62s. 6d.; Central American at 50s. to 70s. per cwt.

For arrival, Tinnevely, October-November, Suez, 5½d. for good fair; August-September, Cape, 5½d. for fully good fair g.f.c. THE COST OF HIGH EDUCATION IN INDIA.

THE cry for the withdrawal of State aid from the cause of high education in India is due in a great measure to a misapprehension of the nature of the aid that is given. This misapprehension is widely current, even in India itself, and among those who are in general well-informed on subjects of public interest. For instance, at least three or four of the leading Anglo-Indian journals, in commenting on the announcement of an impending Educational Commission to examine the working of the educational despatch of 1854, and the proposal (believed, not without reason, to be implied by the appointment of such a commission) that Government should withdraw from the maintenance of the State colleges, speak of the high education of the country as "eleemosynary." This is a simple fallacy. The Presidency Colleges of Calcutta and Madras, and the Elphinstone College of Bombay, and the other State colleges of India, are eleemosynary only in the sense in which the colleges of Oxford and Cambridge may be called so too. It may be doubted whether there has ever been, in the history of the world, any great teaching university that has been maintained solely by the fees of its students. In England the difference—an enormous one—is made up by the glorious endowments which our Oxford and Cambridge colleges have inherited; and of these endowments a very large number may be traced to public sources, gifts of Crown lands, and the like. In Ireland the difference is largely made up, exactly as it is in India, by a direct grant from the public revenues. Take, for instance, Cardinal Wolsey's magnificent foundation at Oxford. It was ultimately endowed and settled by King Henry the Eighth, and its endowment may therefore be considered a State endowment. Putting aside its caputular establishment, and looking only at the cost of maintaining Christ Church as an educational institution, with its eighty senior and junior students (formerly one hundred and one), and its grand administrative and instructional machinery, does any one suppose that all this—or anything more than a comparatively insignificant proportion of it—is maintained out of the amount (£21 each per annum) which is all that Christ Church men pay to their college for their tuition? And yet it has never been suggested that the education given at Christ Church is an eleemosynary one; nor has it been proposed to resume for public purposes King Henry the Eighth's grants to Christ Church on the ground that the well-to-do classes of England are there aided to obtain an education the total cost of which they are well able and should be forced to pay. The fact is, in every enlightened age and in every civilised country it has been felt to be a point of the highest national importance to encourage the creation of a class of highly educated men; and since the cost of the highest kind of education, if it all had to come out of the pockets of the students, would be absolutely prohibitory except to a very few (namely, the very rich, in whom would often be found lacking the stimulus for the laborious life of a scholar), a considerable share of the cost of maintaining the machinery of high education has everywhere been borne either directly or indirectly by the State. And in India this obligation is more binding on the State than elsewhere, for the following reasons: First, the learned class is not on the whole a wealthy one. Secondly, the traditionary customs of the country point to the maintenance of learning by the respectful free-will offerings (differing somewhat from charity) of the rich. Thirdly, the system of Government and general administration of the country, being conducted on English principles, must for a long time be beyond the comprehension, and outside the pale of the sympathies, of all but the highly-educated class of Indians; hence there is the greater need of such a class to interpret between governors and governed, and policy enjoins the use of public revenues to create such a class. And, lastly, there is the urgent demand—for the many reasons we have heretofore stated—for what we may broadly term "pioneers of civilisation" in a country whose resources await development in every direction. And yet, what are the facts? On the eighty-two colleges of British India we lavish a State endowment of £186,000!—about as much as would suffice at Oxford for the endowment of some three or four colleges on the scale of Magdalen or New.

Again, we may look at the question from the other side, that of the amount paid by the student. Let us compare the amount paid as tuition fees by a student of the Presidency College, Calcutta, with that paid by a commoner of one of the colleges of Oxford. The former pays £14 8s. per annum, the latter £21; but when we recollect that Rs.12 per mensem in India will provide food and clothing for more than one person, whilst in England £21 a year will not provide the barest subsistence diet for a single man, it will be seen that the Presidency College fees are really higher than the fees payable at Christ Church, Oxford. In the missionary colleges of Calcutta the fees are generally Rs.5 per mensem only—a rate rendered possible by English charitable contributions to mission funds; but the Presidency College fee, Rs.12, so far from being small, or in any way deserving of the epithet "eleemosynary," is probably relatively larger than the similar fee in any other university in the world—and, indeed, is only maintained by the excessively keen and highly praiseworthy desire for university education that is so conspicuous in Lower Bengal.

We claim, then, to have proved one of the chief points on which native gentlemen insist when they demand the continued maintenance of the State colleges on their present footing; namely, that the aid now given to the higher education by the State is not out of proportion to the revenues of the country—that it is not for a moment comparable in amount to the vast endowments (in many cases originally derived from public sources) of our English universities—that, after all, it leaves the cost of an Indian university degree at least as high (taking into consideration the difference in the standards of living) as that of an English university degree—and that consequently there is absolutely no foundation for the allegation, so lightly made by the other side, that the State-college education of India is an eleemosynary one.

THE WEARING OF DECORATIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE."

Sir,—I was very glad to see some letters in a late issue of your paper advocating the wearing of miniature medals or ribbons by retired officers when in evening dress, and I trust that you will continue to advocate this till the authorities sanction such an arrangement. It is certainly not much to ask, that this arrangement may be sanctioned by authority. It may be said that some retired officers do wear their decorations in plain clothes (evening dress), and that such is not prohibited; but the great majority of retired officers, much as they would like to do so, shrink from doing so until the arrangement may be sanctioned by authority. We see our pensioned soldiers wearing their medals on their plain clothes, with advantage to themselves and the nation. Why, therefore, should not pensioned and retired officers do so also? I believe that new dress regulations regarding the uniform to be worn by retired officers are shortly to appear, and this would appear a suitable opportunity for the authorities to sanction the wearing of miniature medals or ribbons on evening dress-coats by retired officers. Trusting that you will publish this letter, and also advocate this arrangement in your paper.—I am, &c., RETIRED COLONEL.

INDIAN LOCAL FINANCE.

THE following letter has been addressed to the editor of the Times :—

"Sir,—The change in Indian financial arrangements, alluded to by your Darjiling correspondent in his telegram published in the Times to-day, will not necessarily have the effect of relieving the general exchequer at the cost of local bodies. It is contemplated, it will be seen, to relieve municipalities of the cost of police, and thus to compensate them for fresh charges on medical, educational, and public works accounts which they may be called on to bear. The change will probably be hailed with pleasure by the local bodies themselves, who had a frequent and well-grounded cause of complaint in having no control over the very large police expenditure they were called on to defray.—Your obedient servant, L. C. PROBYN."

INDIAN ARMY DEFENCE FUND.

A CORRESPONDENT signing himself "Centurion," writes as follows to the editor of the Morning Post :—

"Sir,—Nothing will ever be done to relieve the finances of India of the heavy burden of paying senior officers to do the work of subalterns and captains until an inquiry is made in the House into what constitutes the daily work of the European officers of a native regiment. Mr. Allison, the energetic secretary, should therefore collect information on this point, and then the public will see what enormous monthly pay is given to an old officer to do work that should be done by captain and subalterns. It will be easy enough to show that three, and in some cases four, field officers in the native regiment is a farce. Either the work is too much beyond that of a European regiment, or the State is paying heavily for light work. Can one field officer look after four companies and be responsible for their efficiency in every respect as a captain does in an English regiment (but his responsibility is over only one company), or is it too much for an old officer whose life has been spent in a tropical climate, and the work is let slide?"

THE OPIUM TRADE.

Sir C. E. TREVELYAN writes as follows to the editor of the Times on the above subject :—

"Sir,—As there has been an important meeting on this subject at the Mansion-house, I will endeavour to compress a life's experience into a few sentences. Let us consider each possible alternative. If the object be merely to relieve the Government from all connection with the opium trade it may be attained by leaving the growth of the poppy and the manufacture and sale of opium from it entirely free; but as India has advantages for this purpose beyond any other country in the world this would lead to an abundance and cheapness of the drug which would greatly increase its consumption in India, China, and other countries. Another alternative is to entirely prohibit its growth and manufacture, except on a limited scale, for medicinal purposes. This was tried in Malwa in the interests of the Bengal monopoly more than fifty years ago, with the result that the country was traversed by armed bands of smugglers, who openly defied the law, and the prohibition had to be given up in the interest of public order. If the plan were attempted on a larger scale the temptation to break the law would be overpowering, and the country would be so convulsed as seriously to strain the resources of the Government, diminished as they would be by the loss of the opium revenue. There is still another milder alternative, which is to abolish the monopoly, to give up all interference with the growth and manufacture, and to levy a revenue from it in the shape of an excise. The objections to this are that the Government would not be relieved from its responsibility by taking the revenue in the shape of an excise instead of that of a monopoly, and that the growth and manufacture would be more difficult of control if everybody was left free to undertake them subject to an excise than is the case at present, when nobody can prepare his ground for poppy cultivation without previous permission. My own opinion is that the course actually followed by levying by means of a highly restricted monopoly system the largest revenue that can be obtained without encouraging smuggling is the best that can be adopted in the interests of morality and order, as well in India as in China, and every other country where Indian opium is consumed. I have arrived at further conclusions from my life study of the subject. The experience of every country in every age seems to indicate that the use of some stimulant is necessary for mankind, and I cannot find that opium stands on a different footing in this respect from spirituous liquors. They are both gifts of God, which ought to be used without being abused. Mr. Wilberforce was never without one or two opium pills in his waistcoat pocket. Opium is said to be specially suited to the stolid, lethargic Turanian nature, and it is certain that Chinese boatmen and porters, who undergo much hard work and exposure, can take even large doses without being the worse for it. Our troops found to their cost in the island of Chusan, in the first China war, that the spirit distilled from rice, called shumshoo, turned them into swine faster even than opium. This was the view taken by the writer of the essay which won Mr. Pease's highest prize about four years ago."

PAPER MATERIALS AND ECONOMIC TREES IN INDIA.

IN the report for 1880-81 of Dr. King, the superintendent of the Calcutta Botanical Gardens, are several items of practical interest. The search for a new material for the manufacture of paper continues. Dr. King states that he deputed the curator of the gardens during the cold weather to examine the long grasses that grow on the banks of the Adjai and Damooda rivers, with the view of testing their suitability as materials for paper fibre. Mr. Pantling made a careful examination of many miles of the banks of both rivers, as well as those of the Brahmaputra between Chilmurree and Goalundo. On all three rivers Mr. Pantling found the prevailing grasses to consist of three species of saccharum (S. spontanea, sara, and fuscum), the vernacular names of which are kashee, sara, and khuree. Each of these grasses forms a stout reed from 5ft. to 10ft. high, and having a rather thick, hard stem. This stout, hard stem being quite unsuitable for paper-making, only the leaves and the leaf sheaths can be taken into consideration. Dr. King was able to show these to a gentleman connected with one of the largest firms of paper-makers in England, who went to India for the express purpose of finding out what can be obtained from India in the shape of a paper fibre. The cost of collection and freight being taken into account this gentleman's verdict was against all these fibres. The same objection holds to the wiry grasses of the coast—viz., that the proportion of hard, useless stem is so great as to preclude them from consideration as practicable sources of paper fibre. Something has been done in Burma in the way of carrying out Mr. Routledge's proposals for the utilisation of young bamboo shoots as a source of paper fibre, but as yet no very satisfactory results have been arrived at. As esparto and alpha grasses, at present so largely used in the manufacture of paper, are rapidly becoming scarce and dear, the necessity of some substitute for them is daily becoming more pressing. Dr. King's opinion is that, of India fibre producing plants, the plantain is one which promises best, and he thinks some attention might be given to its utilisation. The report states, with regard to the experiments in introducing indiarubber trees, that the Ceara rubber trees continue to grow vigorously, and a few of them are now beginning to yield seed. The demand for young plants and for the seed of this species continues to be considerable; and of all the recently imported rubber yielders it is the only one that promises any kind of success in that part of India. The Para rubber and the Madagascar rubber vine have utterly failed. Of the great rubber creeper of the East African coast, seeds have, through Sir John Kirk, been received at the gardens, and some of them have germinated. But, even if it turns out suitable to the climate, Dr. King fears it would prove rather an unmanageable crop, as it is described as an enormous creeper, climbing to the tops of the highest trees. With regard to all these exotic rubbers, Dr. King states it must be remembered that, except Ceara, they are either very large trees or climbers; and, although it may pay well to collect rubber from them in their native forests, where they have grown to maturity without cost to the collector, it is quite a different matter when their planting and protection have to be paid for and their coming to maturity has to be awaited for years. With regard to other economic plants, Dr. King reports that the locust bean and carrot and the various kinds of eucalyptus, of which the cultivation was pressed on the Government, have been tried for years, and have all been found totally unsuitable to the soil and climate of Bengal. They may, he thinks, cease to be reported on. Mahogany and guango, or rain tree, are two exotic trees which really grow well in Bengal, and for which the demand is steady. A large patch of ground is still by desire of the Government of India kept under rhea for the purpose of supplying roots to persons who may wish to undertake the cultivation of this fibre. The prices which have on two occasions been offered for machines to clear rhea fibre have hitherto failed to create much interest in the matter in commercial circles in Calcutta. Dr. King himself is not sanguine as to the possibility of rhea cultivation becoming a commercial success in Bengal.

HOME NEWS.

NEW STEAMERS.—The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's new steamer Ganges was successfully launched on Wednesday at Barrow in Furness. The Ganges, which is built of steel, is 4,100 tons gross register, and will have engines of about 5,000 horse power indicated. She is 390ft. long, has 42ft. beam, is 35ft. deep, and will carry 3,000 tons of cargo. The Sutlej, a sister ship to the Ganges, will be launched shortly, and both vessels will be utilised for the India, China, and Australian mail services.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—The tenders for £350,000 in bills on India were received on Wednesday at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £199,700, and Bombay, £150,300, the average rate in each case being 18.7-875d. Tenders on both presidencies at 18.7½d., will receive about 19 per cent. The whole of the bills offered have thus been sold, a of result which evidently indicated the existence of a more general demand. For next week forty lakhs are to be offered. In the face of a non-allocation of the whole of the bills put up for tender on several successive previous occasions, it is difficult, says the Times, to understand why this increase should be made just now, unless it be traceable to the exports of wheat from India, which are said in some quarters in the City to be, perhaps, larger than any known in recent years. If this prove to be the case, it is certain more money will be wanted on the other side, and the only way to effect this would be to draw to a larger extent on home resources. For some days past, in fact, there have been growing signs of increasing firmness in the money market in India, a firmness which is doubtless due to the increased movement of grain.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.—The supply of bar silver was scarce, the price was unaltered, at 51½d. per ounce. Mexican dollars were also stationary at 50½d. It is noteworthy that although the figure at which the Indian Council drafts were allotted was the same as last week, the entire amount tendered for was disposed of. This fact taken in connection with an advance in the total to be offered next week to 40 lakhs shows that the demand for remittance to the East for trade purposes is on the increase, and that a sufficient sum in silver at a suitable price is not available for that purpose. The quotation for rupee paper was unchanged. Telegraph transfers from Bombay rule at 18.7½d., and from Calcutta at 18.7 15-16d. The exchanges from the two latter centres were quoted at 18.8½d. and 18.8d. respectively, the rate from Hong Kong being 38.9d., and from Shanghai 58.1½d. —On Thursday bar silver changed hands to a limited extent at 51½d. per ounce, the previous quotation. But an improvement was marked in Mexican dollars, which advanced ¼, to 51d., owing to a better demand coming upon a bare market. Telegraph transfers from Bombay were 18.7½d., and from Calcutta at 18.7 15-16d., the exchanges from these centres being 18.8 3-16d. in both instances. The rate from Hong Kong was 38.9d., and from Shanghai 58.1½d. Rupee Four and Four-and-a-Half per Cents. recovered 3-16 to 83½ to ¾, and 90½ to ¾ respectively. —On Friday about £5,000 worth of bar silver, brought by the Cordillera from Chili, was disposed of at 51½d. per oz., showing no change in value. In Mexican dollars no further business was entered into, but the previous advance was maintained. The Eastern rates of exchange were quite unchanged, and so was Rupee Paper, although, in the case of the latter, transactions were on a somewhat larger scale. —On Saturday prices were unchanged.

INDO-EUROPEAN TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—Mr. W. Andrew the managing director, writes as follows:—"I beg to inform you that direct communication with India by the Indo-European line is at present interrupted from this country owing to the breakage of the submarine cable between England and Germany. The line is, however, working as usual in connection with the continent of Europe."

OBITUARY.—Lieutenant General Colin Mackenzie, C.B., died on Sunday, at Edinburgh, at the age of seventy-five. He entered the army in 1826, and in 1834 served with General Lindsay's column in Coorg in all the actions which led to the conquest of Mercara. In 1841 he led the advanced guard at the forcing of the Khoord Cabul Pass. Subsequently he defended the fort of Nishan Khan, in the city of Cabul, and afterwards forced his way through the enemy's lines, bringing off the wounded, with the women and children. In January, 1842, he was given up as a hostage at the special demand of Akbar Khan. He was twice sent disguised as an Afghan to negotiate with General Pollock, and was employed as Political Chargé of Prince Shahpur during the expedition to Istalif, and took a conspicuous part in the storming of that place in September, 1842. General Mackenzie raised and commanded the 4th Sikh Light Infantry on the frontier during the Punjab campaign in 1848-9; and in 1853 took possession of the ceded districts of Berar. He was repeatedly thanked by Government for his services in India, and was nominated a Companion of the Order of the Bath. General Mackenzie married Miss Helen Douglas, daughter of Admiral J. E. Douglas.

THE LATE GENERAL COLIN MACKENZIE.—Lieut. C. R. Low writes from 82, Elsham-road, Kensington, Oct. 27:—"In General Colin Mackenzie disappears a once conspicuous figure in our Indian military history. During the disasters of the first Afghan war no name stands out in brighter relief than that of Capt. Mackenzie, who possessed in a marked degree the best qualities of the typical soldier. Brave, modest, able, generous, and gifted with great powers of endurance, he was alike beloved and respected by his brother officers and by the wild Afghan 'Jezailchees,' or matchlockmen, who, awed by his indomitable will and high courage, alone remained faithful among their countrymen to the losing cause of England. In the operations around Cabul, so well described by his friend and comrade, the late Sir Vincent Eyre, whom he has so quickly followed to the grave, Capt. Mackenzie was in the thick of the fighting, and appeared to lead a charmed life. Vincent Eyre describes with graphic power the scene when Mackenzie, fresh and breathless from the disastrous action of Nov. 23, 1841, when British and native soldiers alike fled before the victorious Afghans, rushed into the wounded officers' quarters, and telling him of the disgrace to our arms, threw open his coat, out of which fell a spent bullet, proving that he at least had boldly faced the foe. Capt. Mackenzie, as one of Sir William Macnaghten's political assistants, accompanied the ill-fated envoy in his last fatal interview with Mahomed Akbar Khan, on Dec. 23, 1841, and describes the event in his graphic narrative published in Eyre's journal. Akbar Khan carried him off on his own horse, and, he says, 'finding the Ghazi bent on my slaughter, even after I had reached his stirrup, he drew his sword and laid about him right manfully.' He was eventually released, and returned to camp only to be involved in the horrors of the retreat through the passes. After the terrible night at Boothak, Capt. Mackenzie, with Major Pottinger, and Capt. (now General) Sir George Lawrence, were surrendered as hostages by General Elphinstone, at the demand of Akbar Khan; as his Jezailchees were nearly all killed, 'his services,' says Major Pottinger, 'could be of little further use,' while Akbar Khan set a special value on securing his person. Kaye well says of Capt. Colin Mackenzie, 'than him there was not in all the army a braver or a better soldier.' In his views regarding the policy that led to the last Afghan war the late General Colin Mackenzie was an uncompromising adherent of the late Lord Lawrence, and was an active member of the Afghan Committee."

DEATH OF THE RIGHT HON. W. N. MASSEY, M.P.—A vacancy has been occasioned in the representation of Tiverton, Devonshire, by the death of the Right Hon. William Nathaniel Massey, P.C., M.P., which occurred in London on Tuesday, at the age of seventy-two. Mr. Massey accepted the chairmanship of the Committee of Ways and Means and the Deputy-Speakership of the House of Commons, an office which he continued to fill until his appointment as successor to Sir Charles Trevelyan, in February, 1865, as Minister of Finance in India and a member of the Governor General's Council, being at the same time sworn in as a member of the Privy Council. He remained in India till 1868, when, upon his return to England, he unsuccessfully contested Liverpool, and did not again obtain a seat in the House of Commons until November, 1872, when at a bye election he was returned for Tiverton, which constituency again returned him at the general elections of 1874 and 1880.

POSTAGE TO INDIA.—A correspondent writes to the editor of the Times:—"Sir,—One may send a half-ounce letter from France and all over the Continent to British India for 2½d. When may we expect an extension of this privilege to Great Britain? At present the rate is 5d.—exactly double."

COMMERCIAL BANK OF ALEXANDRIA.—The report for the year ending August 31 states that, after providing for all expenses, including income-tax, and making provision for bad and doubtful debts, the net profits amount to £20,448. This, added to £903, the balance brought forward from last account, makes a total of £21,351. Deducting £835 for rebate of interest, there remains a balance of £20,516 available for distribution; and the directors propose to deal with this sum in the following manner, viz.:—To pay a dividend of 3s. per share, which, with the interim dividend of 1s. 6d. per share paid on the 1st May last, together are equal to 7½ per cent. per annum, and amount to £18,000; and to carry forward to new account £2,516.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.—The 1st Battalion Royal Scots Fusiliers (21st), at Secunderabad, were to have embarked at Bombay for England in her Majesty's ship Jumna on November 4, arriving at Portsmouth about December 2. Owing to the delay in sending on the 2nd Battalion of the regiment from Natal, it is not improbable, however, that the Dorsetshire Regiment (39th) may come home in the Jumna instead, the Scots Fusiliers remaining in India till February, when the headquarters—about 450—will embark. This is little more than half the strength of the battalion. The remainder, consisting of soldiers having some time to serve, will stay behind at Secunderabad and join the 2nd Battalion on its arrival at that station from Africa. The Indian Government are about reducing the garrisons in Burma by a battalion. The 1st Oxford Light Infantry (43rd) and the 1st Essex (44th), now in that country, being ordered, the former to Bangalore and the latter to Madras, while only one battalion the 1st Bedford (16th) will take their place at Thayetmyo. The 2nd Hampshire Regiment (67th) at Bangalore will relieve the Bedford at Cannanore, and the wing of the 2nd Royal London Fusiliers at Madras will go to Bellary.

COLONIAL HANDBOOKS, MAPS, &c.

CANADA—including Ontario, North-West Territory, Manitoba, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, &c. With New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo., 288 pp. Cloth, 5s. "Athenaeum," June 25, 1881.—"Full of information and statistics, which ought to prove very serviceable to any visitor to the Dominion."

"Times."—"Under the above title Messrs. Silver have brought out much more than a mere "Handbook to Canada," an historical, political, social, geographical, and topographical guide for the use of travellers and settlers over the greater portions of our North-American possessions. The need of such a work at once handy, comprehensive, and trustworthy, has long been felt both by intending settlers and by readers at home, who are surprised, and not unnaturally, at the scanty information about so important a territory which is accessible to them. The volume is illustrated by a map, showing the whole extent of the Canadian Confederation from the shores of the Atlantic to those of the Pacific, and exhibiting all the details of inland communication, whether by Railway or the long chain of inland lakes. Those who have friends in British Columbia, Manitoba, &c., will find this map most useful; and it may be added that the historical chapters are full of materials for the future historian of Canada, or for the writer of an article on the subject in an encyclopedia."

"Manitoba Daily Free Press."—"Comprised in this book is a mass of valuable information, which cannot fail to impress every reader with an intelligent idea of the great resources and capabilities of our country. In fact, we are convinced that in the words of the preface, a comprehensive, reliable, and at the same time cheap and handy work has been produced, which will furnish the kind of information most sought for in regard to the Dominion, and especially in regard to Manitoba and the North West territories. We have every reason to think that this handbook to Canada is one of the best contributions to immigration literature yet produced. It is also very handsomely got up tastefully bound, and very well printed."

"Graphic."—"We are already acquainted with Messrs. Silver's Handbooks to Australasia and South Africa. They are concisely written, accurate in information, and full of practical details. The same praise may be accorded to the volume now before us, which comprises a survey of the whole of British North America, the reader's researches being aided by an excellent map. To the intending emigrant the descriptions of Manitoba and British Columbia will be especially attractive."

SOUTH AFRICA (New Edition) including the Cape, Natal, Orange Free State, &c. Illustrated. With Coloured Map. 576 pp. Price 5s.

AUSTRALIAN DICTIONARY OF DATES AND MEN OF THE TIME By J. H. HEATON, Sydney. Royal 8vo. 650 pp. Price 12s.

"The Times."—"A remarkable work. . . Shows more impressively than probably any other kind of publication could the immense activity of our Australian Colonies and the rapid advances they have made since their very recent foundation. . . It is a creditable and useful, and, we believe, trustworthy publication."

AUSTRALIAN GRAZIER'S GUIDE No. 1, Sheep. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 2s. 6d. "Field."—"This little work is intended to supply, as fully as may be in a small compass, an admitted want in Colonial literature, and is indeed exactly the sort of 'Guide' for the assistance and instruction of those who propose to try their fortunes as stock-raisers abroad, and who so frequently inquire of the Field for such help as is afforded by its pages."

THE AUSTRALIAN GRAZIER'S GUIDE No. 2, Cattle. Just out. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 2s. 6d.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE,

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Menstrual, &c.

Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manila, to the effect that Cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st Dec., 1884.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was, undoubtedly, the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say had been sworn to.—See Times, 18th July, 1884.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanied each bottle.

A RIDE TO KHIVA

CAPTAIN FRED. BURNABY

Royal Horse Guards.

Says page 18:—"Two pairs of boots lined with fur were also taken; and for physic—with which it is as well to be supplied when travelling in out-of-the-way places—some quinine and Cockle's Pills, the latter a most invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the natives of Central Africa with the greatest possible success. In fact the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines, when I administered to him five will never fade from my memory; and a friend of mine, who passed through the same district many months afterwards, informed me that my fame as a 'medicine man' had not died out, but that the marvellous cure was even then a theme of conversation in the bazaar."

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, NOV. 7, 1881.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Oct. 20; Madras and Allahabad, Oct. 18; Calcutta, Oct. 17.

THE riots at the Jagannath Temple at Poree, of which the Calcutta telegram in to-day's Times gives some account, appear to have been unimportant in themselves. But the mere possibility of such disturbances being deliberately planned, even by such wild fanatics as the Kumbhupatails, is, we fear, significant of the unrest that seems to be spreading throughout the land. Like the Mooltan riots, and, to some extent also, the Bhil and Santal disturbances, they point to a growing idea among the lawless classes that the Government can be trifled with with impunity.

THE immediate results of Archdeacon Baly's recent summons to Simla are shown in the Government resolution on the subject of the education of European and Eurasian children, of which the Calcutta telegram in to-day's Times furnishes us with a good summary. The question was taken up warmly by Lord Lytton and Sir Edward Clive Bayley in 1877, and we are glad to see that the investigation then ordered has now borne valuable fruit. It cannot be doubted that the educational condition of the Eurasian and poor European population of India has long been a subject of anxious consideration for the Government; and the difficulties in the way of adequate treatment of the subject—in view of the comparative costliness of the machinery required, and of the just reluctance felt about any considerable allotment of imperial funds for the special behoof of a particular class—must always be very great. Until further information is published, both of the intentions of Government and of the facts on which its action is founded, we are unable to form any decided opinion on the merits of the present scheme. This much may, however, at once be said—that the scheme does not seem to err on the side of illiberality. And further: we think it will be a matter for regret if no notice has been taken of the suggestions for a scheme of aided emigration for Eurasian youth, which have often been pressed on the attention of the Government of India.

In our leading columns to-day we deal with the latest proof which Mr. Fawcett has given of his gracious "interest in India." India would feel more grateful to him if he would consent, as Postmaster General, not so entirely to "dissemble his love" in the matter of the 5d. postage rate. Letters in the Times this week show that Mr. Fawcett alone, of all the Postmasters General of Europe, insists on "kicking us downstairs" in this respect.

WE trust that one result of the publication of Miss Beilby's interesting account in the Times, and of the gracious sympathy expressed by her Majesty in the movement to give medical aid to the women of India, will be largely-increased subscriptions to the funds of those societies and associations that are already engaged in this truly philanthropic field. We reproduce elsewhere a letter on the subject that has appeared in the Times from Sir William Muir, the treasurer of the Indian Female Normal School and Instruction Society.

THIS is the irreverent way in which the Friend of India speaks of the change supposed to have been observable of late in the political tone of the Standard:—

"It is reported that Mr. Chamberlain has purchased the Standard newspaper, and that the quondam Conservative organ will be converted into an organ of the Liberal Government. The Liberals are evidently awake to the wisdom of utilising the press. It is not long since the Jingo Pall Mall Gazette was purchased and placed under the editorship of the distinguished Radical, Mr. John Morley. The Standard has lately been remarkable for what the Liberals call fairness in discussing public questions. The Tories, however, have been calling it treachery."

THE Queen has been graciously pleased to nominate and appoint Moneshur Bux Singh, Maharaja of Domraon, to be a Knight Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.

THE Standard makes the following announcement:—

"The Secretary of State for India in Council has, we understand, declined to sanction the extension of service applied for by Sir Ashley Eden, Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, on the ground of his having sat for six months on the Simla Army Commission. Sir Ashley Eden will therefore vacate his appointment in June next and return to England being succeeded most probably by Mr. Rivers Thompson, Bengal Civil Service. Sir Ashley Eden joined the Indian Civil Service in 1852."

WE are at a loss to understand this announcement, and we trust that it may prove to be incorrect, although made in such a dogmatic form. We believe there is no reason to doubt the substantial accuracy of a statement, put forth with authority by the Englishman not long ago, that Sir Ashley Eden has never "applied for" the extension of service spoken of—which would, we think, appear to most minds to belong to him as a matter of right—not a favour to be "applied for." Indeed, the word "extension" seems to us to be inaccurately used in this connection, for it is clear that Sir Ashley Eden was not serving "in the office of Lieutenant Governor of Bengal" during the time that he was serving as President of the Simla Army Commission; and, if this be so, it seems to be equally clear that the parenthetical six months cannot count as service in the former office. But in any case we are confident that there are very few Bengal men who will not agree with us in the opinion that, if one of the ablest and most successful rulers that the Indian Civil Service has ever produced be willing to remain at Belvedere during the six months in question there can be no manner of doubt as to what the ruling of the Supreme Government ought to be. And we do not for a moment believe that Lord Hartington is the man to allow the fact, that Sir Ashley Eden has to some extent been on the wrong side of the punkah since the general election of last year, to stand in the way of a ruling that would be generally received as both equitable and patriotic.

IN justice to Major Ashe, the sprightly editor of the Afghan correspondence, which Sir Lepel Griffin wishes to dedicate to "the Father of Lies," we publish elsewhere the letter in which he has replied to Sir Lepel's somewhat bullying indictment. As the gallant major announces his intention of immediately hauling Sir Lepel over the coals in a court of law it is unnecessary for us to inquire closely into the merits of the case. Most people were inclined to raise the eyebrow at the sudden and unprovoked ferocity of poor Ali Baba's pet aversion, "the gryphon of the oiled and curly locks"—tantæne animis celestibus iræ! And, as a Service contemporary remarks, it seems somewhat rough on the major that the fact of his having served with the K.D.G.'s should have been called in question when it might have been ascertained from the "Army List." Major Ashe will, however, have this consolation, that the libel case will help to sell his book, whether it avenges him on his adversary or no.

IT is to be regretted that Reuter, in his telegram which informs us of the arrival of Mr. Grant-Duff at Madras on Guy Fawkes' day, does not tell us how his Excellency "fetched" from the railway station to Government House; for then we should have known how the great "coach question" has been settled—a question which was said to threaten a convulsion in Madras society. It has always been the custom for the new Governor to purchase the gubernatorial state coach from his predecessor. But it was whispered that Mr. Grant-Duff—on the "Bang goes saxepe" principle—preferred his own valuation of the time-honoured vehicle to that of the trustees of Mr. Adam's estate, who probably measured it by the amount recently paid for it by poor Mr. Adam. And so, it was said, there seemed to be some chance of the new Governor driving up to Government House in one of those hack buggies which are at once the pride and terror of Madras. Reuter really ought to have told us whether the saxpence has, after all, gone bang, or whether a Madras buggy wallah has attained to fame by driving a Governor home.

THIS is what the Amrita Bazar Patrika says of the "high education question":—

"Whether it is Bengal, Bombay, Madras, or the Punjab, the people value, and justly value, high English education as an inestimable boon for which they are very thankful to Government, and any measure calculated to interfere with high education creates very great dissatisfaction."

THE first meeting of the Royal Asiatic Society for the session 1881-2 will be held this afternoon at four o'clock at the society's rooms, 22, Albemarle-street. A paper will be read by Sir William Muir, K.C.S.I.—"The Apology of Al Kindi: An Essay on its Age and Authorship." Also, a paper will be read by N. B. E. Baillie, Esq., entitled "Supplement to a paper on the Duty which Muhammadans in British India owe, 'on the principles of their own Law, to the Government of the country.'" The director will exhibit photographs of cuneiform inscriptions procured by Canon Tristram at Beyrut.

THE following dates have been fixed for the meetings of the Royal Asiatic Society for the coming session:—Nov. 7, Dec. 19, Jan. 23, Feb. 20, March 20, April 24, May (Anniversary) 22, June 19, July 3.

THE council of the Institution of Civil Engineers have issued their list of subjects for papers for which premiums will be awarded in the session of 1881-2; also their list of awards for the past session. Among the latter we observe that a Telford Premium has been awarded to James Richard Bell, M.I.C.E., for his paper on "The Empress Bridge over the Sutlej."

COLONEL G. T. CHESNEY, R.E., who vacated the principalship of the Cooper's-hill College at the end of last year, in order to proceed to India to act temporarily as military secretary to the Government of India, will, we understand, shortly take up the permanent appointment, in succession to Major General H. K. Burne, C.B., who is about to retire on colonel's allowances.

WHO is the "high official" at the India-office that says that Colonel R. D. Osborn's name "stank in the nostrils of the Government of India?" The fact is proclaimed with pride and joy by the excellent Calcutta paper in whose columns Colonel Osborn every week curses the British Tory and all his works. This is what the Statesman says:—

"Colonel R. D. Osborn's five lectures at Cambridge will be on the condition of the peasantry in Bengal, Behar, and Orissa. The Englishman is alarmed. Official India should memorialise the Board of Historical Studies at Cambridge not to allow Colonel Osborn to deliver the second course of five lectures. We are not sure that the memorial would have any effect, for the statement of a high official at the India-office, who was consulted, that Colonel Osborn's name 'stank in the nostrils of the Government of India,' does not seem to have been much regarded."

We imagine that Colonel Osborn's diatribes about the "Peasantry," &c., will be interesting reading for the "high officials" of the Government of India! It is not altogether clear why the peasantry named should be chosen for the gallant colonel's peg. But probably he thinks any stick will do to beat a dog with.

THERE is great excitement among the Ceylon coffee planters over a contested election for the Legislative Council. The Governor, wishing to secure a member to adequately represent the planting interest, requested the Planters' Association to nominate one of their body. The consequence is, a smart fight between Mr. Shand and Mr. Bosanquet. After a stormy meeting the planters were not able to make up their minds—chiefly owing to certain questions regarding proxies and faggot votes.

WE take from the Ceylon Times the following summary of the export trade of the island for the shipping season that closed on Sept. 30:—

"The returns show that although the exports of our leading staple is far below what we would wish to see them, they are considerably in excess of what was at one time expected—viz., 350,000cwt., whereas the total shipments for the season amount to 453,758cwt. Of this quantity 344,647cwt. have been despatched to the United Kingdom. Trieste has taken 43,752cwt.; Venice 10,488cwt.; Marseilles 6,378cwt.; Genoa 625cwt.; whilst there have been despatched to other continental ports 20,076cwt. Australia has taken 15,151cwt.; India and the eastward 1,108cwt., whilst the insignificant quantity of 529cwt. have been shipped to America. The exports of cinchona are maintained at precisely those of the last season, amounting to 1,207,720lb. Tea, on the other hand, has more than doubled the shipments of the previous season, having amounted to 278,590lb. The article of cinnamon shows a moderate increase over the previous season, in the figures, 14,194 bales; whilst chips show a less total amounting to no more than 321,772lb. Coconut oil has been shipped to less extent than in the previous years, showing exports to the amount of 247,113cwt. Plumbago shipments have also decreased; the total exports amount to only 206,723cwt. In the distribution of these various exports there does not appear to be any great fluctuation on a comparison of the figures of the three last years."

THE Amrita Bazar Patrika looks on a partiality for balls as one of "the vices of an English education." Our contemporary says:—

"We are sorry that some of the vices of English education are already manifest in the Maharaja of Mysor. The Maharaja appears to be fond of balls and dances, which have such demoralising effects upon young people specially. The Bangalore Spectator gives a graphic description of the Maharaja of Mysor's fancy ball, which came off on Wednesday night, Sept. 21. The affair seemed to have far surpassed all the expectations formed of it. It was worthy of all the preparations that were made, and of the care and labour bestowed on it by the gentlemen that were asked by his Highness to manage details of the ball. The floor was all that could be desired, the lighting and decorations were perfect, and the supper a grand thing. The dresses were exceedingly pretty and of wonderful variety." The Patrika probably disapproves altogether of the young Maharaja of Cooh Behar, who is one of the best dancers and most amiable hosts in Calcutta.

THE following are the contents of the present number of the Calcutta Review for October, just to hand:—

"A New Study of the Origin of Christianity," by H. G. Keene; 'The Life of Colin Campbell, Lord Clyde,' 'A Song about Sakhi Sarwar,' by Captain R. C. Temple; 'Our Joint Family Organisation,' by Jogendra Chunder Ghosh; 'The Poetry of Derozio,' by Thomas Edwards; 'Historical Sketch of Portuguese India,' by E. Rehatsek; 'Hindi and the Bihar Dialects,' by George A. Grierson; 'Social Life in Bengal Fifty Years Ago,' by an old Indian; the Quarter; Critical Notices; General Literature; and Vernacular Literature

WE take the following remarks on the close of the indigo manufacturing season from Messrs. J. Thomas and Co.'s price current:—

"We have no news to give regarding the crop; the season may now be considered over, manufacture having closed everywhere. We make no change in our estimates of 125,500 maunds, which we believe will turn out to be tolerably correct. About fifty chests of native Oudhs have arrived, and some 200 chests more may be expected during the next fortnight; offers have been made for parcels, but without leading to business."

THE same firm offer the following report on the Calcutta tea market for the fortnight ending Oct. 17:—

"Since our last price current two public auctions have been held, amounting to 13,943 packages—viz., 4,876 on the 27th ultimo, and 9,067 on the 14th inst. The demand for all descriptions has been good, and prices generally half an anna per lb. higher, except for finest, which show a greater rise; leafy broken teas and Souchongs have also been more inquired for, and at rather better rates. The news from the tea districts is not so good as could be wished. Continuous rain and cold weather in Assam and Cachar throughout September prevented planters from more than holding their own with last year's out-turn, instead of, as had been expected, making up the heavy deficit of the early months. October promises fairly well. Recent telegrams from Melbourne about tea are decidedly encouraging; Assam and Cachar parcels are bringing fully London-price; whilst for medium flavoured Darjilings extreme rates are readily paid, their high flavour being deservedly appreciated."

WHEN the mail left India it appears that the papers had not received the full text of the important letter of the Supreme Government to the local Governments—in continuation of the finance-decentralisation resolution—about local self-government. But the Bombay Gazette is able to give a brief account of its contents, as follows:—

"An important letter has been sent by the Viceroy in Council to all the provincial Governments in furtherance of the policy, initiated in the recent decentralisation resolution, of encouraging local self-government throughout the country. Practically, the Government of India declares that, as it has made large concessions in the matter of the management of their financial affairs to the provincial Governments, so they must in turn give more extended powers in the way of self-government to municipalities and other bodies entrusted with the collection and expenditure of local funds. For instance, Lord Ripon proposes to relieve municipalities of the contribution of 27½ lakhs which they now make towards police purposes, and to require them to expend the amount in education, medical charity, and in various works of local interest and local utility."

We suspect that this letter will prove to be a veritable apple of discord.

THE Times of India gives the following obituary of the week ending Oct. 20:—Mr. C. F. McGrath, B.C.S.; Surg. A. F. Andrews, I.M.D.; Nawab Kaiser-ud-Dowlah.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times, telegraphing from Darjiling on Nov. 6, says:—

"The Government has published an important resolution on the subject of the education of European and Eurasian children. The returns show that of a total of 8,567 European and Eurasian children of school going years in Bengal, excluding Calcutta, one-half receive no education whatever. Including Calcutta, there are in the Bengal Presidency 5,000 such children growing up in absolute ignorance. The Viceroy justly considers this a lamentable and glaring reproach to the Government. Owing to the peculiar circumstances of India, the Government cannot confine itself to subsidising primary education, but must assist middle and higher class schools. A system of common education for the European and native children is considered impossible on class as well as on religious grounds. Therefore, separate schools are necessary, the cost of which must be met by Government grants. An educational cess on Europeans was proposed, but rejected as forming a class taxation of a most indefensible kind. Large grants in aid and increased subsidies will be given, payable according to results, in the middle schools. In the case of free schools, provision will be made for the cost of the buildings and the endowment of scholarships. Technical schools will be established in various places and general schools in the hills. The Viceroy in Council proposes to grant a lakh of rupees annually, and invites the local Governments to report how far the system of competition can be applied to the admission for clerkships in public offices. The Military and Public Works Departments have been ordered to consider whether it is possible to employ European youths after their schooling is finished.

"The last Calcutta Gazette contains an account of a strange attack made on the idol of Juggernaut, at Poree, the most sacred shrine in India, by a body of fanatics. The rioters, who numbered twelve men and three women, and were almost in a state of nudity, succeeded in entering the temple and tried to force their way into the inner recesses. Although upwards of 1,000 pilgrims were present they were not expelled without a severe struggle, in the course of which one intruder was trampled to death. The rest were arrested and have been sentenced to three months' imprisonment. The inquiry showed that they belonged to a sect of Hindu dissenters, lately founded in the Sumbulpore district, and known as Kumbhupatais, from the fact that its followers wear ropes of bark round their waists. They allege that their religion was revealed to sixty-four persons in 1864 by a God incarnate, whom they style Alekhsuamy—that is, the Lord—whose attributes cannot be described in writing. They believe in the existence of the three hundred millions of Hindu deities, but do not respect their images, saying that it is impossible to represent a Supreme Being whom no one has ever seen. They are subdivided into two classes, two of which renounce the world and make no distinction of caste, while the third lead a family life. Their habits are said to be very filthy, and, like some European sects, they take no medicine in illness, but rely solely on Divine help. Their attack on the Poree temple was prompted by the belief that if the Juggernaut were burnt it would convince the Hindus of the futility of their religion and the whole world would then embrace the truth.

"The Hindus of Mooltan have accepted the compromise proposed by the Government of the points in dispute between them and the Mussulmans. The spire recently added to the Hindu temple in front, which excited the jealousy of the Mahomedans, will be allowed to remain, but not to be built any higher, and the Mussulmans will obtain sole possession of a disputed well. An extra police force will be quartered in the city at a cost of 8,500 rupees, to be levied on the inhabitants. It is hoped that these measures will effectually prevent further rioting.

"The Viceroy left Simla on Tuesday and arrived at Delhi on Thursday. He proceeds to Agra to-day and remains there till the 16th inst., when he goes on a tour through Rajputana, visiting Jeypore, Ajmere, and Chitor, and returning to Agra on the 27th. After a halt of one day there he will start for Benares and Calcutta, and will reach the capital on Dec. 2.

"The Lieutenant Governor of Bengal went on Tuesday to open a new bridge over the Teesta River. He leaves Darjiling for the season next Tuesday, and after a week's stay in Calcutta will make a tour through Behar, in the course of which he will invest the Maharaja of Dumraon with the insignia of the Star of India. On his way back to Calcutta he will halt for a week at Burdwan for the purpose of installing the young Maharaja of that place.

"Mr. Grant-Duff arrived in Bombay on Monday, and was escorted on shore by a deputation representing the Bombay Government. On landing he was received by Brigadier General Aitchison, commanding the district. He drove to Government House, where Sir James Fergusson gave a public breakfast in his honour. He stated that it was his intention to spend the first months of his office in travelling through the Madras Presidency.

"Some anxiety is still felt for the harvest prospects of Mysor, owing to the north-east monsoon holding off.

"As the cold weather set in early in Bengal and Assam the tea production will close soon. It is estimated that the total quantity available for export will not exceed 48,000,000lb.

"The deaths from the epidemic of choleraic fever at Umrisar amount to 9,000, or ten times the normal rate of the past few years.

"It seems to be certain that the proposed expedition against the Aliwal tribe on the Abbottabad frontier is now abandoned. The Hindu merchants who were kidnapped have been sent back, and the only question remaining open is the payment of the fine of Rs.5,000 imposed as a punishment for the outrage."

A REUTER'S telegram from Madras, dated Nov. 5, announced the arrival there, on the same morning, of the Right Hon. M. E. Grant-Duff, who was immediately afterwards sworn in as Governor of the Madras Presidency.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

REPORTS of the Revenue and Agricultural Department on the state of the season and prospects of the crops throughout India for the week ending Oct. 11 are summed up officially in the following "general remarks":—There has been no rain during the week in the Punjab, and scarcely any in the Rajputana and Central India States; but the weather is seasonable, and agricultural prospects are generally satisfactory. In the Central Provinces also there has been little or no rain (except in one district). Kharif crops are being harvested, and rabi sowings are in progress. In the Bombay Deccan and Southern Mahratta Country, on the other hand, general and beneficial showers have again fallen, thus maintaining the improvement previously reported in the agricultural prospects of this tract. In the Nizam's territories and in the Mysor State also there has again been a fair rainfall, and prospects are favourably reported on. In Berar the harvest is fair, and rabi sowings have commenced. In Coorg the ragi crop has been reaped, the picking of cardamoms has begun, and coffee is ripening. In the Madras Presidency rain is reported from all districts, harvest operations are in progress, and standing crops are on the whole in good condition. In Bengal the rainfall during the week has done much good. In the eastern district, however, it has been comparatively slight, and more is wanted in parts. Cultivation for cold weather sowings is progressing. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh fair rain is again reported from the eastern districts, though more continues to be needed in parts for the late kharif and for the rabi sowings.

INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE DEFENCE FUND.

The following circular has been issued by the committee of this fund:—"The attention of the committee has been called by many members of the service to the rumours that very serious additional changes in the constitution of the Indian Medical Department are imminently impending. It is, of course, of the highest importance that all proposals for such a purpose should be carefully criticised, and instant measures adopted to induce the Government to refrain from all changes calculated either to ultimately damage the public service or inflict unnecessary or avoidable hardship and injury on individuals. The committee are willing to use their best efforts in this direction, but this must necessarily involve a certain amount of expenditure of time and money; the former, the committee willingly place at the free disposal of their late brother officers; for the latter they regret that they must appeal to the members of the service themselves. They venture to suggest, if their labours are to be continued, an additional subscription of one guinea, and that each subscriber should use his personal influence to induce those who have not yet subscribed to aid in the good work. Subscriptions may be paid to the treasurer, the secretary, or to the nearest branch of the Agra Bank. It may be mentioned that the fund was organised in February, 1880; that the executive committee have held sixty-six meetings; that owing to the organisation eighty petitions have been presented to the House of Commons, and a large quantity of printed matter, setting forth the grievances of the service, has been distributed to members of Parliament and the public press. The total amount subscribed has been £700, and the balance now remaining (October, 1881) is £87.—Signed on behalf of the committee, R. COCKBURN, Surgeon General, Bengal (Retired). Subscribers are particularly requested to inform the secretary of their addresses, and of any change in their addresses, especially if they are on furlough."

THE STAFF CORPS.

A CORRESPONDENT writes:—"In August, 1871, I exchanged into the Bengal S.C., so that the Indian Government was relieved by that exchange of an officer who would have been able to claim colonel's allowances in due course. The officer I exchanged with took my place in the British army, in the 7th Fusiliers, and afterwards sold out, just as if he had been serving in the British service all his life. Had I sold out before I entered the S.C. I would have received £2,300 at least; now, I will never receive one penny of that money, all of it, except £250, paid by me in hard cash for my promotion. When I exchanged into the Bengal S.C. in August, 1871, I was then upwards of sixteen years in the British service; and out of that sixteen years I had served about eight years in India, the remainder of the time in the Crimea, in Canada, in the Mediterranean, and in the United Kingdom. I passed the final examination of the S.C. in December, 1870, and obtained a first class extra Hythe certificate in September, 1871, all just before I joined the S.C. in India, on Jan. 17, 1872. When I exchanged into the Bengal S.C. the officer I exchanged with told me that after I had served twelve years as a substantive lieutenant colonel I would be entitled to colonel's allowances; that is, that I could retire on £1,100 a year, or thereabouts. Of course, I knew nothing about the rules of the S.C., and naturally assumed he did; but after I exchanged I found that not only was I not entitled to colonel's allowances, as I had not entered before 1866, but that none of my service, except what I had passed in India, counted toward pension. Of course the officer did not mislead me intentionally, but merely by a mistake, as few men know the voluminous regulations and rulings as regards the S.C. Thus, after upwards of sixteen years' continuous service, I found myself:—1. Having forfeited the money for my commissions in the British service, I was a captain and brevet major when I exchanged. 2. Having forfeited more than half my service. 3. Not entitled to colonel's allowances, after I should have completed twelve years' service as a lieutenant colonel. 4. After upwards of sixteen years' service, allowed to count about eight years towards pension. The result is that now, after twenty-six years' hard and continuous service, during which I have had less leave than most officers, and have scarcely ever been absent from duty from sickness, and done more to qualify myself for the discharge of my duties than most men, I am not entitled to any pension. One of two things we must conclude: either that Lord Hartington does not consider an officer, under the circumstances above detailed, to be suffering from 'any disadvantages which require consideration,' or that, despite his inquiries, the truth has not yet been revealed to him. A number of cases show that many officers who joined the Staff Corps without understanding the regulation in question are labouring under a cruel grievance. The Staff Corps is now altogether officered from the British service, and dependent on it for officers to fill up vacancies. Already the authorities were forced to apply to the West India Regiments and the Royal Marines for Staff Corps officers. How is it likely men will in future join when it is known that it operates as a forfeiture of all previous service? Of course, it may well be said that the proportion of pension due for such previous service should not be charged on India, but it is lamentable to hear such an excuse made as an argument for its not being paid at all. Manifestly, the balance for service out of India should be adjusted from the Imperial Exchequer, and under no circumstances should the individual officers be sacrificed, just because they have served her Majesty in one part of her dominions instead of another."

THE STAFF CORPS AND INDIAN ARMY FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MORNING POST."

Sir,—I shall be obliged if you will publish the enclosed copy correspondence, as it clears up a point on which great doubt exists at present.—Yours truly,

Oct. 25. W. ALLISON, Secretary.

"22, Grosvenor-mansions, Victoria-street, Westminster, Oct. 20, 1881.

"Sir,—I shall feel greatly obliged if you will inform me whether by the new pension regulations for the Indian Army it is intended that all service, whether in or out of India, should count towards pension. Many officers, as you are doubtless aware, who have joined the Staff Corps after serving in British regiments out of India, have hitherto been prevented from counting their previous service towards pension. The words 'in India,' which appeared after the word 'service' in the Royal Warrant of 1861, are omitted in the new scale, and there is therefore some reason to suppose that the much-desired concession has been made. By obtaining for me an authoritative answer on this head you will greatly oblige the service.—Yours truly,

"Col. Allen Johnson."

"India-office, Oct. 24, 1881."

"Sir,—I am directed by the Secretary of State for India in Council to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of Oct. 20, and to acquaint you, in reply, that no alteration has been made in the old-established rule under which service for Indian pension commences from date of arrival in India.—I am, sir, your obedient servant,

"Col. ALLEN JOHNSON, Military Secretary.

"W. Allison, Esq."

THE AFGHAN CAMPAIGN.

IN our issue of the 24th ult. we published a letter from Sir Lepel Griffin, agent to the Governor General for Central India, in which he made some severe reflections on Major Waller Ashe, late King's Dragoon Guards. This latter gentleman has now sent the following reply to the Editor of the Times:—

"Sir,—My attention has been called to a letter in the Times of Oct. 21, signed 'Lepel Griffin, agent to the Governor General for Central India,' and dated Indore Residency, Sept. 27 last. Were the writer in England I should not trouble you in the matter, but address myself direct to him. But as a personal attack upon my honour has been made from Central India, through the medium of so influential a journal as your own, you cannot deny me the opportunity of replying to the same in your columns, pending any other proceedings I shall institute against my assailant, whose official position doubtless induced you to grant him two columns of your valuable space in regard to a book edited by me. The raison d'être of Mr. Lepel Griffin's letter would seem to be:—1. That I have chosen to edit a work entitled 'Personal Records of the Kandahar Campaign,' by officers engaged therein. 2. That, as editor of a military work, I have 'styled' myself 'Major Waller Ashe, late King's Dragoon Guards.' 3. That I have dared to dedicate the book to the Earl of Lytton, and to share his lordship's political opinions; and, finally, that the said book, not written, but merely edited, by me, is full of errors and inaccuracies.

"In making these charges my self-constituted critic, dating from Central India, instead of 'the sweet shady side of Pall-mall,' is not content to point out any errors in my book which his local knowledge or official position enables him to discover, but makes use of the following phraseology:—(1) 'A person who styles himself Major Waller Ashe, late King's Dragoon Guards;' (2) 'Battle of Maiwand,' 'unrecognisable by the survivors of that engagement;' (3) 'tissue of extravagance and falsehood;' (4) 'the six pages of description are but one continued impudent untruth;' (5) 'this letter pretends to be written on July 26;' (6) 'the speech put into the mouth of the Ameer is apocryphal;' (7) 'the whole of this is an elaborate romance;' (8) 'the mendacious and audacious statements of his pretended correspondents;' (9) 'the next and last falsehood I shall re'ute;' (10) 'vamped up rechauffés of newspaper correspondence, liberally garnished with ignorance and falsehood;' (11) 'those correspondents pretending to write from Kandahar are as lying prophets as those writing from Cabul;' (12) 'I trust he will not insult his lordship by dedicating to him the second volume, which, if it be constructed from the narratives of the same correspondents as the first, may most appropriately be dedicated to the Father of Lies.'

"When the political agent for Central India permits himself to address English gentlemen and officers holding commissions signed by the Queen of England, he may possibly forget that he is liable to be called upon and compelled to appear in England, to make good, if he can, charges of such gravity, and couched in such language as I have quoted. Pending the proceedings I and the officers who correspond with me from Afghanistan are now taking in answer to Mr. Lepel Griffin's letter, I will briefly touch upon that gentleman's statements.

"My first offence is that I 'style' myself in a certain manner, viz., 'Waller Ashe, Major, late King's Dragoon Guards.'

"My answer is, why should it annoy Mr. Lepel Griffin if I sign myself by the names under which I was baptised, 'Waller' and 'Ashe,' and which have been hereditary in my family for centuries, and why do I offend this gentleman when, in editing a military work, I add to my rightful names the rank of 'Major,' conferred upon me, after twenty years' service, by her Majesty in her royal commission, dated July 17, 1876? 'Burke's Landed Gentry,' the Heralds' College, and the War-office records will tell Mr. Lepel Griffin who I am. My next fault is that I have, without Mr. Lepel Griffin's special permission, dedicated my book to the Earl of Lytton, and I have ventured to share his lordship's political opinions without having previously consulted Mr. Lepel Griffin. There is an undercurrent of humour running through Mr. Lepel Griffin's composition which is positively refreshing in these matter-of-fact and prosaic days. What have my political opinions to do with Mr. Lepel Griffin, or what have I to do with his, if it can be shown that he possesses any?

"I come now to the errors, inaccuracies, misprints, and other faults mentioned by Mr. Lepel Griffin; and here I am on sure ground.

As recipient and editor of these letters I hold myself responsible for their genuine character, as having been written by officers, some of whom are distinguished men, at the seat of war in Afghanistan. During the progress of the war, and in fulfilment of promises made to me, these officers sent home instructions that I should have access to, and takes copies of, letters sent to their own families.

"My sources of information were possibly more numerous than those of Mr. Lepel Griffin, who seems to have seen so little of the country of which he was 'political agent,' while the officers who wrote to me saw so much. My old comrades of the 85th Light Infantry were in the Kuram Valley, where my brother-in-law, Col. T. E. Gordon, C.B., commanded a brigade. The 66th, also old comrades of mine, were in Kandahar, and I received many letters from my Bangalore friends—Galbraith, Oliver, and others—who were then serving under General Primrose; also a Madras friend of theirs and mine, where we all served under Sir James Hope Grant. Some of my near relatives held high command in the various columns, and, as I had obtained promises of correspondence from all sides, I was well supplied during the whole of the campaign. Before publication the letters, as I received them, were shown by me to several old friends of long Indian and army experience, and whose names are, perhaps, better known in her Majesty's service than even that of my present critic. The letters from Kandahar, describing Maiwand, as Mr. Lepel Griffin says, in a manner 'unrecognisable by the survivors of that engagement,' were written to me by survivors of the battle who are now at home, and who are infinitely amused at Mr. Lepel Griffin's strictures upon their handiwork.

"I have said that, as editor and recipient of the letters, I hold myself responsible for their genuine character; but, as I was not engaged in the war, and was not present at the scenes described, I cannot fairly be answerable for 'mango trees,' 'deer shooting' ten miles or twenty miles from Cabul, 'cantonment,' or 'fortress,' '3rd of August' or '26th of July,' 'two days' or 'a few days,' 'four chairs' or 'six chairs,' 'banquet' for 'dinner,' 'marquee' for 'tent,' 'sirdars' when it should have been 'Sirdar,' 'Zimma' for 'Zernina,'—an obvious printer's error—or any of the other mares' nests discovered by Mr. Lepel Griffin; but I had, and still have, thorough confidence in the honesty and genuine character of the descriptions of my correspondents.

"I have delayed some days in replying to Mr. Lepel Griffin's letter, as I wish to consult files of the Times and other London papers, as well as several officers, now at home, who were engaged in the Afghan war. I find in these officers and journals full corroboration of the various descriptions given in my book, and I cannot compliment the political agent upon his accuracy or his topographical knowledge:—1. There were officers present both at Ahmed-Khel and Maiwand. 2. There were dozens of officers, as I can prove, whose political and local information were more general than those of Mr. Lepel Griffin. 3. There are plenty of the smaller kind of antelope—i.e., deer—at or in the neighbourhood of Charikar, although no one ever accused Mr. Griffin of having shot one. 4. Charikar is not forty miles from Cabul, or anything like it. 5. Two English officers, beside my friend, did see the Ameer before Mr. Lepel Griffin, and there was no danger whatever in shooting near Charikar at the time mentioned—the end of July. 6. Mr. Lepel Griffin does not understand Persian, and, consequently, never conversed with the Ameer, as did my friend, who has passed in the language. 7. Mr. Lepel Griffin was never in the village of Zimma, where my friend had been shooting; and near, not at, this village there is a pretty running stream, with mulberry, date, palm, and mango trees. 8. Zimma is a good way above the sea level, but not 7,000ft., and celebrated for its fruits. 9. Mangoes are seen in Northern Afghanistan, and the country is celebrated for them. 10. What Mr. Lepel Griffin means by saying that no Bombay Cavalry were ever serving in Cabul I cannot understand. 11. The Ameer was perfectly acquainted with General Burrows's defeat long before his interview with Mr. Lepel Griffin. 12. Mr. Lepel Griffin says:—'I have never seen in Afghanistan a single respectable woman unveiled.' If such be the case, the very excellent drawings, representing street scenes in Cabul and Kandahar, which appeared during the war in the Illustrated London News and the Graphic are also wrong. 13. The statements made by Mr. Lepel Griffin as to the interviews with Abdur Rahman, as to the exodus of our troops from Cabul, as to the distances, heights, fruits, customs, and costumes, are all at variance with the descriptions given by the several newspaper correspondents whose letters have appeared in the London Press, and which letters fully corroborate the main facts contained in the letters received by me.

"If Mr. Lepel Griffin will take the trouble to refer to a file of any English newspaper which had a special correspondent in Afghanistan he will not only find the descriptions in the book I have edited strongly verified by corroborative accounts, but he will see that his own ignorance of contemporaneous events has not been left unnoticed. Pending the proceedings which I and my friends are now taking to cause Mr. Lepel Griffin to return to this country and answer the charges I have to make against him, I have the honour to request the insertion of this reply."

EXHIBITION OF NATIVE INDUSTRIAL ART AT SIMLA.

THE impression that decoration is an inferior sort of art, less difficult to learn and excel in than picture painting, sometimes leads to a mistaken depreciation of what is called "industrial art." In reality, the successful application of ornament to works of utility entails a more perfect knowledge than any mere imitative process of picture painting. It is, of course, well known that the greatest artists were the greatest ornamentists. The works of Michael Angelo, Raphael, Perugino, Ghiberti, and Benvenuto Cellini remain to testify to this. Both labour and thought were lavished on the arabesques and ornament which they applied to their frescoes, sculptures, metal work, &c.—thus bringing into harmony and union decorative and ideal art. If there is one valuable element in Indian art, it is the instinctive tendency of most native artisans and craftsmen to follow true principles of decoration. Dotted over this enormous country there are many thousand workers in all materials, from pottery to fabrics and metal work, to whom the invention of a pattern and the tracing of it is a pastime and delight. If these talents are turned into the proper channels it may well be believed that the fortune of Indian manufactures is made. The collections now exhibited are not only larger than at the two previous exhibitions, but the exhibits themselves are better. There are fewer objectionable productions and still fewer examples of hybrid design. It is a sign of vitality that the objects contributed nearly treble those sent last year. As at all exhibitions, the contributions by makers are for sale and become the property of purchasers after the close of the exhibition. This year there has been considerable demand for the various specimens exhibited. The most beautiful specimens are, however, not modern, but belong to native chiefs. These examples of former pre-eminence in the applied arts are valuable as showing what good work was, how skilfully it could be applied, and the effect of such collections should be to raise the standard by which modern work can be judged. The class of ivory work numbers 233 specimens; the sword and knife handles sent by the Chief Commissioner of Burma being exceedingly elaborate and handsome, showing a quaint fancy in design. The School of Art at Jaipur contributes some small figures of animals and mythology, twenty-nine in number, some of them being cleverly modelled. Two similar specimens of work, and a set of chessmen are sent from Delhi by the deputy commissioner, Mr. Smyth. Some seventy-one specimens of ivory applied to wood are exhibited from Vizagapatam in Madras, and among them are some handsome examples of carving. The majority of objects are, however, boxes, which, although of beautiful finish, seem to be wanting in good design. The ivory is applied to the sandal wood in such a way as to project in knobs and hands liable to break off; and the way of applying the ivory is not ornamental, and somewhat resembles brass bindings of a traveller's trunk. Some remarkable specimens of ivory are from Bhurtpur. They are two chowries of fly wavers made by a mistri attached to the palace of the Maharaja, and consist of ivory shavings said to number 5,000 separate hair-like lengths. The deputy commissioner of Sharpur sends twenty-one pieces of ivory, some being stick handles fancifully coloured and cut; others being mere toys. A rectangular ivory casket (No. 557) with some well-carved patterns in low relief is contributed by the Maharani Sarna Moji of Kasim Bazar. Models of elephants and a boat carved in ivory are sent by Mr. Mosley, collector of Moorsheadabad, through the secretary of the Bengal Economic Museum. Eight small objects carved in ivory are sent from Gujranwala by the deputy commissioner. The secretary to the Municipal Committee, Amritsar, contributes six specimens of ivory, a set of chessmen and five sets of painted bangles. Some chessmen and small toys from Surat, Bombay, are quaint, consisting of brightly coloured figures made of ivory, but the inlaid work applied to boxes, book-stands, &c., presents no novelty; the ivory specimens from Travancore have not yet arrived, and are too late for the awards. The class of enamels is fairly well represented. There are thirty-five specimens of enamels on gold contributed by Kasinath of Jaipur, mostly jewellery and personal ornaments, but very dainty in finish and rich and lustrous in colour. Goorma and Geesa Sing of Jaipur contribute some other specimens, one a gold plate beautifully enamelled—the joint work of the two men. The Jaipur School of Art sends thirteen specimens of enamel on gold and eleven specimens of enamel on silver. A tray set with pearls is a good specimen of the gold enamel work. The silver enamel is coarsely made. The Maharaja of Kashmir, through Mr. Henvey, the political officer, contributes a set of seventy-seven specimens of silver and enamel work of different kinds, the coarser kind on copper being most effective in large salvers and trays. Soobhana of Srinagar sends twenty-three specimens of silver and copper enamel. Lassoo of Srinagar exhibits twenty-one specimens of the coarser Kashmir enamels. As a whole, the Kashmir work seems to us not so well represented as it was in Simla in 1879. The examples sent are not the best of their kind, but Kashmir is unusually full this year of visitors, to whom the workers in enamel naturally prefer to dispose of their productions. The collection of enamel on silver from Lucknow is the first that has appeared at a Simla exhibition, and represents very completely the modern work of that city. Mr. Currie, the deputy commissioner, has sent some twenty-two examples, all by the same maker, Lala Din, excepting a piece of old enamel (No. 897) lent by the honorary magistrate of Lucknow. The enamel work on silver and gold collected and sent by Major Gordon Young, the commissioner, and by Mr. Smyth, the deputy commissioner, of Delhi, includes some very refined and tasteful productions. The enamel on gold is similar to that produced at Jaipur, and is probably made by natives of Jaipur now resident in Delhi. The small casket of green enamel on silver (No. 908) is an instance of very good work, but unfortunately has a setting in the lid of a mother-of-pearl plaque of European make, which is out of character. The Mooltan enamelled articles in silver, collected by the deputy commissioner, well represent the present manufacture, and many of the pieces of jewellery are pleasing in colouring and pattern, and well finished. The jewellery sent by the extra assistant commissioner of Kangra, Mr. John Goldney, numbers ten pieces, of which two pieces are in enamel on silver in very good native taste. The Cutch (Bombay) enamels on silver contributed through the political agent, Major H. Reeves, are direct imitations of European work, although very finely worked. There are some remarkably fine specimens of enamel among the objects contributed on loan. The Maharaja of Sindia lends a shield of buffalo hide ornamented with four bosses and a crescent of delicate enamel on gold (Jaipur work); also a spice box of the same work, which is, perhaps, the finest example in the exhibition, far superior in finish, colour, and the durability of the enamel than the modern Jaipur work. It is to be regretted that the Jaipur collections have no specimens of old enamel on gold; the Maharaja must possess in his "kapadwarra" or treasury abundant examples of the finest and most magnificent old work. The number of lacquer work specimens contributed from all parts of India is considerable, reaching a total of 565. The Maharaja of Kashmir sends 165 pieces, and the Co-operative Society at Srinagar sends fifty-four pieces. Some of the boxes and trays are handsomely painted, but as a rule the lacquer work is unsuitably applied, and liable to suffer by handling. The great majority of lacquered works are, however, necessarily small portable articles like trays, boxes, pen boxes, &c., and it seems to us that the only way to improve these is to protect the painted surfaces as much as possible by substantial frame work. The coloured designs, too, require keeping in order. They have got tainted with strange colours, and sometimes with coarse and vulgar patterns, which in the old work were unknown. Some twenty-three specimens of painting on wood and lacquer work are contributed by Mr. Bernard, Chief Commissioner of British Burma. Of these fifteen are of the bona fide Burmese lacquer work described at page 4. Being composed of wicker impregnated with vegetable oils, it is elastic and impervious to moisture, and the boxes are used by the Burmese for storing food, clothes, &c. Lacquer ware of this kind is thoroughly useful and appropriate, whilst it can at the same time be rendered very ornamental. The lacquered wood sent from Burma is of two kinds; flat painted and gilt-work, and work in elaborate "relievo." The former is applied to tables, and, although handsome and fancifully designed, is open to the two objections—that the table top is generally covered and the ornament hidden, and that the surfaces soon get damaged. The specimens of Hyderabad lacquer ware (sent by Nawab Shamsul Umara Kabir through Major G. H. Trevor, president of the Hyderabad Committee for the Simla Exhibition) excited considerable admiration for their effective patterns and rich gilding and colouring. Some large bamboo leaf fans and panels and trays are sent, on the surfaces of which a profusion of handsome ornament has been lavished. The sixty specimens of Agra lacquered woodwork, produced under the direction of Mr. Lawrence, the magistrate, and president of the Municipal Committee, present an entirely novel feature. The ware is ordinarily confined to small turned boxes, cups, &c., but in order to obtain large flat surfaces for other purposes Mr. Lawrence had large discs prepared, out of which panels and tiles can be cut for use in boxes, fittings, or furniture. The Moradabad metal ware was taken up by Mr. Buck, late director of the Department of Agriculture and Commerce in the North Western Provinces in 1879, at the time of the first Simla Exhibition of Native Art, and some very excellent specimens were then contributed through Mr. Imdad Ali, C.S.I. Since that time the manufacture has greatly expanded. Makun Lal, whom the department in the North Western Provinces first employed as a purchasing medium, has now started a manufactory, the largest in Moradabad, and employs between 50 and 100 hands. All the best work is now turned out from his workshop. The following is a rough account of the manufacture:—The vessels after casting are polished on a lathe and coated with pewter, receiving the patterns, the ground is blackened with a preparation of lac or dammer. The pattern is sometimes sketched in pencil, but the more skilful workmen are independent of any such assistance. The shapes, particularly those of Makun Lal, are in most cases in good taste and a marvellous fertility is displayed in the various surface patterns. Besides the usual delicate foliated ornament which closely covers the many vessels and objects, a new and bolder class of work has been started, which is very pleasant and effective. The patterns are more distinct and look well on a large surface of black grounding. The contributions of metal work from Lucknow number 227 pieces. There are two kinds of work; that which is in direct imitation of the Bideri work of the Nizam's dominions, and that which is a modification of Bideri ware. In the first the vessel is of a black mixed metal inlaid with patterns of silver, the silver being smooth and polished (sometimes engraved). In the second the silver is slightly raised on the surface of the black metal and is chased. Both wares are capable of being very effective, and the application might take precisely the same direction as the Moradabad work. The Tangore metal work, i.e., copper in and overlaid with silver, numbers some seven specimens of very good and well-designed work. It is already in considerable demand, but the difficulty of procuring specimens prevents it from being as well known as it deserves. The specimens of metal work from the Jaipur School of Art are not remarkable. Some of the koftgari is in good taste, but there exists room for general improvement. Gujarat, in the Punjab, contributes, through its deputy commissioner, some excellent pieces of koftgari, i.e., damascening steel with gold wire. Some pieces are of a new kind, and silver is mixed with the gold; the patterns being bolder and more effective than in the old work made at Kotli and Sialkote. Some specimens of silver chased work are contributed by Messrs. Cursetji and Co., through the secretary to Government of Bombay, from Ahmednagar. They resemble Cutch work and are applied to European designs for tea sets and small salt and pepper castors. His Excellency the Viceroy has lent some specimens of "faience" made at the Bombay School of Art, some of the pieces being of excellent design and colouring. His Excellency the Commander in Chief lends some beautiful specimens of carpets, which he brought from Afghanistan, and Major Baring's collection of plate and jewellery numbers many examples of Indian gold and silver work, and several beautiful pieces of French and Italian work. Mr. Grant lends a most effective piece of antique Indian embroidery, and Mr. C. Plowden's three specimens of Persian pierced brasswork are most intricate in ornament and handsome in effect. They would serve admirably as suggestions for a new development of Indian metal work. The Native Industrial Art Committee's prizes have been awarded by the judges as follows:—

MEDICAL LADIES FOR INDIA.

"TO THE EDITOR OF THE 'TIMES'."

"Sir,—Your valuable article on medical aid for the women of India, with the correspondence following, deserves thanks from all whose hearts are interested in the welfare of that great dependency. I write simply as treasurer of the society (the Indian Female Normal School and Instruction Society), to which Miss Beilly belongs, to remove the impression which Mrs. Garrett Anderson's excellent letter may have given, that this society employs any but fully-qualified ladies. It has, in fact, always resisted the temptation to what she calls "only frilling," or playing at amateur doctors. Miss Beilby herself is shortly returning home to obtain her full diploma. Miss Marston, L.Q.K.C.P.I., sailing for India to-morrow, was a student of the London School of Medicine for Women, and Miss Palethorpe (graduate of Girton College, Cambridge) is now qualifying at the society's charge for her diploma, eventually to take her place in the field. But it is a long and an expensive course—the fees alone, for the four years, costing £200. Unless, therefore, the society is liberally supported its labours in this branch must be very limited. Mrs. G. Anderson speaks of ladies proceeding to India to practise as a profession. This may eventually answer; but it has not succeeded hitherto. The people are not yet accustomed to European treatment in their zenanas. And it is a not inconsiderable benefit to be looked for from our mission that it will popularise the practice of lady doctors, and lead others (as it has led the Maharanee of Punnah) to value their treatment. For no one can read that lady's touching account in the Times of the 27th ult. without seeing what a power for good (as well in alleviating pain and distress as in shedding the light and blessings of our faith into the otherwise hidden recesses of the zenana) the labours of our lady missionaries must be.—I am, yours obediently,

W. MUIR.

GOLD IN INDIA.

[FROM A CORRESPONDENT OF THE "MORNING POST."]

ALL the great countries of the world have by turn become remarkable by the discovery of goldfields, but it has been reserved for the present generation to resuscitate the gold industry of Hindustan. The wealth of India was as proverbial as the wisdom of Solomon. History tells us how temples were plated with gold, how emperors coined their "ashrafies," and "goldmakers" sat in gold and silver seats and dealt out "nuzzurs" of gold bricks. Whence, then, came these treasures, and do these lands of great expectations still exist? Take up an ordinary newspaper, and you will find, under the heading "Stocks and Shares—Mines, Colonial and Foreign," half the companies noted as Colar or Wynaad. Not a dozen years ago the Colar plateau was an uncultivated waste, in perhaps the least known territory of Southern India. The Mysor Government hardly acknowledged its existence. The Wynaad was known as a new district of the beautiful Neilgherries, where fortunes in coffee were made and lost.

Many years ago it was my good fortune to visit the wilds of California, then just recovering from its gold mania, and I can contrast its condition with these new fields of industry. I remember meeting there a very shrewd old miner, who told me of his mining experiences in "Cariboo" in bygone days. How he started out with his few days' provisions, a Henri rifle, and a revolver to look for a "lead," with no other guide than the moss on the trees by day and the North Star by night. Life was very precarious, but one was occasionally recompensed by a haul of $150,000. Those were the days of nuggets. In one day I have seen at Chinese Camp, co. California, gangs of Chinamen scraping the road for perhaps a dollar's worth of gold dust a day, and even they were contented until driven away from this "Land of Ophir" by banded Irishmen who could brook no rivals in their search after gold. For how many years did the early explorers live on in hope in wooden "shanties," moving here and there, and trusting for the luck of getting, some day, a competency and a "fire-proof" house. For the curse of all their lives was the continual conflagration of camps and "shanties," and occasionally a diabolical slaughter. Later on I have met those quondam miners driving a "saddle-train" or steering a "mud wagon" across the tracts of California.

But to return to India. It is not to be supposed that its wealth was altogether fabulous; at some time or other gold must have been found in very large quantities all over the country. There are hundreds of towns and villages of which the name, or at any rate the prefix, signifies gold. All the great goldfields known to history have been worked until they ceased to be profitable, in the early stages by alluvial washing, and later on by mining. We may, then, very well suppose that the early stage only of the gold industry has passed away on account of the absence of any signs of deep mining, and that the present enterprise, though the more arduous and risky, will produce even greater wealth than heretofore. Lately I visited the Colar district and became practically acquainted with its hopes and fears. Situated on the same plateau as, and within fifty miles of the large military station of Bangalore, Colar boasts of an early history in gold mining. Many, many years ago travellers through these parts remarked on the number of gold ornaments in wear with the poorer and labouring classes. On further inquiry it was found that every village possessed a "scoop" for scrutinising surface washings. Moreover, by diligent search abandoned shafts were discovered 30ft. or 40ft. deep, the depth at which water was reached, and where native energy and skill failed. Subsequently, other parts of the Mysor province were discovered to be overflowing with gold stone. It is now more than eleven years ago that the first adventurer began seriously to explore the Colar district. He persuaded a few others to join him and to get a concession of twenty square miles from the Mysor Government, subject only to the payment of a royalty. For ten long years he went about, digging here a little, there a little, and sometimes sinking a shaft. At one time this self-formed company found themselves in extremis, but this early explorer contracted his expenses, lived in the native villages with the aborigines, until he thoroughly learned the geography of the reefs and could delineate the gold-producing strata. He extracted specimens until his efforts were crowned with success, and the assaying pronounced so valuable that this company of gentlemen have been enabled to part with half their concession for something under £700,000.

Let us review the financial position as it now stands. A small pamphlet has been lately published in Madras by Messrs. Higginbotham and Co. detailing the companies who now own this gold-producing area. It seems that in 1844 a concession of the Baitimungalum land (which encloses all the native workings) was granted to a company free from all assessment, and subject only to a royalty. This company lasted only a year, as a larger outlay was necessary for machinery and supervision than they thought fit to spend. On July 6, 1880, the Mysor Gold Mining Company started by purchasing 750 acres for £55,000 out of a capital of £135,000. In October, 1880, the Colar Company issued half of its £150,000 £1 shares and purchased 320 acres for £40,000. Also the Ooregum was formed in this month with a capital of £125,000, and 256 acres costing £75,000. In the following month the Nundydroog Company saw the light with a capital of £100,000, half of which was spent in land; and also in November the Mysor Reefs Company came into existence, with a capital of £120,000, and 320 acres costing £75,000. A month later the Balaghet Company bought their 150 acres for Rs.12,000, with a capital of Rs.3,60,000. In December the first purely Indian Company (the Kaiser-i-Hind) issued its share list from Bombay, with a capital of twelve lakhs (twenty-five rupee shares), and a property of 640 acres purchased at a cost of seven-and-a-half lakhs. In January of the present year the Madras Company was formed with a property of 320 acres, costing £85,000 out of a capital of £135,000. In March the Great Southern Mysor Gold Mining Company started with a capital of £75,000, and 150 acres costing £45,000; also in the same month the North Ooregum Company was financed with a capital of £120,000, and 320 acres costing £75,000. The latest company—the Nine Reefs—is hardly four months old, and purchased 320 acres for £60,000, with a capital of £100,000; so that the eleven joint-stock companies formed to develop the hidden wealth of this "Land of Ophir" own not half of the original concessions, and have paid not far short of £700,000 for this privilege. Their combined capital amounts to nearly a million and a quarter, of which the interest alone at 4 per cent. would be £50,000. In order, if possible, to promote a healthy spirit of enterprise the leading shareholders have offered £1,000 to the manager of the mine first producing 5000z. of gold, and £500 to the second manager producing the same amount; also £500 for distribution among the staff.

Now let us look at the chance of success. At present the nearest mine is nearly five miles distant from a railway station; but it is proposed to construct a loop line to bring nearly all the mines within half a mile of a siding. This is a very necessary adjunct both for the transport of machinery and fuel, of which there is none on the plateau excepting a very small plantation of casuerinas near the railway station. Nearly all the companies have finished the preliminary operations of hutting their employés, and the most pleasing feature of the district, otherwise quite bare of any civilisation, is the springing up of the early settlements or camps of the new gold-field of Southern India. The climate of the Mysor plateau is of all parts of India the most suitable for European colonisation, and during all seasons there is no hardship in outdoor work. True, the miner's life subjects him to every variety of temperature, but the very hard manual labour is performed by Eurasians and natives. The Eurasian is pronounced a great success in this new industry, seeing that the importation of labour has become a necessity. As in every new district, so here there is a great cry for better roads, but this has not prevented the Ooregum and Mysor companies from bringing to site a large quantity of machinery. These two claim to be the most forward in their preliminaries, and during our visit the one was busy pumping and the latter had just made a commencement of crushing and stamping. But others are working quietly and systematically. There is hardly a piece of ground on which a trial shaft has not been sunk, and one enterprising manager is already preparing for the worst by planting coffee and indigo; but we fear that schale and gueiss are bad bases on which to raise such commodities. Water is not too plentiful, except only where it is not wanted, at some 60ft. down the shafts. I saw some of the tailings from the Ooregum, and sure enough there was a dash of gold on one and pin's heads on others. Much of the quartz, however, contains no appearance of gold, but I was told that the reefs here are more numerous than in Australia, and that the larger profits are always obtained from comparatively poor ores, since these are generally more evenly spread over a district than ores of high yield and where the gold is more visible. On further inquiry, and especially in reference to the outcrop of boulders (which is a distinctive feature of the plateau), I found that they are very deceptive, as being probably the result of violent volcanic eruption, and only a deposit from some upheaving elsewhere. I descended one shaft, and I was directed to notice how occasionally the gold bearing strata falls or shoots off in a new direction. Of course no one was prophet enough to venture on the problem of results. Nor is it very easy to calculate the paying outturn of gold from quartz mining. Assuming that one ton of quartz yields one ounce of gold in the colony of Victoria gold does not reach this average), and can be raised at 10s. a ton, it would require about 3 dwt. of gold to the ton to pay working expenses, and 16,000 oz. of gold to be raised per annum to pay the shareholders of these eleven companies 4 per cent., or, roughly speaking, every 4,000 oz. of gold raised will give 1 per cent. to the shareholders. In Victoria last year 299,926 oz. of gold were raised from alluvial, and 529,195 oz. from quartz mining. But then this result was obtained by 38,568 miners from 1,235 square miles; or, dividing the quantity of gold amongst the miners, an average of £49 per man from alluvial mining, and £129 per man from quartz veins. The nominal capital of the 390 mining companies in this colony of Victoria is £3,496,731. Comparisons are odious; but let us hope the good luck in Colar will treat our 200 miners more liberally than this. They must not be content with any result short of £250 worth of gold per man per annum, and if they have only half as much energy in the work as they bestowed on our welcome they need not despair of success.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

JOKES ABOUT OUR AFGHAN AND TRANSVAAL POLICY.*

"A CLOWN'S face often hides an aching heart." We think we can detect, beneath the jibes and jests which fill up the little pamphlet before us, something of the sadness of the outraged patriot. Some of its political ballads are spirited, and many of its "glossarial" interpretations are really good. A sensitive Englishman will probably find it ill jesting over such sore subjects; but the excuse usually given for squibs dealing with national humiliations is, that a large class does not feel humiliation that is only national, unless shamed into feeling it. One of the best of the "charades" is called "The Tree of Honour," and runs thus:—

My FIRST is a "standard," but not such as those Beneath which advance soldiers to combat their foes,
Round which warriors assemble in battle array,
Or rally their forces when shattered in fray.

'Tis a standard of measure, established by law,
For liquids from which the Crown tribute doth draw:
"Imperial" its dignity, hence may be seen,
Its prerogatives neither are paucid nor mean.

My SECOND is anchored with tendrils to earth,
From which, like mankind, it derived its birth;
Like man, it stands upright, aspires toward the skies
Increases, grows vigorous, languishes—dies.

It houses the birds which inhabit the air;
Affords to the beasts of the forest a lair;
The winds are repelled by its strength, or delayed;
And the sunbeams are quenched or absorbed in its shade.

My entire is the virtue most prized in this world;
Never absent where England's proud flag is unfurled;
In love all subduing, it conquers in war—
Gen'ral Roberts displayed it, and took Kandahar.

I said never absent where Britons are seen;
Alas! though still there, twice it tarnished has been.
We were frightened by Russia from Afghanistan!
From the Transvaal—kicked out by Dutch rebels—we ran!

My charade is here ended,—What word if now spoken,
Would tell us its meaning? And mention a token
By which Britons are signalled, Britons are known
In all climes, in all regions where valour is shown.

The answer is, Gallantry (Gallon Tree). Gallant, indeed,
Are the sons of our nation—though vainly they bleed;
Oh! ne'er gave they cause, till false statesmen betrayed them,
For foes to despise, or for friends to upbraid them.

CEREMONIES OF THE NEW DISPENSATION.

PROFESSOR MAX MULLER, whom we truly esteem and honour, says he is "not fond of ceremonies." Nor are we. He affirms he covets higher things. So do we. In what, then, do we differ? We have gone through certain ceremonies; he has not. But we have our reasons for our observance or rather initiation of those rites. Our devotees are not ritualists. They have never blindly performed rites, as such, prescribed by others or established by custom. They have created a new order of ceremonies. Why? In anti-ritualistic Theism, which is wholly spiritual and above the senses, was there any necessity for outward forms or rites? None whatever. And because there was no necessity there was a deep necessity for proving there was no necessity. It was simply with a view to explain the spirituality of certain existing ceremonies that we offered a ceremonial explanation of those ceremonies. Why ceremonial? Because most impressive. Nothing can better explain or illustrate an old lifeless ceremony than a new, living, and illustrative ceremony. The heart understands better the true meaning of Hom and baptism, the sacrament and the Danda-dharan and the flag ceremony, if they are explained and enacted by living actors than if they are simply interpreted by discourses or sermons. Blessed are they that saw as well as those who performed those ceremonies, for on those occasions history reproduced itself and seemed to start into new life, and the heavens were opened, and a flash of light descended upon the mysteries of dead rites, making all things clear. And who were they that performed the rites? All? No. Only a few. And how often were they performed? Only upon one single occasion. The needful explanation was given. And that was enough.—Sunday Mirror.

THE FOREIGN-OFFICE AND BURMA.

THE telegram we published yesterday gave us the reasons why H.E. the Commander in Chief would not visit Cachar and Manipore—first, the difficulty of carriage; and, second, the absence of the political agent. The first may be dismissed for what it is worth; the second will not hold water at all, inasmuch as Col. Johnson, the political agent, has just passed through Calcutta en route to rejoin his appointment. It is quite clear, therefore, that Col. Johnson's absence can have nothing to do with Sir Donald Stewart's turning aside from Manipore. The truth will be found in the objection raised by the Foreign-office to so high an official's visit to a frontier State so peculiarly situated as Manipore. It occurred to the Foreign-office that, were the head of the army in India to visit Manipore, the Manipooris might convince themselves that they were to receive military support, and, consequently, worry the Burmese frontiers. Then, again, the Burmese, hearing of the visit, might run away with the idea that his Excellency was only the vedette of a column of invasion, and, in their anxiety to take precautionary measures, might make themselves too troublesome. It is well known in India that the Government of India has long been anxious to avoid giving offence to so powerful a State as Burma. To oblige, therefore, the Foreign-office, Sir Donald Stewart will not go to Manipore; but, considering the value of Cachar as a position in rear of the Naga country, and considering that the district has suffered from Naga raids, we think the Government might override the apprehensions of the Foreign-office to the extent of permitting the Commander in Chief to visit Cachar. But we do not see any insuperable objection to his being kept out of that hazardous hole, Manipore.—Indian Daily News.

THE GREAT MOULVI NOW IN CALCUTTA.

FOR the last few days Calcutta has been kept in a perfect ferment in consequence of the arrival of a great Moulvi, who is credited with possessing miraculous powers of curing all diseases which flesh is heir to. His process of treatment is extremely simple. As he passes where people are assembled with earthen pots of water and a small quantity of kala jira, he breathes blessings on either side, and a single breath is said to impregnate the water with curative properties. Whether any cures have been effected or not, we are not in a position to say; but we hear that earthen pots and kala jira are now selling at unprecedentedly high prices in the city, so that, whatever other results may follow it, the Moulvi's arrival has at least done some benefit to trade. The Moulvi's process is, in fact, neither more nor less than what spiritualists call mesmerising water. Never before, perhaps, except on the occasion of the landing of the Prince of Wales, were such countless crowds gathered together along the Strand as during the last few days have been flocking to see the great Moulvi now in Calcutta, and to avail themselves of the benefit of his miraculous powers. Not only Hindus and Mahomedans, but even Christians of all classes have joined in this concourse. Wherever he goes people flock after him in thousands and thousands. A few details regarding him will doubtless be found interesting.

The name of this gentleman, who is now making such a stir in Calcutta, is Moulvi Hafiz Ahmed, and he is the son of the late Moulvi Keramat Ali of Jaunpore. Like his father, he is a Mahomedan Sunni preacher. He generally travels about in his Budgerow in Burrisaul, Furriddpore, Jessore, and other parts of Eastern Bengal, where he has thousands of disciples. He is a man in easy circumstances, and does not ask for anything from anybody. Whatever is given to him spontaneously he spends freely in charity. His father was a most loyal subject of the Queen. He used to preach against Wahabeeism, and once delivered a lecture, on Nov. 23, 1870, at a meeting of the Mahomedan Literary Society in Calcutta, on a question of Mahomedan law, involving the duty of Mahomedans in British India towards the ruling power. In that lecture he gave it his opinion that India was a Dar ul Islam, a country of Islam, and that consequently no jihad could be declared in this country. The effect of the lecture was that Wahabeeism considerably lost ground, till it is now scarcely heard of, in India. He and his father have always been on the side of law and order. On another occasion his father read the prayers of Eed on the maidan at Calcutta, where, according to the reports of the police officers stationed there to keep order, nearly 50,000 persons were present. The great Moulvi lives in his Budgerow, in Prinsep's Ghat—the same Budgerow in which he travels about to visit his disciples in Eastern Bengal. He yesterday visited the mosque in Colutolla-street. The Moulvi is generally known to be a most pious man, and is considered a great authority on points of Mahomedan doctrine and law.—Indian Mirror.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE NEW POSTAGE ON NEWSPAPERS.—The following Government resolution appears in the Gazette of India:—"Under the provisions of Section 63 of the Indian Post-office Act, 1866, the Governor General in Council is pleased to prescribe the following conditions under which the Post-office Department is authorised to accept cash payments in advance on account of the postage on newspapers to be transmitted by the inland post. The proprietor, manager or publisher of any newspaper, as defined in the Post-office Act, may, at his option, compound with the post-office by a cash payment made in advance for the amount of postage payable on the number of copies of such newspaper to be posted by him for transmission by the inland post, during a given period. Under the provisions of Section 20 of the same Act the Governor General in Council is further pleased to prescribe the following rates of postage at which cash payments in advance shall be made:—For every copy of a newspaper not exceeding three tolahs in weight, $\frac{1}{4}$ anna; for every copy of a newspaper exceeding three tolahs, but not exceeding ten tolahs in weight, $\frac{1}{2}$ anna; for every additional ten tolahs or fraction of ten tolahs, $\frac{1}{2}$ anna. Provided that copies of newspapers packed in bundles and transmitted through the post to agents for sale shall be charged at half the above rates. Provided also that exchange copies of newspapers sent gratuitously to the editors or managers of other newspapers shall be exempted from postage. The Governor General in Council is further pleased to authorise the Director General of the Post-office to issue from time to time such rules as may be necessary for carrying out this system."

THE BENGAL IRONWORKS COMPANY.—The following is the reply from the Government of Bengal to the letter to the Government from the liquidators, dated Sept 17, 1881:—"To C. H. Moore, Esq., liquidator, Bengal Ironworks Company (Limited), dated Calcutta, September 21, 1881.—Sir,—In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 17th inst. to the secretary to this Government in the Railway Branch of the P.W.D. I am directed to offer the following remarks:—The Bengal Ironworks Company (Limited) have been in liquidation for upwards of two years. The plant and machinery is lying idle and rapidly depreciating in value. The shares a month ago were at a nominal value, and even the debentures were quoted at one quarter of their original amount. In fact, all hopes of reviving an industry, the importance of which to the prosperity of the country can hardly be overrated seem to have been completely abandoned. Under these circumstances the Government, viewing the matter entirely as a commercial transaction, made an offer of three lakhs of rupees, which, judging from the quotations I have above alluded to, seemed to represent considerably more than the market value of the property. The Lieutenant Governor, acting on behalf of the Government of India, must decline to increase the offer made for the property; he trusts, however, that the attention of the public having been again drawn to the subject of iron manufacture in this country, and the increasing demand for both iron and steel for railway purposes, may stimulate others to come forward. The Government has no desire to press the company to sell their property if they can make any use of it themselves. It certainly would not answer the purpose of Government to pay for it the price at which you arrive by a calculation of all the money fruitlessly expended on the concern by the company before their failure. Their inability to work the concern profitably arose entirely from the excessive outlay of capital in a manner which did not procure the results expected. The remarks made in your letter regarding the concessions granted to the Messrs. Rothschild in connection with the Central Bengal Railway appear to the Lieutenant Governor to be altogether out of place, inasmuch as the circumstances of the two cases are in no way analogous, nor is the question, as you suppose, one of 'dignity or of sentiment, or of the transfer of a working concern at a valuation.' The single object of Government has been stated above, and all that the liquidators have been asked to say is whether they are willing to dispose of the property at the price offered or not. If the liquidators believe that the market value of the property exceeds the price thus offered, and if they think they can obtain a higher price elsewhere, they will of course do well to refuse the offer of Government, and any really substantial company which may come forward to work it may feel sure of such support from Government as can properly be given.—I have, &c., H. C. LEVINGE, Secretary."—Englishman.

A NATIVE CIVILIAN.—It is extremely gratifying to us to find that the Governor General in Council has confirmed Babu Nunda Krishna Bose in his appointment to the Covenanted Civil Service. It may, perhaps, be remembered that it was we who first urged this gentleman's special claims to the appointment, in which he has now successfully completed his term of probation. We heartily congratulate Babu Nunda Krishna Bose on the fact that he is the first member of the Civil Service under the nomination scheme who has as yet been confirmed. We may be pardoned if, only in a spirit of honourable emulation, we venture to point out that Bengal has again, and quite in a new line, taken the start of the other presidencies and provinces of the empire. We hope that other nominations from Bengal will spare no effort to maintain the ascendancy which has now been established.—Indian Mirror.

AN IMPOSTOR.—The second day of October was fixed as the final date for the end of the world. Woe to those naughty boys who had hoped to get rid of the incubus of the coming university examinations, and to those who had purposely made promissory notes payable on demand after that date. For Oct. 2 came and passed away, as bright a day as ever gladdened men's hearts, and the world still kept on merrily revolving round its axis. The shock of this disappointment will be specially felt by the "Six Years' People," who for so many years have kept Travancore and Trinevelly on the tiptoe of expectation. This sect was founded in 1875, and it made its entrance into the world with the following proclamation:—"It is hereby proclaimed with certainty that there remains an interval of only six years (from May, 1875) till the glorious coming of King Jesu of Nazareth on the fiery cloud. And, as he is going to appear suddenly in the seventh year to be seen by all, Repent ye, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand. This proclamation made by his servant is as revealed by the Holy Ghost of King Jesus.—(Signed) JUSTUS JOSEPH, C.M.S., Minister of Kanit." The preachings of this sect, we are told, have produced an unparalleled ferment. Justice Joseph has "invented a new language, which he professes to have received from God. He has made a paper money wherein it is inscribed 'Living Coin Justus Joseph,' which he sells to his adherents at five rupees a paper, promising to the purchaser's transfiguration. He has ordered all his adherents not to wear any jewel. Even women have taken off the badges of their marriage union, and he has appropriated them to his use. Now he has under him nearly 7,000 people." One portion of the sect has gone so far as to permit a community of wives. No doubt the cause of Christianity has been greatly damaged in consequence of the freaks of this community. But remedies were out of the question. The best remedy was the falsification of the prophecy, and, now that the lie has been practically given, are the people hale and hearty again?—Sunday Mirror.

INDIAN MUSIC.—Dr. Raja Shourendra Mohun Tagore, C.I.E. to whom the cause of revival of Hindu music is so much indebted, has taken a most important step in furtherance of the cause. He has established an academy under the name of the Bengal Philharmonic Academy, the object of which is to revive and encourage the study and practice of Hindu music. The object is sought to be accomplished by the following measures:—(1) By the establishment of music schools; (2) By the publication of musical works; and (3) By the award of prizes, decorations, distinctive appellations, certificates, complimentary letters, or money presents to distinguished musicians, to authors of musical works, to manufacturers of musical instruments on an improved principle, and to others who may contribute in any way towards the progress of the study and practice of music. With Raja Shourendra Mohun Tagore at the head of the society we have not the slightest doubt that it will go on and prosper. The statutes of the academy, of which we have received a copy, are well calculated to further the object in view. We hope the academy will be a bond of union between the East and the West for the conservation of Indian music.—Hindu Patriot.

IN MEMORIAM.—We are exceedingly grieved to learn that Rai Rajiblochun Rai Bahadur, Dewan of Maharani Shurnomoyi, after suffering for a long time, breathed his last at Cossimbazar on Saturday, Sept. 24. The vast estates of the Maharani constitute almost a principality, and Rajiblochun was her principal adviser; and he not only managed the estates with conspicuous ability, fidelity, and zeal, but guided her generous instincts through useful channels of beneficence. The credit of the Maharani's noble benefactions was chiefly due to the wise counsels and mature judgment of Rai Rajiblochun Rai Bahadur. The Government appreciated his services rendered to the State by the successful management of one of the richest estates in Bengal, and accordingly conferred upon him the title of Rai Bahadur. The lamented deceased was about 75 years of age. In him Maharani Shurnomoyi has lost her ablest and most faithful counsellor, the State a loyal and useful subject, and the poorer classes of natives a generous and discriminating patron. It will be difficult to fill up the gap caused by his death.—Hindu Patriot.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?—Mr. Barbour has been at work at Simla on various calculations tending, if possible, to discover the incidence of taxation in India. He has also been employed in the endeavour to work out a rule to determine the number of recruits required by the Indian Civil Service. The public will be curious to see the results of these calculations.—Indian Daily News.

NEW THEOLOGY.—Our Holy Church proposes to encourage systematic theological studies by rewarding young divinity students with suitable honours. Early next year the first examination will be held in Calcutta by the Apostolic Durbar. All applications must be forwarded to the Upadhaya on or before January 1, 1882. The following books have been recommended by the minister for study, and will form the subjects of examination:—1. Introduction to Science of Religion; Max Muller. 2. Hinduism; Monier Williams. 3. Buddhism; Rhys Davids. 4. Life and Teachings of Christ. 5. History of Philosophy; Victor Cousin. 6. Butler's Analogy. 7. Carlyle: Hero as Prophet. 8. Imitation of Christ. 9. Holy Living. 10. The New Dispensation.—New Dispensation.

THE REASON WHY IT IS GIVEN UP.—We mentioned some months ago that a punitive expedition might be sent against the Alaiwals, the tribe living in a valley off the Indus, north of Abbotabad. The idea has not been altogether abandoned, but as the Punjab authorities are desirous of sending a force equal in numerical strength to that which captured Cabul under Sir Frederick Roberts, the expedition is naturally regarded with great disfavour by the Government of India. If 6,000 men are needed to punish the wretched Alaiwals, 60,000 will have to be detailed to conquer the Afridis and capture Tirah.

FORAGE COMMITTEE.—The committee assembled at Meerut to consider the question of forage supply for military purposes is composed as follows:—Col. Denis de Vitre, R.A. (president); Lieut. Col. Biscoe, 19th Bengal Lancers; Capt. Vetch, King's Dragoon Guards; Capt. Patch, Commissariat Department; and Mr. A. M. Markham, C.S. The work of the committee will probably last for three months, as nearly all the cavalry stations in Northern India, where the grass difficulty exists, will be visited.

THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.—The Commander in Chief passed through Calcutta at the end of last week on his way to Assam. Lieutenant Mitchell, of the 16th Bengal Cavalry, who is temporarily attached to his Excellency's staff, will remain in the Eastern Frontier District for some time collecting information for the Intelligence Department.

THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.—Mr. J. W. Furnivall, C.E., one of the secretaries to Government in the Public Works Department in the North West Provinces, returns to India shortly as chief engineer of the Central Bengal Railway.

THE AGRA BRIGADE.—Col. T. Rowland, C.B., 2nd Northumberland Fusiliers, has assumed command of the Agra Brigade, vice Col. Macdonald, 12th Regiment N.I., who is about to proceed to England on furlough on medical certificate.

DR. HUNTER.—Dr. Hunter, having finished his great book at home, is due back in India very shortly, and Government, we believe, is rather at a loss to know what to do with him. He has been too long away from administrative work to go straight back into the regular line of the service. It might really be best to invent some appointment for him at home, and keep him employed in educating the public mind about Indian affairs. But the greatest reform at present required is the reform of the home administration, and he would soon be officially strangled if he laboured at that task. So the Hunterian problem remains unsolved.

HOPS IN CHUMBA.—A successful experiment in hop cultivation has been made by the superintendent of the native hill State of Chumba, in the Punjab.

FARRIERY.—A school of farriery and veterinary medicine for native students is to be established at Lahore.

THE E.I.R.—The earnings of the East India Railway Company from July 1 to September 24 last show an increase of nearly nineteen lakhs of rupees as compared with the corresponding period of last year.

SAVINGS BANKS.—A system of savings banks is to be instituted in India in connection with post-offices.

[FROM THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."]

THE VICEROY.—The Viceroy is absent from Simla on a shooting expedition towards the Himalayas. He is expected back on the 23rd inst., and on the 25th he will deliver prizes to, and entertain at luncheon, the Simla volunteers. Mr. C. E. Buck, secretary in the Agricultural Department, will accompany the Viceroy to Burma.

SIR S. C. BAYLEY.—Sir Stuart C. Bayley, the Resident of Hyderabad, is expected to return to the Residency on or about Dec. 17 next.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL OF INDIA.—The heavy work of the Foreign-office has rendered it necessary that Mr. Grant should resign his seat in the Legislative Council, which requires more time and attention than he can give. Mr. C. H. T. Crossthwaite, commissioner of the Nagpore Division, succeeds Mr. Grant in the Legislative Council. The new member, it is stated, brings additional strength to those in favour of codification.

AGRA.—There is some talk of making Agra again the headquarters of the Government of the North West Provinces instead of Allahabad. Sir George Couper, the Lieutenant Governor, is said to be in favour of the change.—Times of India.

MADRAS.

THE P.W.D.—On the application of the Government of Madras, the Government of India have decided to re-employ, under certain conditions, engineer officers who were retired from the Public Works Department in Madras in 1879. No permanent reappointment will be made without the previous sanction of the Secretary of State.—Pioneer.

GOLD MINING.—The report of the directors of the Ripon Gold Mining Company, presented to a meeting of shareholders on Tuesday, states that mining operations have commenced, and three reefs have been tapped, the quartz taken from which, it is estimated, will yield a profit of Rs. 12 per ton. Crushing machinery is being procured from Australia, and it is announced that "some return on the money invested may be expected twelve months hence."—Bombay Gazette.

MYSOR.—The Dewan of Mysor has decided to form an Agricultural Department for Mysor, and is importing improved ploughs, water lifts, and sugarcane mills from Cawnpore. An exhibition will shortly be held. Mr. Leonard will be appointed secretary of the new department.—Times of India.

CINCHONA.—The latest convert to cinchona is Lord Abercromby. He has been a resident at Ootacamund for some months, and he has just acquired a large interest in a cinchona estate on the Nilgiris in conjunction with some Madras and Bombay people.—Madras Mail.

BOARD OF REVENUE.—Mr. H. S. Thomas, who returned from England a fortnight ago, has been appointed first member of the Madras Board of Revenue during the employment of the Hon. H. E. Sullivan on other duty. Upon Mr. Sullivan's return Mr. Thomas will revert to his old position as second member of the Revenue Board.—Times of India.

BOMBAY.

[FROM THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."]

THE GOVERNOR.—The Albert Edward Institute at Puna was opened on the 18th October by the Governor of Bombay. His Excellency, in declaring the building open, said that, even in his short experience, he had seen many works undertaken to commemorate the Prince of Wales's visit to India. Great as were the expectations formed of that visit, he believed that its effects had been even greater in bringing the people of India nearer to the personality of the Crown.

BARODA.—The investiture durbar at Baroda will be held on Dec. 28. It will be followed by a levee of his Excellency the Governor of Bombay.

THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.—The Bombay Commander in Chief (General Hardinge) is to inspect the Puna detachment (two companies) of the Bombay Volunteer Corps, of which his Excellency is honorary colonel, on Saturday. The chief leaves Puna shortly for a tour in Sind.

[FROM THE "TIMES OF INDIA."]

BARODA.—The celebrations at Baroda in December, on the occasion of the installation of the Gaekwar, are to include a camp of exercise. The 2nd Royal Lancaster (2-4th) Regiment, stationed in Bombay, has been ordered to attend the camp.

THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.—Professor Kielhorn, of the Deccan College, Puna, will, it is said, before long leave India, having accepted the professorship of Sanscrit at Gottingen. Coming so soon after the retirement of Dr. Buhler, the loss of another scholar of European reputation will bear rather hard on the Bombay Education Department.

THE LORD BISHOP.—The Right Rev. the Bishop of Bombay, with his chaplain, the Rev. A. O. Walsh, left by the last mail steamer on a visitation to Aden.

THE HAJ.—The officers and engineers of the steamer Empress of India the other day refused to proceed to sea from Bombay on the ground that she had been chartered to carry nearly seven hundred Mahomedan pilgrims to Jedda, and they apprehended an outbreak of violence on the part of the pilgrims, because it would be impossible for the vessel—a slow steamer—to reach Jedda in time to allow them to fulfil the object of their pilgrimage, which was to be present at a grand ceremony at Mecca on November 2. The case was taken before the chief presidency magistrate, by whose advice the pilgrims, who had taken up their quarters on board, were informed of the state of affairs. They left the ship quietly, in spite of the fact that for the majority of them it meant that their journey so far had been fruitless, and they must return home. One other pilgrim ship, the s.s. China, was leaving on the following day, and some three hundred of the Empress of India's disappointed passengers found room in her. The others had their passage money returned to them and went back to their homes.

LONDON PRODUCE MARKETS.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—Sale of 12,000 packages commenced yesterday and concluded to-day. All were without reserve, and comprised 7,668 packages Congou, 775 siftings, 306 Souchongs, 746 scented Caper, 395 scented Pekoe, 1,283 green teas, &c. The sales have passed fairly, and prices are lower for the commoner grades of Congou.

COFFEE.—There have not been any public sales to-day. The market is steady.

RICE.—Further business in New Rangoon spring shipment at 8s. 3d. per cwt. open charter.

COTTON.—The market continues quiet and prices are without change. Sales about 500 bales, including Tinnevely at 5½d. to 5¾d. per lb. Forward delivery—American, November-December, 6¼d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that, although the expectations of dearer money which lately prevailed are not confirmed, and trade in various quarters is fairly active, the markets for imported produce, with very few exceptions, continue unsettled. The demand for coffee exhibits some improvement, Brazil being sold at current low quotations, and this week's telegram advises a firmer tone at Rio Janeiro. A moderate supply of plantation Ceylon has been offered, and found buyers at 1s. to 2s. per cwt. recovery on last week's rates, small parcels of the new crop also bringing an advance on valuations. To-day East India is dearer, Costa Rica went rather above previous rates. Statistics generally are not very favourable, stocks on the Continental ports being still large, and the visible supply of Java in Holland estimated at 636,000 bags, against 629,000 bags in 1880. The sugar market is steady with increased transactions in low brown kinds, otherwise no alteration can be reported. Beef offers more freely, and refined pieces here have sold rather under last week's quotations. Deliveries of tea during October were very large. There has been no further change in prices of Indian this week, but the tone is steadier. China imports remain inactive, and some of the lower grades of Congou sold by auction have gone at easier rates. Importers, as a rule, do not press sales in view of the relatively small supplies on the way. There have been some speculative operations in new Burma rice, for shipment in the early months of next year, on the basis of 8s. 3d. per cwt. Rangoon, open charter, but cargoes afloat are difficult to sell. Black and white pepper quiet. Zanzibar cloves firmer.

COFFEE.—At the public sales to-day steady prices were realised, and some of the East India went at 1s. to 2s. advance; 393 casks 163 barrels and bags plantation Ceylon sold—small to low middling, 63s. to 72s.; middling to fine middling, 80s. to 90s. 6d.; rather bold to bold, 98s. 6d. to 109s.; 191 cases 305 barrels and bags East India, low medium to good, 76s. 6d. to 85s. 6d.; bold, 89s. 6d. to 94s. 6d.; fine, 103 to 104s. 6d.; 3,720 Costa Rica and New Granada—good to fine ordinary greenish, 58s. to 64s.; greyish 68s. to 72s.; good and fine, 81s. 6d. to 88s.; 813 bags other foreign partly sold—Guatemala, 52s. to 60s.; Porto Rico, 69s. to 70s. 6d. per cwt.

RICE.—A cargo Rangoon off coast sold at 7s. 3¼d. A steamer cargo of Bassein, new crop, February-April shipment, 8s. per cwt. open charter.

COTTON.—A firm market, with a moderate business doing at full prices. Sales about 1,500 bales, including Tinnevely at 5½d. to 5¾d., Western at 4½d. to 4¾d., Sind at 4 1-16d., and Fiji at 9d. to 14½d. per lb. Forward delivery American, November, 6 9-32d. February-March, 6 15-32d.; per lb. for middling l.m.c.

FRIDAY EVENING.

RICE unaltered. A cargo of 1,400 tons Rangoon off the coast sold at 7s. 3¼d. Continent; and another, 900 tons, at 7s. 9d. ex quay, Liverpool.

COFFEE.—The auctions to-day went with less animation—common at 1s. decline, but better kinds brought former rates. 441 casks 17 trcs. 56 brls, 175 bags plantation Ceylon sold, small to low middling, at 68s. 6d. to 76s.; middling, at 78s. to 83s.; fine middling to bold, at 89s. to 108s. 82 bags Mocha sold at 117s. 6d.; 1,801 bags foreign mostly sold; Guatemala at 50s. to 60s.; Savanilla at 54s. to 54s. 6d.; and washed Santos at 56s. to 57s. per cwt.

SALTPETRE.—About 200 bags Bengal 4½ per cent. refraction sold on the spot at 23s. 3d.

SHELLAC quiet; small sales of second orange at £6 to £6 2s. 6d.

HEMP again dearer; 1,000 bales Manilla sold at £49 on the spot and £50 to arrive.

COTTON.—The market is steady, with a small business doing, the particulars of which are not worth reporting.

THE PROPOSED EDUCATIONAL CHANGES IN INDIA.

In stating the position that is taken up by the whole of the educated classes throughout India, with hardly a dissentient, in reference to this question of the State support of high education, we have hitherto confined ourselves to those arguments which will be admitted by all to be reasonable, and which seem to us unanswerable. It would, however, be affectation to ignore the fact that the bitterness of the controversy has brought into prominence other arguments, or rather suspicions, which undoubtedly have not been without their influence in strengthening native opposition to any withdrawal of the State from the field of high education. We refer to the suspicions—not entirely well unfounded, we believe, but it must be confessed not altogether unnatural, and by no means confined to extreme partisans—that the movement for withdrawal owes its strength, partly to the jealousy of English civilians against native aspirants to the honours of the Civil Service, and partly to the desire of Christian missionaries to obtain greater power and a wider field for their proselytising efforts. We do not wish to attach to these suspicions a greater importance than they deserve. But no one who has carefully followed the course of the controversy can for a moment doubt that such suspicions are, if not general, at any rate widely diffused, in India; and such being the case, it is clear that their existence is a fact that must be reckoned with by the Government.

With regard to the suspicion of jealousy on the part of the great majority of the English Civil Service in India, we would unhesitatingly deny the charge. We believe that many English civilians are quite prepared to hold out the right hand of fellowship to duly qualified colleagues from the Indian colleges. Still, it would be idle to deny that, in the minds of some, doubts do exist as to the propriety of any such arrangement; and this is sufficient to render the suspicion not an unreasonable one, when a movement is set on foot that promises largely to reduce the numbers of the most highly-qualified Indian graduates.

With regard to the suspicion regarding the desire of Christian missionaries to get the highest education of the country entirely into their own hands, all that need be said is that, whilst the desire is perfectly legitimate and indeed praiseworthy on the side of the missionaries, we cannot wonder if orthodox Hindus and Muhammadans do not view the proposal with approval; on the contrary, it is quite reasonable that any disposition on the part of the Government to encourage these proselytising aspirations should be keenly resented by the native community. It is of course obvious that the withdrawal of the Government from the State colleges will at once enormously increase the power and importance of the missionary colleges—and this in several ways. In the first place, the rich endowments which they derive from the home mission funds will make their professors masters of the situation in the competition with "private enterprise." And in the second place, inasmuch as these funds will enable the missionary colleges to offer a better, or at any rate a cheaper, education than that obtainable in the private colleges, the former will be enabled to take up a very different attitude on the question of religious teaching from that hitherto held by them. At present, in the Free Church of Scotland College, in the General Assembly's College, and the other famous missionary colleges of India, the teaching is most efficient in the highest branches of mathematics, of philosophy, of natural science, of the whole "profane" learning of the Calcutta University; but in the matter of religion, General Tremeneere has shown that a little perfunctory Bible-reading for perhaps an hour or less each day is all that is ventured on—and it has been stated that the proved conversion of one of the students would probably have the effect of emptying the college to which he belonged. If the parents of the students thought there was any serious risk of their sons becoming Christians they would prefer to pay the Rs.12 fee of the Government Presidency College rather than incur that risk for the privilege of only paying Rs.5 per mensem. But in the case we are supposing there would be no Presidency College for them to turn to. The Missionary colleges would be able to offer their students such an education as would usually place them at the head of the university class-list at an "eleemosynary" rate of payment; and might fairly claim in return the privilege of teaching them freely the doctrines of the Christian religion. It is, we admit, difficult for Christian men to recognise in this contingency an unmixed evil. We have ourselves felt this difficulty. But every sentiment of fairness and justice forces us entirely to sympathise with and respect the feelings of our Hindu and Mussulman fellow-subjects in demanding from our common Government the most absolute neutrality in religious matters; and as a matter of expediency, as well as of equity, hardly any graver objection could be offered to a Government educational policy than that its natural result would be largely to throw the highest education of the Government into the hands of a propaganda, however laudable the aims of that propaganda might be.

PROFESSOR FAWCETT ON INDIA.—THE LION AND THE SUCKING-DOVE.

INDIA ought to be happy, for she is dear to the hearts and intellects of the electors of Hackney. As that blessed word Mesopotamia on a famous occasion carried saving grace and comfort to the souls of the faithful, so is it with the word India in the Town-hall of Shoreditch; and it is clear that this frame of mind must qualify the men of Hackney to decide on such questions as our Afghan policy in a way that no mere local experience or political knowledge could qualify them. Mr. Fawcett, when addressing his constituents at that Town-hall last Wednesday, reminded them that on taking office he had graciously promised "never to relinquish the interest he had long taken in India." So, as he had not said anything about it during the subsequent eighteen months of office, he proceeded to devote to its affairs some thirty lines, out of a speech two and a-half columns long. It is possible that, to a less intelligent audience, an explanation of the issues that have been raised in India during the last eighteen months could with difficulty have been made in so brief a compass. It should, however, be remembered that Mr. Fawcett, when out of office, was not in the habit of restricting himself to such concise statements of his opinions on Indian administration; and consequently we all knew pretty well what he had to say. At least, we all thought we knew.

Take, for instance, the subject of Indian finance, which Mr. Fawcett has made peculiarly his own. We have not only his speeches, but also his published writings, to tell us what he thinks of the iniquitous system of finance that was the curse of India up to the time of the general elections last year. Moreover, since Lord Hartington, in his financial statement a few weeks ago, confessed that he was "conservative in matters of finance," that he did not propose "any reduction or even readjustment of taxation," that he certainly did not propose any reduction of ordinary expenditure—in short, that he was carrying out to the very utmost the whole system so hateful to Mr. Fawcett—we were quite prepared for a repetition of some of those fierce philippics, or some of those despairing jeremiads, which used to stir the soul of Hackney to its very depths. Alas, for the consistency of human nature, that it should be so sorely tried by the contrast between the sweets of office and the "exigencies" of Opposition! We fear that Hackney was sadly disappointed to hear her lion roar like any sucking-dove. This is what the Indian Gracchus says, now that he has nearly got into the Cabinet:—

"I believe from what is now taking place [query, in the last Budget estimates?] that Lord Hartington will show not only that her (India's) finances can be, but that they will be, placed on a satisfactory basis by care, prudence, and thrift."

Mr. Fawcett has been compelled, by very shame, to add that "even before the late Government left office they recognised the imperative necessity of economy." Can these be the words of him who, not two short years ago, wrote and spoke as we all remember? Or can it be that the Government, unknown to the world except the Postmaster General, has secretly carried out all the "reforms" so persistently demanded by Mr. Fawcett with so much fire and fury? Do natives fill a large proportion of the higher appointments in India? Have the "exorbitant" salaries of the English Civil Service been suddenly reduced? Has the creation of new secretaryships ceased out of the land? Has Lord Ripon virtuously resolved to eschew the delights of Simla and live laborious days and mosquito-bitten nights in the plains? Has the license tax been abolished? Have the land assessments and the salt-tax been reduced? Can all these things be so? Or is it only—that Mr. Fawcett has blossomed into a Postmaster General? Quantum mutatus ab illo!

One little point more. Mr. Fawcett compliments Lord Hartington, not only on his "courage," but also on his "statesmanship" in having "overcome the official opposition" to the withdrawal from Kandahar. We venture to say that Lord Hartington has already learnt that in Indian affairs "official opinion," when it exists, is synonymous with "well-informed and deliberate opinion;" and his lordship, if (as we fear is likely) he still justifies the withdrawal from Kandahar, certainly does so, not as in spite of "official opposition," but rather as misunderstanding official opinion. We confess that we agree with Mr. Fawcett as to the virtual unanimity of the "official opposition," and we regard the fact as the strongest possible condemnation of the Government policy; but we must do Lord Hartington the justice of believing that this is not his opinion, or he would cease to support a policy condemned by the only authority worthy of credit. The "officials," of whose opposition Mr. Fawcett seems to be rather proud, are, in many cases, men who have grown old in the absorbing life-study, on the scene of action, and with the fullest knowledge and experience, of those questions which Mr. Fawcett has approached from a remote distance, with an utter lack of all special knowledge, and amidst a multiplicity of other interests and inquiries. They are, as a rule, men of the highest character and of great ability, devoted to the welfare of the country of their adoption, and trained by the work of a lifetime to a keen perception of what is best for the public weal. It will be an ill day for the British Empire when our rulers, to catch the plaudits of an English rabble, throw scorn on the counsels of such men as these.

HOME NEWS.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.—The following is the official statement as to the movements of her Majesty's ships:—From Bombay.—The Ruby arrived from Zanzibar and Aden on Oct. 10; after being docked, proceeds to Trincomalee to relieve the Eclipse, in the Bay of Bengal. The Serapis arrived from the Cape of Good Hope on Oct. 31. From the Persian Gulf.—Letters have been received from the senior officer in the Dryad, at Jaskh, up to Oct. 4. Would leave for Bushire on Oct. 6, proceeding thence to Busreh, and probably returning to Jaskh by the middle of November. The Ranger would leave for Bombay on Oct. 6, and return to the Persian Gulf about Nov. 12. The Woodlark would return to Jaskh from Shargah about Oct. 6, and then proceed to Muscat, to remain there.

POSTAGE TO INDIA.—A correspondent, referring to the notice which appeared in our last issue, concerning the dearness of postage to India compared with the continental rates to the same quarter, asks:—"May I inquire if the Postmaster-General is aware that, in view of this anomaly, large firms having occasion to despatch heavy frequent batches of circulars, &c., to India are in the habit of packing them off in boxes to Holland and France, where they are stamped and posted by agents, instead of being delivered to the English postal authorities? As Professor Fawcett will not allow the mountain to come to Mahomet, Mahomet quietly goes to the mountain, to the detriment, I should imagine, of the Inland Revenue."

BOMBAY GAS COMPANY.—The half-yearly report of the directors states that the loss in exchange remittances was £4,854. The directors have debited profit and loss with £3,496 and charged the balance to the exchange equalisation account, thus providing for the whole of the loss and leaving £2,250 at the credit of that account to be dealt with subsequently. The profit balance is £9,695, and after placing £500 to the reserve fund for depreciation of plant, &c., the directors propose an interim dividend of 3½ per cent. for the half-year, the balance to be carried forward being £792.

FOOTBALL MATCH BETWEEN THE ROYAL INDIAN ENGINEERING COLLEGE, COOPER'S HILL, AND THE CLAPHAM ROVERS.—This match was played at Cooper's Hill, under Rugby Union rules, on Saturday, Oct. 29, and, after a very fast game, resulted in a victory for the home team by four goals and three tries to one try. The visitors, having won the toss, elected to defend the Chapel goal, and at first seemed to have rather the advantage, but the excellent play of the Cooper's Hill backs soon mended matters, and after a most brilliant run by Green from the centre of the ground, a try was secured between the posts, which Green himself converted into a goal. After some good play on both sides, two more tries were gained for the home team by Macmillan and Knowles, but the place-kick failed in each case. Shortly before half-time Starkey, getting to ball from Green, secured another try, from which he succeeded in kicking a goal. After half-time, the Rovers played up hard to retrieve their losses, and, after some excellent dribbling, brought the ball near the Cooper's Hill line, when, out of a scrimmage, a try was secured for them by Clifford, but the place kick proved a failure. The home team soon, however, gained another try from a good run by Green, the place, though a very long one, being neatly kicked by Starkey, and before call of "time," two more tries were placed to their credit by Starkey, the latter of which he converted into a goal. The following were the sides:—Royal Indian Engineering College.—W. B. Starkey, H. Barlow, backs; H. H. Green, G. M'C. Harrison, three-quarter backs; H. Macmillan, J. C. Lyle, half backs; C. C. S. Clark (captain), A. Younghusband, J. F. Eve; P. L. Rooper, J. J. Bonhote, C. Egerton, G. F. Bird, W. F. Knowles and G. Waddeil, forwards. Clapham Rovers.—P. H. Clifford, A. Wright, backs; E. L. Liddiatt, H. C. Westmoreland, three quarter backs; F. M.

Frames, W. Jarvis, half backs; A. S. Bryden, (captain), J. R. Bryden, C. C. Bryden, F. W. F. Collier, F. Doxat, A. L. Raphael, H. Urwick, A. H. Hassell, and A. N. Jenner, forwards.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders were received on Wednesday at the Bank of England for £400,000 in Government Bills on India. The amounts allotted were:—to Calcutta, £295,000; Bombay, £40,000. Tenders on both Presidencies at 1s. 7 15-16d., being the minimum posted, will receive in full. Compared with last week this price shows a rise of 1-16d. The same amount will be offered for tender on Wednesday next.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.—On Wednesday the silver market was slightly weaker, in consequence of the amount of council drafts allotted falling considerably short of the total for which tenders had been invited, showing the demand for remittance to the east to be smaller than had been anticipated. Bars receded 1-16, to 51 15-16d. per ounce; but Mexican Dollars were unaltered at 51 3/4d. Rupee Four and Four-and-a-Half per Cent. improved 1/8, to 84 1/8 and 91 1/8 respectively. The Exchanges from Bombay and Calcutta were wired at 1s. 8 3-16d., the rate from Hong Kong being 3s. 9 1/2d., and from Shanghai 5s. 1 1/2d. On Thursday no business was transacted in bar silver, which was quoted nominally at 51 15-16d. per ounce. In Mexican dollars a few transactions were noted at 51 3/4d. per ounce. CASUALTIES.

The Raven, from Algoa Bay, has arrived with loss of sails, topsails, yard, &c.

THE CENSUS CLERKS.—There was another eruption of the volcanic census clerks yesterday. It seems that application had been made for holidays and granted for five days only without pay from the 29th instant till the 5th proximo. This liberality in respect of holidays did not, however, satisfy the census clerks, a large number of whom struck work and issued out into Hare-street in a body, causing temporarily an obstruction of the public thoroughfare and a public nuisance at the same time. For a considerable period the clerks, who had struck, made a great noise, alternately jeering the few who had remained loyal, and were gazing from the verandah of the Census Office on the disloyal portion, and urging one another to go to Bentinck-street, and rouse the branch there. Whatever was in contemplation was brought to an abrupt conclusion by Mr. Percy of the reserve forces, who arrived with a strong body of horse and foot, and put the census clerks to ignominious flight. In Old Court House-street, however, some of them reassembled, but the European constables on the spot speedily dispersed them by turning the hose on them, the unfiltered water having the desired effect. One clerk threw a brick and struck a constable on the leg without doing any injury. The offender was arrested, and will be put before the magistrate. The whole office has, we hear, resigned.—Englishman.

COL. OSBORNE.—The news of Col. R. D. Osborne's election to the professorship of Indian history at the University of Cambridge has naturally excited in this country a certain amount of surprise, not unmingled with apprehension lest his lectures should prove the vehicles of political propagandism rather than historical instruction. This apprehension will not be diminished by the announcement that he has chosen as the subject of his first series of lectures the condition of the peasantry in Bengal, Behar, and Orissa. The subject is, of course, susceptible of historic treatment, though, unless the lecturer proposes to work backwards, it is a singular one to begin with; but to those who are acquainted with Col. Osborne's proclivities the choice of it will be apt to seem an unfortunate one.—Ibid.

SIR JOHN MALCOLM ON BRITISH INDIA.—"Alter nothing that can be tolerated; distrust as little as possible; attend to usage more than to reason; study feelings and prejudices, and make no changes but such as you are compelled to make." Again (he says) "reduce every unnecessary expense; improve every fair resource; but neither arrest the progress of improvement, injure the interests of the country, nor seek reputation for self at the expense of a successor."—Indian Spectator.

A MILITARY HISTORY OF THE MADRAS ENGINEERS AND PIONEERS.

VOL. I.

Compiled by Major H. M. VIBART,

Royal (late Madras) Engineers.

The Work will be completed in Two Vols.

THESE Corps were raised last century by the Honourable East India Company. As the power of the Company increased, these bodies were enlarged from time to time. Up to 1740, the Company being mere traders, it was of course unnecessary to call in the assistance of Engineers. Shortly after that time, however, it was found imperative to obtain Engineers to enable the Company to hold its own in contests with the French and the Native Powers.

Up to 1770 the Company found it sufficient to obtain Engineers from any sources which were at the time most convenient to them, but in that year it was considered necessary to establish their Corps of Engineers on a strictly military basis, with an experienced officer of Royal Engineers as Commandant.

It is proposed in this compilation to trace the gradual increase of the Corps, and in doing so to detail the manner in which it has been utilised to assist in extending the dominions of the Company.

After the great Indian Mutiny, the power of the Company merged into the Crown, and since then the Madras Engineers has become a part of the distinguished Corps of Royal Engineers. The officers of the Indian Engineers are still retained on separate lists, but their complete absorption is merely a matter of time. It seems, then, appropriate that before this occurs a record of their services should be drawn up.

In recording the campaigns and sieges in which they have been employed, the reports of the Engineers themselves will be made use of as largely as possible.

At first no regular Sappers were employed, but bodies of men were, as occasion required, trained as Pioneers to assist the Engineers.

In 1780 a regular body of Pioneers was formed, and up to 1881 this body was employed with considerable success in both civil and military operations.

In 1831 the Pioneer organisation was altered, and the regiment became the Madras Sappers and Miners. From 1831 to 1876 they retained that appellation.

In 1876, when H.R.H. the Prince of Wales visited India, their title was altered to the Queen's Own Sappers and Miners, while H.R.H. was appointed Honorary Colonel.

The Corps has greatly distinguished itself in many campaigns, and being still in a highly efficient state, is as ready as ever to do good work for the country.

In this publication it is intended to incorporate their services with those of the Madras Engineers, a corps with which they have naturally been closely connected throughout their career.

The First Volume will be illustrated by more than Twenty Plans and Maps, and will contain a View of Addiscombe College.

COLONIAL HANDBOOKS, MAPS, &c.

NOW READY.

CANADA—including Ontario, North-West Territory, Manitoba, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, &c. With New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo. 288 pp. Cloth, 5s.

"Athenæum," June 25, 1881.—"Full of information and statistics, which ought to prove very serviceable to any visitor to the Dominion."

"Times."—"Under the above title Messrs. Silver have brought out much more than a mere 'Handbook to Canada,' an historical, political, social, geographical, and topographical guide for the use of travellers and settlers over the greater portion of our North-American possessions. The need of such a work, at once handy, comprehensive, and trustworthy, has long been felt both by intending settlers and by readers at home, who are surprised, and not unnaturally, at the scanty information about so important a territory which is accessible to them. The volume is illustrated by a map, showing the whole extent of the Canadian Confederation from the shores of the Atlantic to those of the Pacific, and exhibiting all the details of inland communication, whether by Railway or the long chain of inland lakes. Those who have friends in British Columbia, Manitoba, &c., will find this map most useful; and it may be added that the historical chapters are full of materials for the future historian of Canada, or for the writer of an article on that subject in an encyclopedia."

"Manitoba Daily Free Press."—"Comprised in this book is a mass of valuable information, which cannot fail to impress every reader with an intelligent idea of the great resources and capabilities of our country. In fact, we are convinced that in the words of the preface, a comprehensive, reliable, and at the same time cheap and handy work has been produced, which will furnish the kind of information most sought for in regard to the Dominion, and especially in regard to Manitoba and the North West territories. We have every reason to think that this handbook to Canada is one of the best contributions to immigration literature yet produced. It is also very handsomely got up tastefully bound, and very well printed."

"Graphic."—"We are already acquainted with Messrs. Silver's Handbooks to Australasia and South Africa. They are concisely written, accurate in information, and full of practical details. The same praise may be accorded to the volume now before us, which comprises a survey of the whole of British North America, the reader's researches being aided by an excellent map. To the intending emigrant the descriptions of Manitoba and British Columbia will be especially attractive."

It is a creditable useful and, we believe, trustworthy publication."

"AUSTRALIAN GRAZIER'S GUIDE No. 1, Sheep. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 2s. 6d.

"Field."—"This little work is intended to supply, as fully as may be in a small compass, an admitted want in Colonial literature, and is indeed exactly the sort of 'Guide' for the assistance and instruction of those who propose to try their fortunes as stock-raisers abroad, and who so frequently inquire of the Field for such help as is afforded by its pages."

CAPTAIN FRED. BURNABY
Royal Horse Guards.Says page 18:—"Two pairs of boots lined with fur were also taken; and for physio—with which it is as well to be supplied when travelling in out-of-the-way places—some quinine and Cockle's Pills, the latter a most invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the natives of Central Africa with the greatest possible success. In fact the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines, when I administered to him five

COCKLE'S PILLS

will never fade from my memory; and a friend of mine, who passed through the same district many months afterwards, informed me that my fame as a 'medicine man' had not died out, but that the marvellous cure was even then a theme of conversation in the bazaar."

AN AGREEABLE SUBSTITUTE FOR COD-LIVER OIL.

A CONCENTRATED NUTRITIOUS DIGESTIVE FOOD.

*VERY DESIRABLE AS A RESTORATIVE WHEN
THE SYSTEM HAS BECOME REDUCED
BY WASTING DISEASES.*

Kepler Malt is free from Alcohol, and one tablespoonful contains more nutritive and digestive value than one pint of the strongest Beer, Ale, Porter, or any alcoholic or fermented Extract of Malt.

Ziemssen's Cyclopædia of Medicine says:—"Malt Extract is preferable to Cod-liver Oil, being more palatable and more easily digested."

The Lancet says:—"Kepler Malt Extract is very good and may be used with confidence."

"The Kepler Malt Extract is reliable, and is manufactured in such a careful manner as to ensure the preservation of its valuable constituents."

THE KEPLER COD-LIVER OIL WITH MALT EXTRACT

(CONTAINS 50 PER CENT. MALT EXTRACT).

"The taste of the oil is agreeably disguised. Its nutritive powers are greatly increased, and it is rendered easy of digestion."—British Medical Journal.

The Lancet says:—"The Kepler Cod-liver Oil with Malt Extract has hardly any of the taste of the oil. Many could take it easily who cannot take the oil."

A RIDE TO KHIVA

BY CAPTAIN FRED. BURNABY
 Royal Horse Guards.

Says page 18:—"Two pairs of boots lined with fur were also taken; and for physic—with which it is as well to be supplied when travelling in out-of-the-way places—some quinine and Cockle's Pills, the latter a most invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the natives of Central Africa with the greatest possible success. In fact the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines when I administered to him five

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, NOV. 14, 1881.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Oct. 27; Madras and Allahabad, Oct. 25; Calcutta, Oct. 24.

THE resolution of the Bengal Government on the effect of the partial abolition of the import duties on grey goods is telegraphed to us as an opportune illustration of the question discussed between Lord Hartington and the Manchester deputation last Friday. We have dealt with this question and its true solution—the adoption of absolute free trade between England and India—in our leading columns to-day.

LORD SALISBURY on Saturday night, speaking at the Dolphin banquet at Bristol, pleasantly suggested an Act of Parliament for giving Lord Hartington influence in the Cabinet in which he sits. Every Anglo-Indian will agree with the sentiment that underlies the jest—which is one of confidence in the patriotism and statesmanship of the noble lord whom the good fortune of India has placed at the head of the India-office at a time when those qualities are not believed by Anglo-Indians generally to be conspicuous in other departments of the State. No Act of Parliament, we may safely say, is needed to ensure Lord Hartington's popularity among the various Services of which he is the head.

WE doubt whether an Act of Parliament, or even a powerful series of articles in the Times, will obtain a similar popularity for the parliamentary head of the army. At any rate, the evidently inspired articles that have lately appeared in the leading journal, pointing to a contemplated transfer of the functions and powers of the Commander in Chief to the new Adjutant General as the agent of the War Secretary, are generally believed to have had an effect on military opinion exactly the reverse of that contemplated by them.

THE most interesting item of the telegraphed news of the week from India gives the final decision of Government in regard to the reorganisation of the Indian Medical Department. Our readers will see from the telegram (which we reproduce, as usual, in its proper place) that we are to have an "Indian Medical Staff Corps," under a Director General of the Medical Department in India, whose pay will be Rs.3,500 per mensem.

THERE has been another shuffling of the cards—vide the same telegram—in regard to the migrations of the various departments of the Supreme Government between Calcutta and India. But the arrangement bears no mark of finality. Its tendency is evidently in the direction of keeping more officers permanently at Simla. The economy of the plan is evident; and it will probably result ultimately, as the Times Calcutta correspondent fears, in the establishment of Simla as the recognised capital of India. Opinions will differ widely as to the wisdom of this course. The "remote corner" argument of the Times correspondent has been weakened, if not destroyed, by the extended use of the telegraph, which has annihilated distances; and, moreover, Calcutta itself is anything but central. Costliness can be alleged only against the present arrangement, not against permanent location either at Simla or Calcutta. On the other hand, what public opinion there is at all in India is undoubtedly more potent at Calcutta than at Simla; and if the security of the personnel of an alien Government be still worth considering in such a settled and peaceful country as India now is, it is certainly greater at Calcutta than elsewhere.

THE arrival of many more Italians at Mandalay, for the purpose (as it is generally believed, probably not without reason) of constructing Burmese fortifications and drilling

Burmese troops, is one more indication—if more were needed—that the general feebleness of our recent policy in India is encouraging aggression from without, as well as disaffection among the turbulent classes within our frontiers.

OUR North East frontier is normally hardly less unquiet than the North West; but the area to which recent disturbances or alarms have extended has been unusually wide, reaching to the Lushai Hills, the Naga Hills, Manipur, and the Burmese frontier, and now the Abor Hills. It is difficult to point to any definite reason for this extension of unrest, unless it is to be looked for in the remote echoes of the same causes that have provoked aggression on the frontiers of Burma as on those of the Punjab; and that have stirred up troubles in numerous distant regions of the empire itself.

WE are told that "all is tranquil in Southern Afghanistan." This is doubtless true, though its affirmation is probably based solely on the good old official principle of omne ignotum pro pacifico. But as we have thrown up the sponge there is no reason why the tranquillity should be further disturbed—so long as the enemies of British interests are busily employed in the peaceful organisation of the various ways and means of securing the utmost advantage from our unhopd-for imbecility.

WE have on several occasions of late noticed the indications of a growing disposition, on the part of the lawless classes of India, to presume on the forbearance or the weakness of the Government. Ever since the prestige of the British name in the East was lowered by our shameful desertion of those who had aided us in Kandahar this tendency has, we believe, been clearly discernible. But since Anglo-Indian feeling ran so strong on the Kandahar question there may be some who would be inclined to suspect that prejudice or expectation had something to do with the creation of this impression, and that things are not as bad as we believe them to be. If such there be, we would earnestly implore them to read a leading article on the Multan riots in the Indian Mirror of the 12th ult. Of the thorough loyalty and good faith of the Indian Mirror—the organ of the Brahmo Somaj in Calcutta, one of the best of the Indian dailies, owned, edited, and written entirely by native gentlemen—there can be no manner of doubt or question. And on consideration it will seem equally beyond doubt that such a journal could never dream of offering to the British Government such a solemn and significant warning unless its information were of the most serious nature. This is what the Indian Mirror says:—

"Though not disposed to be looked upon as alarmists, still we feel that we should be wanting in our sense of public duty if we did not say something which it is right that the Government should know. It was justly observed of the Bourbon King of France that, after many years of exile, they returned to their kingdom without learning anything or forgetting anything. It is much the same case with the British Government of India. An excess of confidence in its overwhelming strength and unbounded resources has not unoften led it into the most disastrous mistakes. The religious feelings of the Indian people must not be gauged through the opinions and lives of the communities which dwell in cities and at the seats of the various Governments. The freer intercourse with European society which occurs at these places naturally softens the austerity of religious prejudice. It is only in the rural towns, where Western education and Western society have not made their influence thoroughly felt, that religion is of a severer and more sincere type. It is matter of history that the story of the greased cartridges was the lever by which the whole machinery of the mutiny was set in motion. . . . It is to be hoped that the Government will lose no time to ascertain the real state of Hindu feeling in the army."

THIS is a Mussoorie story, vouched for by a correspondent of the Delhi Gazette:—

"The guests had all sat down, as customary, to their eight o'clock dinner. A musician is announced—a native, said to be famous at playing the violin. He asks permission to be allowed to play to the company during dinner, and it is accorded. In he walks and takes his seat in a corner at the end of the room. His touch delights one and all. Many inquiries are made as to who he is, where he learnt to play, &c. When dinner is quite over, one and all being enchanted with him, he is asked to send round his hat; but, instead of doing this, the musician walks up behind the chair in which a lady is seated, puts his arm round the lady's waist, and kisses her. The musician turns out to be Mrs. —, a resident at the hotel, who had thus disguised herself, and who is well known as a violin player. She was loudly applauded for having so cleverly deceived the party and charmed the guests with her beautiful playing."

A bandarwallah's monkey has been distinguishing itself in the Satara district as an amateur detective. A Puna paper says:—

"A man, who used to get his living by an exhibition of his five monkeys, was murdered by some men while travelling from one village to another. Report has it that the man, four of his monkeys, and the goat were killed, and the fifth monkey effected his escape and jumped up to a tree, from whence he watched the proceedings of the murderers. The monkey saw where they buried his master, the goat, and four of his kind. After the murderers left the scene of their diabolical outrage the monkey got down from the tree and ran up to the patel of the village, and made him understand by screeching signs that all was not right and that he was wanted. The patel, having taken a great liking for the monkey, and having a presentiment that the monkey's tricks would probably lead to some disclosure, followed the monkey, when the place where the killed were buried was pointed out. The only prosecutor at present is the monkey, who is kept in Satara, pending the result of further inquiries which the police have instituted."

THE native community of Bombay who subscribed to pay Mr. Fawcett's election expenses last year are rather disgusted that the Postmaster General of England is, after all, not so beneficent a being as even that most despised creature, a "mere Indian bureaucrat." The Indian Spectator, a Bombay native paper of conspicuous ability, says:—

"The proposed reduction and other facilities in the postage of Indian newspapers may be looked upon as one of those little reforms which result in great good to great numbers. The authorities deserve the gratitude of the public for this encouragement. And now, when is Mr. Fawcett going to relieve us of some burden of the overland postage? The Indian authorities have done ample good for the time being in more directions than one. Surely Mr. Henry Fawcett is not going to be outdone by mere 'Indian bureaucrats' in a matter so dear to his heart?"

Our contemporary is cautious, and declines to commit himself as to what exactly it is that is "dear to Mr. Fawcett's heart." Is it the overland postage that swells his departmental receipts? Or is it the love of the Bombay folk, that produces election testimonials? Or is it "how happy could I be with either?"

A PARTICULARLY interesting meeting of the National Indian Association is promised for the 29th inst., when Col. Macdonald will read a paper on "Home Education for Indian Ladies." Col. Malleon will be in the chair. Col. Macdonald, late director of public instruction in Madras, and for many years well known as an able and active inspector of schools in that Presidency, is probably the best authority in England on the subject of his paper.

THE first meeting of the one hundred and twenty-eighth session of the Society of Arts will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 16, when the opening address will be delivered by Sir Frederick Bramwell, F.R.S., chairman of the council. Previous to Christmas there will be four ordinary meetings in addition to the opening meeting. The meetings of the Indian section of the society will take place on the following Friday evenings at eight o'clock:—February 17; March 17, 31; April 21; May 12, 26.

THE Indian Medical Service Defence Committee, after conferring with several members of the service, have determined to take steps to obtain compensation for those officers who entered the department under the Hon. East India Company's rules, and whose prospects have been injuriously affected by the changes introduced since the transfer to the Crown. They have come to the conclusion that the proper and most effective mode of proceeding will be to base their application to Government on a full and complete actuarial report. With this opinion the meeting held Nov. 10 fully concurred, as is manifest from the accompanying resolution, in terms of which they now ask for the guarantee for the expenses therein referred to:—

"RESOLUTION OF COMMITTEE, NOV. 10.

"That the report of a consulting actuary be obtained on the losses sustained by the members of the Indian Medical Service through changes made since 1858. That the actuary's fees be defrayed from the general fund, but, to provide for any possible deficiency, all officers who entered prior to 1860 be invited to guarantee the probable amount."

It appears from the account given by a correspondent of the Ceylon Times that a member of the Ceylon Civil Service is in the habit of dressing—or rather undressing—himself in Bacchanalian fashion and taking part in Hindu or Buddhist processions. In India this liberal-minded gentleman would probably get himself into trouble by such vagaries. The correspondent thus describes the scene:—

"I approached the temple, gaily ornamented with flags and native floral decorations, the crowd increasing as I advanced. Looking in one direction, towards the dwelling of the assistant agent, I saw a spectacle such as I had never before witnessed. A motley crowd of worshippers approached, dancing and gesticulating in a most impressive manner, and in their midst, I could scarcely believe my senses, was a middle-sized, middle-aged European official, the revenue officer of the district, divested of his coat and with his trousers tucked up above his knees, garlands of flowers about his head, and long wreaths of the same over his shoulders and about his waist. He was walking barefooted and appeared to be absorbed with the solemnity of the proceeding; as he drew near the sacred precincts of the temple he bowed his garlanded head in the most reverential manner. There was no doubt about the identity of the European official. I hear the reason he gave to friends for taking a part in the Hindu procession was that it would propitiate the natives!"

MR. SHAND has been elected member of the Legislative Council of Ceylon by his brother planters. The electioneering proceedings were of a very lively character, and it is declared that Mr. Bosanquet is to be the next man sent to Council by the Planters' Association.

WE hear that the Secretary of State for the Colonies is to be requested to sanction the establishment of a widows' fund for the benefit of the widows and children of members of the Ceylon Civil Service, among whom the want of such a fund has long been felt.

SIR ALFRED LYALL, K.C.B., Foreign Secretary to the Indian Government, who is at present in England for a short holiday, will, we are informed, return in the course of a few weeks to India, to take up the post of Lieutenant Governor of the North West Provinces.

INTELLIGENCE has reached England from India that the appointment of Captain Lord William Beresford as military secretary to the Marquis of Ripon has been approved, and that his lordship was to have entered upon his official duties this week in succession to Colonel G. S. White, Gordon Highlanders, who was to have embarked at Bombay on Thursday for Brindisi, en route to England.

THE Indian Commander in Chief, Sir Donald Stewart, is at present engaged in a series of investigations into the military condition of the North East Frontier of Bengal. We believe that it will be recommended that steps shall be shortly taken, in consequence of the more exact information recently acquired by officers specially deputed to examine into the strategical questions connected with this part of the Indian Frontier, to improve the means of internal communication in Assam and for the establishment of a military cantonment in that province.

MR. W. ABBOTT, in his circular of Nov. 5, has the following in regard to Indian Gold Mines:—

"There is no special intelligence affecting these properties to be recorded this month beyond the fact that the various companies continue to receive most satisfactory advices from India as to the progress of opening out the different properties, all pointing to the early realisation of the favourable anticipations which have been formed as to their working. Nothing whatever has happened to occasion the least misgiving as to the success of these enterprises, and there is really no justification for the depreciated quotations for the shares. Much disappointment has no doubt been occasioned by the delay in commencing crushing operations, but those who take the trouble to inquire in official quarters will learn that in each instance difficulties have arisen which could not possibly have been foreseen, but which have now happily been surmounted. The report just issued by the Trevelyan Company gives the fullest explanation as to its own experiences, and this may be taken as an example of what the other companies have had to contend with. Immediately on the receipt of news as to the result of the crushing the respective companies will announce the same to their proprietors; and if during the ensuing month any information reaches me through private sources I shall at once communicate the same by means of a special circular. Meanwhile, my confidence as to the future remains unchanged."

THE Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta freight market for the week ending October 24:—

"There has been a good demand for early shipment by sailing vessels throughout the week for every port, resulting in a very fair business being done, and at stiff rates. Nearly all the available and ready tonnage has been worked off, three ships having been taken for New York, two for Dundee, one for London, one for Liverpool, one for the Continent, and one to Mauritius. In steam tonnage, the demand was likewise better again, and 70s. for wheat to London for early November has been freely paid; some forward continental charters have also been put through at 65s. to 67s. 6d. Our unfixed tonnage stands reduced again to 6,000."

WE take the following report on the Calcutta tea market, for the fortnight ending October 24, from Messrs. Carritt and Co.'s market report:—

"Two public auctions have taken place during the fortnight—namely, on the 14th and 20th inst., when 19,741 packages were offered, of which 18,951 found buyers, a few invoices having been withdrawn for shipment on growers' account to Great Britain and the colonies. The quality was not generally very good, although the sale of the 20th inst. was the more preferable. Prices on the 14th inst. ruled easier for Pekoes and broken Pekoes, more particularly for the former, whilst common broken teas and Souchongs were in demand at enhanced values. At the sale of the 21st there was more spirited competition resulting in higher rates, excepting for common broken teas, which showed no change. We quote for the fortnight an advance of a halfpenny to a penny on Pekoes and one penny in all other descriptions. Indian teas continue to meet with a very favourable reception in the colonies, especially the flavoury Darjiling kinds. Shipments are also being made to America. It is reported that the cold weather is setting in both in Assam and Cachar, and that an early closing of the manufacturing season may be looked for. Under these circumstances, it may now be safely calculated that nothing like the first estimate given for this season can be relied upon, and we do not think the export to Great Britain will exceed 48,000,000lb."

THE Times of India gives the following obituary of the week ending Oct. 27:—Surgeon Major Adam Taylor, I.M.S., acting civil surgeon and gaol superintendent, Delhi; Surgeon Major E. Trimnel; the Rev. W. Money; and Col. J. R. S. Henderson, 11th Madras N.I.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

THE crop and weather report of the whole of India for the week ending Oct. 18 is as follows:—

"In Bengal there has been slight rain in some districts; rice and other standing crops are doing well, and cultivation for cold-weather sowings is in fair progress. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh there has been no rain (except in one district). Crops are suffering in Central districts, and more rain is needed everywhere. In the Central Provinces heavy rain fell in one district and none elsewhere; agricultural condition and prospects are satisfactory. In the Bombay Presidency rain is needed in two districts; kharif crops are generally good, and the sowing of rabi is in progress. In the Madras Presidency and the Mysor State there has been very little rain, except in two districts in the former and in one district in the latter, and standing crops are in need of showers. In the Punjab, in the Central India and Rajputana States, in Berar and Coorg, in Assam and British Burma, no change is reported, and agricultural prospects continue on the whole favourable. Generally the summer monsoon may be said to be practically over; harvest operations have been completed in some parts and are progressing in others; the usual autumnal sickness still prevails in many parts; in some provinces standing crops are in want of rain, while ploughing and sowing for the cold weather crops are generally in progress."

CABUL GUNS.—Two of the guns captured at Cabul have been placed in front of the private entrance to Government House, Calcutta. The idea is said to have originated with Lord Lytton, and his request was seconded by the present Viceroy.

TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE following is the telegram of the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, dated November 13:—

"The scheme of reorganisation of the Indian Medical Department, the details of which I gave some time ago, has lately been somewhat modified. It is now proposed to form an Indian Medical Staff Corps, to be recruited partly from the Army Medical Department and partly by competition among the students of certain British and Irish medical schools. The chief administrative officer of the new corps will be styled Director General of the Medical Department in India. He will control the medical staff of the three Presidencies and discharge the duties hitherto performed by the Surgeon-General of the Indian and Army and Medical Departments. The saving to be effected by uniting these two offices is estimated at 22,000 rupees annually. Should the proposal be sanctioned, it is expected that Dr. Cunningham, the present Surgeon General of the Indian Medical Department, will be appointed the first Director General on a salary of 3,500 rupees per mensem."

"The question whether certain departments shall accompany the Government in its annual migrations between Simla and Calcutta, which has been under consideration for some time, has now been definitely decided. The Military and Public Works Accounts Departments, the Surgeon General with the Government of India, Directors General of the Post-office and Telegraphs, the Meteorological Reporter, and the Press Commissioner are to accompany the Supreme Government to and from Simla. The Archaeological Department may spend the summer at Simla if no extra expense is thereby entailed. The Ordnance and Horse-breeding Departments are no longer to go to Simla, but will be permanently located—the former at Calcutta and the latter at Meerut. The Surgeon General of the Army Medical Department, the Sanitary Commissioner, the Director General of Railways, the Inspector General of Military Works, the Examiner of Military Works Accounts, and the Superintendent of the Thuggee Department are to remain permanently at Simla as before, while from next year the offices of the Commissary General and the Director of Remounts will be fixed at Simla. It is difficult to understand the principle of some of these orders. The heads of such departments as the Post-office and Telegraphs would surely be more conveniently placed if kept all the year round in the chief business centre, and the most important seaport of the country would appear to be a more appropriate position for the Meteorological Reporter than a remote corner of the Empire. The tendency of the Government, however, now is to remove itself more and more from Calcutta, and unless speedily a check is put upon this tendency Simla must soon become the real capital of India—a state of things which, while it will save some inconvenience and expense to the higher officials, cannot but be most prejudicial to the interests of the country at large."

"The Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, in a resolution on the working of the Customs Department for the past year, repeats the opinion he formerly expressed regarding the effect of the abolition of the duties on grey piece goods containing no yarn finer than 30's. The figures of the year, he says, confirm that view. They show that the local manufactures have not been driven from the market; that Lancashire has been compelled to manufacture a class of non-dutiable goods in place of a class of goods which fell under the dutiable standard; that the consumers of the coarser and cheaper article had not the article they would prefer; and, finally, that the loss to the Indian revenues has proportionately increased. He thinks there are only two possible remedies—either a low and equal duty on all grey goods, or a remission of the duty on all grey goods alike. Nothing, he adds, could be more unsatisfactory and more anomalous than the state of things produced by the partial changes of late years."

"The Viceroy is now at Agra, where his time is mainly spent in visiting the sights of the neighbourhood, receiving native princes, and replying to addresses. His speeches, so far, have been chiefly devoted to further expositions of the recently announced policy on the subjects of financial decentralisation, the extension of local self-government, and education. He proceeds this week to Rajputana. After his arrival at Calcutta on the 2nd prox. he will remain here about a fortnight, and then make a short visit to Burma, returning about the new year."

"The Lieutenant Governor of Bengal arrived in Calcutta from Darjiling on Wednesday. He starts again on Tuesday on a tour through Behar. The plan of his movements will have to be modified owing to the death of the Maharaja of Dumraon, who was to have been invested with the Star of India."

"The Government appears to anticipate that the Abors, a tribe on the north eastern frontier of Assam, may give some trouble during the winter. Two hundred men of the 43rd Native Infantry, under Capt. Beresford, marched on the 5th from Dibrughur for Sadiya, to occupy Nizamghat, an outpost on the Abor frontier. A wing of the 37th Native Infantry has also been sent to Saciya as a reserve. Col. Evans, of the 43rd Regiment, will command the force."

"Several Italians have lately passed through Kandahar en route for Mandalay. On their arrival at their destination they will find a considerable number of their compatriots already settled there. It has been given out that Theebaw's object in inducing these men to enter his service is to build an enormous chapel on the model of St. Peter's at Rome, but the general impression in British Burma is that this is a mere pretence, and that the Italian immigrants are more likely to find employment in constructing fortifications and drilling troops."

"Rain has fallen in Mysor and has removed much anxiety respecting the crops. Much of the standing crops has been saved. Not less than half the average of the raghi crop is expected. More rain is wanted. Prices are falling."

THE following telegram, from the correspondent of the Times with the troops returning from Afghanistan, is dated Sibi, November 13:—

"All is tranquil in Southern Afghanistan, whence no news of importance has arrived for some time. The Ameer, it is said, intends leaving for Cabul immediately. A report is current here that his attempts to enlist the Duranis for the regular army have failed. The recruits are deserting as fast as they are enlisted."

"General Hume and Col. St. John have arrived here, having marched together down the Hurnai road. They have settled to concentrate the troops on this line at Kach and Sharingh, giving up Hurnai and one or two minor stations, which will be held by local levies. Although this road is fifty miles longer than that by the Bolan, merchants, and particularly the Afghans, are beginning to use it in preference. It is safe; provisions and forage are more plentiful: and, being in British territory, is free from the vexatious dues imposed by the Beluchis. So much of the railway line to Sharingh, seventy miles from Quetta, has been done that it seems a pity not to complete it so far, and thus render the retention of the Bolan, with its floods, customs dues, and black mail to robber tribes, unnecessary."

"Col. St. John makes over his charge to Col. Waterfield to-morrow and leaves at once to join the Viceroy at Ajmere. On the following day General Hume breaks up his division and proceeds to take up his appointment as general commanding the Lahore Division."

"General Wilkinson's force has reached a point twenty-five miles north of Sibi, and marches to-morrow for Thal-Chotiali."

INDIAN STATE ESTABLISHMENTS AND INDIAN MANUFACTURES.

[FROM THE "TIMES."]

A CHANGE which would have been thought revolutionary a few years ago has been in process of accomplishment since last June in India with scarce a single protest from this country. The practice has hitherto been to treat Indian State establishments as strictly British in their wants and requirements. By a topographical accident they were lodged in the heart of Asia. The geographical circumstance was not considered so to have alienated their propensities as to have spoilt their tastes for British wares. British soldiers in Madras, it was understood, would be neither contented, nor healthy, nor courageous, nor moral, if they were not swathed in thick West of England broadcloth. They could not march except in contract boots from Northampton. Writers and judges would lose sympathy with English law and honour unless they wrote their minutes and decrees with English goosequills on English paper. The very red tape, to have the true home potency, must be imported from London. Lord Hartington and Lord Ripon, with their advisers, perhaps not without some infection by the doctrines of Mr. Fawcett, have shown themselves sceptical of this presumed dependence of official India upon British manufactures. Since the present Government came into power a series of alterations has been brought into operation. It commenced with a resolution to buy for Government use articles of Indian origin which were not materially inferior in price and quality to similar European products. When the Indian manufactures were indifferent, or the wares were not made in India, it was still imperative on officials to prefer consignments from the India-office at home to imports of the same through private commercial channels. Gradually, the Governor General and his council, acting doubtless in concert with the Secretary of State, have discovered that various specific goods are so notoriously manufactured in India as to leave their claim to official patronage in no obscurity. By successive instructions they have informed the several provincial Governments that such native goods ought to be purchased instead of corresponding European goods. In some instances, though apparently without direct evidence that the particular things are made in India, they have inferred on plausible grounds that they can be made if demanded. The demand is henceforth to be assured. As private manufacturers might be afraid to invest capital in the plant necessary for custom liable to capricious withdrawal, Simla gives its gracious permission to the provincial Governments to offer contracts for a limited period. Burma, for example, is to have its handcuffs made in Bengal. That the works which can turn them out may not be left suddenly with a stock of articles not popularly saleable on their hands, they may be guaranteed a monopoly for five years. The question between the authorities at Whitehall as importers of European goods for Indian use and private traders continues unsettled for the moment. Some expressions of the Indian Government appear to have been interpreted as extending the liberty of choice between native and European goods to the competing claims of European goods emanating from Indian importers and from the India-office. An explanation has been issued from Simla that priority is as yet reserved in these classes of goods for Whitehall. At the same time, the Governor General is willing to listen to any testimony the Calcutta Trades' Association can collect of the superiority of the private to official imports. The facts in its possession, it intimates, do not warrant it in withdrawing its custom from the special department maintained at the India-office to supply it with European stores. Clearly, however, in its existing frame of mind it will not scrutinise captiously any fresh evidence which may be proffered. Full freedom in the selection of European as of native articles for official use in India is obviously a mere question of months.

The wonder is how the arrangements now passing away should ever have grown up. Yet it was natural enough in its origin. The Indian Empire is the offspring of a trade monopoly. The East India Company desired to import as much European produce as possible into Hindustan. Nothing would have more provoked its mercantile jealousy than dealing by its officials in native goods competing with British. Private British traders trafficking in British manufactures it hated still more cordially than native manufacturers of articles vying with British products. So far as it could, it treated the peninsula as the Hudson's Bay Company treated its huge dominion in North West America. Its factories when they became capitals of great sovereignties continued to be managed as depots and shops for the supply of European wares by its officials. The Queen's Government when it took over India from the Company inherited the old tradition. Although it was no longer practicable to shut up the entire country to uncovenanted commerce, Whitehall followed Leadenhall-street to the extent of isolating its own Indian establishments from the markets about them. Its armies and its public offices shopped in the British Isles as if India had been the Isle of Sark or Gibraltar. Had the tinned meat trade attained its present proportions, British soldiers in the Punjab would very likely have been fed with preserved beef and mutton and cabbage from Deptford. Blocked tin, though tin from the Straits is beating Cornish tin out of the Indian market, has been regularly supplied to Indian State institutions from England. India, one of the chief seats of the ivory trade for thousands of years, has always had its Government ivory paper knives imported from London. Its official leather, though Indian leather holds a front rank, has had to be obtained in this country. The Turkey red cloth for the native policeman's turban had to be conveyed from England. Gum arabic must have had the stamp of the approbation of Whitehall to pass current in a Calcutta Government office. American petroleum had to be burnt in official lamps because it had been consigned from the Thames, though as good and much cheaper could be procured from Indian oil wells. Even now that the most outrageous of these curiosities of official trading have been swept away Whitehall perpetuates, in regard to European wares, the legend that the Government on the spot cannot be safely trusted to choose for itself between the British and the local markets. Manifestly, the principle on which the Government of India and its dependent Governments have been given a discretion to market in India for Indian goods ought to be applied to European goods. If they find they need agencies at home to purchase more advantageously than from the limited stocks in India of European manufactures they can institute them for themselves. So long as the special department is retained at Whitehall it will, with the sincerest public spirit, justify its own existence by providing the Indian establishments with articles they would hardly commission from England in its absence. A test of its utility is to consider what probability there would be of its creation had it not been created already. In these days, and apart from the tradition of the trading monopoly of the old East India Company, the Colonial-office would be almost as likely to plan the appointment of a department to buy British goods for the Dominion of Canada. Some gratitude is owing to the financial dilemma caused by the depreciation of silver and the Government loss on the exchange for having quickened official doubtings of the merits of the ancient system. The purchasing power of the rupee has not fallen in India in the same degree as its exchange value in Europe. Every purchase by Whitehall in England for the use of India inflicts at present an exceptional loss on the Indian Exchequer. The Government of India loses the whole difference between the higher rate at which the rupees it receives from the Indian taxpayer are reckoned against it in India and the lower rate at which they are credited to it when it transmits them home in payment of the purchases on its account. Simla, if not Whitehall, will not have been the less moved by the appeals of the native and Anglo-Indian traders to its sense as well of sound political economy as of equity that, were the goods otherwise identical in quality and price, two shillings in the bill presented at Calcutta mean two shillings, and in a bill presented for settlement in London something a good deal more.

That, however, it may be hoped, is a matter of temporary concern only. Variations in the course of exchange may be relied on to correct themselves. The real and durable gain by the change in course of introduction is that it marks another step towards taking Indian administration out of leading strings. There must be something radically wrong in a system by which the Government of a vast empire has not been free to buy its own tape and red cloth turbans in the markets it finds the cheapest. Of a larger benefit, of which the present instalment of reform is regarded by the friends of the Hindu as an earnest, it is premature to judge. Many sanguine minds perceive in the new ordinances a commencement of an era of manufacturing prosperity for India. They believe that the peninsula can manufacture both cheaper and better goods than Lancashire and Yorkshire and Worcestershire and Warwickshire. To them the strange arrangement by which Government services were supplied almost exclusively out of England represents a policy which deliberately dwarfed Indian industry in favour of British. The curtailment and prospective abolition of the functions of the purchasing department of the India-office are construed by them as the beginning of the emancipation of native manufactures from ten thousand invisible fetters which have been stunting and shackling them. Indisputably in the earlier days of the Company local competition with Great Britain was discouraged. Though open restriction has long gone by, the old effects may last. The recent invitation from Simla will answer the useful purpose of reassuring energetic natives and Anglo-Indians that they may invest money and intellect with confidence, not in the neutrality alone, but in the favour of the State. But local industry must not anticipate too much from State benevolence. Though at first a species of cateris paribus clause seems to have been introduced on its behalf, that will not help it indefinitely. Ultimately it must trust to its own strength to meet European competition and to no reversal of official partiality. There are classes of manufactures for which India and its populations have an especial aptitude. There are others in which they can, probably, be always better accommodated from Great Britain than locally. It will be for the advantage equally of this country and of its splendid dependency if the capitalists of both can learn, without needless squandering of resources, how to divide among them a territory which should be ample for all.

INDIAN ARMY ORGANISATION.

IT is now nearly two years since the commission which had been assembled at Simla, at the instigation of Lord Lytton, to consider the question of army organisation in India, agreed upon their report. The discussion of the recommendations this commission had made was postponed by the Indian Government pending the appointment of the new Commander in Chief and of the military member of the Supreme Council, but as soon as Sir Donald Stewart and General Wilson were fairly installed in their new offices the Government of India lost no time in pushing forward the consideration of the points raised by the commissioners and in arriving at a conclusion as to what plan of army reform they would recommend to the Home Government for adoption. The scheme which they determined upon is now under discussion at the India-office, but only that portion of it which bears on the question of the organisation of the British troops in India has as yet, we believe, been treated of. The proposals of the Indian Government are, we understand, briefly, the reduction of the number of British regiments serving in India by four—namely, from fifty to forty-six regiments, the reduction of the cavalry by one regiment, and that the British artillery serving in India should in the future be seventy-five batteries instead of eighty-six. It is not, however, to be supposed that the Indian Government propose any reduction in the number of British bayonets or sabres serving in India; they only suggest that the number of separate regiments should be reduced, and that those remaining—cavalry and infantry—should be so increased in strength as to contain the same total of fighting men as are now in India. The proposals which the Indian Government have made are in their nature by no means new. In the Viceroyalty of each successive Governor General since 1862 somewhat similar suggestions have been made. The teaching of the mutiny led to the increase in the number of British troops from 45,000 to 75,000, and to the reduction of the native army by nearly one-half; but, towards the end of Lord Lawrence's term of office, the number of British troops was reduced to 62,000 and that of the native army to 133,000. It was in this position that Lord Mayo found matters when he arrived in India in 1869, but before he had been a fortnight in power he received a despatch from the Duke of Argyll directing the Government of India to turn their attention to the question of the reduction of military expenditure, and expressing a hope that "a careful investigation would show the practicability of effecting a considerable saving in the annual expenditure without in any way impairing the efficiency of the military establishments," and adding that it might be possible to reduce that expenditure by a million and a-half below the amount at which it then stood—namely, £16,000,000. The embarrassed condition of Indian finance, which became evident soon after the receipt of this despatch, gave a deep significance to the Duke's instruction, and Lord Mayo, with his military advisers, lost no time in preparing a scheme for effecting as far as possible the reduction contemplated. They, however, found that they could not bring themselves to propose any reduction in the number of British fighting men in India, and in a private letter, which has been published, Lord Mayo wrote one of the Ministry as follows:—"One thing I implore may not be done, and that is the removal of a single British bayonet or sabre from India," but he proposed that seven infantry and four cavalry regiments should be withdrawn, and that the remaining regiments should be proportionately raised in strength. With regard to the artillery, he proposed that the number of batteries should be reduced from 94 to 80. Had these proposals and those which he made as to the native army been carried out, they would have resulted in an annual saving of nearly £1,000,000; but the Home Government only consented to sanction a portion of them, and, after a protracted discussion, they agreed that two infantry and two cavalry regiments should be withdrawn from India, and that the corresponding increase in the rank and file of those which remained should not be affected. With regard to the artillery, at the time of Lord Mayo's death no decision had been arrived at, but subsequently eight batteries were withdrawn, leaving the nominal Indian establishment at 50 regiments of infantry, nine regiments of cavalry, and 86 batteries of artillery. During the Viceroyalty of Lord Lytton no reduction in the military expenditure—owing to the Afghan war—was possible; but now that peace is restored the attention of the Indian Government has again been turned to the question. We believe that the proposals which have been made by them on the subject of the British Army in India will not in their entirety be sanctioned by the India-office. The proposition to reduce the number of infantry regiments by four, will, we understand, be rejected, and the reasons for this decision are not, perhaps, difficult to surmise, for it would probably be urged that, in case of a military emergency in India, it would be far easier for the Home Government to reinforce the Indian establishment by means of drafts to the separate regiments than for them to send out fresh ones; and it would also be said that the number of trained officers in India was greatly diminished when the British staff of the native regiments was reduced from twenty-four to seven, and that any further reduction might be inconvenient, besides which, the army has recently been undergoing considerable changes, and the War-office would naturally urge its unwillingness to open up the question again so soon. It must also be remembered that when the Simla Commissioners made their report they were unaware of the schemes which Mr. Childers has inaugurated, by which there will be, owing to the system of reliefs by drafts and the reduced charges for transport and pensions, which will be eventually confined to non-commissioned officers, a saving effected of about £250,000 to the Indian Exchequer. With regard to the proposed reduction of eleven batteries of artillery, we believe that a compromise will be arrived at and six or seven will be withdrawn, the Indian Government bearing a share, as before, when the former reduction was made, of the cost of the absorption and retirement of officers. As for the withdrawal of a cavalry regiment from India, the matter has not as yet, we believe, been settled.—Times.

THE following correspondence on Indian questions has appeared in our contemporaries:—

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MORNING POST."

Sir,—So much impatience is shown by shareholders in gold mines in India as to the slow progress apparently made, even by those companies that already have been over two years in existence without any declaration of dividends, that the following extract from a letter received from the Wynaad by the last mail may tend to allay irritation and explain the causes of delay, which may be summarised as attributable to the novelty of the enterprise, the difficulty of transporting and erecting colossal machinery, and the want of skilled labour among the natives. The extract is as follows:—"I was over at the Devala Gold Fields a fortnight since, and there appears to be an immense deal of work yet to be done before they can commence crushing in earnest."—Yours truly,

FESTINA LENTE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "TIMES."

Sir,—I happened to be a guest of his Highness the Maharaja of Punnaly when Miss Beilby was there, and I wish to bear my humble testimony to the value and importance of her visit. No doubt the rich and benevolent are at times uncertain where to bestow their charities to the best advantage. I can assure them that in supporting Miss Beilby and the sisterhood of which she is a conspicuous member they will not only be doing incalculable good from a charitable point of view, but will be binding together two great nations whose union is of infinite advantage to themselves and to the whole world. I hope the fact will not be overlooked that India is so vast, and its need of female practitioners so great, that it is impossible its requirements should be satisfied by European agency alone, and that it is very desirable attempts should be made to educate Indian women as nurses and doctors.—I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

EDWARD B. EASTWICK.

54, Hogarth-road, Cromwell-road, S.W., Nov. 3.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "TIMES."

Sir,—Having read with interest the correspondence on the above subject published in your columns, I shall feel obliged by your allowing me space to make a few remarks founded on personal experience. I was for two years in India, and, although not holding a diploma, I practised largely in the native State of Bhopal, and afterwards obtained an appointment as medical attendant to the zenana of the Maharaja of Dhar, at a salary of £200 a year, besides having a furnished bungalow provided for me. This appointment, however, I have reason to believe, was an exceptional one, and my experience induces me to think that practice among Indian women would generally be found unremunerative. If, as was my case in Bhopal, a woman doctor is willing to attend gratis, the relations of the patients are delighted to avail themselves of her services; but they are seldom willing to pay more than a very trifling sum for the benefit of any female member of the family. In native practice in India it is a common habit among men doctors to insist upon the fee being paid before the visit even to a male patient, as otherwise it is very likely not to be paid at all, particularly if the cure be not satisfactory, and there is a disposition among natives to despair of ultimate cure in case there be not rapid progress. In widiery cases a large fee will sometimes be paid spontaneously if the child be a boy, and no fee whatever if it be a girl. There can be no doubt to any one who has been in native States, whether Mahomedan or Hindu, that there is great need for women doctors to attend the native women, and I cannot agree with Mr. Muir as to there being any disposition to object to European treatment among the Indians; but I doubt that there is any large field for remunerative practice, the more so as it is necessary for all Europeans who wish to be respected in India to maintain a somewhat large establishment.—I remain, Sir, yours obediently, SARAH HECKFORD.

East London Hospital for Children, Shadwell, E., Nov. 8.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "TIMES."

Sir,—In the tenour of Miss Heckford's letter in the Times of to-day I entirely concur, excepting that I never wrote of any disposition "among Indians to object to European treatment." I said that they were "not yet accustomed to it;" but that they had only to be made acquainted with the same to value and desire it, and I urged that through the agency of our zenana ladies was the best hope of their becoming so acquainted.—I am, &c., W. INDIAN MUSIC.

In the book which treats of the Rasas, Dr. Tagore informs us about the 2nd and 3rd portions of the old India Drama, namely, about Nritya and Nritya. He says, as follows, about these two:—

Nritya is of two kinds:—Tandava and Lasya. Tandava accompanies different kinds of songs, and with the movement of the eyes, eye-brows, and hands induces and represents the sentiments of love. It has been named Tandava, because it was first danced by Tanda, one of the attendant spirits of Mahadeva. The second part, Lasya, consists also of two parts:—Chhaurita and Yauvata. The dance of the hero and heroine (in a representation) who, by this means, express their love for each other, is called Chhaurita. The extremely graceful dance of maidens, whose object is to bewitch and entrance, is called Yauvata.

The third principal division of the drama Nritya, consists of three kinds:—Vishama, Vikata, and Laghu. The first is rope-dancing, the second signifies the movements during dance of a person clothed in a frightful dress, the third is graceful tripping. Finally, the dance which was performed by eight milkmaids round the figures of Krishna is styled Karshni. The Indians of old times, therefore, were in possession of a well-developed ballet.

The three principal divisions of the Indian drama:—Natya, Nritya, and Nritya, depend, according to Dr. Tagore, upon Bhava. Bhava is understood by the Hindus to be mental restriction or modification. There are three kinds of Bhavas:—Sthayi, Byavichari, and Svattika. The full development of a Bhava is called Rasa. There are nine sorts of Rasas—viz., Sringara, Vira, Karuna, Raudra, Hasya, Bhayanaka, Bibhatsa, Advuta, and Santa. The dramatists of the olden times, however, consider Santa and Karuna as one and the same Rasa, and they recognise, accordingly, eight Rasas only. These eight Rasas represent as follows:—

- I. Sringara is the sentiment of love.
- II. Vira has a celebrated person as the hero. Its expressions are fourfold:—1st, mental gift; 2nd, merit; 3rd, goodness; 4th, combat.
- III. Karuna is the sentiment of compassion.
- IV. Raudra represents anger.
- V. Hasya is laughter.
- VI. Bhayanaka creates terror. Its god is kala (Death).
- VII. Bibhatsa creates a feeling of abhorrence.
- VIII. Adbhuta is wonder.

Santa Rasa is Rest or Peace. Its hero is a pious character. It can, however, join everything to it—every quality and every wish.

Accordingly, the dramas of India, when not treating of the Avatars, had the Rasas for their subject; and, indeed, there were eight different kinds of such dramas, according to the number of the Rasas. Each kind had one of the Rasas for its basis. I shall not be far wrong when I say that the Avatars and the Rasas respectively furnish the spiritual and secular dramas with subjects for their delineation.

Dr. Tagore has added to his book specimens of each of the eight Rasas from the ancient classical dramas. He has also put down the appropriate melodies to be sung with each piece, and, in order to afford Europeans a full insight of the same, an illustration, explanatory of the principal characteristics of the scene, such as was witnessed on the stage many centuries ago, has been appended to each dramatic morceau.

I shall here give only the translation of the song from the specimen of Sringara Rasa, quoted by Dr. Tagore. It runs thus:—

How sweetly laughs Krishna,
O crystal Yamuna,
Thy green banks upon!
He looks at the full moon,
And his bosom is warm'd
By the soft breath of love.
Round his neck is a garland
Of wild flowers, sweet-scented;
By the countless and beautiful
Maids of Brindavana
Surrounded, he listens
To the music of Nature
Which comes from the groves.
A magic pavilion
Has Krishna erected,
To hide from Immortals
The scenes of his pleasures;
Tho' they throng in the air
For they too are longing
To look in and to witness
His frolics, his pleasures.

The subject of the Adi Rasa drama (the Sentiment of Love) is as follows:—

The milkmaids of Brindavana, fascinated by the beauty and grace of Krishna, and charmed by the soft strains of his magic flute, ardently longed to be his consorts. With this view they glorified Krishna, and prayed to their goddess to fulfil their desire. The goddess granted their request. In consequence of which Krishna was kind to the fair ones, felt himself drawn towards them, and promised to love them all together. For this purpose he had to assume various shapes. The drama itself consists of several acts with songs and dances. One of the scenes, in which the eight milkmaids are shown as waiting vainly for Krishna, and going about as vainly in quest of him, when he suddenly appears in their midst, laughing pleasantly, appeases them, &c., has been literally given by Dr. Tagore. From the composition of this scene it is clear to me that the Indians of ancient times must have developed this matter systematically, and knew perfectly well how to impart life and perfection into the performance.

In order to give us a thorough and complete idea of the drama, Dr. Tagore has furnished detailed descriptions of the nature and construction of the old Indian stage, as also the manner and fashion in which the audience had to sit. Laying the foundation of a stage was, according to the information given by him, a solemn ceremony. It could only be done after the performance of certain prescribed rites, and invoking the gods. The foundation (podium) of the stage having been laid, the director of the theatre had to fast for three days, and then in the back ground of the stage to raise up a column (a sort of pillar) of gold or red sandal wood. The top of the pillar was hollow and the lower portion thick and smooth (an imitation of the peaks of the Himalayas). This pillar was held sacred, the seat of the gods, and could, therefore, be constructed only on a particular day fixed by soothsayers and astrologers. The stage itself was so arranged that its dimensions could be altered according to the character and requirement of the representation, and it could, accordingly, be made large or circumscribed. Damodara says that it should have a diameter of 30 feet, and should be handsomely constructed. The floor was of wood, but not slippery, so that the actors might not slip. Windows or curtains enclosed the podium. The top of the stage, towards the audience galleries, was adorned with wooden figures, flags of various colours, doors, and garlands of flowers. To the west of the stage, and occupying a third of the whole space was the Green Room.

The hall for the spectators had likewise its prescribed arrangements. The eastern side was reserved for princes and their relations. In general, the princes were expected to be strict judges of music and dancing, and to be open-handed. They were expected to know the difference between Margar and Desi, to be able to criticise the natra, and, above all, to have an æsthetic culture. The president also exercised with them the power of criticising. The Brahmins had their seats in front. To courtiers and little children was assigned the southern portion, while the north side accommodated heralds and other connoisseurs. The Royal Lifeguards had to remain outside. During the performance the gates of the theatre were kept closed, and immoral persons, strangers or poor people, those who were sick and the unappreciating, were refused entrance. The president (critic) was required to be distinguished for his carefulness, gravity, justice, modesty, taste, and amiability, and, for a sound knowledge of music, poetry and dancing. How wholly different the state of affairs would be if, in the present day, such things had still been challenged by like able critics.

We must thank Dr. Tagore that through him we have at last been able to obtain a thorough insight of ancient Indian drama, for most of our own researches have hitherto brought over to us but very little. For instance, the article of Indian music in one of the newest works, "Nauman's Illustrated History of Music," is quite a failure. How different would it have been had Nauman but known, read, and studied Dr. Tagore's works. It was, however, no doubt easier to serve up an old rechauffe of what was already known and recorded.

On a future occasion, when the book which treats of the theory of old Indian music will come under our consideration, I shall once again revert to further details of the works of Dr. Tagore. For the present we know that he is the greatest connoisseur of old Indian music, and that he has thrown light upon the darkness in which this subject had hitherto been enveloped.—Indian Mirror.

ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.

ON Tuesday afternoon the inaugural meeting of the 58th session of this society was held at the offices of the society, 22, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. Sir Thomas E. Colebrooke, Bart., M.P., president, occupied the chair, and was supported by the following:—Major General Sir Henry C. Rawlinson, K.C.B., F.R.S. (director of the society), General Maclagan, Sir F. Clive Bayley, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., Col. Yule, C.B., Mr. E. L. Brandreth, Sir Barrow Ellis, K.C.S.I., Mr. James Ferguson, D.C.L., F.R.S., Mr. A. Grote, Col. Sir Lewis Pelly, K.C.B., K.C.S.I., Mr. W. S. W. Vaux M.A., F.R.S. (secretary), Mr. Robert N. Cust (hon. sec.), Mr. N. B. E. Baillie, and Sir William Muir, K.C.S.I. The minutes of proceedings of the last meeting of the recent session having been vouched, the secretary (Mr. Vaux, M.A., F.R.S.) announced that the presentations to the society during the last three months had been so large as to preclude the possibility of exhibiting them in the usual course. Amongst the donors, as acknowledged by Mr. Vaux, were several learned and scientific societies in this and other countries, as well as various private individuals, authors, and otherwise.

The CHAIRMAN congratulated the members on the satisfactory position of the society, both financially and in regard to their journal of proceedings. He was happy to see that at this, their first meeting of the session, they were about being aided by a large number joining their ranks.

The SECRETARY observed that in the history of the society it had seldom occurred that so many came forward to seek election as on this occasion. The names of those seeking admission as resident or non-resident members were conspicuously displayed round the apartment, and at a subsequent stage of the proceedings the candidates were balloted for and unanimously elected. They were the following:—Resident members: Mr. Welborne St. Clair Baddeley, of 32, Pont-street, Belgrave-square; Mr. B. Nangio, of Oxford; Mr. Hyde Clarke, M.A.I.; Mr. Alexander Grant, Kong, Chillingham; Mr. Joseph Seel, fellow of the Royal Horticultural Society, and of Vandyke-place, Bolton; Mr. Thomas Steel, Devonshire-street, Bolton; Mr. Charles Turner Tarring, member of the Asiatic Society for Japan; and the Rev. Isaac Taylor, the Rectory, Lattington, York. As non-resident members: Mr. J. Farques, of the Indian Telegraph Department, stationed in Persia; Mr. Alexander Finn, her Majesty's Vice-Consul, Teheran; Mr. Christopher Gardner, her Majesty's Consul, China; Mr. Joseph Halevy; Mr. H. Hoey, 18, Abercorn-terrace, Belfast, member of the Bengal Asiatic Society; Rev. C. King, of Ahmednagar; Mr. Edward Tyrell Smith, I.L.D., Bombay; Sir H. P. Parker, K.C.B.; Mr. Theobald, of Oundle, and Mr. J. S. Tremlett, of Jullunder, Punjab.

A discussion, in which the chairman, Sir W. H. Rawlinson, Mr. Brandreth, and General Maclagan took part, followed the reading of the papers.

THE LETTERS OF SIR WILLIAM GOMM.*

THE Letters and Journals of Field Marshal Sir William Maynard Gomm, G.C.B., furnish us with a military autobiography of extraordinary fulness and completeness, and of the highest value and interest, both from the historical importance of the scenes which are here presented in a new and remarkably vivid light, and from the utter simplicity and sincerity that shine in every line. The portion already edited covers the period between the expedition to the Helder and the battle of Waterloo. The writer was concerned, by extraordinary good fortune, in all the great military doings of that Titanic age—including the Dutch and Danish expeditions, the whole of the Peninsular war from Corunna to Toulouse, and the Waterloo campaign. The letters are written in a vivid, graphic style, with a richness of detail and a shrewdness of observation that will delight both the military reader and the student of history. Anglo-Indians will look eagerly for the continuation of this work, which, it may be hoped, will provide us with equally life-like descriptions of life at Indian headquarters during the five years that Sir William Gomm was chief. The book is full of brightly-told anecdotes which will charm every reader. We extract one as a specimen:—

"I will here place on record the last words that fell from the lips of the Duke of Wellington, addressed to myself, when I was taking leave of him at Walmer, previous to my departing for the command in India.—"The British army is what it is because it is officered by gentlemen, men who would scorn to do a dishonourable thing, and who have something more at stake before the world than a reputation for military smartness. Now, the French army," he continued, "piqued themselves upon their esprit militaire, and their honneur militaire, and what was the consequence? Why, I kicked their honneur and their esprit militaire to the devil"—and he gave a kick so enthusiastic that it nearly upset him, and prompted me to lay instantly hold of his arm to enable him to recover his balance."

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE OPIUM MONOPOLY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—The people of Great Britain cannot decide whether this monopoly should be abolished until the Indian Government shall have condescended to give them a little information on the subject. The great argument of the monopolists is that without a monopoly the consumption of opium within British territory would be increased. My object is to show that this argument is incorrect, and that if an excise tax be substituted for the monopoly the former will be found much more effectual in checking consumption. At present Government officers feel it to be their duty to urge cultivators and farmers to grow poppy instead of food grains; they not only make large advances of much-desired coin for that purpose, but they take such cultivators under their protection. There is nothing that an Indian peasant aspires to more readily than to be placed under the protection of a powerful European officer:—

"With prog in his hut, and coin in his purse, Things not so bad, but they might not be worse."

The one condition that the European officer insists on is that every drop of poppy juice produced shall be brought to him. If any be found in the peasant's hut all sorts of pains and penalties are threatened. Now, it so happens that most consumers of opium in India do not like to pay as much for the drug as the Government monopolists demand. They see the poppies growing all around them; how easy to bribe the cultivators to give them a little. Thus it is that excessive quantities of opium are consumed in India, on which no sort of tax has been paid to Government; this illicit opium would be very cheap if it were not found to be necessary to pay vast sums in bribes; of opium consumed in the Gangetic Valley a great proportion of the price is paid away in bribery and corruption.

A curious way of evading the vigilance of the Government monopolists is adopted by the cultivators. In Benares and other large cities there is a large and profitable trade in dirty clothes. The cultivators of the poppy purposely cause the juice to besmear their hands, and with their hands they besmear the clothes round their waists and thighs; these clothes fetch a high price on account of the opium extracted from them. The contractors for the sale of Government opium sell very little legal opium; they can buy illicit opium much cheaper; they grumble very much when they are required to sell a considerable quantity of Government opium; but they are very ready to offer large sums of money if no questions be asked, and the legal drug be left to repose in the Treasury room. Thus all classes conspire to buy and consume the untaxed drug. All that I ask for is, let the true state of things be placed before the British public. We want to know how many hundreds of thousand acres are grown with poppy, and whether the fields chosen for its cultivation are not the best in India. We want to know approximately how much opium is consumed in each district in India, and what proportion pays duty and what proportion is illicit. Very few Europeans have any conception of the prodigious consumption of opium in the North Western Provinces, Oudh, and Behar; the monopoly does not check it, a well regulated excise would. The difference is that the monopoly keeps matters secret; an excise would disclose some of the corruptions which are now kept out of sight. With an excise Government might limit the cultivation at its pleasure; there need be no difficulty in controlling both the cultivation and trade; improvements in cultivation and manufacture, to which the Government monopolists are blind, would quickly be adopted. There need not be any vested interests as erroneously asserted. Every cultivator and trader would know that he would be subject to the excise laws and to any modifications of them which might be enacted by the Legislative Council.—Your obedient servant,

Nov. 12.

I beg to refer you to Sir William Muir's elaborate minute addressed to the Supreme Government of India, strongly urging that the cultivation of the poppy as well as the manufacture and sale of the prepared drug should no longer be a Government monopoly but be relegated to private hands. Sir William advocated export and license duties and declared that "the license duty will still support the revenue, and thus the action of Government will be that of check and no longer of stimulus. The fluctuations in the demand of china will be met in the ordinary course of trade by corresponding variations in the supply from India. The area of cultivation will be adjusted by the direct action of the Chinese themselves upon speculators and producers, and will no longer depend upon the arbitrary will of the Government."

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE VICEROY.—The Viceroy has returned to Simla suffering slightly from the effects of over walking during his tour. In consequence of this indisposition his Excellency was unable to attend the Simla Volunteers' prize distribution on Tuesday Oct. 25. Lady Ripon distributed the prizes, and General Wilson presided and addressed the volunteers, who were invited to luncheon by the Viceroy and the Marchioness of Ripon.

THE IMPERIAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.—At the morning's sitting of the Legislative Council at Simla on Oct. 26 the bill to amend and consolidate the law relating to the excise and revenue of Northern India, British Burma, and Coorg was passed into law. The Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act of 1879 Amendment Bill was also passed, Mr. Gibbs explaining the main alterations and changes effected by the select committee in the original bill. The select committee's report on the Mahal or Banki bill was presented. In the absence of Sir Robert Egerton, Mr. Stokes took charge of the Punjab Laws Act of 1872 Amendment Bill, which was also passed. The consideration of the Assam Emigration Bill was postponed to allow of the Chief Commissioner of Assam, the planters, and officials of the province submitting their opinions. Mr. Thompson explained that the bill would be taken up immediately on the return of the Council to Calcutta. The Council adjourned to Dec. 7, at Calcutta.

TROOPS FROM NATAL.—The 1st Battalion Royal Scots Fusiliers (1-21st), which was to have proceeded to England in the Fumna, has been ordered to remain at Secunderabad until the arrival of the relieving regiment. The 2nd Battalion of this corps was to have come to India in the Seraphis from Natal, but information has been received that that vessel has left Simon's Town without troops; hence the detention of the 1st Battalion at Secunderabad. With reference to the 14th Hussars, expected from Natal, the following orders have been issued by the Quartermaster-General:—"Quartermaster General's Office, Pune, Oct. 20.—Circular memorandum.—In continuation of this office No. 1733—3214 of 3rd instant, it is notified that the strength of the detachments 14th Hussars, from Natal, is as follows: 1st detachment in transport Calabria, to arrive in Bombay on or about Nov. 17, 240 men, 220 horses. 2nd detachment in transport Hankow, to arrive in Bombay on or about Dec. 6, 120 men, 110 horses. 2. The detachments, after being equipped with carriage, tents, and establishments (regimental and hospital), will march for Secunderabad via Tanna, Khandala, Pune, and Sholapore. 3. Such portion of the Pune Field Column Carriage as may be available to be sent to Bombay, and will be relieved, as also establishments, at Sholapore. 4. Subsidiary arrangements to be made by the Brigadier General Commanding Bombay District, in communication with the General Officer Commanding Hyderabad Subsidiary Force."

MULTAN.—The people of Multan are to be punished for their recent disturbances by having to maintain an extra police force at a cost of Rs.8,500 a year.

FRONTIER MURDERERS.—The jirgah of the Tirah Afridis was ordered to assemble at Jamrud on Oct. 21 to investigate cases of murder said to have been committed at the instigation of mollahs. The recent murder of a subadar major by an Afridi is reported from Kohat.

MR. HUME AND THE THEOSOPHISTS.—Mr. A. O. Hume has written a letter which shows that he has the courage of his convictions in regard to the theosophists. He vindicates Madame Blavatsky and Colonel Olcott from the aspersions cast upon them by the Saturday Review, which denounced them as adventurers, and called them bad names besides. Mr. Hume states that they are not adventurers but "very worthy, unworldly, unselfish, pure-minded people." Colonel Olcott, he says, did not get his army rank at the bar of a public-house, but in the service of the United States; and Madame Blavatsky is the widow of General N. V. Blavatsky for many years Governor of Grivan in Armenia. Surely the status, of both these notable theosophists is capable of verification; and it is for the interests of both that it should be placed beyond all doubt or cavil by the production of "papers" which would set the matter at rest for ever. But, even if all doubt on this point were cleared up, we should still remain sceptical as to the "cause" with which they are identified being productive of "much good."

FIRMNESS.—It is understood that the proposed expedition against the Alaiwals, on the Abbottabad frontier, has been finally abandoned. The Hindu bunniahs who were kidnapped by the tribe, have been sent back to their homes but the fine remains unexact.

THE BILUCHISTAN AGENCY.—Col. St. John, C.S.I., goes on leave in a fortnight's time. In his absence Col. W. G. Waterfield, C.S.I., will officiate as agent to the Governor General, Quetta.

RAILWAY RATES.—In an official paper addressed to the Government of Bombay, with reference to the grain-carrying trade and the competition between the rival railway companies, the Government of India have announced that sanction cannot be given to the proposal for assimilating the rates on the two existing routes from Agra and Delhi to Bombay, the difference in length between the two lines being such as to render the idea impracticable. The Government of India repeat the opinion that the rates between Delhi or Agra and Bombay via Ahmedabad should be nearly as possible equal to those between Delhi or Agra and Calcutta.

THE VICEROY'S MILITARY SECRETARY.—Col. White, C.B., V.C., was to leave India at the end of October, and under the altered condition of affairs in South Africa, where it appears that a renewal of war with the Boers is imminent, will probably join his regiment (the 2nd Battalion Gordon Highlanders) in the Transvaal.

THE PRINCE OF WALES MEMORIAL IN CALCUTTA.—It is announced that Mr. Gubbay, of Calcutta, has offered to bear the expense of the erection of a memorial in that city in honour of the visit of the Prince of Wales.

THE LAHORE EXHIBITION.—The Lahore Exhibition is to be opened on Christmas eve and closed on New Year's eve.

PRIZES FOR THE NATIVE ARMY.—H.E. the Commander in Chief in India has intimated his intention of continuing this year the prizes for shooting previously awarded to the native army.

FINE ART.—The sale of paintings and works of art at the Simla Exhibition this year is said to have realised Rs.12,000, Lord Ripon being by far the largest purchaser.

THE N.W.P. GOVERNMENT.—His Honour the Lieutenant Governor of the North West Provinces and Chief Commissioner of Oudh was expected to reach Lucknow on Oct. 27. General the Hon. T. F. Wilson, C.B., was to arrive at Lucknow about Nov. 10, on a visit to his Honour.

THE BISHOP OF CALCUTTA.—The Lord Bishop of Calcutta arrived at Karachi on Oct. 13 in the course of a tour of visitation, which includes Sind and the Punjab.

THE N.W.P. SECRETARIAT.—It is believed that when Mr. Charles Robertson, secretary to Government in the North West Provinces, takes furlough in February next, he will be succeeded by Mr. J. Reid, collector of Bareilly.

TELEPHONES IN INDIA.—The full text of the concession to the Oriental Telephone Company has been published.

THE GWALIOR RESIDENCY.—Major A. L. Playfair has been appointed Resident at Gwalior.

THE SIMLA JEWELLERY CASE.—The suit of Hamilton against Jacob for Rs.46,000, which has excited much attention in India, has been dismissed with costs, the judge holding that the plaintiff was entitled to no relief beyond the return of the unsold articles of jewellery.

MULTAN.—In consequence of the recent disturbances Government have ordered a punitive police force to be stationed at Multan.

LOODIANA DISEASE IN HORSES.—Loodiana disease has broken out amongst the horses of the 9th Lancers at Umballa.

THE JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER OF OUDH.—Current rumours suggest that Mr. Capper, the judicial commissioner of Oudh, will probably resign the service. If it is true, as alleged, that in connection with being black-balled for a club at Mussoorie he lately challenged a brother officer of the Civil Service to fight a duel, there would certainly be a good deal of fitness in his resignation.

TEMPERANCE IN KASHMIR.—The Civil and Military Gazette has the following:—"The course of legislation, like that of true love, never did run smooth. And if it is difficult under the British raj it is still more so in native States, where modern legal science is confronted by a mass of barbarous and traditional ordinances. In Kashmir there is an old law, never yet formally rescinded, that death is the penalty for indulgence in strong drink. But the Maharaja, having imported costly machinery for the manufacture of wine and spirits, is anxious to profit by his outlay. So he has set up whisky shops, where the fiery stuff distilled from grapes and fruit is to be sold to his people, who have already an inclination to the worship of Dionysus. As good subjects it will be their duty to buy the royal tipple, but as a just ruler it will be his duty to hang them. The legal authorities of Kashmir are, we believe, taking sage counsel together on this difficulty, which, it must be admitted, is a very pretty one. Sir Wilfrid Lawson might, in the House of Commons, appeal to Lord Hartington to interfere to protect the Kashmiris from the Maharaja's toddy and to preserve an enactment which must appear to him humane and wise."

THE INDIAN SURVEYS.—Lieut. L. S. Dawson, R.N., has arrived in Bombay to assume the command of the Indian Government surveying vessel Investigator and to carry out the surveys ordered on the Western Coast of India.

MADRAS.

RETURN OF THE ACTING GOVERNOR.—The Hon. W. Hudleston arrived in Madras by the mail train from Mettapolliam and was received at the railway terminus by a large number of officials. A salute of seventeen guns was fired from the Fort Battery. Mr. Hudleston has taken up his residence at his house in the Adyar, as Government House, Guindy Park, and Government House, Mount-road, are being prepared for the reception of Mr. Grant-Duff and family.

CHOLERA AT BELLARY.—There has been an outbreak of cholera at Bellary, sixty cases being reported in one day.

THE MONSOON.—The south west monsoon is now considered to be practically over; harvest operations have been completed in some parts and are progressing in others. Indications of the approach of the north west monsoon are announced from the Madras coast.

GOLD MINING.—The South East Wynaad Gold Mining Company commenced crushing three weeks ago, and the outturn so far is said to have averaged one ounce of gold to the ton of stone.

BOMBAY.

BOMBAY HOLIDAYS.—Business in Bombay was suspended on the Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday before the departure of the mail in consequence of the annual Dewalee holidays. The Hindu new year opens with very fair prospects so far as trade is concerned.

THE PERSONATION CASE.—The man Burch, charged with personating Father Kerr, Lord Ripon's chaplain, has been committed for trial.

BOMBAY ASSESSMENT.—An animated discussion on the report of the Assessment Committee was anticipated at the meeting of the corporation held on the 19th ult. It was, however, resolved to wait until the officials personally concerned had sent in their defence to the Municipal Commissioner, so as to enable him to report to the municipality upon their conduct. The commissioner said that a most serious charge had been brought against certain officers of the municipality, the responsibility of whose appointment or dismissal rested with himself, and he asked the corporation to uphold, so far as it lay in their power, his decision, whatever it might be.

H.M.S. "RUBY."—H.M.S. Ruby entered the dock on Oct. 25 for repairs to her propeller.

THE ARCHBISHOP OF GOA.—The new Archbishop of Goa was consecrated in the church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus at Lisbon on Sept. 25.

SMALLPOX IN BOMBAY.—We regret to hear that one of the three persons suffering from smallpox admitted into the Goculdas Tejpal Hospital from the ship Swordsmen of Zanzibar has died.

THE HAI.—The s.s. Empress of India sailed on Oct. 20 for Jeddah. Some two hundred pilgrims have taken passage in her without the least chance of arriving at the port of destination in time for the Haj.

THE COMPTOIR D'ESCOMPTE.—We are requested to state that Mr. Charles Lowell has been appointed manager of the Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris in Bombay, Mr. E. J. Hardcastle proceeding to Europe on the 17th inst.

BANDORA.—The Public Conveyance Act of Bombay is, by the orders of Government, made applicable to the town and suburbs of Bandora, when we trust the miserable horses there will be removed.

DR. MOORE.—We notice that the series of papers by Deputy Surgeon General Moore, which recently appeared in these columns, have been republished in London under the title of "Health Resorts or Tropical Invalids in India, at Home, and Abroad."

BENGAL CIVILIANS FOR BOMBAY.—Three junior civilians are to be transferred from Bengal to the Bombay Presidency for sub divisional work. Mr. C. P. Casperz, assistant magistrate of Runcegunge, will, according to the Indian Daily News, probably be one of those selected.

DR. DA CUNHA.—Dr. Da Cunha, of Bombay, has received a letter from Professor Weber, the eminent Sanscrit scholar, thanking him on behalf of the Oriental Congress, recently held in Berlin, for his work on the Konkani language and literature. Professor Weber, in the course of his communication, spoke of the pleasure it gave the members of the Congress to see Pundit Shyamajee, the Indian delegate, amongst them.

CHOLERA IN BOMBAY.—There were twelve deaths from cholera in Bombay during the week ending Oct. 18, against eleven in the previous week. There is little abatement of the disease in Satara and Ahmednagar. In the Satara district there were 408 cases and 118 deaths; in the taluka Nuggur thirty cases and fifteen deaths; and in the Nuggur district 150 cases and sixty-six deaths.

CHORAL FESTIVAL.—The ninth annual choral festival will be held in St. Thomas's Cathedral on the 22nd inst. (St. Cecilia's Day). The anthems selected are "With Angels and Archangels" by J. L. Hopkins, and the "Gloria" from Mozart's 12th Mass; the service is Bunnett in F. The hymns will be Nos. 166, 296, 179, 31, and 30 from "Hymns Ancient, and Modern." The conductor will be Mr. M. R. Wyer, and Mr. R. A. Mant will preside at the organ as usual.

BOMBAY ASSESSMENT.—The local native papers generally applaud the course adopted by the Bombay Corporation in dealing with the Town Council's report in reference to the assessment question. The Bombay Chronicle will "await the decision of Mr. Ollivant with confidence, begotten of the belief that his ability and judgment are quite equal to all the requirements of the municipality." The Indian Spectator does not think the corporation could have come to a more sensible resolution in the matter.

THE GOVERNOR.—H.E., the Governor of Bombay may be surprised, and possibly flattered, to learn that the native Mirror "had been disposed to look upon Sir James Fergusson as in some respects an extraordinary man;" but our contemporary "had not thought that he was likely to turn out extraordinarily eccentric." These remarks are made in regard to the recent enhancement of the Vaishnav Maharaja's sentence, which the Mirror thinks was a usurpation of the functions of a court of justice.

LONDON PRODUCE MARKETS.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

RICE.—A cargo of Rangoon off the coast sold at 7s. 2d. Continent.

COFFEE.—There have been no public sales to-day, and privately very little done, but the market has a firm tone.

TEA.—The public sales of China were resumed to-day, and went flatly. Green teas at lower prices.

COTTON.—The market is firm and unchanged with a fair amount of business doing. Sales about 3,300 bales, including Tinnevely at 5½d. to 5¾d.; Western, 4¾d.; Bengal, 4¼d. to 5½d.; Sind, 4¼d.; and Fiji at 14d. per lb. Forward delivery:—American—November-December, 6 13-32d.; January-February, 6½d.; March-April, 6 19-32d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

THURSDAY EVENING.

TEA.—Telegrams from Calcutta point to an export to this country for the present season of not more than 47,000,000lb., and as this opinion gains ground the tendency to an advance in prices here becomes stronger. Letters from Foochow, dated 28th September, received on Monday, state that owing to the fall in freights—viz., from £3 10s. per ton to £2 10s.—an advance of half a tael per picul had taken place in the price of common teas from the lowest point. There was a large supply of these kinds, the quality, as the advices state, becoming worse and worse every year.

COFFEE.—The small supply of plantation Ceylon went at full prices, but other sorts slowly. 166 casks 119 barrels and bags of the first description sold at 66s. to 77s. 6d. for small to low middling, and 84s. 6d. to 108s. for good middling to bold. 260 cases 518 bags East India brought 88s. 6d. to 90s. 6d. for fine medium, and 104s. 6d. to 105s. for bold; other sorts, 71s. 6d. to 95s., with small in proportion.

COTTON.—There is no change to report in the market, which continues firm and fairly active. Sales about 3,000 bales, including Western at 4½d. to 4¾d., and Dhollerah at 5 1-16d. per lb. For arrival, Coconada, August, Cap: 4 11-16d. for fair red Bengal. November-December, Sucz, 5½d. for fine l. g. c. Forward delivery American, December-January, 6 15-32d. per lb. for middling l. m. c.

FRIDAY EVENING.

INDIAN TEA.—There has been a firm market throughout the week. The demand has been strong throughout, and prices close in sellers' favour, especially for Darjeeling and flavoury teas, which show a decided advance on the values current last month. Owing to the unfavourable weather at the gardens in October, the export is not generally expected to much exceed that of last season.

SUGAR.—The demand for Manilla and Jaggery continues, prices being 3d. to 6d. higher for the week.

COFFEE.—In the public sales to-day 372 casks 162 barrels and bags plantation Ceylon sold at 1s. advance for coloury, but pale qualities went rather lower. 352 bags foreign mostly sold—ordinary Porto Rico at 51s. 6d. to 55s., grayish at 67s. 6d. to 71s., and African at 38s. 6d. per cwt.

RICE.—Unaltered. A cargo of 890 tons Rangoon sold at 7s. 3d., ex ship London. Several sales of Madras at 7s. 3d. to 7s. 4½d. on the spot, and 7s. 9d. to arrive.

COTTON.—There has been a fair business doing on the spot, at full prices. Sales about 1,800 bales, including Tinnevely at 5 7-16d. to 5¾d., Western at 4d. to 4¾d., and Bengal at 4¾d. to 5¼d. per lb.

JUTE.—The market has been quiet during the week, but to-day there was rather more demand, and about 5,000 bales sold, chiefly to arrive. Prices occasionally rather dearer.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state:—"Our report of the produce markets continues of the same unsatisfactory character as for many months past, but prices have not experienced further depression. More enquiry prevails for Jaggery and Manilla sugar, other kinds being firm, excepting crystallised Demerara, which has slightly declined. Refined goods here and French loaves to arrive are dearer; also beet sugars, the latter influenced by the deficiency in the production of Austrian. During the early part of the week rather higher rates were paid for ordinary Jamaica and Guatemala coffee. To-day the tone is again quiet, and part of the foreign, including Costa Rica, by auction, had to be withdrawn. Plantation Ceylon and East India sold on fully previous terms. Rice has been inactive, and coast cargoes of Burma easier to buy. At the public sales of China tea the low prices from common to medium grades of Congou last referred to have again prevailed, and there is not any increase of business by private contract. The market for India has been without change, and supplies moderate. Trade in the country is quiet. Black and white pepper have fallen about ¼d. per lb. from late highest quotations where holders showed a desire to realise. The approaching sales of cinnamon will be unusually large."

MONDAY, NOV. 14, 1881.

THE INDIAN IMPORT DUTIES.—THE TRUE SOLUTION.

THERE are probably few Englishmen of moderate opinions, Liberal or Conservative—there are, we believe, hardly any Anglo-Indians—who do not cordially agree with the sentiment indicated by Lord Salisbury's mirthful proposition for an Act of Parliament "to give Lord Hartington influence in the Cabinet in which he sits." And many would go further, and ask power for Lord Hartington to follow his own conclusions without reference to the supposed necessity of making them appear to harmonise with the views of his colleagues. His Lordship is to be warmly congratulated on the happy combination of courage and adroitness displayed in his reply to the deputation from the Manchester Chamber of Commerce on Friday last, in regard to the proposed further abolition of the import duties on cotton goods. With the general tenour of that reply we believe that most of our readers will heartily agree. The duties are absolutely required for revenue purposes—indeed, India cannot just now dispense with any revenue that is obtained without discontent, in view of the increasing insecurity of the opium revenue. Further, the Secretary of State most justly declared that, even when there may be a surplus to be disposed of it will be for the Government of India to decide what taxation should first be taken off for the good of the country itself and its people. Those who have at heart the best interests of our great Eastern Empire will recognise, and fully appreciate, the courage which Lord Hartington has shown in thus boldly taking up a position which cannot fail to expose him to the hatred and derision of the doctrinaire fanatics of the ultra free trade party. And it is amusing to observe the adroitness with which his lordship played off, one against the other, the two troublesome bands of agitators who have lately been disturbing the official serenity of the India-office.

The Secretary of State was well within his right when he pointed out that the demands of these fanatical free traders, who would make the whole Indian coast one great free port, are utterly incompatible with the fulfilment of the aspirations of those other agitators who require our instant withdrawal from the "iniquities" of the opium traffic.

But, whilst we fully endorse his lordship's general conclusions, and applaud the courage with which he has avowed his determination to abide by them, we cannot but see that his position is logically untenable, or at best tenable only for a very short time. The Secretary of State has clearly laid down the rule that Indian policy must be directed by Indian requirements, not by English trade interests; and, as far as it goes, this rule is undeniably just and equitable. But it does not go far enough; and, consequently, in no way meets the objections of Mr. Grafton and Mr. Mason and their friends, who will doubtless aver, with some show of reason, that they have never desired any other rule. The true rule, the rule we ardently desire to hear Lord Hartington boldly proclaim and unflinchingly follow—the only rule, we will add, which will at once satisfy both Indian public opinion and English requirements—is this:—English policy, Indian policy, Colonial policy, must alike be directed, not by the selfish wishes of Manchester, not by the naturally timid jealousy of Bombay, not by the youthful independence of Melbourne or Montreal, but—by Imperial interests. The fanatical party, once known as the Manchester school, whose headquarters are now transferred to Birmingham, would force our helpless dependency, India, to admit our manufactured goods (that is, virtually, the whole of our exports) duty free; whilst they insist on taxing heavily the tobacco and the tea which India has to send us, and they refuse to offer the slightest encouragement to Indian grain, Indian cotton, Indian fibre, with which Bombay and Calcutta could supply our utmost needs as cheaply as America and Russia, if only the trade were turned into the right channels by a little temporary fostering. They have pushed the false economics of one-sided free trade, in England, to the extent of rendering some of our manufacturing industries dependent for very life on our high-handed manipulation of the Indian fiscal system; and the very exigencies of their position drive them more and more to put the screw on the one foreign market, which they can thus forcibly influence, until they would make India bankrupt, in order to stave off the bankruptcy of those English industries which they themselves have ruined.

The truth is, the British Empire is commercially self-contained and self-sufficient. If our fanatical free traders would only condescend to use their energies and their vote-power in the task of applying their theory to the only sphere in which it can come within the range of practical politics—that is, within the limits of the British Empire—they would obtain for every part of the Empire revived prosperity and security, and for themselves the gratification of proving to an incredulous world that their theory, mischievous in its partial application, is founded on eternal and immutable truth, and is capable of conferring untold benefits on mankind when applied to a sufficiently wide and diversified area. The vast surplus capital and the intelligent enterprise of England is, under present circumstances, developing the resources and building up the commercial independence of countries that resolutely refuse to buy our goods, and that will soon be enabled by our suicidal help to drive us out of even neutral markets. Were that capital and that enterprise applied to the boundless wheat-plains of the North West and the Punjab, to the black cotton soil of Central and Western India, to the improvement of that tobacco cultivation that might easily supply the whole of Europe—we speak not here of the equally grand possibilities of the Colonies—where would be the limit to the capacity and the willingness of the two hundred millions of Indians to absorb all the manufactured goods with which we could supply them, and at the same time richly to repay our outlay with a fidelity that may one day be looked for in vain from dubious friends and possible enemies? Does any one doubt that this would be the result of a commercial federation of the British Empire, based on the principle of absolute free trade within Imperial limits, and conditional free trade (that is, free trade that shall be really free, not with all the benefits enjoyed on the one side and only part of them on the other) with all the rest of the world? Will Indian public opinion still continue to protest against the abolition of their duties on imports from Great Britain when they receive in return free admission to every British port for every commodity they can produce more cheaply or of better quality than elsewhere; and when, moreover, they receive such encouragement, trifling in its cost to our consumer but all-important to their producer, as would at a coup bring into immediate cultivation millions of acres of food-producing land of the highest fertility? These lands are awaiting a call from England, but as yet are unable to face the competition of the protected grain of America—protected, not directly, indeed, but indirectly by the great commercial advantages derived by the United States in its one-sided trade with the United Kingdom.

Let Mr. Grafton, Mr. Mason, the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, and all those who think with them, form themselves into an Association to promote free trade within the limits of the British Empire. If their fetish worship of the mere nominis umbra of free trade forbid their going to the further extent of demanding fair trade from the rest of the world, we will not ask from them this concession to good sense; for, if they succeed in obtaining an Imperial Commercial Federation, the further attainment of the ulterior object will become so obviously easy as to commend itself, without more advocacy, to the common sense of the nation. Let us, then, have an Imperial Free Trade Association; by a different road it will arrive at the same most desirable end as that aimed at by the most heretical of those who doubt the good policy of killing the English producer with the benevolent object of helping the English consumer a little, and the questionable result of transferring to the foreign manufacturer and the foreign artisan the whole livelihood of their English rivals.

ROYAL NAVAL SCHOOL, NEW CROSS.—Mr. C. E. Pitman, F.R.G.S., of the Indian Telegraph Service, a distinguished former pupil, gave a lecture at the Royal Naval School New Cross, a few evenings since, on "The Overland Route." The lecture was beautifully illustrated by dissolving views, and the intervals enlivened by some pieces of music performed by the pupils of Dr. Bradford, the organist. Mr. Pitman, who is warmly attached to his old school, and who has founded a geography prize, was heard with the greatest attention throughout the whole of his most interesting and instructive lecture. A cordial vote of thanks and many rounds of hearty cheers were given at the conclusion. The Rev. Dr. Chambers, vicar of Little Bealings, Suffolk, who was 27 years head master, visited the school last week, and was introduced by his old colleague, Mr. Eames, to the pupils in the dining hall. Dr. Chambers was most warmly welcomed, and at the conclusion of his address he asked for a half holiday, which his successor, the Rev. J. White, readily gave.

THE LADY CANNING HOME AT CALCUTTA.—The Assistant Superior of the community of St. John Baptist at Clewer sailed last week with some of the sisters for Calcutta, to take charge of the "Lady Canning Home" and train nurses for the public hospitals and for nursing in private families. It is hoped that this step may strengthen and extend the work of the Church among the native women, while it offers training to many who desire to devote themselves to foreign mission and hospital work.

OBITUARY.—In our obituary of last week we announced the premature decease of Major A. Gibbings, of the 2nd Dragoon Guards, at Agra. That young and efficient officer, equally beloved and esteemed by his family and military associates, had served through the African campaign, and was second in command with Capt. Marter at the capture of Cetewayo. When the Dragoon Guards were ordered to India Major Gibbings, although possessed of a nice estate in the county Limerick and a picturesque place on Cork harbour, relinquished the comforts of home to follow the fortunes of his regiment in India, where he arrived only two months since. It is a remarkable circumstance that his cousin, Capt. A. Gibbings, was the first officer whose murder at Sultampore heralded the outset of the Indian Mutiny; two other cousins, equally Arthurs Gibbings, fell in the same service. It had not been equally fatal to previous namesakes, for three Colonels Gibbings survived long after their share in the siege of Seringapatam at the beginning of the century, where they served with Lord Combermere, one of them having commanded the 23rd Fusiliers, in which regiment the field marshal held his first commission in 1791.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders were received on Wednesday at the Bank of England for £400,000 in Government bills on India. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, £378,200; to Bombay, £18,500; and to Madras, £3,300. Tenders on both Presidencies at 1s. 7½d., being the minimum posted, will receive 24½ per cent. Compared with last week this price shows a fall of 1-16d. The same amount will be offered for tender on Wednesday next.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.—On Wednesday there was a complete absence of business in the silver market, and bars were again unchanged at 51½d. The quotation for Mexican dollars was also steady at 51½d., although a considerable remittance in the coined metal is expected by the French steamer from Vera Cruz, due on the 12th inst. The rate for Indian telegraph transfers was 1-16d. firmer, at 1s. 7 15-16d.; and the four months' sight exchanges at Bombay and Calcutta improved to 1s. 8½d. The rates from China were unaltered. Rupee Four per Cent. Paper advanced to 84¼ to ¾, and the Four-and-a-Half per Cent. to 91¼ to ¾.—On Thursday there was an improved demand for silver, and bars in consequence showed increased firmness, the nearest quotation being 51 15-16d. per ounce. Mexican dollars were also inquired for at a rise of $\frac{1}{8}$ d., the price being $51\frac{1}{8}$ d. per ounce. A tendency to decline, however, was noted in Rupee Paper, the Four per Cents. being 3-16 and the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. $\frac{1}{4}$ lower, at 84 9-16 to 11-16 and $91\frac{1}{8}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ respectively. The Eastern exchanges were fully maintained at previous rates.—On Friday no important purchases of silver were effected, though the price remained steady at 51 15-16. The amount of Mexican dollars received by the French West India steamer was not disposed of, and these coins were quoted, as previously, at 51 $\frac{1}{4}$. Rupee Four per Cents. advanced a fraction, to 84 $\frac{3}{8}$ 11-16, and the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. to 91 11-16 to $\frac{3}{4}$. The exchanges from Bombay and Calcutta were firm at 18. 8 $\frac{1}{4}$ d. respectively, Hong Kong being 38. 9 $\frac{1}{8}$ d. and Shanghai 58. 1 $\frac{1}{8}$ d.—On Saturday but little business was done, and prices remained unaltered.

INDIAN APPEAL CASES.—In the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on Saturday the case of Pudma Comaree Debi and another v. Juggut Chunder Chowdhree and another was decided. This was an appeal from a decree of a Divisional Bench of the High Court of Calcutta of the 6th of May, 1879, confirming a decision of the subordinate judge of Mymensingh, in the Bengal Presidency. Mr. Leith, Q.C., Mr. Doyné, and Mr. C. W. Arathoon were counsel for the appellants; Mr. Cowie, Q.C., Mr. Mayne, and Mr. J. T. Woodroffe for the respondents. Numerous questions of law and of fact were raised in the courts below, but the substantial points now for decision were—first, what construction was to be put upon a former judgment of the Privy Council; secondly, whether an adopted son has the same right which a natural born son would have had of succeeding to the property of a person to whom he stands by virtue of the adoption in the relationship of maternal uncle; and, thirdly, whether one of the two plaintiffs had any title which would enable her to maintain the suit. The greater portion of the property in suit was ancestral, and belonged to Gour Kishore, a zemindar, of considerable wealth and importance, who died in 1821. Their lordships, who had taken time to consider their decision, now intimated their concurrence with the judgment of the High Court of Calcutta, and, with costs, dismissed the appeal.

LANKA PLANTATIONS.—The annual general meeting of this company was held at the offices on Thursday—Sir H. Bruce Sandford in the chair. The chairman stated that Mr. Harding, the chairman of the company, was unavoidably absent. They had earned a dividend at the rate of $10\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum for the past fifteen months, out of which they had paid three interim dividends at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum. He thought they would agree with him that for a young company, and having regard to the state of affairs at Ceylon, they had done well in earning so substantial a dividend, and having a handsome balance to carry forward. The reports as to the company were very encouraging, and when he was in Australia he heard it highly spoken of. The opinion of one of the oldest residents in Ceylon was that the prospects of the company were most promising. The properties were situated in several districts, so that if they had a bad monsoon in some parts they would in all probability have a good one in another. They had altogether 1,600 coolies employed on the estates, the acreage of which was 3,216 acres—2,541 being under coffee and cinchona cultivation, and the rest grass and forest land. They had only one other property under consideration, and if the negotiations were concluded the directors thought it would be best to hold their hands for a short time to see if the prospects entertained were in course of being realised. Mr. White (director) thought that the crops this year would be rather shorter than last, but in the past they had only three estates to deal with. Altogether, the estates were good and improving. He did not think that they need anticipate a less dividend than that already paid, and he hoped they would be enabled to establish a reserve fund. Mr. H. G. Hayes (director) thought that the shareholders should not consider the dividend as certain to be maintained, as his experience of Ceylon was that they had mainly to depend on the seasons, which were very uncertain. The report was adopted and the dividend declared.

BENGAL CENTRAL RAILWAY.—The first general or statutory meeting of this company was held at the City Terminus Hotel on Thursday—Lieutenant-General Craven H. Dickens, R.A., C.S.I., in the chair. The chairman stated that the company had not been very long formed, and he had consequently not much to say, there being no formal report. He thought, however, that the shareholders would probably desire some explanation as to the management of the affairs of the company. The formation dated from the 14th of July last, and this was at the height of the rainy season in Bengal, so that until now but little or anything had been done in India. In the meantime, owing to the favourable state of the iron market, they had entered into contracts for the whole of the rails, sleepers, fastenings, and the iron works, the girders, &c., acting under the advice of their consulting engineer, and the contracts were well within the estimates for the construction of the line. They had also secured the services of Mr. Furnival, acting civil engineer, in India. That gentleman had proceeded to India, and it was hoped he would shortly arrive there supported by an efficient staff. The next arrangement entered into was with the Eastern Bengal Railway Company, which line would provide them with rolling-stock and engines as a commencement, in order that the Bengal Company might reduce its capital outlay. Under the terms of this arrangement the engines and rolling stock and working staff would be provided for them. As they received 4 per cent. interest from the Secretary of State for India, which would eventually have to be repaid, it was desirable to keep down the capital account as much as possible and to get traffic on the line in order to earn the money required to pay the interest. Bearing in mind these circumstances, he thought that the money already subscribed by the shareholders would be sufficient to carry them on until about March 1 next, but at that time they would make a further call of £1 10s. per share. He might say that they opened the share list with 730 shareholders and all the calls had been met. Since then various transfers had taken place, and the share list now held 430 names. All the communications they had received gave every promise of the anticipations of the prospectus being realised. After a slight discussion, all the directors, who retired, were re-elected and auditors appointed.

THE INDIAN IMPORT DUTIES.

ON Friday a deputation from the Manchester Chamber of Commerce waited upon the Marquis of Hartington at the India-office on the subject of the Indian import duties on cotton goods. The gentlemen comprising the deputation were Mr. George Lord, vice-president of the Chamber, and Mr. F. W. Grafton, M.P., Mr. B. Armitage, M.P., and Mr. Hugh Mason, M.P., directors.

Mr. Grafton, M.P., in introducing the deputation, remarked that it represented not only an influential chamber but a very large and important industry. Mr. Slagg, M.P., their president, was in Paris on important business, or he would also have been present on this occasion. The removal of these duties would be a boon not only to Lancashire, but a great service to producers throughout the whole of this country and to consumers in India.

Mr. Lord traced the various steps which had been already taken in the direction of the object at which the deputation aimed, and urged that provision should be made in the next Indian budget for removing the import duties from all descriptions of cotton goods and yarns. In 1874 the Marquis of Salisbury promised that the duties should be repealed on the first opportunity; and in February, 1879, the House of Commons declared that they were unjust and ought to be abolished.

Mr. H. Mason, M.P., said nobody defended in principle these duties, which were a great injury to the hundreds of millions of consumers in India; and, with regard to the money question, the deputation believed that the revenue of India could spare the small sum which was at present raised from the imposition of those duties. They thought it very hard, as Lancashire manufacturers, that they should be handicapped as they now were; but they did not come before his lordship for a selfish purpose. They believed that the interests of India would be best served by the abolition which it was desired to effect. He urged the noble marquis to make good the promises held out in his Budget speech.

MR. ARMITAGE, M.P., followed, and also strongly advocated the abolition of the duties.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON said: I have listened with great interest to the statements which have been made by this extremely important deputation. I am sure you will excuse me if I say very little in reply; and I hope you will not consider that, in saying little, I am treating the deputation with the slightest disrespect. The question, of course, of the preparation of the Budget has been for some time, and is now, under the careful consideration of the Government of India; and, to a certain extent, of the Home Government also. I think you will quite recognise that it would be inexpedient that I should, while the next Budget is the subject of consideration in India—even if we had arrived at a positive point—take this opportunity of announcing the conclusions at which we had arrived. Much as I approve of the general concessions which have been made to the Lancashire cotton trade, I do not think it can be denied that the manner in which these have been made has been somewhat unfortunate. An impression has arisen in India that the remissions of taxation upon cotton goods had been made solely in deference to pressure from Lancashire, and not in the interests of the people of India themselves. I need not say that I entirely concur with the deputation, and with the opinions held in Lancashire—that reduction of taxation of this description is quite as much in the interests of India as it is in the interests of Lancashire. But we need not be in the least degree surprised, when we find strange economic doctrines promulgated in this country with this acceptance, that perfectly sound economic doctrines are not yet thoroughly established in India; and, therefore, it is not, in one way, a matter of surprise that the mass of public opinion in this country is that our policy is to do injury to the people of India in the interest of Lancashire. Now, of course the first object we have in view is to do what is right; but it is an object of as much importance that the reasons and grounds of our policy should be thoroughly understood in India, and that there should be brought home to the minds of the people the fact that what is done is done in their interests—as, in fact, it has been—and not through any dictation from Lancashire. Gentlemen, even if I were in a position to announce the final decision of the Government, I do not think it desirable I should take this opportunity of making the statement.

At the same time it has given me great satisfaction to hear what you have said, because all such information as you are in a position to afford must be of great use to the Government of India, and also to us, in forming a final conclusion on the matter. I shall only make a few observations to you in reply to what has been said. Some dissatisfaction has been expressed of the policy which would only contemplate the total repeal of the duty upon grey goods. Well, I must point out that although we have always been perfectly well aware that Lancashire aimed at the gradual total extinction of the duty upon all cotton goods, yet the immediate demand recently made to me was in reference to that grey class of goods. A very influential deputation came here towards the end of December last. They certainly did not represent the Chamber of Commerce of Manchester, but they represented a great many who had an interest in this question; and, while I fully admit that they pressed upon the Government the expediency of total repeal of the duties, the specific request which was made at that time was that the remaining duties on grey goods should, as soon as possible, be got rid of altogether. That suggestion was at once made to the Government of India. They considered it very carefully, and it was with very great regret they came to the conclusion that they could not quite abolish the duties in the last Budget; but they have distinctly stated, both to me and in reply to communications which have been received from persons in the trade, that it was their intention immediately—if possible in the next Budget—to provide for the total abolition upon grey goods. Some reference has been made to my own Budget speech. I think if that speech is examined it will be found that the pledges I gave were entirely confined to that class of goods; and that, while my opinion is perfectly well known on the whole subject, I did not think it desirable to pledge the Government of India as to their course with regard to the remaining class of goods. But I fully admit that it will be desirable, when any further step is taken, that the whole question should be considered. You have explained that, as you anticipated, the remission of the duty on a particular class of goods has had some injurious effects in diverting the channel of trade, has caused great inconvenience to the Lancashire manufacturer, and has resulted in a certain amount of protection. I quite admit that we ought to take carefully into consideration what will be the effect of remitting the duty on one class of goods; and that we ought to endeavour to forecast, as well as we can, what will be the effect upon the remaining trade if some, and not the whole of the duties, are abolished. I shall take care that this view of the question is brought before the Government of India, and I am quite sure that the whole subject has been receiving, and will continue to receive, the most careful consideration. We have referred to the opinion held in India that certain Indian industries require protection. No doubt that opinion is widely held, but I think I may say on behalf of the Government that no such opinion is entertained by them. We hold distinctly, both here and in India, that protection is as great an evil there as it is in any other place; and if we have retained—and continue to retain, any portion of these duties, it is not because of the value of their protective character. We say their character is entirely evil; but we have had to look at the matter as a revenue question, and it is only from that point of view that there can be any obstacles to the removal of the duties. I do not know that it is necessary I should say much more. I am not able to discuss the technical details which have been entered into; but I shall be glad to have them placed before me in writing, in order that I may be able to communicate them to the Government of India that they may take them into consideration in framing their Budget. I can only add, gentlemen, that in coming to me on this subject and to the present Government, you are, to a great extent, preaching to those who are already converted. We are entirely with you, and there is no fear that the question will be lost sight of.

The deputation thanked his lordship for his courtesy and withdrew.

THE EMPIRE CLUB.

ON Tuesday the committee and friends of this club dined together at the club-house in Grafton-street, Piccadilly. There was a full attendance of the committee. Lord Brabourne presided, and was supported by Lord Elphinstone, Lord Ashley, General Sir Archibald Alison, Admiral Hoskins (Lord of the Admiralty), General Sir H. C. B. Daubeney, Hon. J. Gordon Sprigg (late Premier of Cape Colony), Admiral Sir W. N. Hewett, V.C., Sir Philip Cunliffe Owen, Captain Knapp Barrow, General Feilden, M.P., Sir C. F. Shand, Colonel Macnamara, Colonel Gourley, M.P., Sir John Coode, General Ramsay, Sir B. Pine, Mr. J. H. Puleston, M.P., Mr. Daniel Grant, M.P., and Mr. Consul Hewett. Letters of regret were read from many noblemen, gentlemen, and others.

The usual loyal toasts having been duly given, Lord Brabourne proposed "The Colonies and India, and success to the Empire Club." His lordship dwelt with peculiar felicity upon the claims which the Empire Club had upon Englishmen at home. The interests of the colonies, his lordship remarked, had been too much ignored. No political party ought to monopolise the claims which the colonies had upon the Home Government. It had been his earnest endeavour, when associated with the government of our colonial dependencies, to promote a feeling of unanimity and brotherhood between the empire and its dependencies. He believed that nothing would more tend to consolidate the cordial relations between the empire and its colonial dependencies than such an institution as the Empire Club.

Mr. Gordon Sprigg replied on behalf of the colonies and Colonel Malleon for India.

"The health of the Chairman" was proposed in suitable terms by Lord Ashley, who expressed an opinion that the ship so successfully launched on that occasion would weather all storms, and that those who felt with him that the greatness of this country was intimately bound up with her colonial dependencies would do their utmost to promote the well-being of the whole empire irrespective of party politics.

Lord Brabourne, in response, expressed the great pleasure it had been to him to preside on the occasion, and wished the Empire Club every success.

THE ST. GOTHARD TUNNEL.

As the near approach of the opening of this gigantic tunnel renders further details acceptable, we present our readers with a statement of the financial position of the undertaking, recalling briefly the circumstances under which it has been originated. The project of tunneling the St. Gothard, it will be remembered, is not one of very recent date, but it did not attain any vitality until the conclusion of a treaty between the Governments of Italy and Switzerland, ratified October 15, 1869. At a subsequent period, consequent upon the events in France, the Government of the German Empire became a party to the treaty. The ratification of the supplementary convention bears date October 28, 1871. But the insufficiency of the treaty stipulations became soon apparent in so far as it concerned the funds required in the construction of the tunnel and the lines of approach. By virtue of additional treaties, respectively bearing date March 12, 1878, and June 1, 1879, the missing link was provided in the sanction of an extension of capital, which was finally fixed at a sum equal to £9,560,000. This it was proposed to provide in the following manner :—

£4,760,000 by Government subsidies.
1,360,000 by the issue of shares.
3,440,000 by the issue of mortgage bonds

The main portions of the subsidies were forthcoming through subscriptions from railway companies and from local and cantonal Governments. In Germany the subscriptions were divided as follow :—

Cologne Railway Company	£40,000	Kingdom of Prussia	£60,000
Berg-Mark	" 40,000	Kingdom of Baden	103,680
Rhenish	" 40,000	German Empire	322,640
Ludwig	" 40,000	Alsace Railways	108,680
Pala'inat	" 40,000
		Total	£803,000

In Switzerland the Central Railway Company and the North Eastern Railway contribute each to the extent of £140,400, while the cantons undertook to furnish, pro rata the sums as under :—

Tessin		£120,000	Berne		£44,000
Lucerne		86,000	Aargovie		40,800
Zurich		60,000	Uri...		40,000
Basle		48,000	Shwyz		40,000
Soleure, Shaffhouse, and Thurgovie together					40,400

The capital authorised in virtue of the supplementary treaty has been distributed pro rata in about the same portion as the foregoing.

Of the sum contributed by Italy we possess no record.

The share capital, £1,360,000, is divided in 68,000 shares of £20 each (500fr.)

The mortgage bonds, bearing 5 per cent. interest, are divided into three series, with a fourth, separate, for the Mont-Cenere line.

The finances of the St. Gothard Company are controlled by a syndicate of German banking firms. During the period of construction, till the opening of the tunnel, the shareholders receive a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. on the paid-up capital. The dividends are payable in June and December. When in working order the stockholders participate in the net earnings to the extent of 7 per cent., subject to provisions made for creating a reserve fund. In the event of the net earnings exceeding 7 per cent., one-half the surplus goes to benefit the capital raised by subvention from the different States, and should the dividend reach 8 per cent. the surplus goes towards a reduction in the tariff rates.

Independent of the tunnel, the length and construction of which have already been described, the Gothard Company has been authorised to purchase and construct respectively a network comprising 159 miles of railway, of which 17 miles belong to the Mont-Cenere line. This network will form the approaches on both sides of the tunnel. The line Biasca-Locarno on the Lake Majeur, 25 miles in length, was opened Dec. 6, 1874 ; another link, Lugano-Chiasso, 15½ miles long on Dec. 20 the same year. The line Airolo-Biasco completes the connection on the Italian side, 28 miles, and finally a short distance of about 10 miles remains between Pino and Cadenazzo. The connection in the north, i.e., on the Swiss side, as already stated, is formed by the lines Goeshenen-Immensee, 44 miles, and Immensee-Lucerne, 11 miles. In addition thereto other connections will be available.

The official returns up to the close of the year 1879, the latest to hand, show the following sums, as expended on construction account, reduced into British currency at the rate of 25fr. per £ :—

1873	162,373	295,851
1874	313,520	1,115,328
1875	234,460	596,641
1876	305,856	487,653
1877	362,408	428,668
1878	374,355	397,024
1879	514,760	812,168

Out of the above, the sum of £1,932,672 has actually been expended on the great tunnel itself, the remainder falling on the construction of accessory tunnels in the approaches.

The Swiss Government has granted to the Gothard Company immunity of taxation, with liberty, however, to exact a moiety for transportation of mails. This stipulation, however, will not be enforced until the company has been enabled to yield at least a clear profit of 4 per cent. on their earning powers. There are certain clauses in the treaty which empower the Swiss Government eventually to purchase the Gothard line, but of course the contingency rests with a remote future.

The first journey in carriages from end to end of the St. Gothard Tunnel without interruption took place last week, the passengers numbering about sixty. They consisted of members of the contractors' and engineers' staffs and their friends. Locomotives have arrived at Goschenen ready for the opening of the line. It has been decided, on grounds of economy, not to light the tunnel with the electric light. The journey by express train from Basel to Milan will occupy eleven hours, from Basel to Florence twenty-four hours, and from Basel to Rome thirty-three hours. The Federal Government have directed that the St. Gothard road be kept free from snow until the line is completed between Fluelen and Bellinzona—that is, throughout the coming winter.

COLONIAL HANDBOOKS, MAPS, &c.

NOW READY

CANADA—including Ontario, North-West Territory, Manitoba, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, &c. With New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo. 288 pp. Cloth, 6s.

"Athenaeum," June 25, 1881.—"Full of information and statistics which ought to prove very serviceable to any visitor to the Dominion."
"Times."—"Under the above title Messrs. Silver have brought out much more than a mere "Handbook to Canada," an historical, political, social, geographical, and topographical guide for the use of travellers and settlers over the greater portion of our North-American possessions. The need of such a work, at once handy, comprehensive, and trustworthy, has long been felt both by intending settlers and by readers at home, who are surprised, and not unnaturally, at the scanty information about so important a territory which is accessible to them. The volume is illustrated by a map, showing the whole extent of the Canadian Confederation from the shores of the Atlantic to those of the Pacific, and exhibiting all the details of inland communication, whether by Railway or the long chain of inland lakes. Those who have friends in British Columbia, Manitoba, &c., will find this map most useful; and it may be added that the historical chapters are full of materials for the future historian of Canada, or for the writer of an article on that subject in an encyclopedia."

"Manitoba Daily Free Press."—"Comprised in this book is a mass of valuable information, which cannot fail to impress every reader with an intelligent idea of the great resources and capabilities of our country. In fact, we are convinced that in the words of the preface, a comprehensive, reliable, and at the same time cheap and handy work has been produced, which will furnish the kind of information most sought for in regard to the Dominion, and especially in regard to Manitoba and the North West territories. We have every reason to think that this handbook to Canada is one of the best contributions to immigration literature yet produced. It is also very handsomely got up tastefully bound, and very well printed."

"Graphic."—"We are already acquainted with Messrs. Silver's Handbooks to Australasia and South Africa. They are concisely written, accurate in information, and full of practical details. The same praise may be accorded to the volume now before us, which comprises a survey of the whole of British North America, the reader's researches being aided by an excellent map. To the intending emigrant the descriptions of Manitoba and British Columbia will be especially attractive."

It is a creditable useful and, we believe, trustworthy publication."

AUSTRALIAN GRAZIER'S GUIDE No. 1, Sheep. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 2s. 6d.
"Field."—"This little work is intended to supply, as fully as may be in a small compass, an admitted want in Colonial literature, and is indeed exactly the sort of 'Guide' for the assistance and instruction of those who propose to try their fortunes as stock-railers abroad, and who so frequently inquire of the Field for such help as is afforded by its pages."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE, THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Menstruals, &c.

Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manila, to the effect that Cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st Dec., 1864.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was, undoubtedly, the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say had been sworn to.—See Times, 18th July, 1864.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 11d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanied each bottle.

A RIDE TO KHIVA

BY CAPTAIN FRED. BURNABY

Royal Horse Guards.

Says page 18:—"Two pairs of boots lined with fur were also taken; and for physic—with which it is as well to be supplied when travelling in out-of-the-way places—some quinine and Cockle's Pills, the latter a most invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the natives of Central Africa with the greatest possible success. In fact the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines when I administered to him five will never fade from my memory; and a friend of mine, who passed through the same district many months afterwards, informed me that my fame as a 'medicine man' had not died out, but that the marvellous cure was even then a theme of conversation in the bazaar."

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, NOV. 21, 1881.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Our advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Nov. 3; Madras and Allahabad, Nov. 1; Calcutta, Oct. 31.

LORD RIPON's many friends will be gratified to observe that his Excellency's Simla summer seems to have dissipated all remains of his last winter's fever. His lordship's tour in Rajputana and Northern India is causing a pleasant stir in many quiet up-country stations and native capitals; and, as he has been kind enough to promise that natives shall be allowed to subscribe capital for the "railways or other works that may hereafter be entrusted to private enterprise," the Burra Lât Sahib's speeches have been cordially cheered by a grateful people. We are glad to observe that his Excellency is still dilating on the benefits of Lord Mayo's and Lord Lytton's financial policy of decentralisation; and we trust that he is willing to adhere strictly to the lines laid down by his illustrious predecessors, and will not ride a good horse too hard.

WE notice, further, that Lord Ripon has been laying stress, in his recent speeches, on "the necessary co-operation between the Government and the public in promoting the material and political development of the country." We trust that his Excellency will recognise the obvious fact that the first essential for such co-operation on the part of the Indian public is the existence of a large and influential class sufficiently highly educated to take up an intelligent and independent attitude in this pact; and that, consequently, whilst every encouragement that philanthropy could demand is offered to the elementary education of the masses, the Viceroy will not allow fanaticism or short-sighted sentimentality to maim the system of high education that is at present the chief agent in the promotion of enlightenment and civilisation in India.

THE telegrams from Persia this week are important if true; for they announce the death of that arch intriguer, the Sipah Salar at the very critical moment of some mysterious negotiations that he was conducting with the Merv chiefs. The latter are said to have come in and offered to surrender their independence into his hands—whether to be handed on to his ostensible master the Shah, or to his actual principals at Tashkend, was not very apparent. It appears most probable that these negotiations were merely the continuation of those between the Merv chiefs and the Russian authorities, described in the Tabriz telegram of October 23, in which the latest date from Merv was October 8; at which time the Russians had demanded the surrender of the Merv guns as a substantial guarantee, prior to accepting the proffered allegiance of the Merv Turkomans. In that telegram it was significantly noted that the Sipah Salar was "travelling on the frontier between Sarakhs and Khelat-i-Nadiri."

It is characteristic of the deplorable apathy that has crept over English interest in the Central Asian road to India—an apathy doubtless due to Mr. Gladstone's incessant iteration of the cry of peace where there is no peace—that so little attention has been given in the Press at large to the astounding rapidity of the Russian advance at the present moment. Lord Salisbury alluded to the undoubted facts, in his speech at Bristol last week; and forthwith appears a letter in the Times, signed "Lumley Graham," contradicting those facts, in the teeth of the Tabriz telegram, above referred to, and of all recent intelligence from the East. The writer of this astonishing letter declares that the Transcaspian Railway has been finally stopped at Kizil Arvat, 160 miles short of Askabad; whereas we know it had advanced beyond that point early in September—it had reached a point only ninety miles short of Askabad by Oct. 8, and was at that date being rapidly pushed on—and if that energy has been maintained (which may be surely counted on) it is at Askabad itself by this time. As long ago as Oct. 8 a Russian fort was being built on the Merv road, twenty miles beyond Askabad—the Russian officers were demanding the surrender of the Merv guns—and Russian engineers were at work between Kuchan and Kadkan. In General Petroosevitch's memoir of the military road from the Caspian to Herat, published last year, and summarised in Mr. Marvin's "Merv," Kuchan is marked as the last stage before Meshed on "the best route." From these facts it is perfectly clear that the Russian advance is now proceeding "by leaps and bounds;" and England sleeps spell-bound by the magic eloquence of the enchanter, and disturbed only by evil dreams of Irish "messages of peace" and Transvaal surrenders.

It is an ill wind that blows no one any good. The Madras "cyclone of the second class" of the 12th inst. appears to have done a good deal of damage on the coast, and has unhappily been the cause of some loss of life. But it has enabled the Calcutta correspondent of the Times to eke out the letter of a most uneventful week.

THE most interesting item of the telegraphed India news is the one that gives the details of the forthcoming Abor expedition on the Assam frontier. It appears to have been decided upon on the responsibility of the Commander in Chief himself, and is the first fruits of Sir Donald Stewart's Assam tour.

WE are glad to see from to-day's Times telegram that the Government of Bengal is taking energetic measures to arrest the terrible epidemic of malarious fever that has been so long a scourge to the districts of the Delta, and especially to the district of Nadiya. It is notorious that the natural drainage of Nadiya, especially in the immediate vicinity of the Sudder Station, Kishnaghur, has been obstructed of late by certain well-known causes; and Sir Ashley Eden's grant of Rs.50,000 has been given not a moment too early. Last winter Babu Nafar Chandra Pal Chaudhari, a munificent landowner of the district, offered the municipality of Kishnaghur a present of three lakhs to be employed in this or other good works. The generous offer was at that time declined, for certain local or personal reasons. Three lakhs spent on opening up the natural drainage of the Nadiya district just now might be the means of saving a large tract from depopulation if the Babu could be induced to renew his benevolent proposition.

THE items of Ceylon intelligence, which we give in the usual place, are taken from the Ceylon Times of Oct. 31. We propose henceforward regularly to devote a portion of our space to Ceylon affairs, and we invite correspondence from Ceylon planters and others interested in the welfare of this important colony.

THE "Wynaad Medical Board" is now a fait accompli; and the fact is one that is highly creditable to the Gold Mining Companies concerned. During the past two years a large number of European officers and miners have been sent out to the Wynaad, and a heavy responsibility for these valuable lives has fallen on the companies who have sent them out; whilst at the same time the number of native clerks and labourers in the district has increased at a still more rapid rate. The consideration of these responsibilities induced the boards of eight of the leading gold mining companies—the South Indian, Indian Glenrock, Indian Phoenix, Gold Mines of Glasgow, Devala Moyar, Rhodes Reef, Indian Trevelyan, Indian Consolidated—to form a central organisation, to undertake the medical and sanitary charge of the district in which their estates are situated. The above eight companies represent an aggregate capital of a million and a-half sterling, and their amalgamated medical board consists of one director from each company. Each is bound, by a resolution of its own board, to carry out the recommendations and contribute equally to the expenses of the medical board. The latter has now appointed an experienced surgeon, Dr. W. J.

Mountain, late of the Indian Medical Service, who will at once proceed to India and take medical charge of all the employees of the associated companies, both native and European. It is intended, we believe, at once to build a central hospital, as well as a convalescent home for European patients. We look on this enterprise as a particularly noteworthy instance of the readiness with which Englishmen are accustomed to face responsibilities, and with which they combine to surmount any difficulties that may stand in the way of the due discharge of sacred duty.

It is stated that the military authorities in India are to be called upon to nominate three officers as aides de camp to the Queen, to fill the vacancies caused by the promotion of Colonels Sir C. H. Brownlow, K.C.B., Sir P. S. Lumsden, K.C.B., and J. Watson, V.C., C.B. The officers selected will, it is understood, be chosen from among those who earned distinction in the field during the late campaign in Afghanistan; but some little time must elapse before their names are known, as the usual formalities have to be gone through.

We understand that Lieut. General Sir Garnet Wolseley will enter upon his duties as adjutant general of the forces on April 1 next. On Thursday the Times of India announced that Sir F. Roberts will succeed Sir G. Wolseley in the post of Quartermaster General.

MAJOR BARING's proposal to increase the present scale of court fees does not seem to find much favour in native society. The Hindu Patriot says of it:—

"We feel bound to protest strongly against the contemplated increase in the present scale of court fees, which is already too high. The fees at present levied result in a large profit to Government. In the province of Bengal alone civil suitors paid no less a sum than 30 lakhs of rupees for the benefit of the public in 1879. As Sir Richard Garth, in his recently published minute, observes:—'We all know that civil suitors in India have to pay a very large tax upon litigation; larger, I believe, than is paid in any country in the world. It might rather astonish some of our English friends to hear that a man who brings an action in India upon a common bond for Rs. 10,000 has to pay a stamp fee (whether the suit is defended or not) of about Rs. 475, before he can even file his plaint.' Yet the Government of India has resolved to increase this heavy scale of fees. The existing tax on litigation is almost prohibitive, and the burden is severely felt. We entreat Major Evelyn Baring and Lord Ripon to reconsider the whole policy of the new Court Fees Bill."

THE Government of India has had under consideration for some time past a proposal for the formation of a couple of battalions composed entirely of Anglo-Indians and Eurasians, to be equipped as British Infantry and officered by European officers. It is not known whether the idea will be acted upon.

THE Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta freight market for the week ending Oct. 31:—

"We have a large business to report since last mail in our freight market, and in the absence of available tonnage, chiefly in forward charters at rising rates, a number of sailing vessels have been chartered for loading from November to January, the earlier vessels getting of course the top rates. For immediate loading 67s. 6d. to London all round is the highest quotation, down to 62s. 6d. for January shipment; for Dundee, October, loading relets have been done at 75s., November 70s.; for later loading the rate was 65s. and 67s. 6d.; for New York, $13 for early and $12 to $12½ for forward loading, according to time. In steam tonnage the movement was equally strong as regards rates, but there was less demand. Wheat was booked at 66s. 3d. to 67s. 6d. for December shipment, and light freight at 80s. for early and 70s. to 75s. for later loading. For Marseilles a steamer has been taken for early January loading at 70s. for seeds, &c., with some weight at 65s. These are all very fine rates of freight, and to all appearances there is a good deal of strength in the market. How long this will last, and how much of it is assumed, remains to be seen. Owners are eager to secure the rates paid in some instances for January loading, whilst for ships close at hand they ask much higher rates than shippers are willing or able to pay. Our unfixed tonnage stands at 5,400 tons."

We extract a report of the Calcutta tea market, for the week ending Oct. 31, from Messrs. J. Thomas and Co.'s price current:—

"Further sales were held on the 20th and 27th instant, when 17,932 chests were disposed of. At the former sale there was a very good demand, all qualities realising full to higher prices, more particularly broken Pekoes and Souchongs. In sympathy with less favourable news from London, the sales of the 27th passed off with less inquiry, and with the exception of broken Pekoes we quote all other sorts fully half an anna lower. With the almost certain prospects of an available crop for export very little exceeding that of last year, and with largely increased deliveries that must reduce the stock in London about June and July next to a minimum, it seems unwise policy on the part of tea proprietors to hurry the crop forward at the present rate of nearly seven millions a month, which will leave us quite bare of supplies after the middle of February. A judicious curtailment of shipments might have the effect of raising good class teas to something like their proper value in the London market, where they are just now unduly depreciated."

We take the following account of the Calcutta indigo market for the same period from the same firm's circular:—

"Arrivals of native Oudhs have been on a free scale for last week, and with a good inquiry, chiefly for America; upwards of 300 chests have been sold at prices about on a par with the extreme rates of last year, and varying from Rs. 190 to Rs. 245 per factory maund. A fair number of European musters for assortment have arrived, but we have scarcely seen sufficient to give us a fair idea of the general quality."

THE Times of India gives the following obituary of the week ending November 3:—Lieutenant B. J. Bacon, The King's (Liverpool) Regiment; Major A. Gibbings, King's Dragoon Guards, and Surgeon D. L. Williams, A.M.D.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

THE report for the week ending October 25 is as follows:—

—The want of rain is felt over certain limited areas in two or three provinces, especially in two districts of the Bombay Presidency, in Mysore and Coorg, in parts of the Madras Presidency, and in the central districts of the North Western Provinces and Oudh. The deficiency in the rainfall, however, is not enough to affect seriously the outturn of the autumn harvest or the sowings of the winter crops. In the Punjab also rain would be beneficial in parts, but agricultural prospects continue generally satisfactory, and the kharif crops are being harvested. In Bengal and the central provinces there has been no rain during the week; cultivation for winter crops is in full progress everywhere, and in places sowings have commenced. In the Central India and Rajputana States, in Berar, Assam, and British Burma, agricultural prospects continue generally good. In the Nizam's territories the kharif crops are being reaped, and rain is needed in places for rabi crops, the sowings of which are in progress.

TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE following is the telegram of the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, dated November 20:—

"The Viceroy's tour in Northern India and Rajputana has been thus far a great success, and he has been most enthusiastically received at each place he has visited. He left Agra on Wednesday for Jeypore, whence he proceeded yesterday to Ajmere. All the sights at the various halting-places have been visited by the Viceregal party, and the Marquis of Ripon has shown himself indefatigable in inspecting schools and other public institutions and in receiving deputations and addresses. Some of his speeches are of considerable interest, and formed the subject of favourable comments by the Indian Press. The decentralisation of finances and the necessary co-operation between the Government and the public in promoting the material and political development of the country are the matters on which he chiefly dwelt, and he has repeated the assurance already given by Major Baring that the opportunity will be afforded for the Indian public to subscribe the capital for any railways or other works which may hereafter be entrusted to private enterprise. The Viceroy appears to have been especially pleased with his visit to Jeypore, and spoke in high terms of the many improvements effected in that State during the enlightened reign of the late Maharaja."

"A severe storm, described as a cyclone of the second class, burst over Madras on the morning of the 12th inst. and raged all day with great fury. The wind, however, only attained half of the maximum velocity recorded of the cyclone of 1872."

The new harbour works were seriously damaged, and the cranes at the ends of the northern and southern piers were swept away. The top row of blocks, for about 2,500 feet from the end of each pier, was carried away, and the extremities of the piers have settled down about two feet. The steam hopper barges Salisbury and Hobart, which were engaged in laying down moorings in the harbour, foundered. Their European captain and about 14 natives were drowned. The barque Mars, the only ship in the port, put out to sea, and had not returned at the date of the last advices. A good deal of damage was done on shore. The bad weather seems to have extended some way up the coast, and three passengers—namely, Mr. Lefaucher and the two Misses Gilham, were drowned in attempting to land from the steamer Kerbela, at Coconada. The gale moderated by Sunday, on which day the mail steamer Clyde arrived and entered the harbour without accident."

"The Commander-in-Chief's visit to Assam has apparently satisfied his Excellency as to the necessity of taking steps to keep in check the Abors, a predatory tribe, separated from the British territory by the river Dibong, and who have long threatened incursions across the frontier. The force selected for this purpose consists of 300 men of the 43rd Assam Light Infantry, with a party of frontier police, and the Kampti Militia. One hundred men will be stockaded at Mishmi Noota, which is situated on the left bank of the river Dibong, opposite the Abor village of Bomjar and a little way above Sadiya, the head of the navigation of the Brahmapootra. The remainder of the detachment will proceed to Nizamghat, where they will construct a stockade, commanding an important ford of the Dibong, so as to prevent the Abors crossing that river or interfering with the Mishmi trade route. Heliographic communication will be established between Sadiya and Nizamghat. Major Beresford, of the 43rd Regiment will command the force."

"The latest returns from Umritsur show that the mortality from the choleraic fever is rapidly diminishing, and it is hoped that the worst of the epidemic is now past. The improvement is believed in a great measure to be due to the opening of public kitchens and the distribution of wholesome food among the poorer classes."

"The great increase of a malarious fever of a most virulent type in certain districts of Lower Bengal is causing much anxiety to the local Government. The epidemic is raging with especial severity in Nuddea, and has also extended to Jessore, the 24-Pergunnahs, Burdwan, Beerbhoom, and other neighbouring districts. Opinions differ as to the cause of the outbreak, but the one which finds most favour is that which attributes it to the obstruction of the natural drainage of the country by the road and railway embankments. The Lieutenant Governor appears to be inclined to adopt this view, and has made a special grant of Rs.50,000 to the Nuddea District Road Fund for the purpose of constructing culverts and improving the drainage. A commission, consisting of Dr. Lidderdale, sanitary commissioner of Bengal, Mr. Pau, joint magistrate, and Mr. Wickes, superintending engineer, has been appointed, with instructions to visit the worst districts, to carry out at once such schemes as may seem urgently necessary, and to report on the whole subject. Thirty-five extra medical officers have been sent to Nuddea, and every step is being taken to check the epidemic and to afford relief to the sufferers."

THE ISTHMUS OF KRAW.

HUMAN ingenuity has of late years been frequently directed to the task of cutting canals through the narrow isthmuses to be found at numerous spots over the globe, and since the successful completion of the Suez Canal engineers have devoted their attention with enthusiasm to similar schemes in other quarters of the world. Already are we promised within a reasonable period waterways through the isthmuses of Panama and Corinth, and now it is stated that a plan is on foot for cutting a canal through the Isthmus of Kraw. As this last undertaking is one of very considerable importance to the Eastern commerce of this country, and as its full significance is certainly not appreciated, if even it be known, it may not be uninteresting to explain the objects which the promoters of such a scheme might have in view, and the consequences which would naturally follow its successful accomplishment. If the reader will turn to the map of the Indo-Chinese peninsula he will find, where the broad red line of British territory reaches its southern limit in the province of Tenasserim, that the small stream of the Pakchan, forms a convenient frontier line. A few miles east of this river, which has a southerly course, is the town of Pakchan, situated on the spur of a mountain range, and in territory where the authority of the Malayan States encroaches upon that of Siam. The town or village of Pakchan has also been, and in future is likely to be, better known as Kraw. At this point the Malayan peninsula, which stretches southwards for 500 miles to Singapore, is at its narrowest breadth, and the distance across from the side of the Indian Ocean to that of the China Seas is further decreased by the existence of natural waterways for some distance inland from both shores. From side to side it is no more than 50 miles, and the Pakchan river on the western coast and the Htassay on the eastern afford the ready means of further reducing it. The distance, therefore, over which it would be necessary to cut a canal would probably not exceed 30 miles. The neighbouring districts are known to be fertile and to contain great mineral wealth. A tin mining company has been established for more than ten years at Malewon, on the Pakchan, and gold has been found in the neighbouring stream of the Lenya. So far as our knowledge goes the engineering difficulties also are not of a stupendous character, and political drawbacks and considerations fortunately do not exist. On the other hand the principal and incontestable advantage of such a canal would be that it would shorten the journey both from England and from India to China by at least 600 miles. How great that advantage would be and what incalculable results might attend it all those who are aware of the development of which Chinese trade is susceptible will perceive. The French would also be greatly benefited by the shortening of their road to Saigon and their possessions on the Cambodia; and not only might their sympathy and co-operation be counted upon, but, so far, they appear to have even taken the initiative in the matter. Whether the present scheme be one calculated to effect its object or not there can be no question that the cutting of a canal through the narrow Isthmus of Kraw is an undertaking calling for not merely the support but even for the active participation of the Government of India. It is certain to be accomplished sooner or later, and it is essentially a scheme that should be carried out under its influence and control. A Kraw Canal affords one way of improving the internal means of communication of India and its dependencies, while it simplifies the navigation of one of the principal of ocean routes.—Times.

WILD ANIMALS IN INDIA.

THE official return of persons killed by wild animals in India shows no diminution, but rather an increase. In Bengal Presidency alone 10,069 deaths from snake bites are recorded last year, and 359 individuals were destroyed by tigers; throughout the empire no fewer than 21,990 human beings perished by one or other fate. These figures are painful to read, though they be accepted without suspicion as an accurate statement of facts. The return of slaughter by carnivorous beasts is doubtless correct. It is no easy matter, putting natural repugnance on one side, to imitate the rending of feline claws and the peculiar gash of feline teeth. But in regard to snake bites, there is often no guarantee at all that the victim has died from the cause alleged. Almost every magistrate in India has had cases before him where mere chance has detected a crime which the prisoner hoped to conceal under this declaration. And for one such charge scores are suspected. A thought given to the matter will show what enormous possibilities of evil are found amongst that vast dumb population. The awful discovery of Thuggee gave our forefathers a shock; but there are experienced and unimaginative officials who credit that the datura is more fatal at this moment than the Thug's handkerchief and cord had ever been. It is said that very few doctors have such confidence in their knowledge as to pronounce decisively whether a person has died of snake-bite or of datura poisoning; and it is in most exceptional cases that they are even called upon to judge. Outside the large towns, every chance and condition of life is in favour of the poisoner, if he take his measures thoughtfully. The tree overhangs his hut, its bunches of pretty blossom succeed throughout the year, or nearly. Four punctures in the leg, made in a second with a stout needle, produce all the outward symptoms requisite. The victim falls into a troubled maze which forbids inquiry. It is needful only to prepare the sad tale, and make it consistent. If it be thought necessary to show a dead cobra, or to hunt out a live one for vengeance, there is little difficulty. And in a very few hours the corpse must be put away. It would be strange if crime were not sometimes committed under circumstances so favourable. Datura is supposed to be that poison most in use at present; many magistrates have it "on the brain." But there are other poisons in abundance even better fitted, as one would think, to simulate death by snake-bite. These facts, notorious in India, make the annual report of fatalities still more distressing.

THE INDIAN ARMY.—ROYAL WARRANT.

THE Gazette of Tuesday publishes the following Royal Warrant for the formation of an unemployed Supernumerary List for the Indian Forces:—

"VICTORIA, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith, Empress of India.

"Our will and pleasure is that, with effect from and after the 1st day of July, 1881, the following rules shall be established for that purpose:—

"7. It in any special case, not under the terms of the preceding article, it appears desirable to postpone the transfer of an officer to the unemployed supernumerary list, our Secretary of State for India in Council may, upon the recommendation of our Governor General in Council, so postpone it.

LORD SALISBURY ON RUSSIAN ADVANCES IN CENTRAL ASIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "TIMES."

SIR,—The general accuracy of your reporters is well known, but I think that the gentleman who acted for you in that capacity at the dinner of the Dolphin Society last Saturday must have been mistaken when he reported Lord Salisbury to have said that "by a reversal policy—a reversal by which Russia has brought her railway to Askabad and her outposts to Merv—the interests of England have not been advanced." It is difficult to believe that a statesman who has filled the offices of Secretary of State for India and for Foreign Affairs, and who is so well acquainted with the map of Asia, should have made so glaring a misstatement; but, however this may be, I think you will agree with me in wishing the British public not to be misled into believing the Russians to have made so much more progress towards India than they have actually done. The real facts of the case as regards the Transcaspian Railroad are as follows:—The line is now completed to Kizil Arvat (about 140 English miles from its starting point and about 160 short of Askabad). The Russian New Times of Oct. 8 states that the railway will not be extended for locomotives beyond its present terminus, but that a horse tramway will be laid down to Bami (35 miles), whence a carriage road will lead to Askabad (125 miles), three fortified posts being constructed on the road, at which relays of horses will be kept for public purposes. With regard to the position of the Russian outposts in the direction of Afghanistan, we have not such certain information as about the railway, but I believe that instead of being at Merv, as Lord Salisbury is reported to have stated, they are but little beyond Askabad, which is about 220 miles short of that place by the nearest route available for troops.—Your obedient servant, LUMLEY GRAHAM.

MADAME BLAVATSKY AND THE "SATURDAY REVIEW."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "CIVIL AND MILITARY GAZETTE."

Sir,—In a recent issue you republished an article from the Saturday Review, which, amongst other equally erroneous statements, designated Col. Olcott and Madame Blavatsky "unscrupulous adventurers." I enclose a copy of a letter addressed by me to the editor of the Saturday Review in regard to this article. As you have seen fit to publish these false accusations, you will, I am sure, see the propriety of similarly publishing my enclosed refutation of them.—I am, Sir, yours obediently, A. O. HUME.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "SATURDAY REVIEW."

Sir,—In a recent issue (that of Sept. 3, 1881) you noticed a copy of a journal, the Theosophist, which had been sent to you from India by some native gentleman; and in commenting on this publication and on the subjects with which it professes to deal, you took occasion to call Madame Blavatsky and Colonel Olcott a couple of "unscrupulous adventurers," and you further expressed a doubt as to "whether Colonel Olcott's title was earned in the war of secession or at the bar of a drinking saloon." As regards Colonel Olcott's title, the printed papers which I send by this same mail will prove to you that that gentleman is an officer of the American Army, who rendered good service during the war (as will be seen from the letters of the Judge Advocate General, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Assistant Secretaries of War and of the Treasury), and who was sufficiently well known and esteemed in his own country to induce the President of the United States to furnish him with an autograph letter of introduction and recommendation to all Ministers and Consuls of the United States, on the occasion of his leaving America for the East, at the close of 1878. Surely this is scarcely the kind of man to whom the epithet "unscrupulous adventurer" can be justly applied. I may add, from my own knowledge, that a purer minded, more noble, or more self-devoted gentleman than Colonel Olcott does not exist. He may be right or wrong in his belief, but to the cause of that belief he has devoted his fortune, energies, and the remainder of his life; and while I can quite understand many treating him as a fanatic, I confess that I am surprised at a paper of the high class to which the Saturday Review belongs denouncing such a man as an "unscrupulous adventurer." As regards Madame Blavatsky (in Russia still "Son Excellence Madame la Generale Hélène P. Blavatsky," though she dropped all titles on becoming a naturalised American citizen). She is the widow of General N. V. Blavatsky, Governor during the Crimean War, and, for many years, of Erivan in Armenia. She is the eldest daughter of the late Colonel Hahn, of the Russian Horse Artillery, and granddaughter of Princess Dolgorouki of the elder branch, which died with her. The present Princess Dolgorouki belongs to the younger branch. The Countess Ida V. Hahn Hahn was Madame Blavatsky's father's first cousin. Her father's mother married after her husband's death, Prince Vassiltchikoff. General Fadayeef, well known even to English readers, is her mother's youngest brother. She is well known to Prince Loris Melikoff, and all who were on the staff or in society when Prince Michael S. Woronzoff was Viceroy of the Caucasus. Prince Emile V. Sayn Wittgensteine, cousin of the late Empress of Russia, was an intimate friend of hers, and corresponded with her to the day of his death, as has done his brother Ferdinand, who lately commanded some regiment (Cossacks of the Guard, I think) in Turkestan. Her aunt, Madame de Witte, who, like the rest of her family, correspond regularly with her, and, indeed, her whole family, are well known to Prince Dondoukoff Karsakoff, at present Governor General of Odessa. I could add the names of scores of other Russian nobles who are all well acquainted with her, for she is as well known and connected in Russia as Lady Hester Stanhope was in England; but I think I have said enough to convince any impartial person that she is scarcely the kind of woman likely to be an "unscrupulous adventuress." Ladies are not generally prone to taking fancies to outside ladies; there is very commonly a little suppressed sex jealousy, of those especially who are cleverer than themselves; but Madame Blavatsky has lived for months at a time in my house, and is certainly one of the cleverest women I ever met, and yet all the ladies in my house have learnt to love dearly this energetic, crochety, impulsive, self-devoted old woman. Any one may set her down as a mystic or a visionary, but no one who knows her can doubt her all-consuming faith in the mission to which she has sacrificed her life. But, after all, can you rightly call people adventurers who not only make no money out of the cause they espouse, but, on the contrary, spend on it every farthing that they can spare from their private means? If not, then assuredly Colonel Olcott and Madame Blavatsky are not adventurers, for to my certain knowledge they have spent on the Theosophical Society over £2,000 (two thousand pounds) more than its total receipts. The accounts have been regularly audited, printed and published, so that any one may satisfy themselves on this head. But it will be asked what is this grand cause? It is the formation and development of the Theosophical Society, the objects of which, as stated in the published rules, are as follows:—First. To form the nucleus of a Universal Brotherhood of Humanity.—Second. To study Aryan literature, religion, and science.—Third. To vindicate the importance of this inquiry.—Fourth. To explore the hidden mysteries of nature, and the latent powers of man.—Now, these objects may be considered Utopian or visionary, but they seem to me innocent enough, and hardly the kind of objects that would satisfy unscrupulous adventurers. But it may well be asked, if all this be so, how comes it that the Theosophist, the organ of these excellent people, and of this blameless society and nominally edited by Madame Blavatsky herself, has repeatedly contained, not only the most feeble trash, but paragraphs utterly indefensible, both in taste and tone? In the first place, our old lady, overwhelmed with work, has not unfrequently passed for press without duly looking at them articles and extracts, with that fuller consideration she would have unhesitatingly rejected. In the second place, the founders of a society now spread over the whole country, the members of which, including affiliated institutions, number something not far from 100,000, have to be away from headquarters for months together, and then the paper has to be left to zealous, well-meaning native volunteer assistant editors, who have occasionally made the most atrocious mistakes in what they printed. All this is at an end now, and nothing will henceforth appear that has not been passed and carefully considered by the editor. There are many other misconceptions involved in the article under reference, to which objection might reasonably be taken; but these are perhaps of less importance. All I desire now to make clear is that, so far from being "unscrupulous adventurers," Colonel Olcott and Madame Blavatsky are very worthy unworldly, unselfish, pure-minded people, who are devoting their time, their property, and their lives to a cause which, even if Utopian, is unobjectionable, and may incidentally be productive (indeed it already has been so) of much good.—I remain yours obediently (signed A. O. Hume, late Secretary to the Government of India).

THE OPIUM TRADE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "TIMES."

Sir,—Owing to absence and travelling I did not at the time see the report of the meeting at the Mansion House on Oct. 21, to discuss the opium trade; but the assembly there was so important and influential, and the subject is so nearly approaching the region of practical politics, that I trust you will even now admit some observations from one who combines great sympathy with advanced Liberal opinions on such subjects (to the point of sometimes voting for the Permissive Bill) with official experience as responsible for the administration of the Opium Department in India. I will not attempt to dogmatise or to decide difficult questions, but merely to state the case as it now stands for the decision of the British Parliament and public.

For convenience, I somewhat reverse the order of the proceedings at the meeting, and begin with Cardinal Manning's resolution against the sale of opium in Burma. High official authorities differed on that subject, and I will not pretend to decide between them, for I have no personal knowledge of Burma, but this I will say, that right or wrong, the meeting in this matter was on perfectly legitimate ground. There is only the question raised of our own financial and administrative system in dealing with our own subjects. I entirely agree that no considerations of revenue should stand in the way of dealing with intoxicants of every kind as may be best for the moral and social well-being of the people committed to our charge. We can the better afford to be virtuous in this respect as the revenue involved is comparatively small. The whole receipts from the excise on liquors and drugs of all sorts throughout India are not one-third of the net revenue from exported opium.

Then there is another point raised in Cardinal Manning's speech to which I would ask special attention. I mean his warning lest in seeking to get rid of the Government monopoly we should find the subject still more difficult to deal with in the hands of the multitude of traders difficult to control, and whose vested interests would speedily grow. I have always looked with great dislike on the Government connection with the opium traffic, but the practical question is how to get rid of it without incurring greater evils? Unless we are prepared to prohibit the cultivation and sale altogether what are we to do? Free cultivation and an export duty (even if it would work otherwise) would certainly retard the use of the drug among our own subjects. The plan sometimes proposed of making over the Government monopoly to private firms and companies would lead to the evils which Cardinal Manning points out. Our hands would be tied by vested interests. In this respect we may take a lesson from the present rage for limiting new public-house licenses in this country, with the result of raising up an enormously valuable property in the existing licenses, which stands in the way of all radical reform. After all, the Government monopoly is just the Gothenburg system which some of our great towns would like to try if the existing publicans did not stand in the way. And, at any rate, the question in what form opium is to be taxed is one of detail, and does not touch the root of the greater questions involved in the traffic. I admit it to be a fair subject for discussion and for the suggestion of new methods.

Now, coming to the first and main resolution, perhaps one must expect that in such a case the statements agreed on must be somewhat wide and vague. But as the proposer is doubtless not responsible for the wording of the resolution, I must, with all the great respect which we feel for the Archbishop of Canterbury, say that there is one vital part of the resolution which seems to me to be unfairly vague and meaningless, if not misleading. I mean that which declares it to be our duty "to withdraw all encouragement from the growth of the poppy in India except for strictly medicinal purposes." What does this mean? Does it mean that the growth ought to be prohibited? If so, surely it would be plainer and fairer to say so. If it means only that the growth should not be "encouraged," then I say that it is quite misleading. The Government of India does not encourage, but restrains the growth of opium. I am well within the mark when I say that there is not 5 per cent. of the British territories in India in which the growth of the poppy is permitted at all; in the remaining 95 per cent. it is absolutely prohibited. In the limited districts in which the growth is permitted the permission is only accorded on the condition that the opium grown is delivered to the Excise Department at less than one-third of its market value. I say confidently that it is quite impossible to devise a system under which the growth would be more restrained short of absolute prohibition. Well, then, as regards the question of prohibition, the world may arrive at a stage when such a thing may be discussed—when the manufacture and sale of spirits are prohibited in this country, when the growth of the poppy is stopped in China, when other nations will join in a system of prohibition. But meantime the idea is, it seems to me, quite beyond the region of practical politics. It is not a case of sacrificing our own income for the benefit of our own people, but of one people sacrificing the income of another people for possible benefit of a third people. I say possible, because if the result were, as is very probable, an extended growth in China and other countries, the Chinese would not be benefited after all. We should not only sacrifice the Indian opium revenue, but also the profit of the cultivation to the ryots of the districts in India where population presses most closely on the means of subsistence and the people are poorest. Mention is made of aid to be given by this country towards compensating the loss, but has it been considered how many millions sterling annually are involved? Is it at all likely that this country would submit to, say, a permanent income-tax of 6d. in the pound for the purpose?

When we pass from the Indian administration to the conduct of affairs in China, I am entirely at one with those who think that we are in the wrong. No one can more strongly believe in the wickedness of the opium wars or more decidedly hold that we are not justified in enforcing treaties for the admission of opium extorted by those wars. In this view I wholly abandon all argument based on the Indian revenue. I think we are in no way bound to do wrong for the benefit of India, and that India has no claim on us for compensation for losses caused by such abstinence from wrong. Still, we must bear in mind the practical difficulties to which Lord Hartington has pointed. It is very doubtful whether we can settle the question by merely telling the Chinese they are free to do as they like. We must go much further, and completely change our mode of dealing with weak peoples in the interest of British traders. I trust and believe that the present Government will never carry the "Civis Romanus" doctrine to the monstrous lengths that Lord Palmerston did; but even within the last year or two things have been done and formally sanctioned by departments of the present Government which it is very difficult to defend. If the Chinese prohibit the introduction of foreign opium, are we prepared actively to intervene to stop smuggling on the coasts? Shall we surrender the extra-territoriality claim and tell the Chinese they may punish those who break their laws if they can catch them, or must British offenders be tried by a sympathising jury of British smugglers? Unless we are prepared to go very great lengths in this direction there would certainly be a return of the old state of things—most audacious smuggling under the British flag and frequent collisions with the Chinese. As before, no doubt, sooner or later in some case the Chinese would put themselves in the wrong according to a strict legal interpretation of our laws. Confident in their new armaments and stung by a sense of wrong in the whole matter, they would not improbably refuse satisfaction, and we might have another Chinese war.

There is yet another view. Suppose (which is the most probable event) that the Chinese, being free to do as they like, instead of prohibiting opium put a very heavy duty on it. Say at present an okub of opium on arrival in China is worth £1,400, of which £400 is the cost of production and £100 export revenue derived by the Indian Government. If the Chinese clap on £100 duty the Indian revenue will disappear and will be transferred to the Chinese Exchequer, while the Chinese opium-consumers would benefit not at all. It was with an idea of this kind in my mind that I said in the House of Commons that if the Chinese must be poisoned I would rather the profit went to the benefit of our Indian subjects than to the Chinese Exchequer. The observation was unpremeditated, and I do not seriously defend it. But practically it comes to this—if we do not assist the Chinese to collect a very high duty there will be the same violent smuggling collisions, and not improbably war, as in the case of prohibition. On the other hand, is it possible that we should carry sentimental virtue so far as actually to give the most active and effective assistance to the Chinese in collecting a revenue for themselves, with the direct effect of destroying our own Indian revenue without any benefit to the Chinese people? I hardly think any one could expect us to do that.

This letter is already too long, and I do not here attempt to show what ought to be done; but in the character of an old official I venture to say in effect to the excellent and honest philanthropists who agitate the question, "Let us reason together." Here is a statement of the position put, I hope, fairly and in good faith: do not merely denounce in vague language and ambiguous terms, but face the facts as they are, and let us try to work out the solution most just to all parties and least likely to involve greater evils to masses of the human race.—Your obedient servant, GEORGE CAMPBELL, Southwell-house, Southwell-gardens, Nov. 10.

THE ABARS.

THE Abars, or Abors, to whom the Calcutta correspondent referred in his telegram last week, are one of the tribes inhabiting the little known mountainous country lying to the north of our province of Assam. Although the Abars, whose name signifies "barbarous" or "independent," have always been considered a dangerous and turbulent people, our relations with them have been so long of a satisfactory, if not friendly, character, that there is room both for regret and surprise to hear that they threaten some trouble during the coming winter. The Abar district lies immediately north of the extreme corner of Assam. It is bounded on the west by the settlement of the Miiri clan, and on the east by those of the powerful and numerous Mishmis. How far their territory extends into Tibet or across the eastern spurs of the Himalayas is not known, but there is no doubt, according to the high authority of Colonel Dalton, that they are of Tibetan extraction. Their principal settlements, so far as we know, are found on the Dibang River, which flows into the main stream of the Brahmaputra near Sudiya, and it is in this direction that military precautions are now being taken. The outpost of Nizamghat, which is to be occupied forthwith by a small detachment, is the extreme point of our frontier on the Dibang, and beyond it the hills inhabited by the Abars at once commence. The villages of Akamba and Kalude are situated in the midst of mountains which attain an elevation of more than 9,000ft, and no roads of any description exist beyond the limits of our authority. Before our conquest of Assam the Abars were engaged in a fierce and incessant war with the Kamplis, the warrior race who came from Burma and established themselves in Assam a century ago, but who are now, with the Mishmis, our eastern neighbours in this province. In 1858 the Abars made themselves so troublesome to us that a small expedition had to be sent against them; but this was, unfortunately, mismanaged, and failed to attain its object. Naturally encouraged by this untoward result, the Abars resumed their incursions with greater boldness than before, and a larger expedition had to be sent against them in the following year. A road was then constructed from Sudiya to Nizamghat; block houses were erected at Bomjar, Dambuk, and Nizamghat; and a distinct arrangement, providing for good behaviour on their part and for the payment of a small subsidy on ours, was entered into. Since that year our mutual relations have been on the whole satisfactory, and the fair held annually at Sudiya in January and February has contributed to the maintenance of amicable relations. For some reason, of which we are as yet ignorant, this prospect has become clouded over, and a resumption of hostilities with the Abars is now apprehended. Effectual precautions appear to have been taken, and in time, perhaps, to remove the difficulty before it has grown serious. But this threatened trouble with the Abars, coming, as it does, so soon after the close of hostilities with the Nagas, will not fail to direct increased attention to the position of affairs on the north-east frontier of India, where we have to deal with a collection of tribes hardly less warlike in their disposition than those on the north-west, and where we have relations more or less delicate on frontier questions with the neighbouring States of Burma and China.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

MR. STEPHEN BOURNE ON ENGLAND'S FOOD SUPPLIES.*

"WHATEVER may be our accumulations of wealth at home they will not suffice to ward off a scarcity of food if those who have it to give us will not take the produce of our labour and capital in exchange."

This is the deliberate conclusion of Mr. Stephen Bourne, a statist of no mean repute; who presents us, in the volume now before us, with the facts and figures of our imports and exports, tabulated in every possible way in which they can be brought to illustrate the vital question he discusses. To the foolish doctrinaires, by whom the principles of free trade at any price are regarded as axiomatic from the point of view of political economy, these words should speak as the letters of fire in the handwriting on the wall spoke to Belshazzar of old—to tell them they shall no longer be allowed to ruin the industries and imperil the food supply of England, merely to gratify theorists who have acquired a half-truth with so much mental labour that they believe that beyond it nothing more is to be learnt.

"Whatever wealth," says Mr. Bourne, "we may derive from our investments or our earnings abroad, it cannot be a satisfactory state of things that all the exertions of our labourers, all the skill and capital of our manufacturers, all the enterprise of our traders, fail to provide the food they consume; not because we are slackening in our efforts, but because our consumers cease to require what we are willing to sell them, or to give us such prices as will prevent the necessity for our drawing upon other sources." We do not propose to discuss at length the figures by which Mr. Bourne justifies the statement here made. They show that at the present moment our total exports do not actually pay for the food we import, to say nothing of all the raw material and manufactured articles we buy from foreigners; and that, consequently, we are paying the balance (if we neglect some profit on our carrying trade and a few smaller items) out of our invested savings—a process that clearly cannot go on for ever, for sooner or later we shall come to the end of that fund. But in this place we think we can most profitably use Mr. Bourne's calculations by pointing out how they support the demand we have from time to time put forward for some fiscal encouragement to the importation of Indian wheat. In 1879 we exported goods of British produce and manufacture to the United States to the value of sixteen millions sterling, to Russia to the value of four millions sterling, to India to the value of twenty-nine millions sterling. During the same year we imported food grain from the United States to the value of 21½ millions, from Russia to the value of 7¼ millions, from India to the value of nearly five millions. Thus America and Russia put an almost prohibitory tariff on our goods, and consequently we are only able to sell them to the aggregate value of twenty millions; on the other hand, India welcomes our goods with open ports, and would indefinitely increase her demand for them pari passu with our increased demand for her cereal wealth, which would furnish her with the means of buying our manufactures. Further, for about two-fifths of our total food supply we are at present entirely dependent on foreign sources, chiefly American and Russian: it is not difficult to imagine the frightful effects of a war or any other event that might suddenly exclude us from access to those sources. The smallest fiscal encouragement to Indian wheat—or, let us say, to wheat grown within the British Empire—would immediately bring into cultivation millions of acres of magnificent wheat-producing land in the North West and the Punjab. The American profits are at present so large that it is more than probable that no less land—or only a very little of that cultivated under great disadvantages—would be cultivated in America, if we were to put on a small duty on their corn than would be cultivated under any circumstances; and, in this case, it is clear that prices would not rise (they might even fall) in Great Britain, our import duties being entirely paid by the American producer. And consider the vast and varied benefits to our Indian interests. The profits of the new trade would enable India to become a still larger purchaser of our manufactures, and would bring comfort to thousands of Indian homes. The trade, once started, would soon be entirely independent of fiscal aid—for the infinitely cheaper labour of India, with equal fertility, must eventually give her enormous advantages over her American rival. The enormous area that would thus be put under food crops would be the best possible insurance against the devastating famines from which India has hitherto suffered largely because the want of a profitable market has prevented her from growing large surplus crops of food. With the restoration of the balance of trade, too, the Indian exchanges would rapidly improve. In every way India would benefit; and England indirectly through her Indian connection

A NEW COOKERY BOOK.*

A CURIOSITY in the way of cheap literature is an excellent little book on cookery and household management, which we have just seen, issued by Messrs. Goodall, Backhouse, and Co., of White Horse-street, Leeds. It is entitled, "Good Things Made, Said, and Done, for Every Home and Household." It is nicely got up, and contains a large number of carefully-compiled modern recipes. And, mirabile dictu, it is issued—for nothing! Messrs. Goodall, Backhouse, and Co. offer to send it to any one who will send them a penny stamp for the postage. As the mere cost of the paper, printing, and binding must be a good many pennies for each copy, there must of course be a motive for this generous distribution of gratuitous useful knowledge. What that motive is we leave those of our readers to discover who care to send their penny stamp to Messrs. Goodall for the purpose.

THE SANDWICH ISLANDS AS A FIELD FOR RETIRED INDIAN OFFICERS.*

CAPTAIN NICHOLSON, in the nicely-illustrated book before us, has given a full and detailed, and at the same time a very entertaining, account of the "sun caressed" Sandwich Islands. His main object is to show that English gentlemen with time, energy, and a very small capital may rapidly attain health and wealth by settling in a country that offers the most perfect climate in the world, with wonderful opportunities for profitable investment and lucrative employment. The book is appropriately dedicated to the genial and accomplished author of "The Voyage of the Sunbeam," and is adorned with a number of copyable executed photographs of the King and of various members of the Royal Family and the Hawaiian nobilities, and with many excellent maps, plans, and views. Captain Nicholson gives an exhaustive account of the islands and their administration, and of the life of residents and visitors; the history of the kingdom, so far as it is known, and everything about the country, its people, and products. It is of course the sugar-planting industry to which Captain Nicholson invites his brother officers on their retirement, and he gives detailed estimates of the cost of setting up and working a plantation together with the very tempting figures of the profits to be made. The book is both interesting and useful.

CORRESPONDENCE.

OUR AFGHAN POLICY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—At a time when our Government is, with a light heart, preparing for us evil days in India, the gratitude of all who are interested in that splendid portion of our Empire is due to any one who faithfully records each false step as it is taken, pointing out the consequences which may be expected to follow, and persistently raising the note of warning. I have been reading for some months past your weekly summary, and you deserve the most hearty thanks of every true Englishman for your fearless and thoughtful comments on the ruinous policy which the Government has been pursuing in Afghanistan. Your faithful weekly chronicles, with their accompaniments of able and pithy criticism, based upon evident knowledge of the facts and true appreciation of the great interests involved, will to those who, like myself, preserve them for future reference, be an invaluable aid in tracing hereafter the gradual downward steps by which the country has been led to its present shameful and dangerous condition. Few words, well chosen, are often better and more useful than long editorial sentences, which are not beloved of the many; and your weekly notes (bringing to a focus, as they do, all that is important in connection with the great subject of our relations with the countries beyond our Indian frontier) are an estimable boon to the reader wearied with many a long newspaper and magazine article. The Government has followed in Afghanistan the same policy of cowardice which has distinguished its acts in South Africa and in Ireland. Such a policy, opposed to all English traditions and instincts, is doomed to failure, will surely and miserably fail in India as it has already miserably failed in South Africa and Ireland.

It is fit that the fearful responsibility, the crime of this failure, should be fixed on the right shoulders, the present Premier of England. In one of those singularly slipshod and ungrammatical phrases, to which we are perforce gradually accustoming ourselves (in place of the crisp, sparkling, and epigrammatic sayings of his predecessor in the same high position), told us at the Guildhall that he has "renounced the future," whatever that may mean. There can be no doubt what Mr. Gladstone has renounced. He has renounced all interest in the future greatness and supremacy of this nation; he has renounced all hope of future fame to satisfy his present all-absorbing variety; he has renounced the lasting satisfaction of knowing that he has well and truly served his country to gratify the immediate and insatiable longing to unco the most of his political opponents. When the history of these times comes to be written, the blackest blot of the many blots on the record of the present administration will be its gross, its criminal mismanagement of the Afghan Question. For the time, the laissez-aller policy succeeds to a marvel, owing to the accident that, at the last struggle, it was Ayub's men who turned traitors instead of Abdul Rahman's. Mr. Gladstone, who has "renounced the future," is delighted, and sees no cloud on the horizon. Russia, meanwhile, having crept rapidly on, is entrenching herself firmly at Merv—a point declared by her to be altogether beyond her sphere of action—and piously hopes that Great Britain will make no fuss about such a trifle. And the "earnest" man who now holds the destiny of England in his hands may be trusted to make no fuss. Of a strange nature, in truth, is this same earnestness whereof we hear so much. Earnest in upsetting anything done by the hateful Conservative—earnest in avoiding at any cost any war (as if the Millennium had already arrived!)—earnest in protecting from all trust his own egregious vanity and amour propre—earnest in everything save in upholding the dignity and the greatness of the Empire. Such is the man who is, with a smiling face, deliberately handing over to Russia (our hereditary enemy) the country, to secure which we have spent so much of our best English blood.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

WEARING DECORATIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—I have read with much interest the correspondence which you have recently been publishing regarding the wearing of decorations with evening dress. I have long wondered why this was not done. A man who has earned a decoration ought to be proud of the honour, and I think it is a very false shame which prevents such a man from taking every proper opportunity of displaying the symbol of the Sovereign's favour. But there is another reason why Orders should be worn with evening dress. They would help greatly to light up our funereal black suits, and for that reason alone, if there were no better reason, I for one should like to see Orders or Ribbons worn universally with evening dress. What a difference it would make in our drawing rooms, and at the Opera and other public places, if this were done! For the same reason, I think uniforms should be oftener worn, and I have often wondered greatly why they are not. One would suppose the English officer was ashamed of her Majesty's uniform. I write from an independent point of view on the subject of wearing Orders, for you will see from my card enclosed that I am

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

LORD RIPON ON LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

THOUGH all Englishmen must sympathise with the general spirit of Lord Ripon's minute on local expenditure, most Englishmen in India will probably feel that it exhibits a tendency towards undue haste in a matter to which the proverb Festina lente is especially applicable. Local self-government, under certain conditions, is not only an admirable thing, because under these conditions it is the most efficient of all kinds of Government, but for many purposes it is the only kind of Government which can act with even moderate efficiency. In order, however, that local Government may be tolerable, it must be founded on local knowledge, prudence, and morality; and, in order that it may be so founded, not only must persons possessing these qualities exist in sufficient number to supply the necessary agency, but the other circumstances must be such as to afford some sort of guarantee that the agency actually chosen will consist, to a great extent, of such persons. Do these conditions at present exist generally in Bengal? No unprejudiced person will maintain that they do. That there are intellectually competent, prudent, and moral men in most municipalities we do not for a moment deny. Not only, however, are men combining these qualities rare but the other circumstances furnish no guarantee that they shall exercise a preponderating voice in the conduct of public affairs. In three cases out of four they are probably the last men who would be willing to take part in those affairs, and if they were willing, the tone of public opinion is such that, unless they added qualities more dazzling to the vulgar understanding, there is very little chance that they would be chosen. So far we have referred especially to the elective element, which the Government of India thinks should be from one half to two-thirds of the whole. But even as regards nominated members the guarantees are far from perfect. The official members may generally be credited with prudence and honesty, though, owing to the frequency with which they are transferred from district to district, they are not uncommonly deficient in local knowledge. As to the non-official members, they are more likely to be chosen for their subservience than either their knowledge or their honesty. It is to be feared that the transfer of large sums of money to local bodies of sorts under these circumstances will open a wide door for waste and corruption. In one point we entirely concur in the views expressed in the minute under notice. When once the powers of the various local bodies have been defined, the fullest possible liberty of action within those limits should be allowed them. If the policy of the minute is premature, the hurry of the Government to have it put into practice is even more marked. The details of a system of local Government for sixty millions of people, even if they were thoroughly prepared for it, would demand the most careful consideration and consultation not only of subordinate officials, but of the people themselves; yet the Government of Bengal is expected to be able to have a complete scheme ready, and a report prepared on it in the course of three months. The only reason assigned for this haste is the pressing importance of the necessary arrangements for all India being made before the close of the financial year. Nothing, however, is known to have occurred in this country to render it imperative that powers which the people have never enjoyed before, and which they have never shown any strong desire or marked aptitude for, should be conferred on them on April 1, 1882. If the matter were a subject of political agitation which it was important to allay, this precipitancy would be intelligible, however much it might deserve to be regretted. But there is no pretence that this is the case.—Englishman.

MR. O'DONNELL'S CASE.

As Mr. O'Donnell's case has created some sensation we give below the orders of the Bengal Government contained in a letter of Mr. Secretary Cockerell to the Presidency Commissioner, dated Sept. 21 last. We may mention parenthetically that we have not received the letter from the Bengal Government:—

2. Some weeks ago, in bringing to the Lieutenant Governor's notice the very unsatisfactory state of the relations existing between the magistrate and collector of Jessore, Mr. Barton, and the acting joint magistrate, Mr. O'Donnell, you requested that Mr. O'Donnell might be sent away from Jessore, as it was impossible that the public business could be carried on so long as he continued there; and the Lieutenant Governor had accordingly arranged to transfer Mr. O'Donnell to another station—a course which Sir Ashley Eden and his predecessors have been frequently compelled to adopt in consequence of Mr. O'Donnell's inability to get on satisfactorily in many of the districts in which he has hitherto been stationed.

3. Before the transfer could take effect the Lieutenant Governor met you and Mr. Barton, the magistrate and collector of Jessore, at Khoolnah, and you then informed the Lieutenant Governor that you had before you papers which had given rise to doubts in your mind whether Mr. O'Donnell was fit for the position he occupied at Jessore. The Lieutenant Governor accordingly deferred moving in the matter until you had had an opportunity of thoroughly examining into the complaints which have been made regarding Mr. O'Donnell's discharge of his duties.

4. The reports now received deal at length with the charges which have been preferred by the magistrate, Mr. Barton, against Mr. O'Donnell. Sir Ashley Eden has also received a petition from Mr. O'Donnell, addressed to him direct by Mr. O'Donnell, in his capacity as vice chairman of the Jessore municipality, complaining of his superior, Mr. Barton, who is the chairman of that municipality, and claiming for himself independence of all authority as a representative of the people. Mr. O'Donnell must have been well aware of the impropriety of addressing the Government in the form of a petition, and of ignoring his superiors, the chairman, and the commissioner of the division; and his petition has accordingly been returned to him for submission in the proper manner; but the position which he claims for himself in that petition entirely bears out your impression of Mr. O'Donnell's disloyal conduct to his immediate superiors and his erroneous view of his position contained in paragraphs six, seven, eight, and nine of your letter of August 7 last.

5. It is not necessary to discuss in detail all the instances of neglect, abuse of authority, or want of judgment, alleged against Mr. O'Donnell. They have been fully and calmly stated in the reports received, in which every possible consideration has been shown to him.

6. The Lieutenant Governor has read very carefully these reports and Mr. O'Donnell's explanations, and he is quite satisfied that Mr. O'Donnell has shown by his conduct at Jessore that he is either unable or unwilling to perform properly the important and responsible duties of a joint magistrate. He certainly does not, the Lieutenant Governor considers, possess the qualifications and the business habits which Government has a right to expect from officers who have for some years been trained in its services with a view to their filling important executive or judicial offices. Mr. O'Donnell takes up his own and the public time by maintaining absurd theories regarding his duties and his position in certain of the offices he holds in virtue of his appointment as joint magistrate. He is habitually disloyal to the officer to whom he is immediately subordinate, and there is too much reason to believe that he has been in the habit of encouraging intrigues against his authority; he is proved to have shown a want of ordinary discretion, and to have taken advantage of his position while in temporary charge of the magistrate's office during the absence of his superior in the interior of the district, to dispose of a matter altogether beyond his competence, when he assured the commissioner that there was no truth whatever in complaints of oppression by the ryots of Chanchal against the manager of that estate, with whom Mr. O'Donnell was then living; and he distinctly and persistently disobeyed, in another instance, the most explicit orders of the magistrate as to the manner in which correspondence was to be dealt with by him during the magistrate's absence on tour. As a magistrate his decisions and procedure have raised doubts whether he is yet fit to be trusted with important judicial powers. It is clearly shown that he has been in the habit of summarily dismissing complaints on altogether insufficient grounds, and after a very inadequate examination of the complainant, and that, in consequence, many persons have been deprived of the remedy which they had a right to expect at the hands of the magistrate of the district. He has introduced a form of procedure in dealing with criminal cases which is altogether irregular and illegal. Instead of deciding on the complaint and the examination of the complainant, whether processes shall or shall not issue, he calls upon the accused to file an explanation. As pointed out by you the adoption of such a procedure, apart from its illegality, is grossly unfair to complainants who in many cases find their complaints made in open court rejected in favour of explanations made informally by the accused. It is further shown that Mr. O'Donnell has in many cases most unwarrantably stretched the powers with which he has been vested of trying cases under a summary procedure. It may be that he has done this to avoid having his cases heard on appeal, or it may be, as you suggest on his behalf, that it was only from an idle desire to save himself from trouble. Whatever the motive may have been, the wrong done to the public is the same, and an officer who has so abused these powers from motives of any kind cannot be allowed to continue to exercise them, and the Lieutenant Governor therefore directs that they be withdrawn from Mr. O'Donnell. It is not only the commissioner and the magistrate who condemn Mr. O'Donnell's work as a judicial officer that the Lieutenant Governor finds that the officiating judge, Mr. Paterson, reports as to the results of committals by Mr. O'Donnell that have come before him that "these cases show either that the joint magistrate does not know his duties as a committing officer, or that knowing them he does not take the trouble to perform them."

7. There remains another and a very serious charge against Mr. O'Donnell, and that is the use of insubordinate and unbecoming language towards his superior officers in submitting the explanation called for as to his conduct. No doubt Mr. O'Donnell wrote under feelings of irritation as having his conduct called into question, but it was the plain and positive duty of Mr. Barton to bring to the notice of Government the very unsatisfactory manner in which he was performing his duties, and the Lieutenant-Governor will not permit any young officer in a subordinate position to use language such as that which Mr. O'Donnell has permitted himself to make use of on this occasion, whenever his superior may consider it necessary to criticise his official conduct. If this were Mr. O'Donnell's first offence of this sort, the Lieutenant-Governor would be ready to make every allowance for him; it is not; however, his first offence, he has shown himself throughout his service to be thoroughly insubordinate, and he has habitually set at defiance all rules of discipline; and the Lieutenant-Governor has lately been compelled to bring Mr. O'Donnell's conduct in this respect to the notice of the Government of India. The records of this Government show that during the few years that this young officer had been in the service conduct has been brought unfavourably under the notice of the Government more frequently than that of any other public servant of his standing. In 1877 Mr. O'Donnell was degraded for a period of six months for gross insubordination and disrespectful language, on the representation of the Honourable Judges of the High Court, and his proceedings as a judicial officer were then described as having been "hasty, injudicious, arbitrary and unjust." In 1879, Mr. O'Donnell had to be transferred from Sewan for mal-administration, soon after which he went to England on leave, and while there occupied his time in writing a most insubordinate pamphlet, grossly libelling the acting Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Stuart Bayley, who had criticised unfavourably Mr. O'Donnell's work.

9. On Mr. O'Donnell's return from Europe in 1881, Sir Ashley Eden determined to give him another chance, and promoted him to officiate as joint magistrate of Jessore. He has there shown the same want of all the qualifications necessary for the proper discharge of his judicial duties, the same want of tact, the same want of self-sufficiency and impracticable reliance on his own superior judgment in matters regarding which he could have very little experience, the same petulance and impatience of control, and the same spirit of insubordination and neglect of discipline that he has shown throughout his service. It is clear therefore that he is not amenable to mere censure, and that forbearance only leads him on to greater neglect of duty, and of all the rules of the service to which he belongs; and the Lieutenant-Governor cannot therefore allow him to act any longer in the superior grade of joint magistrate to which he was temporarily promoted or to perform the duties of a joint magistrate. Mr. O'Donnell is clearly not to be trusted to take charge of the office of the magistrate and collector during the absence in the district of his superior officer, this being one of the chief duties of a joint magistrate. He must therefore revert to his permanent appointment in the service, and work as an assistant magistrate under a strict magistrate. Orders will be issued from the Appointment Department of this office transferring Mr. O'Donnell to Mysore, where he will have another chance of qualifying, under an experienced magistrate and joint magistrate, for promotion again to the higher grade as soon as he shall have shown himself fitted for such a position."—Hindu Patriot.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

RETIREMENTS.—Mr. R. B. Chapman has resigned the Civil Service, and Mr. T. C. Hope, C.S.I., has been appointed to succeed him as financial secretary to the Government of India. Mr. A. O. Hume, C.B., intends shortly to retire from the Bengal Civil Service. At present he is on leave at Simla.

THE CALCUTTA ARCHDEACONRY.—The Ven. Archdeacon Baly, well known in connection with educational reform in India, retires in March next, and will, it is expected, be succeeded by the Rev. B. T. Atlay.

FEVER AT AMRITSAR.—Choleraic fever is still raging at Amritsar, about 150 deaths occurring daily.

CHOLERA.—There has been a large decrease of the number of deaths from cholera in Western India during the past fortnight, and the quarantine which was recently established at Goa has this week (Nov. 3) been withdrawn.

THE ALIWA EXPEDITION.—The report that the Government of India has abandoned the idea of sending an expedition against the Aliwals is confirmed.

EURASIAN EDUCATION.—A Government resolution dealing with the question of European and Eurasian education and appointing a committee to draft an education code for Bengal has appeared.

AYUB KHAN.—The reported arrival of Ayub Khan in Persia has been confirmed. There is no important news from Afghanistan this week.

MR. O'DONNELL AGAIN.—A letter written at the instance of Sir Ashley Eden, Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, explanatory of the recent degradation of Mr. C. J. O'Donnell, C.S., has been published. The action of Sir Ashley Eden is said to have met with the approval of the members of the Bengal Civil Service generally. Mr. O'Donnell is understood to have appealed to the Viceroy.

INDORE.—Noticing the report that Sir Lepel Griffin has been busy at Indore, taking part in amateur theatricals—in the representation of a comedy entitled "Woman's Rights," of which the illustrious Gryphon is the author, the Indian Daily News remarks:—"This is all very well and all very pleasant, but we should like to know what about the recent arms case at Mhow? Has the original partner of the Mhow firm, the man who sent up arms and ammunition from Bombay, been discovered; has any record been made of the kind of ammunition sold by the man who was seized; has the use of the arms and ammunition been traced, or does the Resident know what demand it was that created this supply of rifles and rifle ammunition through an agent at Mhow? But of course 'Woman's Rights,' a comedy, is a finer contribution to the happiness of India than the running to earth of a gang of dealers in materials of war whose trade had been discovered by accident."

THE VICEROY'S TRAIN.—It is stated that the Bally railway accident, by which the Viceroy's special train came to grief on a trial trip, was due to an inequality in the Bessemer steel of which the tire of the engine wheel that gave way was formed. It is not a very comforting assurance which Mr. Campbell, acting agent of the East India Railway, gives to the travelling public, when he says it is no unusual thing for steel tires to break—that he has known them break suddenly when standing in a shed, without apparent cause.

THE "CLAN MACDUFF."—The owners of this vessel have refunded to Miss Wilson the passage money paid on account of the artists of the Gaiety Theatre company who embarked in that ill-fated steamer.

EURASIAN EDUCATION.—The Government of India have published an important resolution on the subject of Archdeacon Baly's education scheme; and have appointed a committee consisting of Mr. Croft, Director of Public Instruction, Archdeacon Baly, Father Van Impe, Rector of St. Xavier's College, Calcutta, and the Rev. J. Robertson, Principal of the Free Church College, Calcutta, to frame an education code for Bengal, Bombay and Madras being considered sufficiently provided for.

THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNORSHIP OF THE N.W.P.—The Pioneer says:—"The last news received from home about Sir Alfred Lyall's health, though not creating any serious cause for uneasiness on the part of his friends, seems to raise grave doubts as to whether he will be able to come out again in time to take up his appointment of Lieutenant Governor of these provinces at the expiration of Sir George Couper's tenure of that office. This uncertainty, of course, revives speculation as to who is likely to be selected if, for any reason, Sir Alfred Lyall cannot be the man. It would be too soon, however, to venture a guess as to who among the three or four obvious candidates is most likely to be chosen. Strange to say, the premature selection of a favourite by the public voice, is apt to irritate, against such a selection, the persons finally influential in making it."

THE CENTRAL PRESS.—In continuance of the policy of encouragement to private enterprise, the Government of India have announced an intention of reducing the amount of printing now carried on by the Government Central Press and transferring to private presses as much of the work as these may be able efficiently to undertake.

EXTENSION OF PENSION RULES.—The new pension rules for officers who entered the Staff Corps after September, 1866, have been extended to the old Indian artillery and engineers; but those who avail themselves of this scale, in preference to the old rates, will not be eligible in addition to the special extra rates sanctioned in 1878.

MADRAS.

NARROW ESCAPE OF THE MAHARAJA OF MAISUR.—His highness, the Maharaja of Mysor has had a very narrow escape from what might have been a very serious accident. Having recently purchased a pair of horses for a large sum of money, his highness drove them round the Doddokere Tank, when they became unmanageable, and reared and kicked to such an extent as to smash the vehicle to which they were harnessed and to completely destroy the harness itself. His highness and his brother in law, by whom he was accompanied, both jumped out, the Maharaja fortunately escaping with nothing more serious than a slight scratch on his foot. The animals were then released from the tangled trappings which held them, though not until the valuable harness was cut away. His highness proceeded home riding on one of the horses belonging to his silledar body guard, and his plucky behaviour alone saved him from serious injury.

MYSOR CROPS.—Want of rain is again causing alarm at Bangalore. The season reports are very unfavourable, and the crops are failing everywhere.

MADURA MUNICIPALITY.—All the native shopkeepers of Madura have closed their places of business in consequence of being called upon to pay increased municipal taxes.

THE MAHARAJA OF VIZIANAGRAM.—The Raja of Vizianagram has been installed as Maharaja.

WYNAAD GOLD.—At the annual meeting of the Wynaad Planting and Mining Association the state of the gold mining industry was favourably reported upon.

THE NILGIRI RAILWAY.—The proposed railway up the Nilgiris Ghat has received the final sanction of Government.

GENERAL O'CONNELL.—It is believed that Major General O'Connell, quartermaster of the Madras Army, whose tenure of appointment expires immediately, will be continued in his office until the end of the year.

BOMBAY.

THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.—General Hardinge, Commander in chief of Bombay, has arrived at Bombay from Puna. His Excellency leaves Bombay on a lengthened tour on Tuesday Nov. 8.

MR. HUNTER.—Among the arrivals from England by the Rome on Monday, Oct. 31, was Mr. W. W. Hunter, C.I.E., LL.D., who returns to civilian duty in Bengal on completion of his great work, the compilation of the "Indian Gazetteer."

THE GRANT MEDICAL COLLEGE.—The Government of India have overruled the decision of the Bombay Government prohibiting the Principal of the Grant Medical College from engaging in private practice. The Simla authorities see no objection to Dr. Cook taking consultation cases, provided he confines himself to that branch of private practice only.

NEW BOMBAY FACTORIES.—Several companies have recently been formed in Bombay for the manufacture of cotton goods. This week (Nov. 3) it is announced that a company will shortly be started for the purpose of spinning fine counts of yarn to compete with Manchester goods.

INFANTICIDE.—A case of infanticide in some respects similar to the well-known Surat infanticide case came before the High Court on Friday, Oct. 28, for confirmation. The condemned woman, a widow, appealed against the sentence of the judge, Mr. Candy. The superior court upheld the conviction, but commuted the punishment to transportation for life.

THE BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—Mr. T. W. Wood is returning to India to become agent of the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway. Mr. Mathew, the present agent and chief engineer, goes home to take up the position of consulting engineer to the company in London.

THE BOMBAY MUNICIPALITY.—Replying to the memorial of the Bombay Municipal Corporation, protesting against the appropriation of Rs.15,000 towards the cost of working the C.D. Act in Bombay from the State police grant, Lord Hartington says he will reserve his judgment until he is in possession of the views of the Government of India on the subject.

THE "SERAPIS."—The Serapis, which was sent to the Cape to bring troops back to India, has arrived in Bombay with a few officers who embarked in England. The Junna sails for Portsmouth on Nov. 4 with the Royal Scots Fusiliers.

BOMBAY MILITARY RELIEF FUND.—The Honorary Secretaries, Bombay Military Relief Fund, have forwarded to Col. Anderson, of the 1st Grenadiers, Rs.24,560 for the relief of widows left helpless by the loss of their husbands in the Afghan war.

CEYLON.

THE COFFEE-STEALING ORDINANCE.—At the last sitting of the Legislative Council several bills were progressed a stage; and a rather animated discussion arose on the second reading of the Coffee Stealing Ordinance, the provisions of which a portion of the European unofficials desired should be rendered applicable to other products, but without success. The bill was accordingly left as it stood applicable to coffee alone.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.—At the next sitting of our Legislature an amended ordinance for the Medical Wants Bill will be introduced, for the purpose of cancelling those clauses in the previous ordinance relating to an export duty and substituting for them a capitation tax of Rs.2 per annum on the average number of coolies employed by each estate throughout the year, a provision which is certain to be attended with some difficulty and not a little heartburning.

COLOMBO HARBOUR.—Our harbour works question is to be introduced in Council by the Colonial Secretary at the sitting on Nov. 16, when a long and interesting discussion is anticipated, with the foregone conclusion that the Council will adhere to its vote of last year, by which expenditure on these works from the colonial finances was declared not to exceed £800,000. The work of block-laying at the breakwater has commenced again and is being actively proceeded with. The dredger is also busy, keeping the hopper barge and the flotilla of barges continually at work carrying away the sand.

FIRE IN COLOMBO.—On the evening of October 18 a fire broke out in the Government factory here. The soldiers turned out immediately and hastened to the scene of the conflagration to find that our volunteers had been beforehand with them in their endeavours to put out the flames. The arrival of the military enabled the volunteers to be relieved at their arduous task, and the fire was soon put out by the former.

RAILWAY BRIDGE.—Considerable progress has been made in the construction of the new bridge over the railway near Maradana Junction, and it is expected that the whole structure will be completed before long.

CEYLON DEFENCE COMMISSION.—The Ceylon Defence Commission consists of Capt. King, R.N., commander of H.M.S. Euryalus, Lieut. Rogers, R.N., the Hon. J. Douglas, C.M.G., Col. Warren, R.E., Col. Smart, R.A., and Col. Armitage, C.L.I.V.

THE GENERAL COUNCIL ON EDUCATION IN INDIA.

MANY of the Indian papers have been devoting articles to the examination of a "Report," issued by an association that calls itself "The General Council on Education in India." We think it is greatly to be regretted that a Society, largely composed of gentlemen connected with missionary work, and obviously working in the interests of the Missionary Colleges of India, should have assumed a name that can hardly fail to mislead many readers, and especially many native readers, into the notion that it is an officially-constituted authority. We all know something about "the Committee of Council on Education;" and in India there are many councils, including the Council of the Governor General and those of the Governors of Bombay and Madras, as well as the various Legislative Councils. But all these have high official authority. The name "Council" is not unfrequently applied to the governing body of a society, e.g., the Council of the Royal Asiatic Society; but, even in these cases, the name implies the highest official authority within the society. That, in the case which we are now considering, the high-sounding official title was not assumed with any intention to mislead, goes without saying; for Lord Halifax is the president of the "Council," the Rev. J. Johnston is the secretary, and there is a long list of distinguished names—including those of two bishops—for vice-presidents. But we think most Anglo-Indians will agree with us that the name is a most unfortunate one, for the reason we have given.

Still more deplorable, we think, is the fact that a considerable number of Peers and members of Parliament—many of them only connected with India by sentiments of philanthropy—should have allowed their names to be identified with a movement that is certain to be keenly resented by the educated native community of India. The "Council" is stated, on the title-page of its report, to have been "formed with a view to the promotion of the general education of the people on a national basis, as laid down in the education despatch of 1854." This is a fine broad platform, on which every educational authority in India will be delighted to stand. But it requires very little knowledge of Indian educational polemics to be aware that the first step towards this desirable object, as contemplated by those who think with the "Council," is the withdrawal of the State from the work of the higher education of the country. A warm sympathiser with the movement that appears to have become embodied in Mr. Johnston's "Council" once described its aim to be "the abolition of the first class classical baboo." Now, we have no hesitation in repeating what we have more than once affirmed in former articles—if there is one subject on which the educated community of India feels more keenly than on any other, it is on this very question of the State connection with the higher education. If India is more grateful to England for one benefit than another, it is for the boon of high education. If Indians are more jealous of the action of the Government in one respect than in another, it is in regard to any apparent curtailment of the opportunities for acquiring high education. Opinions may, of course, differ—we know that they do widely differ—as to whether the native community is right on this point, or wrong; we venture to think it is right; Mr. Johnston and Lord Halifax will probably think it is wrong. But it is impossible for any difference of opinion to exist, among those who have any competent knowledge of Indian feelings and beliefs, as to the fact that the views we have indicated are held by the native community with practically absolute unanimity. It is quite certain that, if the aims of the "General Council on Education for India," in regard to the withdrawal from the State colleges, were to be approved and adopted by the Government of India, the whole educated community of the country to a man would feel that a bitter and unendurable wrong had been inflicted on their country. It is quite certain that the action would be attributed, partly to the desire of the missionaries to obtain increased facilities for making converts, and partly to British jealousy of native civilians. We fully believe that the intentions of Mr. Johnston, Lord Halifax, Lord Shaftesbury, and their "friends in council," are most admirable. But we are absolutely certain that those intentions will be utterly misunderstood in India; and we fear that much of the odium produced—not altogether unreasonably—by their ill-judged agitation will attach itself to Lord Ripon's Government, unless great care be taken by the responsible officers to show most clearly that the Government is in no way connected with or responsible for the "General Council on Education."

FAIR TRADE FOR INDIA.

THERE was once in Laputa a very learned professor, who had devoted a lifetime of labour to the study of the laws of gravitation. Experimentally, he had investigated every possible variation in the phenomena of the Falling Apple. Mathematically, he had wandered in every maze of the Dynamics of a Particle. And so, conscious of the mental efforts by which he had attained his knowledge, he felt himself to be a great authority on falling bodies. A man once spoke to him of the advantage of some plan that necessitated the use of a balloon—of a body that (apparently at least) transgressed the universal law. Thereupon, the learned professor grew very wroth. In order to prove that no heavy body can rise in air, he went back to first principles, and proved over and over again, with perfect accuracy, the theory of gravitation. It was in vain that the man pointed out to the professor that the rising of the balloon was only apparently a transgression of the general law—that really it resulted from the working of that law, only applied in a particular way and under certain conditions to produce this particular result. The professor only called the man a lunatic and an idiot; and, once more proving ad initio the truth of the law of gravitation, he declared that any one who said that a heavy body can rise in air must be ignorant of the simplest principles of science.

The attitude of the professor to the man, in this apologue, seems to us to be very like the attitude of the political economists of the Free-trade-at-any-price school at the present day toward the exponents of the various phases of what is known as the Fair-trade movement. They are never wearied of stating and proving the elementary principles of political economy in reference to Free trade, as if their opponents were ignorant of those principles or wished to controvert them. The Edinburgh Review thinks that Mr. Bright is privileged to substitute epithets for arguments; but, unfortunately, the habit appears to have filtered downward through the whole party. If any political economist dares to maintain that there are contingencies in which the very principles on which the theory of free-trade is based demand an aberration from the ordinary free-trade practice, he is either summarily dismissed with the epithet of lunatic or idiot; or he is treated to a homily on the teachings of political economy, of which it is assumed he must be ignorant; or, lastly, he is presented with vast piles of trade statistics, brought together under circumstances in which the perturbing influences are altogether absent. This treatment is somewhat exasperating to the man subjected to it; but we believe it is calculated to advance the cause of which he is the champion. Nothing is more likely to "put up the back" of the intelligent public than the hectoring dogmatism of economical bigots. There must be an immense number of educated Englishmen who know enough of the science of political economy to be well aware there is (to say the least) plenty of room for differences of opinion about the questions involved, and that it is by no means likely that one of the disputing parties should be so hopelessly in the wrong as Mr. Bright and the Edinburgh Review would have it.

India's interest in this controversy is very great indeed. The Indian market is necessarily a friendly one to England. Many have asserted that we have forced it to be more friendly than has been compatible with Indian interests, and that Indian industries have been sacrificed to the exigencies of Lancashire. But without going to this length it is clear that the Indian market is one of the most friendly in the world; and the extent of our sales there show that we have largely availed ourselves of that friendliness. Now, the fundamental theory of "fair trade" involves the reciprocation of fiscal benefits; so that India has everything to gain from the adoption of such a principle. But further than this, the initial aim of Fair trade—the first means to its end of universal fair and free trade—is an Imperial Commercial Federation, such as we have often advocated in these columns. And this boon, the boon of free trade between all the component parts of the British Empire, is surely one that should be granted by free traders, even before it is asked by fair traders. And lastly, the temporary expedients by which Fair trade expects to convert the whole world to free trade would give exactly that temporary stimulus to Indian production—and particularly to the growth of wheat—which it needs for its inception and which it will be easily able to dispense with when fairly started.

Every political economist recognises that the one great fundamental and undeniable advantage of free trade is that it induces no one to produce anything except that which he can produce most advantageously; so that the consumer—that is, everybody—gets everything at as cheap a rate as possible. But there are cases in which free trade is not strong enough to induce a country to produce that which it can produce more cheaply than any other country. And this is notoriously the case with India. There are millions of acres of wheat-producing land in the North West Provinces and the Punjab, and even in other parts of India; and the cheapness of labour in the country, and the magnitude of its imports from England, give it such an advantage over America that it is hardly doubtful in the long run it could feed us more cheaply than America. But the trade, though already growing to important dimensions, requires some temporary stimulus to bring it into the proper channels in sufficient volume. Beati possidentes; the Americans are in possession of the trade, and this alone keeps down their rivals. Now this is exactly one of those cases in which the very principle of free trade (in regard to the importance of confiding the production of a commodity to him who can produce it most cheaply) demands a temporary aberration from free-trade practice. We illustrate this position in another column by reference to Mr. Bourne's statistics of the food supply of England as compared with our export trade.

HOME NEWS.

OBITUARY.—Colonel William Charles Stanley Clarke, late of the 21st Hussars, died on Saturday, at Ryde, in the Isle of Wight. The deceased entered the army in 1847, and obtained a lieutenancy in 1849. He served throughout the Indian mutiny campaign of 1857-58, and was present with General Seaton's column at the actions of Gungere and Puttali. His subsequent promotions were—captain in 1861, major in 1870, and lieutenant colonel and colonel in 1876.

THE INDIAN FAMINE INSURANCE FUND.—A correspondent of the Times calls attention to the notification issued a few days ago by the India-office repeating a notice issued by the Government in India as to the carrying out of the famine insurance policy described in Major Baring's budget. "The fact thus notified is," says our contemporary, "of interest to all those who watch the progress of Indian finance as marking a real beginning in the work of providing a famine insurance fund. The notice is to the effect that a sum of Rs.75,00,000, or £750,000 nominal, provided in the budget of the current year, together with a small amount additional chargeable to the budget of 1882-3, will be applied to the reduction of the debt in India. The famine insurance fund was to be applied either in the construction of works designed to protect the population against famine or in the reduction of debt; and this notification shows that half the provision made for this fund in the current year is actually available for debt reduction. It is also added that the commission for the reduction of the debt referred to in Major Baring's statement will be nominated, and its constitution and duties defined shortly. All this is most satisfactory as regards the present condition of Indian finance. We are glad also to notice that the provision now made is for the reduction of debt in India. We have more than once called attention to the unnecessary increase of the amount of Council bills occasioned by the remittance of money from India to pay off sterling debt in this country when there was plenty of debt in India that might be paid off. According to the arrangement now made the more sensible practice of paying off debt in India will be resorted to."

MILITARY MOVEMENTS.—Several changes of quarters of line battalions at home have been ordered, principally in consequence of the approaching return home of eight regiments from Natal and India. Some battalions standing high on the list for foreign service are moved to Aldershot to complete their preparation, while others are being sent to stations in or near the localities with which they are associated under the new system. Three battalions from Ireland—the 1st Norfolk (9th), from Templemore; the 1st Bedford (16th), from Newry; and the 2nd Munster Fusiliers (104th), from Enniskillen—are about to be moved over to England, the 1st Norfolk going to Colchester, the 1st Bedford to Shorncliffe, and the 2nd Munster to Aldershot. Their places on the Irish establishment will be taken by three Irish regiments—the 1st Irish Rifles (83rd), and the 2nd Connaught Rangers (94th), from Natal; and the 2nd Inniskilling Fusiliers (108th), from Preston. The last-named battalion will be relieved at Preston by the 2nd Leinster (109th), from Aldershot. The 1st Liverpool (8th), at Manchester, and the 2nd Dublin (103rd), at Bradford, will exchange quarters on Dec. 7. The 1st West Kent (50th), at Colchester, will move to Aldershot; the 2nd East Lancashire (59th), from Gosport to Chatham; and the 2nd Berks (66th), from Parkhurst to Gosport. The 2nd Shropshire (85th), now on passage from Natal, will be stationed at Parkhurst on arrival home early in December; and the 1st Scots Fusiliers (21st), from India will take up quarters at Dover. Of the other regiments returning home it is understood that the 1st Dorset will be quartered at Dover, in place of the Buffs, proceeding to Aldershot; the 2nd King's Rifles (60th), at Winchester; the 1st Wilts (62nd), at Devonport; and the 2nd Gordon Highlanders (92nd), at Portsmouth. These regiments will have arrived home by the beginning of March. When the 1st West Kent and the 2nd Munster Regiments arrive at Aldershot there will be six battalions in camp belonging to the 1st Army Corps, each of considerable numerical strength and rapidly approaching a condition of fitness for foreign service, for which they stand high on the list. The 1st Royal Irish Fusiliers number over 1,200 men, of whom about 200 are about to be sent out as a draft to the 2nd Battalion at Belgaum, the headquarters of which will be relieved two years hence by the 1st Battalion. The 11th, 13th, and 16th Batteries of the 8th Brigade Royal Artillery, from Aden, are timed to arrive at Portsmouth in her Majesty's ship Malabar on February 14. The 17th Battery of the Queen's Brigade, from Bombay, will be due on May 4. The Queen's Rays, at Longford, and the 18th Hussars, at Manchester, exchanged quarters last week. The 3rd Hussars, from Colchester, have arrived at Aldershot, taking the place of the 7th Dragoon Guards, who have moved three squadrons to Norwich and one to Colchester. The 14th Hussars, on landing in India from Natal, will be stationed at Secunderabad, in place of the 12th Lancers, ordered to Bangalore.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders were received on Wednesday at the Bank of England for £400,000 in Government bills on India. The amounts allotted were—To Calcutta, £278,500; to Bombay, £119,900; and to Madras, £1,600. Tenders on all Presidencies, at 18.7½d., being the minimum posted, will receive 38½ per cent. Compared with last week this price shows no alteration. The amount to be tendered for on Wednesday next will be raised to £450,000.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.—On Wednesday the silver market showed firmness, the price of bars being 51¾d., and Mexican dollars 51¼d. to ¾d. per ounce, business being done both in the uncoined and coined metal. Rupee Four per Cents. receded 1-16d., to 84½ to ¾, but the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. recovered in equal proportion, to 91¾ to ¾. The exchanges from Bombay and Calcutta were steady at 18.8¼d., the respective rates from Hong-Kong and Shanghai being 38.9¼d. and 58.1¼d.—On Thursday there was a moderate amount of business done in silver, though bars were unaltered at 51¾d. per ounce. Dealings in Mexican dollars were reported in some quarters at 51¾d., the tone of the market being firm. Telegraph transfers from Calcutta slightly receded, the quotation being 18.7¾d. to 18.15-16d. The exchanges from India and China were maintained.—On Friday there was no change to report in silver, bars being quoted at 51¾d., and Mexican dollars at 51¾d. Telegraph transfers from Bombay ruled at 18.7¾d., and from Calcutta were unaltered. The respective exchanges from these centres were 18.3-16d. and 18.8¼d., the China rates being stationary. Rupee Four per Cents. advanced 1-16, to 84.9-16 to 11-16, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. showing no variation.—On Saturday prices were unaltered.

BOMBAY GAS COMPANY.—The half-yearly meeting of this company was held at the offices on Thursday; Mr. D. T. Evans in the chair. The chairman stated that the report and accounts so fully and accurately stated the condition of the affairs of the company that it left him very little to say on the present occasion, but he wished to state a few facts which he thought would be acceptable, and he hoped assuring. They had sold more gas to private consumers than in any previous half-year since the formation of the company, the increase having been half a million cubic feet, as compared with the corresponding six months of last year. The amount of coal carbonised was ninety tons less, and they had made 162 tons more coke. The leakage had been over 2 per cent. less, having been 14.35 per cent., as against 16.46 per cent. As regarded the gas rental and the amount obtained from residual products, it showed an increase of £541. It was satisfactory to find that the amount of bad debts was almost nil, being only £26 on an income of £25,000 on the half-year.

The expenses had been decreased by £345, chiefly in the cost of coal, and the reduction of the staff in India. Under the head of passage money appeared the item of £200, which was occasioned by the sending out to India of their new manager, Mr. Penny, and the retiring of their late manager, Mr. Scott, owing to ill health. They had carried £500 to the reserve to meet the depreciation of plant, &c., and after deducting the interim dividend of 3½ per cent. for the half-year, a balance of about £800 remained to be carried forward to the current half-year. The stock of coal had not only been maintained but added to at a less price. The stock on hand and afloat was sufficient to last the company to the end of next year. By the adverse exchange they had lost £4,853 on a remittance of £23,268, and they had a balance of £2,280 at the credit of exchange equalisation account to meet future contingencies, but he did not think that they would require any large remittances from Bombay during the current year, having good funds in hand. He thought the future prospects of the company were most encouraging. The report was adopted.

COMMERCIAL BANK OF ALEXANDRIA.—The fifth annual meeting of the proprietors in this bank was held on Thursday, at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street; Mr. Thomas S. Richardson (the chairman of the company) presiding. The chairman congratulated the meeting upon the statement laid before them in the report, and the results achieved. He considered that they were most satisfactory, as they showed that a much larger business had been done both in Alexandria and Cairo, which, thanks to the excellent management out there, as well as at home, had resulted in a larger profit being earned, and thereby enabled the board to propose an increased dividend. Speaking generally, Egypt was never in a better or more prosperous condition than at present. Its future was full of hope and encouragement. At the same time the board were fully alive to the fact that there were many kindred institutions competing in that country for business with this, and seeking safe and profitable employment for money, and shareholders must bear in mind that keen competition meant a lower rate of interest for bankers. He hoped and believed, however, that the competition would not be so keen in future and that business would soon settle down to the ordinary course, and banks would not be compelled to lend money at 3 per cent. or 4 per cent., as had been the case during the past year. He moved the adoption of the report and accounts. Mr. Jacob Bright a director of the company, seconded the motion. Replying to a shareholder, the chairman said it was for the proprietors generally to decide whether the dividend should be increased or the reserve fund augmented in future. The board was by no means insensible of the value of a large reserve fund, but at the same time there were many shareholders who preferred having the full benefit in the shape of dividends of the present earning powers of the bank. The report was adopted nem. con., and the dividend as recommended therein declared. The retiring directors were re-elected, and the auditors reappointed.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.—At the annual meeting, to be held on the 6th proximo, the directors will recommend a dividend of 2½ per cent. for the half-year ended Sept. 30 last, with a bonus of 2 per cent. from the underwriting account, making with the interim dividend of 2½ per cent. paid in June a total payment of 7 per cent. for the year.

INDIAN APPEAL CASES.—In the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on Thursday the case of Raghbir Singh v. Narindar Bahadur Singh was concluded. This was an appeal from a decision of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh on Jan. 31, 1878, dismissing an appeal from the Commissioner of the Lucknow division of that province. Mr. Leith, Q.C., and Mr. J. T. Woodroffe were counsel for the appellant; Mr. Doynne for the respondent. The dispute was one as to boundary and the respective rights of the parties to a piece of alluvial land formed by the recession or shrinking of a canal of the River Gogra, in the province of Oudh. Their lordships dismissed the appeal with costs.—On Saturday the hearing of the appeal of Nawab M. Azmat Ali Khan v. M. Lalli Begum was commenced. This case, which related to considerable property of the late Nawab of Kurnal, raised the question whether the widow and her sons could inherit. The Commissioner of Lahore found that neither Mussumat Lalli Begum nor her sons were entitled to inherit. The present appeal was against a decree of the Chief Court of the Punjab which reversed in part and affirmed in part a decree of the Commissioner of Lahore. Mr. Corrie, Q.C., Mr. J. Grahame, Q.C., and Mr. Doynne were for the appellant; for the respondent Mr. Leith, Q.C., and Mr. I. D. Mayne appeared. The principal question was whether the alleged widow of the Nawab was legally married, and whether her sons were entitled to the property. In the course of the case it was proposed to put in evidence a report in two Indian newspapers as to the festivities held in respect of the marriage, and it was said such report could only be regarded as in London "From Our Special Correspondent." The respondent, as Begum of the Nawab, was guardian of her sons. The suit was commenced in the year 1871. The property in dispute was of great value, amounting to Rs. 12,477,38 10 3, or £130,000. The applicant was the son of the late Nawab, and the point was whether the respondent was the legal widow, and her sons entitled under the Mohammedan law to inherit. The arguments were continued to the rising of the court, and then adjourned till Tuesday.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

SUGAR is without change, being steady, but quiet. 16,000 bags extra superior Manilla sold at 20s. 6d. Of West Indias only 36 casks reported. Rather more inquiry in the Clyde market at the previous decline.

COFFEE.—Colony kinds of plantation Ceylon have sold at full rates to 2s. advance. 220 casks 95 barrels and bags sold. Good to fine middling colony, 86s. to 89s.; rather bold to bold, 99s. 6d. to 106s.; low middling dull went at 73s. to 76s.; 150 bags native sold bold Ouvah, 61s.; smaller, 57s.; good ordinary, 55s. 547 bags foreign mostly placed. Porto Rico, 68s. to 76s.; Central American, 52s. to 54s. 6d. per cwt.

SALTPETRE.—Bengal landing sold at 22s. 3d., and spot at 23s. 3d. to 22s. 6d. per cwt., according to refraction.

JUTE.—Privately business has been done, but particulars do not transpire. In the auctions, of 2,369 bales there was insufficient sold to test quotations.

COTTON. There has been scarcely any business doing to day, owing to the firmness of holders, and the particulars of the sales are not worth reporting.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that the produce markets show no symptoms of activity, supplies being large and quotations rather unsettled. Last week's advance upon sugar has since restricted the demand from refiners, and the partial speculation in the lower qualities appears to have subsided. Some Java cargoes for distant shipment are reported sold, of which the particulars do not transpire. Although the entire beet supply for Europe is likely to prove about 65,000 tons less than originally expected—viz., 1,710,000 tons—it is a larger yield than in any former season. The Austrian production will probably fall off to the extent of about 45,000 tons. Notwithstanding these statistics sellers for delivery have accepted 3d. to 6d. under last week's rates. Refined pieces here have fallen quite 6d. per cwt. Good plantation Ceylon coffee is rather dearer, the stock being very low. A few parcels superior colory of the new crop brought extremely high rates. In other respects no improvement can be quoted, and the market is slow. To-day the common descriptions of Costa Rica went rather lower. Good to fine qualities of foreign sold at fully previous rates. The Netherlands Trading Company announce 88,900 bags for public sale on the 23rd inst., against 105,000 bags in November last year. The latest estimate of the Government Java crop is 1,012,950 piculs, or about 60,000 tons, being 27,000 tons above that of 1880, but considerably less than in 1879. Rice continues depressed. There is no alteration to notice in the market for China tea, which remains quiet. The large supplies of Indian at public sale have been taken readily by the trade at full prices. White and black pepper, pimentos and Zanzibar cloves, have further declined without tending to much demand.

COFFEE.—All the better qualities at auction met a steady competition at low rates. Common Costa Rica went rather lower; 196 casks 55 barrels and bags sold—low middling to middling, 74s. to 80s. 6d.; fine middling to bold, 90s. to 103s. 202 cases 371 bags good and fine, 91s. 6d. to 107s.; small to common, 68s. to 72s.; 3,913 bags foreign part sold; colory Costa Rica, 71s. 6d. to 75s. 6d.; pale and greenish, 56s. to 60s.; Porto Rico colory, 71s. 6d. to 78s. 6d.; and Central American, 87s.; bold yellow New Granada, 60s. per cwt.

RICE.—A cargo new crop Burma sold 3s. 3½d. basis Rangoon.

COTTON.—There has been a good general demand at hardening rates, both on the spot and for arrival. Sales about 4,000 bales, including Tinnevely, at 5½d.; Western, at 4¾d. to 5d.; Bengal, at 5¾d.; and Fiji, at 15¼d. per lb. For arrival: Tinnevely, October-December, Suez, 5 7-16d. to 5½d. for good fair; Western Madras, October-November, Suez, 4 13-16d. for truly good fair g.f.c.; 5d. for good f.g.f.c.; Coconada, November-January, Cape, 4¾d. 4½d. for fair red; Bengal, December-January, Suez, 4¾d. for good f.g.f.c. Forward delivery American, December-January, 6 19-32d.; March-April, 6 23-32d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

JUTE.—Messrs. Falconer and Co. state that, with heavy arrivals during the last fortnight, the market has shown considerable weakness for dock parcels, even although only a small proportion has been offered, and prices generally are about 7s. 6d. per ton lower. For arrivals, in consequence of a heavy fall in freights at Calcutta, especially via Canal, a large business has been carried through at gradually easier rates, the decline at the close reaching from 10s to 12s. 6d. by Canal, and 5s. to 7s. 6d. via Cape. The immediate future of the market will be influenced by the movement in freights, which have ruled exceptionally high this season, and as they are now little likely to recover to any extent for some time, the ultimate future must be judged from the prospect of supplies and the state of the trade. From all they can gather we may not get very much larger shipments than last season, in which case they cannot anticipate a further decline. The sales for the fortnight are estimated at 60,000 bales afloat and 10,000 bales in dock and ex quay.

FRIDAY EVENING.

RICE.—Floating cargo of 1,800 tons Rangoon, off the coast, sold at 7s. 2d., and one of 700 tons Bassein, at 7s. 1½d. open charter.

PEPPER quiet; a few hundred bags Singapore black sold at 5½d.

TEA.—Large arrivals of China, and the stock in first hands further increased. The market, however, shows no alteration. Indian teas firm.

COFFEE.—The public sales have gone with a steady demand, colory kinds at full prices. 555 casks 30 tierces, 18 barrels, 151 bags plantation Ceylon sold, small to middling, at 71s. to 83s.; good middling to fine old at 83s. 6d. to 118s. 6d.

TURMERIC.—About 400 bags Bengal sold at 13s. 3d.

JUTE.—A steady market, and the sales amount to 7,000 bales, chiefly for arrival.

HEMP.—Manilla firm, but not active.

COTTON.—With an active demand a good business has again been done at very full rates. Sales about 4,000 bales, including Tinnevely, at 5 7-16d. to 5 3-4d.; Western, 4 1-4d. to 4 3-4d.; Sind, 4 1-4d. to 4 1-4d.; Persian, 4 3-4d.; and Bengal at 5d. to 5 1-4d. per lb. For arrival, Tinnevely: October-November, Suez, 5 1-4d. for good fair; Coconada, December-January, Cape, 4 13-16d. for fair red; Bengal, November-December, 4 13-16d. for good f.g.f.c. Forward delivery: American, December-January, 6 3-4d.; March-April, 6 3-4d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

CHRISTIAN VERNACULAR EDUCATION IN INDIA.
 ON Monday a public meeting in connection with the Christian Vernacular Education Society for India was held in the Law Association Rooms, Liverpool. Mr. EDWARD LAWRENCE presided, and was accompanied to the platform by the following deputation from the society, viz., Sir Richard Temple, Bart., G.C.S.I.; Mr. C. J. Rogers, principal of the society's Training Institution at Umritzur, in the Punjab; and Mr. Lockhart Gordon, of London, secretary of the society. There was only a small attendance.

The CHAIRMAN said he was not personally acquainted with the work of the society, but remembering the object it professed to accomplish, viz., "to provide Christian education for the masses of India in their own mother tongue," no one could avoid the conviction that it was a great and noble work. It must not be supposed that the people of India were altogether uneducated. He was afraid they often made a great mistake in depicting the nations of India in a state of ignorance. It must be recollected they had their own literature, religious literature, some of which was supposed to be, if not so old as our own, at any rate of great antiquity. Many of the nations, too, were highly educated, and amongst the Brahmans especially there were men of very subtle minds. Therefore, the society was not dealing with an ignorant people, and if the work it proposed to itself was a great one, so it was also surrounded with enormous difficulties. Perhaps one of the greatest difficulties was that it attacked not only the religious but the social feelings of the people of India. In India, under the operations of the caste system, social and religious life was so closely interwoven that it was utterly impossible to attempt to do anything in the way of Christianising the people without attacking them in their social relations also; and only those who were familiar with the people of India and their habits knew the difficulty there was in inducing them to adopt Christian ideas. He thought England ought not to forget the responsibilities she owed to India. Not for nothing had God placed under the rule of this country so large a portion of the human race as was confided to us in India; and therefore they ought to feel deeply their responsibility in regard to those people. (Applause.) He regretted that the subject had not interested a larger number of Liverpool citizens than it had, but he hoped they would see what had been done at the meeting and determine to do more for the society.

Sir RICHARD TEMPLE, Bart., who was received with loud applause, said he wished to put before the meeting a number of facts which would convince those present of the magnitude of the field in which they were invited to work. He was glad to say a large amount of success was already being vouchsafed to the society. (Applause.) The result might be indefinitely great in the future, but happily it was definitely great in the present. (Hear, hear.) The number of native Christians in India a year ago was 390,000, and might now be put down at 400,000. Besides these there were 200,000 boys and girls at mission schools, some of whom were Christians, but of whom the great majority were not Christians, though they were all receiving Christian instruction. The total number of children under education in India was two millions, and the number at the mission schools was increasing at the rate of 50 per cent. each decade. Thus they would see there was a very large field open for the exercise, not only of great missionary effort, but of other auxiliary societies. Out of the 200,000 children under Christian education 40,000, or one-fifth, were at schools belonging to this society. The society had, besides, three training institutions, which had sent out 680 students as trained schoolmasters, doubtless for efficient and effective work in various schools throughout the country. The missionary societies had also many training schools of the same description, but of all the Christian training institutions in India the three belonging to this society were on the whole the best. The principal work of the society was, however, the dissemination of Christian vernacular literature. There was a very extensive reading public springing up in India, and if they did not obtain Christian books to read they would read books of lesser merit. For the most part the old literature was locked up in dead languages, but there was a current vernacular literature springing up, and that literature was much richer and more extensive than was commonly supposed. It was almost entirely secular. It referred to philosophy, science, history, politics, and morality—in fact to everything in the world except religion. The Government had not been behindhand in providing a vernacular for the schools. Indeed, one of the greatest achievements of the British Government in India had been the creation of this vernacular; but the Government was absolutely neutral in religion. The missionaries had not time to undertake the composition of works in the vernacular, and therefore the work devolved upon this society, which sent out 750,000 books annually. He was sorry to say its income was not excessive, but he hoped the subscriptions would increase.

Mr. C. J. RODGERS next addressed the meeting, and was followed by Mr. LOCKHART GORDON, who remarked that there were 23,000 indigenous native schools accessible to their teachers.

Mr. MATHESON moved a resolution embodying a vote of thanks to Sir Richard Temple and the other members of the deputation, and the expression of an earnest wish that the society might be more liberally supported. The amount raised in Liverpool was only £80, but they hoped to see it increased.

Mr. ALEXANDER BROWN seconded the motion, which was agreed to.

A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close.

Prior to the meeting Sir Richard Temple was entertained to luncheon at the Town-hall by the Mayor (Mr. John Hughes). The other guests at the luncheon comprised Alderman Weightman, Mr. E. E. Lawrence, Mr. R. Brocklebank, Alderman Chambers, Mr. S. Smith, Mr. O. H. Williams, Mr. C. T. Bowring, Mr. T. Matheson, Alderman Samuelson, Mr. Thomas Brocklebank, Mr. D. Farnie, Mr. H. Coke, Mr. W. Adamson, Colonel Mewburn, Mr. Christopher Bushell, Mr. A. Turner, Mr. R. Lowndes, Mr. J. Rayner (town clerk), &c.

COLONIAL HANDBOOKS, MAPS, &c.

NOW READY.

CANADA—including Ontario, North-West Territory, Manitoba, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, &c. With New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo., 288 pp. Cloth, 5s. "Athenaeum," June 25, 1881.—"Full of information and statistics, which ought to prove very serviceable to any visitor to the Dominion."

"Times."—"Under the above title Messrs. Silver have brought out much more than a mere "Handbook to Canada," an historical, political, social, geographical, and topographical guide for the use of travellers and settlers over the greater portion of our North-American possessions. The need of such a work, at once handy, comprehensive, and trustworthy, has long been felt both by intending settlers and by readers at home, who are surprised, and not unnaturally, at the scanty information about so important a territory which is accessible to them. The volume is illustrated by a map, showing the whole extent of the Canadian Confederation from the shores of the Atlantic to those of the Pacific, and exhibiting all the details of inland communication, whether by Railway or the long chain of inland lakes. Those who have friends in British Columbia, Manitoba, &c., will find this map most useful; and it may be added that the historical chapters are full of materials for the future historian of Canada, or for the writer of an article on that subject in an encyclopedia."

"Manitoba Daily Free Press."—"Comprised in this book is a mass of valuable information, which cannot fail to impress every reader with an intelligent idea of the great resources and capabilities of our country. In fact, we are convinced that in the words of the preface, a comprehensive, reliable, and at the same time cheap and handy work has been produced, which will furnish the kind of information most sought for in regard to the Dominion, and especially in regard to Manitoba and the North West territories. We have every reason to think that this handbook to Canada is one of the best contributions to immigration literature yet produced. It is also very handsomely got up tastefully bound, and very well printed."

"Graphic."—"We are already acquainted with Messrs. Silver's Handbooks to Australasia and South Africa. They are concisely written, accurate in information, and full of practical details. The same praise may be accorded to the volume now before us, which comprises a survey of the whole of British North America, the reader's researches being aided by an excellent map. To the intending emigrant the descriptions of Manitoba and British Columbia will be especially attractive."

A MILITARY HISTORY OF THE MADRAS ENGINEERS AND PIONEERS.

VOL. I.

Compiled by Major H. M. VIBART,

Royal (late Madras) Engineers.

The Work will be completed in Two Vols.

THESE Corps were raised last century by the Honourable East India Company. As the power of the Company increased, these bodies were enlarged from time to time. Up to 1740, the Company being mere traders, it was of course unnecessary to call in the assistance of Engineers. Shortly after that time, however, it was found imperative to obtain Engineers to enable the Company to hold its own in contests with the French and the Native Powers.

Up to 1770 the Company found it sufficient to obtain Engineers from any sources which were at the time most convenient to them, but in that year it was considered necessary to establish their Corps of Engineers on a strictly military basis, with an experienced officer of Royal Engineers as Commandant.

It is proposed in this compilation to trace the gradual increase of the Corps, and in doing so to detail the manner in which it has been utilised to assist in extending the dominions of the Company.

After the great Indian Mutiny, the power of the Company merged into the Crown, and since then the Madras Engineers has become a part of the distinguished Corps of Royal Engineers. The officers of the Indian Engineers are still retained on separate lists, but their complete absorption is merely a matter of time. It seems, then, appropriate that before this occurs a record of their services should be drawn up.

In recording the campaigns and sieges in which they have been employed, the reports of the Engineers themselves will be made use of as largely as possible.

At first no regular Sappers were employed, but bodies of men were, as occasion required, trained as Pioneers to assist the Engineers.

In 1780 a regular body of Pioneers was formed, and up to 1831 this body was employed with considerable success in both civil and military operations.

In 1831 the Pioneer organisation was altered, and the regiment became the Madras Sappers and Miners. From 1831 to 1876 they retained that appellation.

In 1876, when H.R.H. the Prince of Wales visited India, their title was altered to the Queen's Own Sappers and Miners, while H.R.H. was appointed Honorary Colonel.

The Corps has greatly distinguished itself in many campaigns, and being still in a highly efficient state, is as ready as ever to do good work for the country.

In this publication it is intended to incorporate their services with those of the Madras Engineers, a corps with which they have naturally been closely connected throughout their career.

The First Volume will be illustrated by more than Twenty Plans and Maps, and will contain a View of Addiscombe College.

USE NO SUBSTITUTE.—See perpetual injunction against imitators, also the unanimous judgment before the Lords Justices Bramwell, Brett, and Cotton, Jan. 22, 1878, in H. Lamplough's favour.

Important to all, more especially English Ministers, British Consuls, and Europeans seeking to reside in safety in Tropical and Foreign Climates.

Her Majesty's Representative the Governor of Sierra Leone, in a letter of request for an additional supply of PYRETIC SALINE, states:—"It is of great value, and I shall rejoice to hear it is in the hands of all Europeans visiting the tropics."

SICKNESS, HEADACHE, and NAUSEA are in most cases immediately relieved by taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of cold water. This can be repeated once or twice in two hours, if needful.

SEA VOYAGES.—It is a very valuable accompaniment, and should on no account be omitted. It instantly allays the sea or bilious sickness.

For BILIOUS CONSTITUTIONS, giving rise to vitiated secretions, Indigestion, and Eruptions on the Skin, a teaspoonful should be taken daily with the dinner in a tumbler of water, and the same quantity on going to bed. May

A RIDE TO KHIVA

BY CAPTAIN FRED. BURNABY

Royal Horse Guards.

Says page 13:—"Two pairs of boots lined with fur were also taken; and for physic—with which it is as well to be supplied when travelling in out-of-the-way places—some quinine and Cockle's Pills, the latter a most invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the natives of Central Africa with the most successful success. In fact, the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines when I administered to him five will never fade from my memory; and a friend of mine, who passed through the same district many months afterwards, informed me that my fame as a 'medicine man' had not died out, but that the marvellous cure was even then a theme of conversation in the bazaar."

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, NOV. 28, 1881.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Our advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Nov. 10; Madras and Allahabad, Nov. 8; Calcutta, Nov. 7.

We are glad to observe, in Lord Hartington's thoughtful speech at Blackburn on Saturday, that his lordship protested, for his own part, against the statement made by the supporters of the present Ministry, that England approved of Mr. Gladstone's Afghan policy, because England was glad to escape from foreign complications "on whatever terms." That "terms" derogatory to the honour of England would be wittingly proposed by Lord Hartington, or supported by the true Liberals of England, we do not for a moment believe; but might not the very fact that the supporters of Mr. Gladstone's Government—for it was not an enemy that said this thing—put forward such pleas for the approval of the people of England, suggest to Lord Hartington that most of the world (political friends as well as political enemies) regard the Gladstonian policy in the light suggested? And is there not likely to be a good deal of truth in what most of the world believe in such a case? We have always consistently maintained that the policy of universal surrender is as much opposed to the traditions of the Liberal party as to those of the Conservatives. Objections may fairly be raised to Lord Palmerston's Civis Romanus theory; but at any rate that great Liberal Chief was a typical Englishman and no "scuttler." The "exigencies" of Mr. Gladstone's position in Opposition introduced the surrender policy of the Radicals into the Liberal programme; we believe that the Liberal party, and the whole nation, would hail with acclamation a withdrawal from that policy headed by the true Liberal chief of to-day.

THE announcement that Russia will demand the control of the administration of the vitally-important vilayet of Erzeroum, as a guarantee for the payment of the war indemnity, is one that will appear to all Anglo-Indians—may we not say to all intelligent Englishmen?—fraught with the most tremendous consequences. Reported to be withdrawn almost as soon as made, the demand is at present passing through the initial phases usual in the life of all such Russian demands; we doubt not that we shall be brought face to face with it again before long. Thanks to the political foresight of Lord Salisbury, the terms of the protocols relating to such a contingency, drawn up at Berlin, are so perfectly plain and unambiguous that not even Russian astuteness, or Gladstonian elasticity of interpretation, can evade them. It remains to be seen whether the Russians will treat them as they did the Black Sea clauses during Mr. Gladstone's last administration—tear them up.

TO-DAY'S telegrams from India, given in another column, deal with no less than four separate and independent sources of anxiety from "frontier disturbances." From the Mahsud Waziris and the Aliwals on our extreme west, to the Abar and Lushai hill tribes on our furthest eastern frontier—and who shall say at how many other points in the two or three thousand miles that intervene?—our frontier is disturbed. And our friend the Amir, in return for the guns and ammunition we have been giving him, is said to be piling huge imposts on the Khaibar trade; and his officials are exacting them "with great rigour" at Daka! And yet, as the old man said to Wilhelm, "It is a famous policy"—this policy of universal surrender.

WE observe that a syndicate, emulating that which has so successfully introduced Indian tea into the Australian market, wishes to try the same trick in Central Asia, and babbles about Peshawur as a depot. We advise them to try the Askabad route, now that our friend the Ameer is "rigorously exacting customs duties" on the Afghanistanside. Odessa or Moscow will be found a much more convenient entrepot than Peshawur.

WE gave last week, from the Hindu Patriot, the leading points of Mr. O'Donnell's "case." That it should have made a stir in the Indian papers was inevitable; for that young gentleman is blessed with a capacity for intrigue, and a skill in advertising himself, that ought long ago to have made the fortune of an "O'Donnell Fund," or some similar enterprise for the reward of oppressed merit. Many of our readers will remember the astonishing success of the first flight of his precocious genius in the line of insubordination, when he got every paper in India to notice the malicious tissue of insolence and misrepresentation, for which he procured fame by sheer force of pushing, under the title of the Black Pamphlet. A forcibly-worded article in the Calcutta Review—which was afterwards confirmed and made even stronger by some letters from the editor of the Review which appeared in the Englishman—demonstrated the utterly untrustworthy nature of that precious production. Of a similar character was another sensational pamphlet on Behar, which again attracted much attention mainly from the astonishment felt by Anglo-Indians at the sight of a member of the Indian Civil Service fouling his own nest in such an audacious manner. Mr. O'Donnell, aided by his brother in Parliament, seems to have considered it to be his mission, first to discredit the Indian administration of the hated Saxon; and secondly, to become a famous martyr. When Lord Hartington spoke of Lord Salisbury in the Liberal meeting at Blackburn on Saturday one of the free and enlightened gentlemen present shouted out "Give it him hot!" We fear that a somewhat similar sentiment will be felt in regard to Mr. O'Donnell by most Anglo-Indians, who have not usually very lax notions of discipline. And the most lenient will feel that, in such a case, sparing the rod would result, not only in spoiling the child, but in very serious injury to the interests of the public service.

MAJOR BARING is evidently determined to utilise the rails that were taken up from the more advanced sections of the Kandahar line. To-day's telegrams in the Times give the details of some more "State" railways. A very little line in Gorakhpur is to be entrusted to "private enterprise," nam-ke-waste.

DR. VINCENT RICHARDS, the same telegram tells us, believes he is on the eve of the discovery of the long-sought-for antidote to cobra poison. A similar belief has been held by several other people on previous occasions. Dr. Richards's book on Snakes will be remembered by many of our readers as an amusing record of the habits of his pets. The cold-blooded way in which he talked in that book, some years ago, about putting his hand into a basket of cobras and pulling out a particularly lively beauty, makes it a pleasant surprise to find that he is still living anywhere except in history.

THE new Governor of Madras appears to be launching out into reckless expenditure, for it seems the state coach difficulty has been got over, and Mr. Grant-Duff did not drive from the station to Government House in a hack buggy on his arrival. We give elsewhere an account of his reception, the arrangements for which have offended half Madras society. The newspapers will have a good time in Madras.

THE Amrita Bazar Patrika defends Madame Blavatsky and the Simla "Theosophists" against the strictures of the Saturday Review, in a remarkable article of great force and originality, from which we will extract a few paragraphs. We fear there is a good deal of truth in the charge of insular arrogance brought by the Patrika against the average Britisher, who regards everything unknown as false or impossible. And the failing is not confined even to the average. Mr. John Bright, conscious of his own extended knowledge and great attainments, dismisses as "lunatics" or "idiots" those who venture to hold an economical theory with which he does not agree. Of a similar character are the invectives poured out by Mr. Gladstone against Lord Lytton and Sir Bartle Frere. Certainly no one who has conversed for ten minutes with Madame Blavatsky would admit for a moment that that amazingly clever and learned lady could be described as a "vulgar adventurer." Some will probably believe that the clever Russian has assumed the theosophic drivel, much on David's principle at Ziklag, with some vague notion that the Simla correspondent of the Moscow Gazette might otherwise find things made somewhat uncomfortable for her. Others will think that it represents the "one tile loose" on a brain otherwise magnificently equipped. But all who know Madame Blavatsky will speak of her with the respect due to unquestionable ability and marvellous attainments. Nor will the respect be diminished—whether we approve of the political principle involved or not—by the consideration that this strange Russian lady, by the sheer force of intellect, has won for herself large numbers of devoted adherents not only among the philosophic youth of Bengal, but amongst the Mahratta Brahmins of Puna and other sections of the Indian populations. Madame Blavatsky has often been the guest of the editor of the Amrita Bazar Patrika, so he informed his readers sometime ago; and this is how he speaks of her:—

"The Saturday remarks that Madame Blavatsky's chief claim to attention is the invention of a certain mystic brotherhood which, with the customary Western assumption of omniscience, it sets down, being entirely ignorant on the subject, as a pure fiction. Can anything be more absurd when there are hundreds and thousands, if not hundreds of thousands, of us in India who know that this mystic brotherhood exists, aye, and has existed for thousands of years, who know the paths by which men like ourselves rose to join that sacred fellowship, and who have more or less knowledge of the spiritual truths to which they have attained? But the West can conceive nothing to be possible of which it is ignorant. It is unable to realise that Western intellect, working along one line, the physical, has indeed in this made marvellous progress, but is yet grossly ignorant of the even more marvellous results at which Eastern minds, working for thousands of years along another line, have arrived. The blatant West has ever paraded every scrap of its so-called knowledge, which deals only with phenomena, to which it has attained, but the silent East, that deals only with noumena, that has grasped the only true knowledge, what we are, whence we come, whither we go, has ever veiled her attainments in sacred secrecy. The men of the West are brave, energetic, practical, and deeply skilled in physical science, but they are materialistic, ignorant of psychical science and the higher spiritual truths, and so steeped in self-conceit that they deem everything unknown or inexplicable to them false or impossible. It has been good for us that they have brought us peace, fairly good government, and their Western culture; but it is bad for us that they have, in their blind contempt for all they do not know, trampled out or, nearly so, our national pride in that religion, science, and literature which we have inherited from a thousand generations, and that by their materialistic Western system of education they have almost blotted out from our cognisance the higher and eternal spiritual truths that lie veiled in our ancient literature. Be it so. All things in their appointed cycle. The sun is still there, though the earth turns away from him. But are better times never to return? The night has been long and weary; will the dawn never come? It may be but the dream of some few tired watchers, but to us it seems as if even now there were a glimmer in the East."

THE same journal thus comments on the vigour of the Russian advance:—

"The Russian Government is considering a scheme for forming a body of Cossacks in their new province of Kars. The proposal is to transplant some 10,000 or 15,000 families of the Don Cossacks to Asia Minor. This is a measure which ought not to escape the notice of English politicians; for it will add greatly to Russia's strength on the frontiers of Turkey in Asia."

AND in another column it comments, with great justice, on the weakness displayed by the English Government:—

"It seems only too probable that no immediate action will be taken by the Government to punish the Afridi tribes for their recent offences on the frontier; the matter, we understand, will be left in the hands of the local authorities with orders to make all smooth again."

THE truth is gradually leaking out about the atrocities to which we abandoned our friends at Kandahar when we scuttled out of that city. The Indian Daily News has the following on the subject:—

"Why does not the Government publish all it knows of the disgraceful facts connected with the sacking of Kandahar, and the marauding that went on in the villages in the neighbourhood of that city? It would surely be better for the Government to publish such facts as may have come to its knowledge than to allow such a paragraph as the following to appear in the semi-official print:—'Some painful details are gradually getting known about the incidents which attended the Ameer's triumph at Kandahar. The place is in a deplorable state, and if Mr. Gladstone could relish "atrocities" that have no immediate bearing on party interests he would be able to discuss the state of Kandahar in the old Bulgarian style. Considerable, however, as the damage done inside the city has been, it is outside that the wreck has been most complete. Numbers of Duranis were killed trying to save their women from the Ghilzais, and numbers of women were carried off. Those inhabitants who were left were stripped of everything they possessed, and for miles round Kandahar the country and the villages are deserted.'"

UNSEEMLY merriment is being made in some of the Indian papers over the bear that "fell to Mr. Primrose's rifle," the sole victim in the way of big game that gratified the bloodthirstiness of the recent Viceregal shooting party. The telegraph carried far and wide, even unto London, the tidings of the fall of that bear. But it is now mischievously whispered that the intelligent creature's "fall" was very much like the fall with which it had often delighted the nursemaids and frightened the children at Simla; and hopes are freely expressed that it will yet survive to dance many a solemn jig as of old to the cheery accompaniment of the "baloo-wala's" rattle.

WE devote one of our leading articles to-day to a consideration of the very interesting and important incident of the meeting of a quasi Parliament at Mysore, on the 7th ultimo, under the chairmanship of Mr. Ranga Charlu, C.I.E., the Dewan of the State. The orders of His Highness the Maharaja, under which it assembled, were dated August 25, 1881. The representatives numbered 144, and the method by which they were selected is clearly detailed in the orders, which ran thus:—

ORDER.—His Highness the Maharaja is desirous that the views and objects which his Government has in view in the measures adopted for the administration of the province should be better known and appreciated by the people for whose benefit they are intended, and he is of opinion that a beginning towards the attainment of this object may be made by an annual meeting of the representative landholders and merchants from all parts of the province, before whom the Dewan will place the results of the past year's administration, and a programme of what is intended to be carried out in the coming year. Such an arrangement, by bringing the people in immediate communication with the Government, would serve to remove from their minds any misapprehensions in regard to the views and action of the Government, and would convince them that the interests of the Government are identical with those of the people.

2. This annual meeting will be conveniently held at Mysore immediately after the close of the Dasara Festival, which occasion will offer an additional inducement to those invited to attend the meeting. For the present, the local fund boards of the several districts will be asked to select from among themselves and others of the district the persons who are to be deputed to represent their respective districts at the meeting. In order to represent the landed interests of all the taluks, as well as the interests of trade, there should be sent one or two cultivating landholders from each taluk, possessed of general information and influence amongst the people, and three or four leading merchants for the district generally. A list of them should be sent beforehand to this office, in order to arrange for their accommodation at Mysore. They may be allowed a small sum from the local funds to meet the actual expenses of their travelling.

3. The attendance at the meeting is intended to be entirely voluntary. In making the selection, therefore, the wishes and convenience of the persons invited should be consulted.

At the meeting of the Institution of Civil Engineers, on Tuesday, the 22nd November—Mr. Abernethy, F.R.S.E., president, in the chair—the paper read was on the "Forces and Strains of Recoil considered with reference to the Elastic Field-Gun Carriage," by Mr. H. J. Butter, M. Inst. C.E. It was stated to be of great importance in field-gun carriages to reduce the weight as much as possible, and this could only be safely effected by a correct appreciation of the action and extent of the force of recoil. Considerable obscurity existed in respect to this question. It was the object of this paper to endeavour to define the action and laws which governed recoil, as well as to describe the principle and design of the Elastic Field-Gun Carriage. It was stated that there will be, on Tuesday, November 29, at eight p.m., a discussion upon Mr. Butter's paper on the "Forces and Strains of Recoil in the Elastic Field-Gun Carriage."

A committee, consisting of Captain King, of H.M.S. Euryalus, the Hon. J. Douglas, C.M.G., Colonel Warren, Colonel Smart, and Lieutenant Rogers, torpedo instructor H.M.S. Euryalus, has been appointed to report on the present defences of Ceylon, with a view to steps being taken for the better protection of the colony.

THE Standard states that, although Sir Frederick Roberts will hold the local rank of Lieutenant General in India whilst employed as Commander in Chief of the Madras Army, the military authorities at the Horse Guards have declined to make substantive the rank which he held in Afghanistan. General Roberts has not yet been three years a general officer, and he occupies so junior a position on the list of majors general that it is held that it would be an injustice to advance him over the heads of his present seniors, more especially as a similar privilege was denied to Sir Garnet Wolseley after his return from South Africa.

WE understand that it is highly improbable that the appointment of Public Works Minister to the Government of India will be re-established, as the proposal meets with strong opposition at the India-office. If, however, it should be finally decided to appoint an officer to undertake the duties lately discharged by Sir Andrew Clarke, an offer will, in the first instance, be made to Major General Sir A. Taylor, now at the head of the Cooper's-hill College, to proceed to India, with a view of his filling the position of Adviser on Public Works questions in the Viceregal Council.

COL. T. ROWLAND, C.B., 2d Battalion Northumberland Fusiliers, has been appointed to the command of the Agra Brigade, in succession to Col. Macdonald, 12th Madras Native Infantry, and has taken over the duties.

THE Secretary of State for India in Council having ruled Major General A. Cadell, R.E., to be ineligible for the appointment of Inspector General of Military Works in India, for which he was lately selected, on account of his having succeeded to colonels' allowances, the appointment has been offered to and accepted by Colonel J. J. McL. Innes, V.C., C.B., R.E., who has been employed for some years past as Accountant General and Deputy Secretary to the Government of India in the Public Works Department.

WE extract from the Englishman the following on the Calcutta freight market up to November 7:—

"Our freight market has been comparatively quiet during the last week, the demand for forward chartering having somewhat subsided, the last shots fired being one steamer and two sailing ships for Barrow, and one January loader for Dundee. Every shipping house has now been pretty well supplied with ships and steamers for the next two months, provided the vessels all arrive nicely just when they are wanted. This is nearly invariably the case with steamers, but sailing ships taken for November have sometimes an uncomfortable habit of arriving in December or January, and yet have to be taken by charterers, as in almost every instance the cancelling dates are put a month beyond the time of probable arrival. This system requires to be changed, and the risk of late arrival not be entirely borne by the merchant. On Saturday there was a sudden demand for wheat. Steamers for forward loading and several steamers which had been for some time offering have been fixed at 67-6 for December and 65 for January loading. Particulars of charters are given below. We have had no arrivals during the last week, and our unfixed tonnage consists of only three ships with a total tonnage of 3,699 tons."

MESSRS. CARRITT AND CO. thus reported on the Calcutta tea market for the week ending Nov. 7:—

"Public auctions of tea have been held on the 27th ultimo and 3rd instant; at the former, 8,635 chests were brought forward, of which 8,153 found buyers. The teas were principally of Assam growth and generally showed fair quality in cup, but there was less inquiry and prices ruled in favour of buyers; we quote a decline of about half an anna per lb. all round, except for broken Pekoes, and invoices from the Darjiling district. On the 3rd instant 8,381 chests were sold under the hammer, 496 being withdrawn for higher limits, in addition to several invoices taken out prior to the sales. The bidding was more spirited, and the decline in prices was recovered."

THE Times of India gives the following obituary of the week ending Nov. 10:—The Maharaja of Durnraon; Lieut. Col. P. A. Van Homrigh, Madras Staff Corps; Mr. Napier Campbell, assistant commissioner, Darjiling; and Mr. J. B. Hutchins.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

In the official crop and weather report for the week ending November 1 it is stated that the north-east monsoon has apparently set in in parts of Southern India, as slight rain has fallen in some districts of the Madras Presidency and of the Mysor State, and more is expected. In Coorg and the Nizam's territories also rain is needed in places, and it is urgently required in the Southern Mahratta Country of the Bombay Presidency. In Berar and the Central Provinces, in the Central India and Rajputana States, and in the Punjab (excepting one district) agricultural prospects are good; the kharif crops are being harvested and rabi sowings are in progress. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh also the rabi is being generally sown, though sowings are hindered in some localities by deficient moisture. In Bengal the standing crops are promising, and operations for the winter crops are going on satisfactorily; more rain is, however, wanted in Orissa. In Assam and British Burma agricultural prospects are good."

TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE following telegram, dated Sibi, November 20, was delayed in transmission, and arrived too late for our last issue:—

"No news of importance has lately been received from Kandahar. The Ameer has a difficult task before him in arranging for the loyalty of Southern Afghanistan after his return to Cabul. The Duranis hold aloof, and, although the Ameer shows signs of being willing to conciliate them, he no doubt feels unable to treat many chiefs with confidence. Some sirdars he still retains in confinement, among them being sirdar Gholum Mahomed Khan, son of Sirdar Rahim Dil Khan, Fateh Khan, Achakzai, and Sirdar Sher Mahomed Khan, who is a brother of the Wali Shere Ali Khan, the late ruler in Kandahar. Another brother of the Wali is a refugee in Beluchistan. The Ameer is encamped outside the city, and has collected supplies and carriage for his return march northwards.

"Kohistan is said to be disturbed, and the Ghilzais between Jellalabad and Cabul are likely to give some trouble. These local disturbances, however, seem to be of no great importance and are such as must be always expected. Either Sirdar Habibullah Khan, a son of the late Ameer, Dost Mahomed, or Sirdar Hashim Khan, son of a succeeding Ameer, Mahomed Azim Khan, will probably be selected to remain as governor in Kandahar.

"The feeling in Herat seems to be entirely with the Ameer, and Abdul Kudus Khan, who took possession, remains as governor. The Ameer is probably awaiting, before he starts, the receipt of a further supply of ammunition from the British Government. He has sent camels to Quetta to receive it in charge. This assistance from us will no doubt greatly strengthen his position, and after his departure, by our continuing the occupation of Quetta and Pishin, the malcontents in Southern Afghanistan will be more easily constrained to accept the inevitable and become quiet and peaceable subjects of the ruler for the time being. The moral effect is unquestionably great and of great value, not only to the Ameer, but to the people generally. Trade is already beginning to flow from Herat southwards, and caravans from Kandahar towards India are showing some preference for the new Hurnai route over that of the Bolan. This is protected by two posts from the Quetta Brigade, which is now reduced to about 4,500 men of all arms, under Brigadier General Edwardes.

"General Hume has just returned to Sibi by the Hurnai route, and has left for his divisional command at Lahore. The column proceeding to Dera Ghazi-Khan by the Bozdar route is already on its way, and Brigadier General Wilkinson will probably open out the old caravan route which is said to have existed in other days between Dera Ghazi-Khan and Kandahar through Thal-Chotiali and the assigned districts.

"Lieutenant Colonel St. John made over the charge of the Beluchistan Agency to Lieutenant Colonel Waterfield, formerly Commissioner of Peshawur, on the 14th inst. and proceeds on furlough. After visiting the Viceroy's camp the new agent to the Governor General proceeds up the Bolan to Quetta and Pishin."

THE following is the telegram of the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, dated November 27:—

"The Ameer is still encamped at Deh Khoja, outside Kandahar, and is collecting transport for an early march. Reports differ regarding his intentions. One rumour—and that the more likely one—is that he is anxious to return to Cabul, and will start for the capital soon. Another rumour has it that he has ordered a portion of his harem to be sent from Cabul to Herat, and that he will spend the winter in the last-named city. It is also said that he is offering a remission of the year's revenue to all the Kandaharis returning to their homes, and that numbers are obeying the summons.

"A large caravan from Herat lately arrived at Kandahar, and the trade between the two places seems to be recommencing. Both cities are reported to be quiet.

"Abdul Kudus Khan continues to act as Governor of Herat, and Sirdar Habibullah Khan, the Ameer's uncle, remains in charge of Kandahar.

"A Lahore paper gives currency to a rumour that heavy customs duties have been imposed on the Khyber trade, and are being enforced with great rigour at Daka.

"The announced early settlement of the Mahsud-Waziri difficulty may now be confidently expected. Yarik, the last of the ringleaders of the raid on Tank, whose son was given up as a hostage, has now himself surrendered, and the tribe have sent back a Hindu lately kidnapped from the Bannu district.

"The Pioneer states that, although it has been decided that the proposed expedition against the Aliwal tribe will not come off this year, yet the idea has not been finally abandoned, and the matter may be reconsidered in the spring.

"The Abor expedition, consisting of 312 men of the 43rd Assam Light Infantry, under Major Beresford, started from the Dibong outpost on the 12th inst., and have thus far met no obstacles beyond those presented by the thick jungle and difficult country through which the march lies.

"Some anxiety is felt in Cachar owing to the attitude of the Lushis. Two sections of that tribe have been engaged for the last few years in constant internecine feuds, and have neglected their agricultural operations. The result is that one section has been reduced to great distress, and is assembling in large numbers on the Cachar frontier. The British authorities are taking steps to relieve them, and it is hoped that the timely assistance now given may prevent their yielding to the temptation to raid on the almost defenceless tea gardens of Cachar.

"The reduction in the strength of the artillery in India, which was recommended by the Army Commission, has been sanctioned by the Secretary of State. The number of batteries will henceforth be 77, instead of 88. An attempt will be made to secure a greater efficiency by keeping up the full complement of officers and men, particularly in garrison batteries. The scheme does not, however, appear to meet with unanimous approval.

"This winter promises to be a period of some importance in the history of Indian railway enterprise. Two new State lines are to be commenced, both as protective works against famine. The first of these is the metre gauge line, starting from Rewari, on the Rajputana Railway, and extending to Hissar. It will be carried on ultimately to Ferozepore, and when finished will greatly shorten the communications between the Punjab and Bombay. The second line, also of the metre gauge, will connect Bellary with Portuguese Goa and the Marmagao Railway, and will have a branch from Gadac to Sholapore, on the Great Indian Peninsula line. Surveys are to be made of the three alternative routes between Calcutta and Nandgaon, the present terminus of the Nagpore-Chatisgarh Railway. Doubtless the work will be begun as soon as the best route has been selected, and the long-talked-of direct Calcutta and Bombay railway may shortly become an accomplished fact. Another survey party will examine the country between Mymensing and Gowhatty, in Assam. The country north of the Ganges, from a point opposite Patna to Baraich through Goruckpore, is also to be explored, and it is rumoured that, if the Government decides on a railway there, its construction will be entrusted to private enterprise. There is also talk of surveying for a line to connect Bundelcund with the Central Provinces system. A meeting has been held at Rawul Pindi to discuss the project of a railway thence to the hill station of Murree, and it was determined to take steps for the formation of a company.

"The returns lately received from the tea districts show that the whole crop will probably not exceed 47,500,000lb. Putting the exports to Australia at 750,000lb., and setting aside 570,000lb.

for the country consumption, this leaves an available total of 46,000,000lb. for export to England. The home tea planters and the merchants in Upper India, encouraged by the success of the Calcutta syndicate in opening the Australian market, have formed a syndicate for the purpose of trying to push the tea trade with Central Asia. Peshawur will be the headquarters of the operations.

"Dr. Vincent Richards, a well-known authority on Indian poisonous snakes, has commenced a series of experiments to test the efficacy in cobra poisoning of Dr. Lacerda's plan of injecting permanganate of potash. He states that the experiments, although not absolutely conclusive, have yet, so far as they have gone, led to much more hopeful results than any previously instituted, and believes that the ground for hoping for a practical remedy has at last been found. The progress of Dr. Richards's experiments will be watched with much interest.

"The Mysor harvest reports are favourable. Rain is falling throughout the province. The crops are in good condition, and prices are decreasing."

THE following telegrams, received through Reuter's agency, have appeared in this morning's papers:—

AGRA, Nov. 26.—The Viceroy has returned here.

AGRA, Nov. 27.—The Viceroyal party left here this evening for Benares.

BOMBAY, Nov. 27.—The Viceroy has sanctioned a considerable reduction of the present tariff for inland telegrams.

CALCUTTA, Nov. 26.—The trading caravan under Mr. Dalgleish reached Yarkand on Sept. 8 last, and was cordially received by the Governor of Kashgar, who granted Mr. Dalgleish permission to reside in the city and dispose of merchandise anywhere in Kashgar.

COL. OSBORN, CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY, AND THE INDIA-OFFICE.

THE appointment of Lieut. Col. R. D. Osborn to give a series of lectures on Indian history at the University of Cambridge has been cancelled. In a letter to the Calcutta Statesman Col. Osborn says:—

"In the last Friend of India that has arrived in England I see an announcement to the effect that Lieut. Col. R. D. Osborn has been appointed lecturer on Indian history at the University of Cambridge. This announcement, true at the time, is no longer so, the nomination having just been cancelled; and, as the entire transaction is instructive as indicating the relations which exist between the India-office and the universities, I hope I shall not be considered by your readers to be guilty of undue egotism if I make it the subject of my letter of this week.

"The appointment in question is a new one, it having been, in fact, only created this year, and had I been allowed to retain my nomination I should have been the first incumbent. The intention is to appoint a lecturer every year, who shall deliver a course of ten lectures on Indian history, primarily for the benefit of such undergraduates as are going out to India as civilians; but the desire of the University authorities is to obtain lectures of sufficient interest to attract the students generally. The duty of selecting lecturers belongs to the Board of Historical Studies. The first I knew of either this board or these Indian lecturers was in the month of July last, when a member of the board, Sir Rowland Wilson, called at my house, and to my great astonishment inquired if, in the event of my being nominated by the board, I would deliver the first course of ten lectures. He added that the subject on which in all probability the board would desire me to lecture would be the Mahomedan period of Indian history. I said that, if limited to that subject, I would not lecture, as I deemed it to be one destitute of practical utility; but that I would gladly deliver a course of lectures on India subsequent to the foundation of the British power. At the same time, I was careful to warn Sir R. Wilson that, if Indian officials were consulted on the propriety of my giving such a course of lectures, they would protest against it most vehemently. Notwithstanding this warning on my part, about a month later I got a formal invitation from three members of the board delegated for that purpose, to deliver at the university a course of lectures on the Mahomedan period of Indian history, in conjunction with Professor Max Muller, who was to deliver five on the Hindu period. I replied as I had done to Sir Rowland Wilson, that I would not lecture on the Mahomedan period, but suggested as an alternative that I should be allowed to deliver a series of lectures on 'Indian Land Tenures as affected by British Rule.' I did not expect any notice to be taken of this suggestion, and my surprise was proportionally great when a few days later I received the following letter:—

"Since I last wrote to you matters have been a good deal simplified by a letter which I have received from Professor Max Muller, to the effect that, owing to the state of his health, he will certainly not be able to lecture in the October term, and cannot make any binding promise as to the Lent term. Consequently, my colleagues and I consider that we shall be quite within our instructions in nominating you on behalf of the board as our first lecturer, to give five lectures at all events in the course of November, and five more later in the year, in the event of Max Muller failing, should you feel disposed so to do, and in asking you to choose your own topics without reference to any particular series.

"This, you will perceive, is as formal and explicit an invitation as a man could possibly receive. I accepted it, and began forthwith to prepare my lectures, which are now nearly completed—four of them entirely so. But I now learn that, previously to their invitation being sent to me, a member of the board had gone to the India House and consulted General Strachey on the propriety of the nomination. General Strachey, as was quite natural, declared it to be the most improper nomination that could be imagined—that 'my name stank in the nostrils of the Indian Government,' with much else to the same effect. Since that time members of the board have been plying with 'private and confidential letters' from Indian officials, whose names are withheld from me, but who are regarded (I am told) as 'authorities,' and who are all agreed that a series of lectures by me on 'British Rule in India' would greatly corrupt and mislead the minds of the ingenuous youth who were so unfortunate as to hear them. The result is that the board has become terrified, and 'caved in.' Having to choose between the alternative of giving offence to a powerful body like the India-office, or merely to inflict a wrong upon a powerless individual like myself, it has, as might be expected, elected for the latter. It has wriggled out of the difficulty by repudiating the action of its delegates as going beyond the letter of their instructions; but it is good enough to say that if I will give five lectures on the Mahomedan period, as originally proposed, they will send up my name for the confirmation of the senate. This alternative I have declined, or rather intend to decline; for, though I have been informed privately of the course of procedure which the board intends to adopt, I have as yet received no official notification on the subject. I suppose I shall do so in a few days, as the board was to meet yesterday to come to a final decision on the subject.

"I have not told this story with any desire to exhibit myself to your readers as a martyr. In fact, but for the announcement in the Friend of India that I have been appointed to the lectureship I should not have referred to the matter at all. But the occurrence has a public importance, in so far as it discloses the almost insuperable difficulties against which those have to struggle who try to place before the British nation any view of British rule in India other than the rose-coloured official one. The officials of the India-office, not content with governing India with despotic authority, actually dictate to a board of university professors the view of Indian history which shall be taught to the undergraduates, and the board meekly acquiesces in their right so to dictate, the reason being that all established institutions, whether universities or India-offices, feel that they have one instinct in common, which overrides all other inclinations—the instinct of self-preservation. The man who desires to reform anything, no matter what it is, is a hateful and alarming phenomenon to all institutions which know that sooner or later the reformer will be knocking at their own doors. Such a man belongs to a variety of the human race which they would be glad to see extirpated altogether; and consequently they are ready to lend a helping hand to each other when one of these unpleasant gentry has to be suppressed or got out of the way. So great, indeed, is the power of these established institutions that, but for the law which converts the possessor of a bad conscience into a coward, they would be impregnable. They and their abuses would flourish unpruned for centuries. But, happily, they are cowardly to the core. They cannot refrain from persecution. They select some man who, if left alone, would be capable of doing no harm to them, and make him a power potent against themselves, by the petty wrongs to which they subject him. For the public at large, careless of general questions, the particulars of which they do not understand, are quick to resent injustice to an individual. And so, through the individual case, they rise to a knowledge of the host of abuses which exist around and beyond it. When the India-office officials, who have prevailed upon the board to suppress these lectures of mine, come to hear of their success, they will doubtless rejoice. But I am not without hope that their rejoicing will be turned into sorrow. To the general English Liberal there is nothing perhaps in the whole empire so entirely hateful as the India-office and the Government of India—no two institutions which he believes to be more rotten and mischievous, or which he would sooner see swept out of existence. And this suppression of my lectures will give to English Liberalism an opportunity of showing up these twin institutions which they are not likely to let slip. The lectures, suppressed at Cambridge, will most probably be delivered in London, and if so, to audiences all the larger because of the circumstances under which they will be delivered."

MR. GRANT-DUFF'S RECEPTION AT MADRAS.

THE very precise orders that had been issued by the Government and the railway authorities for the reception of Mr. Grant-Duff, the new Governor of Madras, were obeyed in every particular; but it is open to question whether the arrangements to protect his Excellency from the inconvenience of being slightly crowded were not too stringent. Tickets for admission to the platform at the railway station were issued to fifty persons, and the members of the Governor's staff were passed; but those officers, gentlemen, and ladies who were not favoured with the agent's authority were compelled to await the Governor's arrival in the corridor outside the ornamental rails and under the verandah. The platform, up to which the special train was brought, would easily accommodate five hundred people, so there was room and to spare for the not considerable number of people who assembled under the verandah. It was a novelty, which can hardly be approved, to debar officers wearing her Majesty's uniform, and some of the most charming members of local society, from entering an enclosure of great magnitude for the purpose of according by their presence a courteous welcome to the new ruler of the presidency. It was alleged that when Mr. Adam arrived he was almost hustled; the fact really being that there was a small crowd of local notables who trod just a wee bit on each others' heels in their movement forward to see what his Excellency was like. The authorities have now gone to the other extreme, and in their exaggerated anxiety to protect the sacred person of the Governor from contact with the graceful folds of a fair lady's dress, or the withering touch of a scarlet tunic, they put a slight on a good many people who are not usually—as the regulations would seem to imply—addicted to rushing and pushing in the unpleasant manner that is characteristic of "Arry of the City of London." In order that there might be no evasion of the regulations, two British sentries were placed at the west end of the red cloth and two more at the gates leading to the platform. These soldiers had strict injunctions to closely scrutinise all tickets presented, and refuse admission to, it not also to bayonet on the spot, all who did not hold them; and four more sentries paraded along the red cloth to come to the rescue of their comrades in the event of their being worsted in their gallant endeavour to resist the encroachments of generals, surgeon generals, inspector generals, colonels, bishops, vicar apostolics, archdeacons, astronomers, and the fair sex. We should add that about 150 chairs were placed in the corridor for the accommodation of ladies and others, and, on the train being signalled as having left Perambore, the sentries were directed to "see that all the general visitors accommodated in the corridor retire behind the rope, which will be placed so as to leave the passage to the carriage quite clear." We are rejoiced to have to say that the sentries did their duty bravely, and that the officers of distinction and ladies of fashion did what they were told to do by the military Cerberuses. The discovery, beneath one of the chairs, of the following ode would, however, seem to show that the author—a "doing duty" officer it is said—was unhappy:—

"I shall always remember
A warm fifth of November,
The Government's stern orders and plot,
When I failed to make entry
Because of a white sentry
To a place where my rank was forgot."

The platform—the departure one was used for the arrival!—was covered with scarlet cloth. A guard of honour from the Volunteer Guards, with the regimental colour and band, under the command of a captain, and with Colonel Ross Church, the commandant, in attendance, was drawn up on the southern side of the platform. The special train arrived punctually at 8 a.m., and was stopped rather higher up the platform than had been calculated upon by the body of select officials who were waiting for it. A strategic movement to meet it having been successfully accomplished, a pause ensued, and then Mr. Grant-Duff alighted, and was received by the Honourable R. Davidson, C.S.I., the chief secretary, who, in the nearest approach to "war paint" that was ever designed, gave a martial air to the proceedings. Mrs. Duff now descended from the train, and was followed by her children and their attendants. Captain Awdry, R.E., the private secretary to his Excellency, Major Kenney Herbert, military secretary to the Provisional Governor, Dr. Mackenzie, H.E.'s surgeon, Mrs. Mackenzie, Captain Cavendish, A.D.C., and others alighted from the other carriage, in the train. Mr. Davidson introduced a few of the nearest gentlemen and ladies to his Excellency, and Sir Charles Turner, C.J., offered his arm to Mrs. Grant-Duff, and escorted her, the Governor following, down the platform to the place where the ticketless officers and others were gathered together, and thence to the carriage, which was drawn up on the other side of the station. The carriage was drawn by four horses, with postillions in scarlet jackets, black and gold caps, white breeches and black boots. The Governor and Mrs. Grant-Duff having entered the carriage, were followed by Mr. Davidson and Capt. Awdry, and the station was left by the door of the north corner. The Governor's body guard was drawn up in review order in the compound before the building, and as soon as the carriage was perceived emerging from the arch a bugle sounded, the troopers drew their swords, and when the carriage came up they formed a guard before and behind it, and the procession, so well known to people in Madras, was complete. On passing the hospital a successful effort was made by some military patients in the verandah to satisfy his Excellency that they were not suffering from pulmonary affection, and the native crowd, which was rather dense in this part, mildly echoed the hurrah of the warriors on the sick list. The procession moved on to the Fort, and the Government-office was soon reached. Here a guard of honour from the wing 2nd Battalion, the Royal Fusiliers, consisting of 100 rank and file, with the band of the 39th Regiment

N.I., were paraded in review order, under command of a captain, and received the Governor with due honours. His Excellency then proceeded to the Council Chamber and the chief secretary read the warrant of appointment.—Mail.

THE OPIUM TRADE.

[TO THE EDITOR OF THE "TIMES."]

Sir,—I have read Sir George Campbell's letter on the opium trade, which appears in your paper of the 12th inst., with much pleasure. It contains admissions which are noteworthy. I hail his invitation, "Let us reason together," and his statement of the case as he views it, "put fairly and in good faith," as an earnest that the facts as they are will be really faced. My sole object in this letter is to ascertain the facts. Until this has been done we have no certain basis upon which we can reason. I will therefore confine my remarks to the objection taken by Sir George Campbell to that part of the resolution adopted at the Mansion House which stated it to be our duty "to withdraw all encouragement from the growth of the poppy in India except for medicinal purposes." This he considers quite misleading. "The Government of India," he says, "does not encourage, but restrains, the growth of opium." This is no doubt true, but only in a certain sense. Throughout by far the larger portion of our territories the growth of the poppy is, as he states, absolutely prohibited. I would, however, venture to ask him whether, in another sense, his own statement is not misleading. I would ask whether—first, the number of sub-agencies under the Opium Department, and the local areas within which the cultivation of poppy is permitted, have not both been considerably increased of late years. Secondly, whether, under the orders of the Government of India, in No. 533 Financial Department, dated May 14, 1869, it was not directed that "the most energetic measures should be taken to increase the cultivation, with the least possible delay, to not less than 790,500 beegahs, as estimated by the Lieutenant Governor, or to 800,000 beegahs;" and that these efforts were so far successful that 778,331 beegahs were under cultivation in 1869-70, exclusive of the areas in which the crop failed. Thirdly, whether, in order to equalise the price of Malwa and Bengal opium, it was not determined to increase the quantity, and thereby lower the price of the latter, and to raise the duty on the former. (Reports on the Material and Moral Progress and condition of India, 1872-73, page 9.) Fourthly, whether the course taken in purchasing opium grown in Nepal, an independent State, has not had the effect of stimulating the production in that State. (Report on the Material and Moral Progress of India for 1877-78, page 23.) That the Government of India does encourage, nay, press the cultivation, is, I submit, proved by a comparison of the number of chests of opium shipped from Bengal in the following years:—

	Chests.		Chests.
1875-76 ...	46,629	1878-79 ...	54,572
1876-77 ...	47,126	1879-80 ...	59,622

The Government of India is armed with full powers to deal with this subject. Act I of 1878 provides that, except in districts specially exempted, no one shall—(a) cultivate the poppy, (b) manufacture opium, (c) possess opium, (d) transport opium, (e) import or export opium, (f) sell opium, (g) omit to warehouse opium brought from foreign territories, under penalties which may extend to one year's imprisonment, or fine, which may extend to Rs.1,000, or with both.—I am, Sir, yours faithfully, C. W. TREMENHEERE, Lieutenant General.

[TO THE EDITOR OF THE "TIMES."]

Sir,—As one who took part in the Mansion House meeting I ask the favour of being allowed to reply shortly to Sir George Campbell's letter. We rejoice to think that there is no difference between us as to our duty towards China, and that we are not justified in enforcing treaties for the admission of opium into that Empire. The next question is, are the Chinese really in earnest in desiring the prohibition of the poppy cultivation in their own country, or are their objections to the traffic on moral grounds a mere subterfuge to get rid of the foreign drug, and so to derive a larger revenue from the home growth? In answer to this we say that Emperors, Prime Ministers, and Ambassadors have maintained an unvarying and emphatic protest against the traffic and the vice of opium smoking, and that in 1839 they made an heroic attempt to annihilate the trade, both within and without the Empire, by throwing into the sea 20,000 chests of opium, a course which only failed because not seconded by this nation. But now, were we to hold out to them the hope of our support in their effort to prohibit the native cultivation in China, it would impart to them a moral power which, with the growing strength of their naval and military armaments, would give a fair prospect of success.

Turning now to India, there might be some ground for Sir George Campbell's comparison of our Indian monopoly with the Gothenburg system had our Government adhered to the principle stated by Lord Cornwallis, "to obtain the largest amount of revenue from the smallest possible amount of consumption," but, instead of this, the cultivation has been rapidly extended, in order to retain command of the China market by under selling the Chinese-grown opium. The export from all India to China has risen from 2,000 to 100,000 chests during this century. What we aim at is, that the growth of the poppy in Bengal should be prohibited, and not merely discouraged, and our Government has in its own hands the instrument for effecting this on a simple and equitable principle, and without any violent shock to our Indian revenue. The prohibition will be no loss to the Indian farmers or ryots. On the contrary, the cultivation is in a manner forced upon them now by undue facilities in the form of advances of money. Let our Government, then, propose to aid the Chinese Government in arresting this poppy plague in China by gradually reducing the extent of cultivation in Bengal under the monopoly till the production is extinguished in the course of a few years. At the same time let the duty on opium from the independent native States on the Bombay side be raised from year to year, so that in the course of a few years the price of opium in China will be raised to such a figure as to place it beyond the reach of the masses, and thus gradually to extinguish the vicious habit. In this way ample time will be given for the gradual substitution of other sources of revenue in India, while in China the moral sense of the nation will be satisfied as well as that of our own. Instead of drugging to death the customers whom we expect to purchase our manufactures, a great hindrance will be removed from the expansion of legitimate commerce, to which, with a country so rich in mineral and agricultural wealth, and a population so vast and industrious, we can set no limits. Should smuggling be attempted it will not be under the old conditions of a feeble Chinese Executive and a tacit recognition of it by our Government, but we may hope under an international code of laws which will deal with it as it has dealt with slavery. Those who know what opium smoking is protest against this vice being put on a level with the use of strong drink in this country. The Oriental vice is far more seductive and deadly in its result.—Yours, &c., DONALD MATHESON.

A NATIVE RAILWAY ENTERPRISE.

WE are glad to observe that native capitalists are coming forward to lay out money for the construction of railways. We have before us the prospectus of what is called "A Light Passenger Railroad from Ranigunj to Puri, through Bankura, Midnapore, Balasore, Cuttack and Khorda." The projectors thus estimate the probable cost of the undertaking:—

"From a prospectus of a European firm of contractors, Messrs. Oldham and Brothers, to which we have had access and a page from which we extract below, it will be seen that supposing the concession of the land and the existing road be made by Government a general traffic railway according to size, &c., will cost from Rs.36,200 to Rs.55,000 per miles supposing the whole length to be bridged. We do not propose to bridge any of the following rivers on which arrangements would be made for a steam ferry, viz., 1. The Cossai.—2. Suburnarekha.—3. Baitarni.—4. Brahmani.—5. Mohanadi, and the reduction in the mileage rate in leaving these rivers unbridged will be very great. It is then justifiable to adopt for the purpose of this note that a line for general traffic could be constructed at the lowest estimate (No. 4) which is "for a line of 20 miles of railway for general traffic with three intermediate and two terminal stations and allows for the construction of the line and its complete equipment with rolling and other working stock." If such a line be constructed north of Midnapore, we should have to estimate increased receipts from traffic but in laying out these proposals it is desirable to confine our attention at first solely to the question of the construction of a line for the transport of passengers until it is seen what prospects there are of collecting the capital for a greater work. Looking to all the grounds for reducing the rate for such a light railway and to the fact that his Highness the Maharaja of Mourbhanj has agreed to allow the sleepers from the southern extremity of Midnapur to Ranitalow near Bhadrak, a distance of about seventy-eight miles to be furnished from his forests without royalty, it is thought that Rs.30,000 per mile is a rate far above any thing that the proposed line will cost. The distance from Ranigani to Puri is 312 miles. The distance from Ranguni to Cattack only would be 260 miles. The total cost of a light passenger railway to the former place would on the basis of the above figures be Rs.93,60,000 while to the latter place it would be Rs.78,00,00,000. But to avoid any possible under estimating for the purposes of the present note, the figures Rs.1,15,10,000 and Rs.1,00,000 will be respectively taken."

We observe that a committee has been formed at Balasore for the promotion of the scheme, consisting of the following gentlemen:—The Maharaja of Moourbhanj, Raja Shyamanand De, Babus Umefhchander Mandal, Radharaman Das, Jagannamohan Ray, Madanmohan Das, Kumar Baikanthanath De, honorary secretary, and Babus Becharam Nandi B. A. and and Trailokyanath Ghosh B. A. honorary assistant secretaries. We wish the projectors every success. A railway to Puri will be a decided advantage to the country.—Hindu Patriot.

GOLD MINING PROGRESS IN KOLAR.

THE accompanying extract from the Madras Mail gives some idea of the progress of works in the Kolar gold field:—

"It is fortunate that the apprehensions which are now widely entertained in England about the prospects of gold mining in India; are exerting no influence on the progress of works. The persons actually engaged in mining have not allowed themselves to be influenced by the elevation or depression of folks at a great distance, who know no more about the difficulties to be overcome in gold-mining than they do about the habits and customs of men in the moon. The Kolar gold field is distant but a night's railway journey from Madras; and any one who is anxious to see for himself what is doing there will be sure of a welcome. Should he, perchance, arrive expecting to find the road to the field from the station paved with gold, or it, indeed, he should limit his anticipation to seeing the neat houses of mining captains decorated with blocks of stone glittering with precious metal, he will be disappointed. But he will notice on all sides that stone is being brought up from shafts, and that there is a good show, if not of gold, at least of pit labour, ingenuity, machinery, life, and cheerfulness. Should he put on the most childlike expression of innocence that he can command and essay to 'draw' the mining captains, he will discover that some men rise earlier in the day than he does, and sleep with one eye wide open. The captains are courteous and communicative, but they are also cautious, and they are careful to say no more than that they are 'on good stone,' or words to that effect. They leave time and the assayers to prove what the reefs they are working are worth, but they do not mind saying that they are happy as far as they have got. Just a few words, then, as to the progress that has been made. At the (Madras) Baiaghat Company's ground work is going on steadily in the main and one other shaft, the former being down close on 80 ft. deep. Good stone has been come across in the old workings, and Mr. Tom Bray, the mining captain, is as sanguine as ever. At the Kaisar-i-Hind Company's ground two large shafts have been commenced, and a number of trial shafts have been sunk. Mr. Plummer, captain of the Nundydroog, is pushing on his three shafts with great energy, and is completing a large tank for the storage of water. The works of the Ooregum Company are being zealously directed by Capt. Bryant. The management of this company has been defective, and this is the more to be regretted as the show of gold in earth washed in pans continues to be remarkable. The Mysor Company are going on steadily crushing during the day with one elephant stamp, and to date they have done 100 tons. Their 30-head battery is rapidly approaching completion, and should be ready for work in ten or twelve weeks. When it is ready the company will be able to work night and day, and 150 tons in stone will be put through in the twenty-four hours. The company have 1,000 tons of stone on the surface, and the engineer is sure that by the time the 30-head battery is ready the available supply from the several shafts that are now well advanced will exceed the daily consumption. As soon as 400 tons have been crushed the result will be made public by the directors in England. At present Captain Rogers is not crushing his best stuff exclusively, for he has orders to mix the stone from all his shafts and thus obtain a fair average. The assays in the company's laboratory on the field have been borne out by independent assays at home. Captain Roach, in charge of the Kolar Company's works, is showing much energy and skill. The work of the other companies calls for no special remark."

CORRESPONDENCE.

ENGLISH PUBLIC OPINION.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—What a wonderful agent in the affairs of the world is English public opinion! Just as the advocates of an excessive salt tax were beginning to hope that the whole question had been allowed to drop, had been pigeon-holed, they are terrified at the mere notion of the publication of some of the iniquities which every day are committed in collecting the tax. Lord Castlereagh and the rest of King George the Fourth's Ministers in 1822 refused to reduce the exorbitant tax on English salt, and in the year following the whole tax was swept away by the indignant voice of English public opinion; which has also swept away the slave trade, and will, I hope, sweep away the cruel laws which in India still make debtors the slaves of their creditors. In page 377 of the Allahabad Pioneer Mail of the 1st of this month you will find what alarm has been created in India by an old woman at Karachi. She had the misfortune to bring into her hut a lump of earth for the purpose of repairing her fireplace. The warmth of the fire brought out a slight deposit of salt, and in an unlucky moment she was accused of manufacturing illicit salt and punished accordingly. Now, there are tens of thousands of cases as bad in India; the only difference is that they are not published. At Kalabagh, on the Upper Indus, men, women, and children are liable to be shoved into prison if they dare to scrape their walls, their floors, or their ceilings. Englishmen can scarcely conceive the furtive joy with which old women and children successfully bring in saline earth to mix with drinking water. Those who love and lay heavy burdens on the poor are alarmed; they say that a story of this kind in the hands of opponents of the salt tax may be almost enough to secure the subversion of the whole system by which alone the salt revenue can be obtained. My advice to them is at once to reduce the tax to a decent rate. Let the poor in India eat sufficient salt on condition of paying a salt tax equal to 2 per cent. income tax. The highly paid European civil officers give their doctors one week's salary in the year. Salt is the best medicine for the poor, and a 2 per cent. tax on industry ought satisfy the most determined collector of taxes.—Your obedient servant,

Nov. 24.

THE CARRIAGE OF GRAIN.

In our daily issue has appeared an advertisement, signed by the traffic superintendent of the Rajputana Railway, stating that the through rate for grain brought from Delhi and Agra to Bombay via Sabarmati would, from November 1, be one rupee one anna and five pies per maund. It was also announced that the Bombay and Baroda Railway had decided to charge seven annas and five pies per maund from Sabarmati to Bombay. As the distance from Sabarmati to Bombay is only 312 miles, whilst the distance from Delhi to Sabarmati is 577 miles, such a rate would be higher in proportion than that of the Rajputana line, and, as the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Company are known to carry goods at low rates, this appeared to us to be somewhat surprising. It will be seen, however, by an advertisement which appears in another column, that the traffic superintendent of the Rajputana Railway was not authorised by the Bombay and Baroda Company to quote seven annas and five pies as the rate per maund from Sabarmati to Bombay, and that the through rate, instead of being Rs. 1-1-5 per maund from Delhi and Agra to Bombay, is fifteen annas and five pies from Delhi and fifteen annas and ten pies from Agra. This anomaly of charging a higher rate from Agra to Bombay than from Delhi to Bombay, although the distance from Agra is less, is, we believe, due to the fact that the Rajputana Railway has refused to agree to the proposal that a through rate from both places should be fixed, and divide between the two railways in accordance with their respective mileage. It seems to us very strange that a narrow-gauge railway, the construction of which cost so much less than that of the broad gauge, should insist on claiming a higher rate, mile for mile, than they are prepared to allow the broad gauge to enjoy in conjunction with them. The attention of the Government might possibly be directed with advantage to this matter, as the frequent alteration of rates, especially when they are suddenly increased, has a tendency to disorganise trade; for just previous to such alteration a firm may have entered into a contract for the purchase of grain at a certain rate, and afterwards find that it cannot be delivered at the railway station before the increased rate comes into operation, and a loss on the transaction may be the result. A few days ago we drew attention to a circular issued by the Government of India in which it was distinctly laid down, as a rule not to be departed from, that the rates of freight from Delhi and Agra to Calcutta should be the same as those from Delhi and Agra to Bombay. But from inquiries we have made we find that this order is being ignored; and the increase of rates which the Rajputana Railway is apparently attempting to force on the Bombay and Baroda Company will make the through rates from Delhi and Agra to Bombay higher than the rates from those places to Calcutta. In the interests of the trade of the city this matter should be looked into, and a check placed upon the practice of so frequently altering the rates of freight.—Bombay Gazette.

MR. GLADSTONE ON THE AFGHANS.

MR. GLADSTONE has found out that the Afghans are gallant. "Well, gentlemen," the Prime Minister said to the working men of Leeds—he had just been talking of the heroic Montenegrins—"Well, gentlemen," I go to other regions—I go to the region inhabited by another gallant people, the people of Afghanistan." So, in future, we must think of our late enemies as gallant, just as the Achæans were well greaved. Yet it requires an effort to overcome old prejudices; and we are tempted to think that if Mr. Gladstone were really to go—in person and not figuratively—to the country of the gallant Afghans, he would have his throat cut in anything but a gallant fashion. Is it gallant to be so faithless that "Afghan be-iman" is a proverb; to be so revengeful that no man, they say, is safe from the vengeance of an elephant, a cobra, or an Afghan? They were not gallant men who massacred the Cavagnari mission, whose fate Mr. Gladstone seems to have forgotten. Nor does history, any more than their latest achievements, show that the Afghans were ever gallant. Thus Dr. Bellew says, "a darker record of misgovernment, of vice, of treachery, of savage cruelty, and of oppression, than marks the career of the independent Afghans, is hardly to be found in the annals of any other independent State of modern times or of the same period." So much for the gallant people of Afghanistan—these gallant mountaineers, as Mr. Gladstone calls them later on. The workmen of Leeds are imbibing queer notions of gallantry.—Pioneer.

THE SAME.

THE Prime Minister of England, in all human probability, will find an early opportunity afforded him for speaking of "another gallant people—the people of Afghanistan." An Afghan chief would sell Mr. Gladstone any commodity he might be possessed of, and, having secured the purchase money, would then murder the Prime Minister, or anybody else, to get the article back. Brave they are, in the sense of fearlessness; cowardly in their treachery; and worse than Red Indians in their spirit of revenge and savage cruelty. Mr. Gladstone over painted the Afghan character and used a wrong word when he associated "gallantry" with such people. It was scarcely gallant of the Ameer to destroy Wali Shere Ali's house at Kandahar and to banish the Wali's brothers. The act, besides, was a reflection on any unknown quantity of loyalty the Ameer may feel for his English benefactors. The Wali was an open friend of the English, and the Ameer's dislike, or hatred of his old antagonist might have been politically cloaked by that fact. The Ameer's act adds one more to the number of those intriguers by whom his reign will be surrounded. Although in Persia the fugitive Ayub is not alone, Ahmed Ali Khan is with him, and Musa Jan, the direct heir apparent, in the views of the Shere Ali faction, is said to be about to join him. Ayub is, moreover, within easy reach of Meshed and the Russian camp. Ayub Khan, at the age of twenty-one, in his plans for empire, is too astute to neglect any opening which a Russian secret alliance might afford him. Russian intrigue, and plans for advancement in Central Asia would readily recognise and take advantage of the opportunity which the secret, or even open, support of Ayub Khan would afford. General Vehrverg, at Askabad, but little more than 150 miles from Meshed, would be a ready and willing adviser to Ayub to help to a Russian occupation of Herat. Between Askabad and Bami, the Daman-i-kuh terminus of the Russian railway, from Mekhaslovsk, on the Caspian, there are four new fortresses constructed by the Russians. Already certain Merv chiefs are reported by Reuter to have been bribed to go to the headquarters of General Vehrverg, at the Russian headquarters at Askabad, and to make their submission. The demand by the Russian Government that the Merv Turcomans shall surrender their guns is another link in the chain of the Russian advance in Central Asia. That Russia will stay that advance at Askabad is not only improbable but now impossible. Merv, or Herat, or both, are already within the scope of the designs of Russian statesmen, and the power of the Russian Central Asian armies. Ayoub Khan's cause might be made to furnish another step in the advance, unless an understanding between Russia's former guest and Afghanistan's present ruler—Abdur Rahman—should preclude a fresh arrangement with his newly beaten enemy. The whole prospect is a grave one for British statesmen—who slumber on. The Persian frontier has already been violated, and reports state that Russian aims at advancing the boundary between her own acquisition and Persia, up to the Arak and Kesneg rivers, and that the arrangements will be discussed on the occasion of the Shah of Persia's visit to Russia next year. It any thing is ever to arouse the English Ministry on this Central Asian question, these facts might be expected to do so. Instead of the recent withdrawal from Kandahar, England may soon find it necessary to advance again into Afghan territory, and even beyond—if only to stop the "spread of civilisation à la Russe."—Indian Daily News.

MAJOR FLOWDEN.—We regret to hear that Major T. C. Plowden, deputy commissioner, Kohat, is seriously ill, and has been compelled to apply for two years' furlough. Mr. H. Tucker, at present officiating deputy commissioner, Dera Gazi Khan, will, on being relieved by Mr. Fryer, who is on his way back from furlough, be posted to the Kohat District.

SIR R. EGERTON.—His Honour the Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab was to start on the 10th inst. for the Peshawur frontier, where he will be on tour for rather more than a month. According to published arrangements, the principal halts will be at Peshawur and Kohat. His Honour returns to Lahore a few days before Christmas.

QUETTA NEWS.—General Hume, with his staff, left Quetta on the 1st of the month, intending to meet Col. St. John at Kach, to discuss the utility of maintaining that place as a permanent military post. General Wilkinson's force started from Quetta on the same date for their return march through the Bozdar country. It is believed that the Ameer will shortly return to Cabul, as the Kohistan and Hazara Districts are said to be a good deal disturbed.

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT, PUNJAB.—Mr. Harvey, tutor to the Raja of Chumba, has been appointed inspector of schools for the Mooltan Circle.

THE COMMISSARIAT FRAUDS.—It is reported from Ferozepore that Davi Chund, one of the local merchants concerned in the supposed commissariat frauds, has committed suicide. Anxiety of mind, says a contemporary, had unhinged his nerves, and led to an act which is luckily very uncommon among natives of his character and standing.

THE INDIAN PATRIOTIC FUND.—The subscriptions from the North West Provinces and Oudh to the Indian Patriotic Fund amount to a lakh and nearly thirty-eight thousand rupees.

IMPROVEMENTS IN CAPUA.—It is said to be probable that the 23rd Pioneers will be sent to Simla in March next, to construct a carriage road to Mashobra, which shall avoid the present unpleasant and damp tunnel, and make Mashobra almost as much a part of Simla proper as Chota Simla is at present.

IMPUDENCE.—The "Society for Securing the Interests of Native Christians in India" has memorialised the Government of India to exempt native Christians from the operation of the Arms Act.

THE LATE MAHARAJA OF DUMRAON.—The Maharaja of Dumraon, who only a few days before had been created a Knight of the Star of India, died on Saturday, the 5th inst.

BULRAMPORE.—A correspondent, writing from Gonda, notices a recent act of characteristic liberality and kindness on the part of his Highness the Maharaja:—"On hearing that fever was very prevalent in this district, the Maharaja promptly wrote to Calcutta for a large supply of chinchona febrifuge, and ordered that, on arrival, it was to be sent to the outlying dispensaries and thanas for distribution to the sick poor. Although this is only one of the thousand charitable deeds performed by this philanthropist, yet it speaks volumes for his thoughtful kindness." We greatly regret to hear that the Maharaja has been very ill with remittent fever of a severe type. The fever has now left him, and, though he is still far from strong, confident hopes are entertained of his recovery.

THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.—Sir Donald Stewart left Dibrugarh for Shillong on Oct. 30.

THE LIEUT. GOVERNOR OF BENGAL.—Sir Ashley Eden will probably leave Darjiling for the plains on the 8th inst.

FEMALE EDUCATION.—The Government of Bengal has sanctioned a grant of Rs. 10,000 in aid of the Bow Bazaar Girls' School.

CINCHONA.—The Darjiling News says:—"The Java process of shaving the bark of cinchona trees, which was introduced into Darjiling by Dr. King, has proved a decided success. The bark renews itself perfectly within about a year, and the trees do not appear to have suffered the least check."

ILLNESS OF THE LATE MAHARAJA OF DUMRAON.—A correspondent, writing on Nov. 1, speaks of the Maharajah being ill with the prevalent malarious fever. The letter concludes thus:—"I have just learnt with sorrow that the Maharaja's case has become still worse. Dr. Thornton, civil surgeon of Arrah, has been engaged to attend him. A special train has been kept ready at the railway station at the cost of the Maharaja to convey him to Benares in case any mishap takes place. The Maharaja's illness has cast a gloom over the whole town."

MADRAS.

MARRIAGE AT OOTACAMUND.—A correspondent of the Madras Times writes, Oct. 24:—"The last day of last week was enlivened by no less a ceremony than the marriage of Miss M. Clementson, youngest daughter of Col. Clementson, and Capt. F. Gordon, A.D.C. The marriage service was performed at St. Thomas' Church by the Rev. O. Dene, principal of the Lawrence Asylum, Lovedale. The bride takes precedence of course. Ivory or cream satin trimmed with lace of seed pearls, and several etceteras made up a very handsome toilette for the occasion; a wreath of orange blossom, and a veil completed the costume. The bridesmaids were Miss Clementson, sister of the bride, Miss Dene, Miss Aspinwall, and Miss Tarrant, each dressed alike—satin skirts of old gold, and coat-shaped bodies of red brocaded velvet, the bonnets to match made of a shape new to Ooty. Behind these four young ladies followed two dear little specimens of humanity, Miss Alice Hamlin, niece of the bride, and Miss Marguerite Souter; these were dressed in blue material—I can't give it a name—trimmed with lace, and bonnets and muffs to match. Several presents have not yet arrived, among them a silver tea set from the Ladies Grenville; the Duke sent his former A.D.C. a very substantial instance of his regard and remembrance."

NEW ARCHDEACON OF MADRAS.—On Wednesday evening last a special service was held at St. George's Cathedral in connection with the induction of the new Archdeacon of Madras, the Rev. G. Warlow, M.A.

LOAFERS.—The Government of Madras have appointed a committee to devise means for providing employment for European vagrants in that part of the country, in order to save the expense which now devolves upon Government of deporting them. The committee is composed of the Commissioner of Police, Captain Taylor, Mr. C. A. Galton, and Mr. G. Hamnett.

DEATHS IN MADRAS.—From the 22nd to the 28th ultimo four Europeans, eleven East Indians, ten native Christians, 199 Hindus, and forty-three Mahomedans died in Madras, making a total of 267 persons. The average of the corresponding week for the ten previous years was 258. The deaths are thus classified: Five from small-pox, two from measles, eighty-four from fever, thirty-five from dysentery, sixteen from diarrhoea, and 127 from other diseases. The population, according to the last census, being 379,552, the death-rate in the week under notice was at the rate of 34.9 per 1,000 per annum. A COMFORTABLE BERTH.—The average monthly income in his official capacity of Mr. Gould, the administrator general of Madras, during the half-year ending Dec. 31 last was Rs. 2,368, or about the pay of a district collector or a district judge. He is free to practise at the bar.

THE S.S. AFRICA.—Captain C. C. Thompson, who was in command of the B.I.S.N. Co.'s s.s. Africa at the time she stranded, has been honourably acquitted by the court of inquiry convened at Calicut to inquire into the matter, but the certificate of Mr. Cowan, the second officer, who was on duty at the time of the accident, has been cancelled.

BOMBAY.

THE AMEER.—Not the least objectionable act which the Ameer Abdurrahman has committed lately was the destruction of the Wali Shere Ali's house at Kandahar and the banishment of the Wali's brothers. The Wali is our particular friend; he has done us good service; and, considering all we have given the Ameer, it was hardly unreasonable to expect that his Highness would refrain from gratifying any private spite against our proved friends.

THE BOMBAY SECRETARIAT.—The Hon. C. Gonne, chief secretary to Government in the Political, Secret, Educational, and Judicial Departments, has been allowed special leave on urgent private affairs for six months, from such date in the present month as he may avail himself thereof, as also subsidiary leave for ten days previous to his departure from Bombay. During Mr. Gonne's absence Mr. J. B. Peile, C.S.I., will act as chief secretary to Government in the Political, Secret, Educational, Judicial, and Separate Departments, and Mr. J. Nugent, C.S., will take Mr. Peile's place as secretary to Government in the Revenue, Financial, and General Departments.

POLICE DEPARTMENT, BOMBAY.—Mr. R. H. Vincent, the deputy commissioner of police, Bombay, has been appointed by Government to be district superintendent of police in the Hyderabad District, vice Major G. B. Simpson, who has been appointed district superintendent of police, Karachi, vice Mr. G. T. Gierzen, retired. Mr. H. G. Gell, district superintendent of police in the Panch Mahals, has been appointed deputy commissioner of police, Bombay.

THE WEATHER.—Heavy rain has fallen in some parts of the Berars and Southern Mahratta Country—a most unusual circumstance for the time of year.

THE BOMBAY GARRISON.—The whole of the troops of the Bombay garrison were inspected on Monday by his Excellency General Hardinge, who on the following day left for Karachi on a lengthened tour in Sind and other parts of the Presidency.

CATHOLIC EXTENSION.—A new Roman Catholic church, which has been built by the Jesuits in Byculla, a populous district of Bombay, was consecrated on Sunday last by the Right Rev. Monsignor Mehrin, Catholic Bishop of Bombay.

BOMBAY TRAMWAYS.—The authorities have sanctioned a further extension of the Bombay tramway from the esplanade to the Prince's Dock.

THE GOVERNOR.—Sir James Fergusson left Puna for his riding tour through the Southern Mahratta Country on Oct. 5.

THE BERAR QUESTION.—The Bombay Gazette says that the young Nizam of Hyderabad is to make a tour through the Berars next month, accompanied by Sir Salar Jung.

THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.—General Hardinge left Bombay for Karachi on his cold weather tour in Sind and the North West on Tuesday. His Excellency is expected to return on Jan. 11.

INDIAN MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

THE question of issuing claret in regimental canteens is under the consideration of the authorities.

Veterinary Surg. C. Clayton, G-4th R.A., at Meerut, has been ordered to the Naga Hills, to investigate and report on the cause of the outbreak of disease among the commissariat and transport animals.

Capt. Deering, 2nd Battalion, the Cheshire Regiment, is compelled to resign the adjutantcy of the battalion owing to ill health; he appears before a medical board, and proceeds to England at once; Capt. Wyley succeeds to the appointment thus vacant.

Col. W. Carey, R.A., commanding Royal Artillery in the Quetta division, will probably be transferred, shortly, to Sind, in a similar capacity.

Lieut. Col. Sillery, Suffolk Regt., goes home to command the 2nd Battalion of his regiment.

Col. H. E. Whish, Bengal Staff Corps, contemplates retiring from the service in December next, under the bonus scheme.

Capt. R. K. Ridgeway, V.C., of the 44th Assam Native Infantry Regt., who was wounded at the taking of Khonoma, in the Naga Hills, in 1879, has been granted a wound pension of £70 per annum.

Capt. Aberigh-Mackay, 8th Bengal Cavalry, is to be attached to the Adjutant General's office, as a temporary measure, for the purpose of compiling statement of staff and war services of officers of the Bengal Staff Corps and Indian Army for the War-office Army List.

The troops for the Viceroy's camp at Agra are gradually arriving there. On the 29th the Chesnut Battery and the King's Dragoon Guards marched in from Meerut, and the 14th Bengal Cavalry are expected shortly from Gwalior. Major Gibbings, of the King's Dragoon Guards, died on the march, and was buried at Agra on the 28th.

GENERAL COBBE, who is officiating for General Hume in the command of the Lahore Division, has obtained three months' leave to Dalhousie, therefore will not return to Jubbulpore quite as soon as was expected. He was at the head-quarters of his division all the past trying season, when cholera was raging at Meean Meer, carrying off so many victims, and last year also had to face a cholera epidemic in his command, as he was at Allahabad when cholera was so bad amongst the men of the 2nd Battalion Cheshire Regt. Since August last year General Cobbe has not spent one whole month at the head-quarters of his permanent command, having been kept continually on the move, officiating for absent divisional commanders at different stations. In August, 1880, he was directed to proceed to Allahabad to command the division, and on arrival found the European Infantry away in camp on account of cholera. After a couple of months, and when things had settled down into their normal condition, General Hume returned, and General Cobbe rejoined at Jubbulpore—in October—only, however, to be again sent back within a week to resume command of the Allahabad Division in place of General Hume, under orders for Kandahar, and then for Major General Sir H. Macpherson, K.C.B., V.C., who had proceeded to England on leave. He was allowed to remain quiet till February this year, when, on the arrival of General Macpherson, he returned to Jubbulpore, hoping to be allowed a little rest so as to make himself acquainted with the troops in his own command; but no such luck, for he was ordered off almost immediately to Lahore, where he still is.

His Excellency Sir Donald Stewart is expected to arrive in Calcutta from Assam on or about the 24th inst.

Colonel W. Carey has been appointed to command the Royal Artillery in the Sind district as a temporary measure.

The order as regards officers wearing the badge of rank on their shoulder straps has been made applicable to the Volunteer forces in India.

The place at Secunderabad of the 1st Battalion Royal Scots Fusiliers, who have just gone back to England, is being temporarily occupied by a wing of the 2nd Somerset Regiment from Kamptee.

Colonel W. W. Goodfellow, C.B., R.E., Major G. F. Bryant, Staff Corps, Lieutenant J. W. Gordon, Staff Corps, and Surgeon Major W. Gray have been permitted by the Secretary of State for India to return to duty.

The 7th and 9th Batteries of the 9th Brigade Royal Artillery which arrived from England in the troopship Crocodile, and were landed at Colaba on the 4th inst. were to proceed to Rangoon in the I.G. steamer Tenasserim on the 15th instant.

It is stated that the new pension rules for officers who entered the Staff Corps after September, 1866, have been extended to the old Indian Artillery and Engineers; but those who avail themselves of this scale in preference to the old rates will not be eligible in addition to the special extra rates sanctioned in 1878.

The death is announced of Lieut. Col. Peter Arding Van Homrigh, Madras Staff Corps. The deceased entered the service in 1855, and was appointed commandant of the European Veterans at Palaveram in 1879. The deceased was buried in the Palaveram Cemetery with the usual military honours.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, NOV. 28, 1881.

AN ADVANCE TOWARDS REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT IN MYSORE.

THE young Maharaja of Mysore and his accomplished and enterprising Dewan, Mr. Ranga Charlu, C.I.E., are to be congratulated on the success of an essay they have made in the direction of introducing representative government into India. On the 7th ult. an assemblage of landholders and merchants, to the number of one hundred and forty-four, met at the "Public Buildings," Mysore, to discuss the affairs of the State. The Dewan was in the chair, and read to the assembled lieges a financial and administrative report of the past year and estimate for the coming year, framed very much on the lines of a Secretary of State's Budget Statement. Thereupon followed a discussion or debate, which lasted over two days; in the course of which many interesting points were elicited. From the report of the proceedings that is now before us we gather that the representatives spoke with much good sense and moderation, and were met by the Dewan in a spirit of consideration and respect. The date of this assemblage marks an epoch of considerable importance in the constitutional history of India; we have little doubt that it will be looked back to as the occasion on which, for the first time in the annals of India, representative men have been brought together in sufficient numbers, and from all the districts over a sufficiently wide and diversified area, to warrant the hope that in this gathering we see the germ and the model for future Indian Parliaments.

The representatives were nominated in accordance with the wishes of his Highness the Maharaja, as recorded in the proceedings of the Mysore Government for the 25th of August last. Most, if not all, the taluks of each district were represented—from ten to twenty members representing each district. It will, of course, be at once observed that an assembly of which the members are nominated by the Local Funds Boards, themselves nominated by the Government, is still very far removed in character from a really representative body. But until the education of our Colleges and High Schools has had time to filter down more thoroughly through the various classes of the population we imagine that Indian public opinion—that of the most intelligent and most patriotic of our fellow-subjects throughout the country—will not sanction much further advance towards a purely elective system, the results of which might possibly discredit the first Indian attempts at self-government. The names of all the representatives, with those of the taluks which they represent, are published with the proceedings of the assembly, and afford a tangible guarantee of the good faith of their representative character. And it is, we hold, a very important point gained that a public assembly of this character and this importance should have been held, in which discussion was free, in which every member was invited to speak, and was listened to and answered by the representative of the head of the State. This is a long step towards the development of a true Indian Parliament. Mr. Ranga Charlu's sagacious and well-considered experiment will, we are confident, redound to his own credit and to the honour of his master, the Maharaja; and we believe that the hopes which he expressed in opening the proceedings will be justified by the event. These were the Dewan's words:—

"We are met here to-day by command of his Highness the Maharaja, and it is his Highness's wish that I should place before you, at these annual meetings a report of the administration of the past year and an outline of the measures proposed to be carried into effect in the coming year. His Highness hopes that by this arrangement the action of the Government will be brought into greater harmony with the wishes and interests of the people. His Highness's Government will be glad to receive any observations and suggestions which you may wish to make in the public interest, and I need not assure you that they will meet with every consideration. I have only to express my hope that, appreciating the spirit in which these arrangements have been initiated, your observations may be directed to matters of real public interest."

The administrative report, being the first of the new régime, was in every way interesting. The most important point of it was one that exhibits in a striking light the intelligence and progressive character of Mr. Ranga Charlu's administration on behalf of the Maharaja; it was, the extraordinary attention that is being paid to the rapid development of the railway communications of the State, and the marked liberality with which funds have been assigned for this purpose. This is what the Dewan said on the subject, after detailing the operations on the Bangalore-Mysore line, commenced under the late Administration:—

"Other lines of railway are even more urgently required for the province. A central line leading from Bangalore to Tumkur, Tiptur, and on to Tarikere, a total distance of 150 miles, is of far greater importance as regards the great bulk of the province. It will tap the great coffee and arecanut producing districts of Hassan, Kadur, and Shimoga; bring all remote parts of the province within easier reach of Bangalore, and may be regarded as the one most necessary work in the province to provide against future famines. Cartage from and to the above remote districts of the province, where good draught cattle are scarce, is very costly and totally inadequate for the transport of food in times of famine. The railway, besides being profitable in itself, will greatly add to the wealth of the exporting districts, and secure economy and efficiency in the Administration, and will be invaluable for promoting industry and cultivation and the general development of the province. The railways from Bellary, Goa, and the Southern Mahratta country converging at New Hoobli, when completed, can, with great advantage, be connected with this line. The distance from Tarikere by Shimoga to the frontiers of the province on this line will be a little more than fifty miles, and the total length of 200 miles from Bangalore can be completed and provided with rolling-stock for less than 80 lakhs of rupees, Rs.40,000 per mile being considered the maximum rate. The other railway extensions which can also be usefully undertaken are—a line from Mysore to the Wynaad, and another from Mysore to Coorg frontiers, the length of the line to be constructed in each case within the province being about fifty miles. These two lines will traverse comparatively poor tracts of the province. They are required to establish railway communication between Mysore and the important coffee districts of Wynaad and Coorg, which are dependent on it for supplies of provisions and labour. They will serve to draw the increasing traffic of these coffee and gold-mining districts to the already completed railway from Mysore to Bangalore, and thence to Madras, and when either of them is further extended to the western coast, to Beypore by the Wynaad, or to Tellicherry by South Coorg, it will also be of use for the large trade existing between Mysore and the Western Coast and Bombay. The want of such a connection with the Western Coast was very much felt during the last famine for getting down into the province the rice and other food grains cheaply brought by ships from Calcutta to the ports of Beypore, Calicut, and Tellicherry. These three railways, about 300 miles in length, may cost 120 lakhs of rupees. It is not to be expected that such costly works could be constructed out of the current revenues of the province. English enterprise, which had, unfortunately, been long kept out, seems now favourably disposed to embark on such undertakings in India, and arrangements could be made with English companies to undertake the construction of these railways by the guarantee of a moderate interest of 4 per cent. on the outlay only during the first few years of the construction. It is confidently expected that the railway will soon begin to repay the interest and become altogether self-supporting, and thus these important works so essential to the prosperity of the province will have been provided without any cost to the State."

We cannot refrain from supplementing this quotation with another, in which the Dewan expresses the enlightened interest that is taken by the Maharaja's Government in the rapidly-developing gold mining industry:—

"Another enterprise, which is also now largely engaging the attention of capitalists in England, is the mining for gold. Auriferous reefs are believed to run through different parts of this province on an extensive scale, and if those engaged in the enterprise should succeed in working these reefs with profit, they would completely revolutionise the future of the country. Lands supposed to contain reefs have been and are being leased out largely without any restrictions or any immediate money consideration, simply providing for the payment of the assessment on the lands with a royalty of 5 per cent. on the gross proceeds of the mines. His Highness's Government has also promised to take into consideration any proposals for the commutation of the royalty for the period of the lease by a present payment of Rs. 55,000 for each square mile. The prospects must yet be regarded as uncertain, but it is to be hoped that the attention of English capitalists now awakened to India may be soon directed to the development of other mineral sources and other industries in the country."

We are glad to discern, running through the whole of the Dewan's report, the spirit of liberality tempered with discretion which marks the two paragraphs we have here extracted; and the remarks of those representatives who offered suggestions or complained of grievances, were, as a rule, distinguished by the same sober and thoughtful tone. We regard this meeting—which is to be repeated annually, immediately after the close of the Dasara Festival—as very full of promise for the future happiness and prosperity of India.

MR. GLADSTONE AND SIR BARTLE FRERE.

Most of our readers are already familiar with the powerful defence put forth by Sir Bartle Frere, in reply to the virulent attack on his character as a statesman that was made by Mr. Gladstone in the course of the Midlothian "campaign." That attack had been made during Sir Bartle's absence in a remote and troubled Governorship, and at a time when the exceedingly difficult and delicate duties of his position ought to have enlisted on his side the warm sympathy and cordial support of every patriotic Englishman. During the past week the correspondence that has ensued on that reply has been made public; and deserves the close attention of every one who appreciates the vast responsibilities imposed on the English body politic by the Providence that has confided to English hands the tremendous task of administering an Empire in every quarter of the globe. Mr. Gladstone's letters are of the usual type. They are full of the most gushing expressions of esteem and affection for the victim of his aspersions—expressions that (as Sir Bartle modestly hints in his concluding letter) only serve to accentuate the recklessness with which the aspersions must have been originally flung. Now that those aspersions have served their turn, by discrediting the political party whose opinions were supposed to be typified in Sir Bartle Frere's alleged iniquities, the traducer expresses his willingness to make every possible explanation or retraction short of the only sufficient one, a frank and full confession that the aspersions were from first to last wholly unwarrantable and unjustifiable. Sir Bartle Frere, with equal force and justice, pins his assailant to the simple facts of his case—that at a time when he was engaged in negotiations of the most delicate nature, and of the highest importance to the welfare of our Colonial Empire, and when he was utterly precluded from saying a word in his own defence, he was described to the British public by Mr. Gladstone in terms that have without doubt identified his name, in the minds of a very large number of his countrymen, with all that is most truculent and most detestable in that figment of the Gladstonian imagination, the sanguinary Jingo of our Indian and colonial administrations. Glancing only slightly at the terrible consequences to himself personally that have resulted from the unjust impeachment—consequences by no means measured by the comparatively insignificant incident of his recall from South Africa, but involving the defeat of all his highest and noblest aspirations for the public good, and the temporary clouding of a reputation that has been surpassed by none of the brightest names in Indian story—Sir Bartle Frere shows that the harm done to the Empire in South Africa was even greater and more irretrievable. "If I could feel," he says, "that great national interests were not being sacrificed in South Africa, I should have little regret for anything that has befallen me personally in the strife of parties." But the British public will, we believe, note and sympathise with the magnanimity and the deep and earnest patriotism that can inspire such sentiments. In another letter Sir Bartle Frere says, with a touch of sadness that would have forced from most correspondents a very different response from the stereotyped phrases about "high character" and "distinguished abilities" actually evoked from Mr. Gladstone:—"The public servant who loses, as a consequence of party strife, any reputation he may have earned for judgment, justice, and sound patriotism, has no more right to complain than he who loses any less valued possession, health, or limb, or life in his country's service." These simple words, dignified and sad, seem to us to depict, more forcibly than the most fiery invective, the wicked and un-English character of the reckless personalities and slanders that invaded English political life, and unhappily proved such a powerful political weapon in the strife that brought about the downfall of Lord Beaconsfield's Administration. Every patriotic Englishman will heartily agree with Lord Hartington when, in his speech at Blackburn on Saturday, he protested against the "irresponsible and too often reckless criticism" of the acts of public men—criticism such as that which was brought into vogue by the Midlothian campaign.

HOME NEWS.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders were received on Wednesday at the Bank of England for £450,000 in Government bills on India. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, £289,900; to Bombay, £17,200; and to Madras, £142,900. Tenders on all presidencies at 18.7½d., being the minimum posted, received 92 per cent. Compared with last week this price shows no alteration. The same amount will be offered for tender on Wednesday next.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.—On Wednesday in the silver market the tone was inactive, bars being quoted as previously at 51½d., and Mexican dollars at 51¼d. per ounce. Telegraph transfers and Four per Cent. Rupee Paper underwent no alteration, but the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. receded ¾, to 91 1-16 to 3-16. The exchange from Bombay ruled at 18.8 3-16d.; Calcutta, 18.8¼d.; Hong-Kong, 38.9¾d.; and Shanghai, 58.1¾d. On Thursday the market showed a distinctly weaker tendency. The price of bars fell 1-16d., to 51 13-16d., at which figure only a limited business was transacted. Mexican dollars, though unaltered at 51¼d., were dull. The exchanges from Bombay and Calcutta were telegraphed respectively at 18.8 3-16d., Hong-Kong being 38.9¾d., and Shanghai 58.1¾d. Telegraph transfers for India ruled at 18.7½d. to 15-16d. Rupee Four per Cents. declined ¾, to 84 3-16 to 5-16; the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. being unchanged. On Friday an amount of bars to the value of £25,000 received by the Chili packed was disposed of for the Continent at 51¾d., being 1-16d. above previous price. Mexican dollars remained nominally at 51¼d. without business. Telegraph transfers and rupee paper were unaltered. The exchanges from Bombay and Calcutta were quoted at 18.8 3-16d., the rate from Hong Kong being 38.9¾d., and Shanghai 58.1¾d. On Saturday the market was extremely quiet, and prices were unaltered. The rates of exchange from India and China were unchanged, but the announcement of a reduction of ½ per cent. in the discount and advance rates of the Imperial Bank of Germany slightly stimulated the market for rupee paper. There were more buyers and the quotations at the close were firm at 91½ to 91¾ and 84¼ to 84½ for the Four-and-a-Half and Four per Cents. respectively.

H.M.S. TROOPSHIPS.—The Malabar, Captain Grant, arrived at Portsmouth on Thursday, a day before time, having left Bombay on the 28th of October. She brought home 23 invalids and 806 time-expired men for Netley, four invalids and 53 time-expired men for Woolwich, 43 women, 100 children, and 36 officers. There was one birth and a death—that of Private Greggs, of the 1st (Royal Lancaster) Regiment—during the voyage. The following are the names of the officers:—Capt. Belford, 17th Lancers; Capt. The Serapis was reported 340 miles south of Dædalus Light, in the Red Sea, on the 21st inst., proceeding under sail and steam, having carried away three blades of her screw; orders have been given to her Majesty's ship Crocodile to tow her to Malta, where she will be docked. A telegram was received on Saturday afternoon at the Admiralty from Suez, stating that the Crocodile was in sight, towing the Serapis. As the Téméraire has been despatched to Port Said in order to tow the Serapis to Malta, the Crocodile will proceed homewards as soon as she arrives at Suez, and it is not now anticipated that her arrival at Portsmouth will be delayed. The Orontes, troopship, Capt. Kinahan, in spite of the threatened gale, left Portsmouth on Saturday afternoon for Simon's Bay. With the exception of Major Fawcett, 1st Sutherland and Argyll Highlanders; Major Cramer, 3rd King's Own Rifle Corps; Lieut. the Hon. A. Lambart, R.A.; and 12 men, she left empty. Leaving Simon's Bay on the 31st of December, she will proceed to Natal, where she is due on the 3rd of January. At Natal she will embark the 2nd Battalion 21st Regiment, and the 99th Regiment for conveyance to Bombay, which will be reached on the 22nd of January. At Bombay the Orontes will remain seven days and will then return empty to Natal. On the 18th of February she will return to Simon's Bay, whence, having embarked a regiment of cavalry and an infantry battalion, she will sail on the 1st of March for Portsmouth, where she may be expected about the 28th of March. The cruise will cause the Orontes to traverse 22,300 miles.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.—The following is the official statement of the movements of her Majesty's ships:—From the East Indies—Letters have been received from the Commander in Chief, Rear Admiral W. Gore Jones, in the Euryalus, at Trincomalee, up to the 27th of October; would probably remain there until about the 15th of December, and then visit Calcutta, Madras, &c. The Eclipse was en route to Mauritius, Madagascar, Mozambique, and Zanzibar (see movements of the 8th of November). The Ready left Colombo for Chagos Islands on the 22nd of October; would return to Galle and, if in time, convey the Board of Trade engineer to Minikoi on the 24th of November. The Ranger arrived at Bombay on the 16th of October; after refit, would come to Trincomalee for inspection, and would convey engineer to Minikoi if the Ready had not returned. The Ruby, on completion of refit at Bombay, would temporarily replace the Ranger in the Persian Gulf, and, on being relieved, would proceed to Trincomalee for employment in the Bay of Bengal Division.

OBITUARY.—General Sir Edward Harris Greathed, K.C.B., died on Saturday week at Uddens, Dorset, in his 70th year. He was the eldest son of the late Mr. Edward Greathed, of Uddens, by his marriage with Mary Elizabeth, daughter of the late Sir Richard Glyn, of Gaunt's House, Dorset, and was born in 1812. He was educated at Westminster School, and entered the army in 1832. He became a captain in 1838, colonel in 1858, and was placed on half pay in the following year. He served with the 8th Regiment at the siege of Delhi in 1857, and was present at the repulse of several sorties; he also commanded a column sent to occupy the Khoodeiabagh, by which operations the batteries were advanced to within 180 yards of the walls. He afterwards led the regiment to the assault and served with it in the city. On leaving Delhi he had command of a movable column, and defeated the enemy at Bolundshur, Allyghur, and Agra; he subsequently commanded the 3d Brigade of the army under Lord Clyde, from November, 1857, to January, 1858, and was present in the action of Dilkoosha, in Lucknow, during the operations which resulted in the relief of the garrison. He likewise commanded the advanced pickets at Cawnpore, taking part in several engagements, including the action of Khudagunj and the occupation of Futtehghur. He was promoted to the rank of colonel and nominated a Companion of the Order of the Bath for his distinguished services in the field, and was made D.C.L. of Oxford University in 1859. The gallant officer commanded the Eastern District of England from 1872 to 1877, and attained the brevet rank of general in 1880. The funeral took place on Wednesday at the family burying-place in Ham Preston Churchyard, near Wimborne, Dorset. An escort of the Dorset Yeomanry Cavalry met the hearse at the churchyard, and a large number of the Freemasons of Wimborne and vicinity walked in procession, the relatives and friends following the hearse in carriages and on foot. About 300 were present, including Mr. Greathed (son of the late general), Lord Wolverton, Captain and Mr. Okeden, General Parke, C.B., Sir Richard Glyn, Hon. and Rev. Carr Glyn, Mr. Henry Glyn, Mr. C. Parke, Sir Charles Wellesley, Captain Clark Kennedy, General Sir Charles D'Oyly, Colonel Leopold Paget, Mr. Paget, Rev. C. Paget, Rev. G. Goode, and General Maclean. The coffin was of English oak, and was covered with beautiful wreaths of flowers sent by various friends, including Colonel and Mrs. Paget, and Captain and the Hon. Mrs. Clark Kennedy. Many of the shops in Wimborne were closed, and general respect shown by all classes.

FOOTBALL.—Royal Military College, Sandhurst, v. Royal Indian Engineering College, Cooper's-hill. These two Rugby Union clubs met on Saturday week on the ground of the Military College, and, after a well-contested game, Sandhurst were defeated by two goals and two tries to nothing. The cadets kicked off and at the outset had the advantage, but by vigorous play the ball was taken back to their twenty-five; it was, however, shortly returned, and for some time Cooper's-hill were penned almost on their goal-line, when Starkey, by some brilliant play, worked the ball back, and by following up soon after got in and secured a try between the posts, which he easily converted into a goal. After the kick-off some even play resulted until Green, by a good run and by clever passing, enabled Harrison to get hold of the ball and secure a second try for the visitors; the place kick, however, though an easy one, failed. Nothing more occurred until "half-time," and when ends were changed the game proceeded with alternating success until Starkey ran in from about the middle of the ground and obtained a third try for Cooper's-hill; the place-kick (a long one) was, however, again unsuccessful. Sandhurst then played up harder than ever, and for some time penned the visitors in dangerous proximity to their goal line, until by some good rallies the ball was gradually worked out to the centre of the ground, when Harrison once more ran in and secured a fourth try for Cooper's-hill, which Starkey converted into a goal just before "no side" was called. For Sandhurst Crabbie, Buck, Gray, and Burton were most conspicuous, while for the visitors, Starkey, Harrison, Clark, and Webb did excellent work. The following were the teams:—Royal Military College, Sandhurst:—J. Crabbie, W. M. Tracy, and W. J. Buck, three-quarter backs; W. R. Minchin and F. E. Younghusband, half backs; E. A. Snow, back; J. Dowell, captain; F. Gray, W. Ward, F. Parker, H. W. Campbell, P. Westmoreland, E. Wathen, O. H. Pecl-y, and C. Burton forwards. Royal Indian Engineering College, Cooper's-hill: W. B. Starkey and H. H. Green, three-quarter backs; G. M'C. Harrison and J. C. Lyle, half backs; H. Barlow and H. B. Taylor, backs; C. C. Clark, captain; A. L. Webb, A. Younghusband, J. F. S. Eve, S. S. Bonhote, P. L. Rooper, C. Egerton, L. F. Robertson, and G. Waddell, forwards.

INDIAN APPEAL CASES.—In the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council the case of in re Shama Churn Kas Navis has been decided. This was a petition praying for special leave to appeal in forma pauperis from a judgment of the High Court of Judicature of Bengal, by which the petitioner was six years since struck off the rolls as a pleader in the Indian courts. Mr. C. W. Arathoon, who appeared in his behalf, stated that the petitioner was what was known and well understood in India as "second grade pleader," and he was accustomed for many years to practise in the local tribunal at Patna-Khai, within the Bengal Presidency. In September, 1874, an official attached to that court informed the moonsiff that the petitioner had, as he alleged, offered him a bribe to affix the seal of the court to a deed. The moonsiff, to whom the petitioner utterly denied the charge, told him that if he confessed it he would be forgiven. The petitioner consulted with his brother pleaders, who persuaded him, notwithstanding his innocence, to take the moonsiff's advice, which he accordingly and reluctantly did, and the matter ended there for a time; but it ultimately reached the ears of a district judge, who, of his own motion, reported it to the High Court. A criminal prosecution was ordered to be instituted against the petitioner, and although the judge said there was no evidence against him, and that he appeared to have acted through fear of the moonsiff and the persuasion of his brother pleaders, the High Court ordered him to be disbarred and struck off the rolls as a pleader. Application which had been made to reinstate him were refused, and for six years the petitioner had been deprived of his only means of subsistence and been cast into great distress and poverty. He now, assuring their lordships of the utter illegality and injustice of the whole proceedings, asked that he might be allowed to appeal to them in forma pauperis from the decision of the High Court by which he had been disbarred. Their lordships, in the end, ordered the petition to stand over, and directed that, in the circumstances, the petitioner should have power to apply to the High Court to readmit him to practice and reinstate him as a pleader.—The case of the Nawab Azmit Ali Khan v. Lalli Begum and others has also been before their lordships. This was an appeal from a decree of the Chief Court of the Punjab of December 1, 1876, reviewing a judgment of the Commissioner of Lahore. Mr. Cowie, Q.C., Mr. Graham, Q.C., and Mr. Doyne were counsel for the appellant; Mr. Leith, O.C., and Mr. Mayne for the respondents. The original suit was instituted by Lalli Begum, who sued on her own behalf as widow of the late Nawab of Kurnal, and also as mother and guardian of the two minor sons of the deceased. Her claim was disputed by Azmit Ali Kahn, the eldest son by a former wife, and the successor of the late Nawab. The Commissioner of Lahore found that neither the claimant nor her sons were entitled to inherit, being of opinion that she was never married to the Nawab, and that her sons, who were not originally legitimate, had not been rendered so by subsequent recognition. On remand, he found that by family custom even a lawfully married widow could not inherit. The Chief Court, on appeal, accepted that finding as to the widow and dismissed her claim, but held that her two sons were entitled to inherit, as being either legitimate or by subsequent acknowledgment made so. From that latter decision the Nawab appealed. At the close of the appellant's case, the arguments in which had lasted three days, their lordships, without calling upon the counsel for the respondents, affirmed the decision of the Chief Court, and dismissed the appeal, with costs.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.—The report for the half-year ending June 30 states the gross receipts at £175,390, against £174,931 in the corresponding half of last year; the working expenses £93,647, against £102,949; and the net earnings £81,743, against £71,982. The gross earnings, as compared with those of the corresponding half-year of 1880, show an increase, and the working expenses a decrease. In order, however, to allow of comparison, a deduction must be made from both sides of the account for the half-year of 1881 of £2,579 in respect of the carriage of revenue stores. In previous half-years the carriage of such stores was not charged in account; but, in accordance with a resolution come to at a conference of representatives of all the Indian railways, it is now charged. If this amount be deducted the increase in the net earnings will be £9,761. It should be noticed that in the half-year ended June 30, 1880, the working expenses included exceptional expenditure. The profits in excess of guaranteed interest amount to £4,414. The amount to be divided among the shareholders as surplus dividend will depend on the rate of exchange at which the portion of this dividend payable to shareholders on the English register can be remitted to this country; at the current rate it would work out approximately that, including £504 balance of last surplus in hand, there would be to divide amongst the shareholders about £2,499. This sum would afford a dividend of 2s. per £100 of ordinary stock, in addition to the guaranteed interest of £2 10s., making, with it, a total of £2 12s. per cent. for the half-year. A resolution authorising the payment of the above dividend, or such other dividend as may be available, will be submitted to the meeting. The trade in connection with the Northern Bengal State Railway continues to increase; the company's gross earnings from this source during the half-year amount to £33,893, as compared with £29,852 for the corresponding half of 1880, an increase of 13 per cent. The gross earnings during the first 16 weeks of the current half-year amount to £212,767, as compared with £178,085 for the corresponding period of 1880, showing an increase of £34,683.

THE ROYAL COLONIAL INSTITUTE.—The first meeting of the Royal Colonial Institute for the session 1881-2 was held in the library of the Grosvenor Gallery, New Bond-street; the Duke of Manchester, K.P., president, in the chair. There was a large attendance of members and visitors. A large portion of the sitting was taken up with the reading and discussion of an elaborate paper, by Mr. Robert G. Webster, on "England's Colonial Granaries," who discussed in detail the grain-producing capacities of the three great colonial sources whence England at present draws a large proportion of her cereals—India, Canada, and Australia. Among the British dependencies there was none that would reap greater advantages by an increased export of wheat to our shores than would India. The cultivation of wheat was greatly increasing over the North West Provinces, Oudh, the Punjab, and Bengal, the Government having seemingly done all in its power to improve its cultivation, and having established model farms in different parts of India. In the Central Provinces the Nagpur model farm had been very successful, and done much to demonstrate to the cultivators the advantage of improved methods of culture for the common crops of the country. For wheat cultivation the results obtained from manuring and irrigation were such that the produce of an acre of white wheat amounted to 2,200lb., instead of about 410lb., and the value would be over £6, the cost of cultivation being not more than £1. By the extension of railways and irrigation works and wells throughout the length and breadth of India the danger of famines would be practically minimised. Were we to draw from India a larger bulk of wheat in exchange for our manufactures and our gold it would be greatly to the gain both of India and England. A discussion followed.

ORIENTAL GAS COMPANY.—The annual general meeting was held on Friday at the offices, St. Mary-axe. Mr James Sydney Stopford presided, and, in moving the adoption of the report, reminded the shareholders that, in order to obtain a renewal of the contract which they were now working under, they had been compelled to expend a large amount of capital and to make a considerable reduction, amounting to nearly £4,000 a year, in the charge for street lamps. As a set-off, however, they had secured an extension of public lighting and exclusive privileges for twenty-one years from May, 1880. In about two years hence a bridge would be built across the Hooghly, connecting the East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railways, and by this the company would largely benefit, as they would then receive their coal direct from the collieries without transhipment. Their future prospects were bright and encouraging. Mr. William White seconded the motion, and it was carried unanimously. The retiring directors and auditors were re-elected, and a dividend of 5 per cent. was declared, making 9 per cent. for the year.

LONDON PRODUCE MARKETS.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—Messrs. J. C. Sillar and Co. state that they have no improvement to notice in the market, which remains extremely quiet. Telegrams have been received from China stating the export to this country up to the 18th inst. to have been 129,000,000lb., against 142,000,000lb. last year, 140,000,000lb. in 1879, and 151,000,000lb. in 1878 at the same date. The estimates of the total export last year at this time were very much under the actual shipments, but if the present depressed state of the market continues it will be a surprise if they exceed 162,000,000lb. this season. Congou and Souchong.—New season's Congous are quoted as low as 6d per lb., and old season's at 5d. Speculators are now buying sweet new season's red-leaf teas at about 7d. per lb. Black-leaf kinds have been taken up to 10d. for export, and latterly a Russian demand has sprung up for good Monings from 1s. 5d. to 1s. 9d. per lb. Letters just received from Shanghai state that there remained 40,000 half-chests of Shantam Congou in stock, the quality being reported very poor, much worse than last season's. The quality of the stock at Foochow is also reported to be very poor, much of it being unfit for shipment to this country.

COFFEE.—The last sale of the Dutch Trading Company for the year was held to-day, and went at valuations to 1 cent advance. The market here is steady. By auction 23 packages plantation Ceylon sold at previous rates, and part of 933 bags foreign at 59s. 6d. to 60s. per cwt. for pale grayish washed Rio.

RICE.—Off coast a cargo Rangoon, 1,630 tons, reported at 7s. 3d. per cwt. open charter, and business has been done in new crop, February-April, at 8s. 3d. basis Rangoon.

COTTON.—The market is unchanged, and, with a moderate demand, the sales amount to about 1,800 bales, including Tinnevely at 5½d. to 5¾d.; Bengal at 4 11-16d. to 5 3-16d.; and Sind at 4½d. per lb. For arrival, Bengal, November-December, Suez, 5 3-16d. for fine f.g.c. Forward delivery, American, January-February, 6 17-32d.; April-May, 6 21-32d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that the markets still present a quiet appearance, and are so influenced by the improved state of trade in other parts of the kingdom, buyers as a rule restricting their operations to current requirements. Refiners take very limited supplies of sugar, and quotations have in many cases declined 6d. to 9d. per cwt. The late speculative movement in low brown East India descriptions has entirely abated. Crystallised Demerara by auction went slowly at the above reduction. Beet sugar for delivery offers at easier rates. The public sale of coffee on account of the Netherlands Trading Company was held yesterday, and went better than anticipated, valuations to 1c. advance being realised. Good ordinary Java quoted about 35¼c. to 35½c. The result has not, however, affected this market. A few parcels of coloury new crop plantation Ceylon have sold at 104s. to 118s. 6d. per cwt. To-day Costa Rica only partly found buyers at irregular or lower prices. Other descriptions are without material alteration. There is rather more inquiry for rice, some cargoes being disposed of on previous terms. China tea remains depressed. Common red-leaf Congou of last season's import sold by auction at 5½d. to 5¾d. per lb., being a lower price than at any former period. There is a good demand for Indian at steady rates. The spice markets are unsettled, quotations of black pepper and pimento having further receded.

COFFEE.—Plantation Ceylon firm for coloury; 71 casks 32 barrels and bags sold—low to middling, 75s. 6d. to 80s.; good middling to bold, 85s. to 111s. Part of 2,961 bags Costa Rica was taken in; some of the pale and mixed qualities sold under valuations—dull greyish, 63s. to 66s.; coloury brought 71s. 6d. to 76s.; 1,786 bags other foreign partly sold—fine coloury new Grenada, 86s. 6d. to 91s.; dull coloury Porto Rico, 75s. to 75s. 6d.; pale Guatemala, 52s. to 56s.; Central American, 52s. 6d. to 57s. 6d.; greenish, 61s. 6d. to 64s. per cwt.

RICE.—Business done in Madras on the spot, and market steady for cargoes of soft grain.

COTTON.—With a small demand, the sales only amount to about 500 bales, at unchanged rates, including Western at 4¾d. to 5d., and Sind at 3¾d. per lb.

FRIDAY EVENING.

RICE.—Firm. Two cargoes of Rangoon, new crop, spring shipment, sold at 8s. 1½d. to 8s. 3d., and during the week 23,000 bags Madras at 6s. 10½d. to 7s. 6d. per cwt.

COFFEE.—The auctions to-day were small. Plantation Ceylon coloury, new crop, sold steadily, at high prices, but foreign kinds went slowly. 43 casks, 12 tiers, 8 barrels 12 bags plantation Ceylon sold; small at 62s. to 69s.; middling to good middling, new crops, at 85s. 6d. to 88s. 6d.; bold, at 103s. to 114s. 148 bags East India withdrawn. 3,179 bags foreign small part sold; washed Santos, at 66s. 6d.; and Costa Rica, at 64s. Singapore bought in at 48s. for Bally.

COTTON.—The market has been quiet, and prices show no change. Sales about 2,000 bales, including Bengal at 4½d., and China at 5d. to 5 15-16d. per lb. For arrival—Tinnevely, September-October, Suez, 5½d. for fully good fair g.f.c.; Western Madras, September-October, Suez, 5½d. for good f.g.f.c.; Bengal, November-December, Suez, 5 3-16d. for fine f.g.c., 4 13-16d. for good f.g.f.c. Forward delivery—American, December-January, 6 15-32d.; January-February, 6 17-32d.; March-April, 6 19-32d.; May-June, 6 21-32d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

CASUALTIES.

The s.s. Flamingo, from London to Colombo, Madras, and Calcutta, went ashore at St. Margaret's Bay, near Deal, on the night of Nov. 16. A small quantity of cargo has been saved, but it is supposed that the steamer will become a total wreck.

The General Domville, from Rangoon, at Plymouth, is reported leaky.

The Culzean, of Greenock went ashore in the Sound of Jura on the night of the 22nd inst. She had recently arrived from Calcutta with a cargo of jute, and, having discharged this, was proceeding to Glasgow for repairs. It is feared that all hands are lost.

EUROPEAN AND EURASIAN EDUCATION.

AN important resolution appears in the Gazette of Oct. 29 with reference to European and Eurasian education. It reviews at great length the whole question, and states the conclusions arrived at by the Government and the measures it is prepared to sanction or support. The resolution begins by stating that the local Government reports, called for in 1879, have received the full consideration of the Governor General in Council, together with a further report by Archdeacon Baly. Archdeacon Baly's inquiries show that in Bengal, including the Lower, the North Western and Central Provinces, the Punjab, Assam, Berars, Ajmere, and Central India, upwards of 5,000 European and Eurasian children are growing up in absolute ignorance. The Viceroy agrees with the conclusion of former Governments, that this state of things is lamentable, and if allowed to continue will, in the words of Lord Canning, ultimately become a glaring reproach to the Government. The Government consider that the adoption of a system of common education for Europeans and natives is impossible. The chief objections are that there would be no religious instruction, and the whole atmosphere would be non-Christian. No provision for the education of European girls in separate schools is therefore necessary. The Government are opposed to the imposition of an educational cess and compulsory education, but proposes to aid local Governments and railway companies in expanding the existing school accommodation by an improved system of grants in aid. They consider the existing provision of hill schools suffices for all immediate wants. They desire the opening of schools wherever an average daily attendance of twelve can be secured. Religious neutrality must be strictly observed in the ordinary course of instruction, facilities being afforded for religious instruction at suitable hours. The Government favour the establishment of a system of Government scholarships to be secured by competition. To carry out the principles here laid down Government have determined to appoint a committee to frame a draft Education Code. The committee will be constituted thus:—president, Mr. A. W. Croft, director of Public Instruction; Bengal members, Archdeacon Baly, Father Van Impe, rector of St. Xavier's College, Calcutta, and Rev. J. Robertson, principal of the Free Church College, Calcutta. The committee are to submit their report and Code before the close of the present cold season, in order that the system may come into force at the commencement of the next financial year. At present the Government expenditure on education amounts to over two lakhs annually. It is believed that, taking into account the Bruce legacy for Calcutta, amounting to eighty thousand pounds, a further Government expenditure of one lakh annually will meet all the eventual requirements, and the committee will bear in mind the wish of the Governments to limit the whole annual expenditure to three lakhs. The propriety of establishing a training college for teachers is considered at present premature. The introduction of an efficient pupil teacher system is considered important. This scheme only affects educational wants in Bengal. Bombay and Madras are considered sufficiently provided for, though this belief is not based on detailed inquiries; and those Governments are invited to review the question in the light of the resolution regarding the establishment of technical schools and the employment of youths whose education is completed. The Public Works Department are requested to consider the whole question in connection with Government factories and railway workshops; also the introduction of a regular system of apprenticeship. Local Governments are also invited to report how far the system of competition might be applied to the admission of these youths to Government clerkships. Government do not propose to reserve any certain proportion of these appointments for European youths domiciled in India, but consider that they might be fairly allowed to compete with educated natives on equal terms, if such a system could be adopted without detriment to the public interests. The resolution concludes by expressing the obligations of Government to Archdeacon Baly for his able and complete reports, his valuable assistance, and the fair and impartial spirit and liberal breadth of view of his proposals.

A RUSSO-TURKOMAN ARMY.—The coming change will merely be the repetition, in other scenes and in other circumstances, of the unification of the Kirghiz and other Tartars with whom at an earlier period the Russian conquerors came in contact. And the Turkoman recruiting ground will be the finest in Asia. At the very lowest estimate Russia would be able to place one hundred thousand Turkomans in the field sufficiently well armed and drilled and ready for active service. It is calculated that the whole of the Turkoman country numbers two hundred thousand tents, or about 1,200,000 souls. Of these the Tekkes (Akhal and Merv) are supposed to have sixty thousand tents, and the Sariks of the Upper Murghab ten thousand. One Turkoman horseman for every ten of the population does not seem an over estimate.—Englishman.

COLONIAL HANDBOOKS, MAPS, &c.

NOW READY.
CANADA—including Ontario, North-West Territory, Manitoba, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, &c. With New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo., 283 pp. Cloth, 5s. "Athenaeum," June 25, 1881.—"Full of information and statistics, which ought to prove very serviceable to any visitor to the Dominion."

"Times."—"Under the above title Messrs. Silver have brought out much more than a mere "Handbook to Canada," an historical, political, social, geographical, and topographical guide for the use of travellers and settlers over the greater portion of our North-American possessions. The need of such a work, at once handy, comprehensive, and trustworthy, has long been felt both by intending settlers and by readers at home, who are surprised, and not unnaturally, at the scanty information about so important a territory which is accessible to them. The volume is illustrated by a map, showing the whole extent of the Canadian Confederation from the shores of the Atlantic to those of the Pacific, and exhibiting all the details of inland communication, whether by Railway or the long chain of inland lakes. Those who have friends in British Columbia, Manitoba, &c., will find this map most useful; and it may be added that the historical chapters are full of materials for the future historian of Canada, or for the writer of an article on that subject in an encyclopaedia."

"Manitoba Daily Free Press."—"Comprised in this book is a mass of valuable information, which cannot fail to impress every reader with an intelligent idea of the great resources and capabilities of our country. In fact, we are convinced that in the words of the preface, a comprehensive, reliable, and at the same time cheap and handy work has been produced, which will furnish the kind of information most sought for in regard to the Dominion, and especially in regard to Manitoba and the North West territories. We have every reason to think that this handbook to Canada is one of the best contributions to immigration literature yet produced. It is also very handsomely got up tastefully bound, and very well printed."

"Graphic."—"We are already acquainted with Messrs. Silver's Handbooks to Australasia and South Africa. They are concisely written, accurate in information, and full of practical details. The same praise may be accorded to the volume now before us, which comprises a survey of the whole of British North America, the reader's researches being aided by an excellent map. To the intending emigrant the descriptions of Manitoba and British Columbia will be especially attractive."

The "Times."—"A remarkable work. . . Shows more impressively than probably any other kind of publication could the immense activity of our Australian Colonies and the rapid advances they have made since their very recent foundation. It is a creditable and useful and, we believe, trustworthy publication."

AUSTRALIAN GRAZIER'S GUIDE No. 1, Sheep. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 2s. 6d. "Field."—"This little work is intended to supply, as fully as may be in a small compass, an admitted want in Colonial literature, and is indeed exactly the sort of 'Guide' for the assistance and instruction of those who propose to try their fortunes as stock-raisers abroad, and who so frequently inquire of the Field for such help as is afforded by its pages."

ON CONSUMPTION,

ASTHMA, CHRONIC COUGH, &c., and all CHEST DISEASES.
By Mr. GEORGE THOMAS CONGREVE.

One hundred and thirty-three cases are given.

From Allen's Indian Mail:—"Mr. George Thomas Congreve, of Combe Lodge, Rye-lane, Peckham, has discovered a remarkably successful treatment of Consumption; and, to make it more widely known, has published the little book before us. A large number of cases are cited; and, as reference is made in very many of these cases to persons in well-known and responsible positions, there seems to be no reason whatever to doubt the perfect bona fides of all of them. And the book gives a particularly simple and clear account of this terrible disorder and its cure, as well as chapters on the cognate pulmonary diseases. The chapters on 'Cough accompanied with Liver Derangement,' and on 'Chronic Bronchitis,' will be found useful by many Anglo-Indians."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE,

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manila, to the effect that Cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st Dec., 1864.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was, undoubtedly, the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say had been sworn to.—See Times, 18th July, 1864.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanied each bottle.

A RIDE TO KHIVA

BY CAPTAIN FRED. BURNABY

Royal Horse Guards.

Says page 13:—"Two pairs of boots lined with fur were also taken; and for physic—with which it is as well to be supplied when travelling in out-of-the-way places—some, quinine and Cockle's Pills, the latter a most invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the natives of Central Africa with the greatest possible success. In fact, the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines when I administered to him five

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, DEC. 5, 1881.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Nov. 17; Madras and Allahabad, Nov. 15; Calcutta, Nov. 14.

OUR readers will have seen in to-day's Times the telegram of the Calcutta correspondent of that paper, giving with almost official authority the astounding intelligence that Lord Ripon's Government has decided on the immediate re-imposition of the income-tax in India, and stating that the sanction of the Secretary of State has already been asked in a formal despatch. We believe that Lord Hartington's sound good sense will induce him instantly to veto the insane proposition. Even if this were not so, we believe that the universal howl that is certain to be raised, both in the Indian press and in every section of the Anglo-Indian and native communities must prevent the attempt being made to carry it into effect. But it is wearisome to think that the old, old story has to be gone through once more, and that the battles so often fought out have to be fought over again. When will Englishmen learn that India cannot be governed, and certainly cannot be taxed, according to English preconceived notions? It is not only the fact of the difference of native feelings and traditions and customs that forbids the attempt; we have further a thousand difficulties in the matter of taxation, caused by our being an alien Government, and by our own necessary ignorance of and lack of control over the lower ramifications of our executive system. The necessarily inquisitorial nature of the income-tax is alone amply sufficient to condemn its application to peoples so sensitive in such matters as are the various Indian nationalities. Its most prominent result is the establishment of the cruellest despotism, that of the Amla, already too potent for evil. That it produces horrible oppression, wide-spread corruption and misery, and universal discontent, has been proved over and over again, usque ad nauseam. But for the authoritative and circumstantial character of the telegraphed announcement, we should have deemed it impossible that such an attempt as that now contemplated should be made—at least during the official life-time of the generation that witnessed the terrible disclosures, which satisfied Lord Mayo (see Mr. Hunter's life of that revered Viceroy) of its unwisdom, and which induced Lord Northbrook to abolish the tax.

An official communiqué, published in the Indian papers on Saturday last (of which a summary has been telegraphed home), shows that Lord Ripon is still endeavouring to prove the untrustworthy nature of the numerous rumours in regard to the existence of "white slaves"—British soldiers captured at Maiwand, and carried away to the living death of slavery in Western Afghanistan, on the Persian and Turkoman frontier. The evidence of the sepoy who first furnished the information was not shaken, though it was made pretty clear that the keen wish of his interrogators was to prove that he lied. It will seem incredible to most impartial persons, we think, that the sepoy's story should have been a pure fabrication, invented for no possible reason, and involving a good deal of personal responsibility; and it is equally unlikely that all the other similar reports current on the frontier should have been also at fault. We think it most unfortunate that Lord Ripon should have made it so clear from the first that he wished to have these unpleasant rumours discredited. It is easy enough to produce a thousand witnesses who can truly say they never saw or heard of the British prisoners. The immortal Sam Weller, when he fixed his eyes on the ceiling, was able comfortably to swear that he did not see his father in Court.

THERE is a Cabul rumour—published in "an up-country paper" and telegraphed to the Times to-day—that the whole story of the occupation of Herat is a figment, and that Abdul Rahman and Ayub have come to a private understanding. The rumour, whether true or false, strikingly illustrates (1) the trustworthy character of the information on which we now have to rely for our knowledge of current events in Afghanistan, and (2) the consideration in which the wishes and interests of the British Government are now held at Cabul.

WE would call attention to the opinion expressed by the zemindars of Behar, in their address to Sir Ashley Eden last Wednesday, of the remarkable advance in prosperity made by that province during the last three years. We commend the words of the Behar Landowners' Association to the careful perusal of those pessimists who (like Mr. Fawcett in his pre-Ministerial stage of development) are never weary of declaiming against the results of British rule in India. To such ill-conditioned persons the statement ought to be as striking, as it must be undoubtedly gratifying to Sir Ashley Eden and his lieutenants.

WE are glad to observe that Dr. Anderson, of the Calcutta Museum, is to accompany Colonel Branfill's surveying expedition to the Mergui Archipelago. Those who remember Dr. Anderson's most interesting—and from a scientific point of view, most valuable—account of his deputation on the Chinese Frontier Mission, contained in his "Mandala to Momien," will look for a solid addition to our scientific knowledge from this tour.

AN Abor deputation has interviewed our expeditionary force, and heard what our officers had to say; and having marched down the hill, has marched up again.

THE Press Commissioner (who is he?) announces that extensive military preparations are going on in Yarkand and Kashgar, but does not know why; he rather fancies the Chinese troops are intended to occupy Ili after the Russian evacuation. Mr. Dalglish, the well-known and enterprising agent of the Central Asia Trading Company, writes to the Civil and Military Gazette from Yarkand, to say that these wonderful troops are armed with rusty spears and tridents—the latter being presumably relics of Roman gladiatorial contests, long buried in the recesses of Central Asia. Mr. Dalglish thinks that a few hundred Cossacks will be more than a match for the trident-men. What with English diplomacy in Afghanistan, and Chinese tridents in Yarkand, the Russians may congratulate themselves on their prospects in Central Asia.

LORD LYTTON has addressed the following letter to a gentleman who challenged the accuracy of a statement made by the Marquis of Hartington at Blackburn on the 26th ult.:—"Carlton Club, Dec. 1, 1881.—Sir,—The statement quoted from a recent speech by Lord Hartington is entirely contrary to fact. I never entertained designs for the 'military annexation or occupation of the whole of Afghanistan,' and I never advocated or approved a policy embracing those measures, or any measure in the remotest degree resembling them.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, LYTTON."

A BATCH of "Further Correspondence relating to the affairs of Afghanistan"—including the transfer of the administration of Kandahar to Abdul Rahman Khan, and bringing the miserable story down to the end of last July—has been published this week as a Parliamentary Blue Book. A leading supporter of the Ministerial policy in the London press is of opinion that we may accept this further instalment with satisfaction, as showing that we have cut ourselves clear of Afghan complications "on whatever terms." There is little doubt of the character of the "terms" on which we have endeavoured to make our surrender, coute que coute, a final one; but whether we are really clear, is a very different question—and one in regard to which the man must be a veritable Mark Tapley who derives any satisfaction from the papers now published.

WE would direct especial attention to Abdul Rahman's letter to the Viceroy, dated April 12, 1881 (Blue Book, page 87), in which he lays down the conditions under which his Highness will condescend to treat with humanity those unfortunate people of Kandahar "who have made themselves conspicuous for their friendship and assistance to the British Government." The chief condition is, that they are "not to allow vain thoughts or absurd ideas to enter their heads." By "vain thoughts or absurd ideas," the Ameer appears to mean, foolish reliance on the power and good faith of the British Government; and it is to be feared that the unfortunate people had already committed the unpardonable offence in this respect.

FURTHER instructive reading may be found in the despatch from the Home Government to the Government of India on the question of the retention of Pishin and Sibi (Blue Book, page 88). The Government of India had most strongly expressed its opinion (repeated at page 95) that "our departure would expose the country to disorder, and our friends to the consequences of having dealt faithfully with the British Government." The Home Government (at page 89) assents reluctantly to the "postponement of the relinquishment of Pishin and Sibi;" but at the same time directs Lord Ripon to take "no step which might place any permanent obstacle in the way of the ultimate fulfilment" of the policy of surrender—adding the following emphatic protest against the employment of an adequate force on the Khelat and Quetta frontier of Afghanistan:—

"The strength of the force which, according to apparently authoritative statements in the public press, has been detailed to remain at Quetta and along the line from Chaman to Sibi is largely in excess of what her Majesty's Government had anticipated would be required, even temporarily, and seems to be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in the papers under acknowledgment as to the facility with which the assigned districts could be held. The retention, therefore, beyond the frontier for any length of time of a force not required for objects of a purely local character such as from the tenor of your Lordship's despatch you appear to have had mainly in view in desiring to postpone the evacuation of the territory in question, might tend to a belief that it is designed for purposes of possible future intervention in the internal affairs of Afghanistan, which are no less opposed to your Lordship's views and intentions than to those of her Majesty's Government."

SOME statistics regarding the chiefs and peoples of Southern Afghanistan, collected by Sir R. G. Sandeman and by Colonel St. John, given at pp. 19-28 are both interesting and useful.

THE "First Appendix" to the report of the Famine Commission has appeared this week. It embodies a most valuable mass of authentic information and authoritative opinion on the general condition of the country and people of India. A collection of "Notes on Indian Land Revenue" (pp. 135-146) will prove, we think, of great and abiding interest; they were elicited by a clear and powerful minute, recorded by Sir Louis Mallet in February, 1875, calling attention to the economical, social, and political evils caused by "the absence of any kind of common understanding or agreement . . . as to the relation of the Government to the occupiers of the soil." At the present moment these notes will be read with an interest more than usually keen.

ANOTHER useful Blue Book has just been issued, in the shape of a return "giving a list of all banks carrying on business in India and in each British possession; statement of all authorities, imperial or local, whether charter, statute, or other instrument, under which each bank carries on business; and, of all general laws, imperial or local, regulating the conduct of banking in India and each British possession."

THE long looked for autobiography of Mr. William Tayler is out this week—at least, its first volume is; and more than fulfils all the expectations that have been formed of it. As a detailed and yet vivid and sparkling record of the official and general life of a Bengal civilian, who spent thirty-eight years in the country, and occupied almost every conceivable official position, from the lowest to all but the highest, it will be read with delight by every Anglo-Indian, and especially by every Bengal man. In quaint humour, as well as in beauty and accuracy of execution, the numerous illustrations are simply unrivalled; and no less excellence than this will be expected by all those who remember the marvellous skill of the late Commissioner of Patna's pencil. The letters from well-known personages, and anecdotes about well-known officials, give a lively charm to the book that must make it a success; whilst a judicious selection from the ephemeral Bengal squib literature of the period described—such as Henry Torrens's "Chaldean manuscripts," and the Latin sapphics on Mr. Peter, the cook and Khansamah of the Kishnagur dak Bungalow, will endear it to the lovers of Anglo-Indian gossip. When we are told in the "Chaldean manuscript," that "the name of the chief scribe of Bung was Fredoc Kallidad," it is not difficult to guess the original of Fredoc Kallidad, of Seed'um, and even of Sryhen Radingee. Chapter xix., on "Secretariat Finesse," introduces us to some of those official quarrels, of which we shall probably hear more in a later volume, and which impart a melancholy interest to Mr. Tayler's career; but for the most part the volume that is now before us is the thoroughly readable account of a more than usually varied official life in Bengal stations, admirably told, and still more admirably illustrated. Mr. Tayler's Indian crows and Indian babies are works of genius that deserve the highest praise. We shall hope to review this charming work in more detail in an early issue.

WE observe that Messrs. Thomas Cook and Son, the famous tour agents of Ludgate-circus, have published two very interesting and useful programmes, one of tours in India, and the other of tours from India, at the low price of one shilling each. The routes and prices of the tours from India will interest a large number of our readers. Many of them are arranged so as exactly to fit in the three all-too-brief months of privilege leave. It is really astonishing how much ground may be covered, and that too without any intolerable rush, in that time by dint of careful management and guidance. Two months' leave only, including time for going and coming between Calcutta and Bombay, is sufficient to "do" Egypt and Italy, or Egypt and the Nile, or Egypt and the Holy Land. Egypt, Constantinople, Athens, and the principal cities of Italy, can be done in the three months, allowing nine days in Turkey, seven in Greece, and sixteen in Italy. The programme of tours in India will be found very useful indeed by those who intend to spend a winter in this very sensible way.

WE give in another column a full report of the exceedingly interesting meeting of the National Indian Association, held on the 29th ultimo, with Colonel Malleon in the chair; Colonel Macdonald's paper dealt, in an admirable way, with one of the most important social problems awaiting adequate solution in India; and the discussion was a suggestive one, well opened by Colonel Keatinge, and carried on with spirit, a large number of Indian gentlemen joining in it with great advantage to the elucidation of the subject. The Association is probably well-known to, and appreciated by, nearly all our readers; but in case there are any who are not acquainted with its scope and aims, it may be useful to give a statement of its objects:—

"To extend a knowledge of India in England, and an interest in our Indian fellow-subjects. To co-operate with the efforts made by Indians for education, and for the improvement of their countrymen. To promote goodwill and friendliness between England and India. These objects are carried out by:—1. Friendly intercourse with Indians who come to England, supplying them with introductions, arranging visits to public institutions, affording informations in regard to professional studies, &c. 2. Organising lectures by Englishmen and Indians on subjects connected with India. 3. Undertaking the superintendence of teachers sent to England from India for the study of methods of teaching, and selecting English teachers for families and schools in India. 4. Scholarship grants in encouragement of female education, and grants to educational and philanthropic institutions in India, books to libraries, prizes for schools, &c. 5. The publication of a monthly journal, recording unsectarian educational work in India, and containing articles by Englishmen and Indians of experience on subjects of social reform, &c. 6. Soirées held three times in the year, January, April or May, and November, open to members. This association, which was established by Miss Carpenter, has now existed ten years. It has branches at Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras, and committees at other places in India, which undertake secular educational work and promote social intercourse between English and Indians. The committee desire to promote, by the various practical methods indicated above increased sympathy and union between the people of England and the people of India. They therefore request co-operation from all who are interested in India's moral and intellectual progress. In all the proceedings of this association, the Government principle of non-interference in religion is to be strictly maintained."

From the December number of the Journal of the Association, we learn the following in regard to the doings of our Indian visitors:—

"Mr. E. J. Khory (Inner Temple) has passed the Final Examination of the Inns of Court held in Michaelmas Term. Mr. C. N. Banerjee and Mr. D. K. Ghose (Lincoln's Inn) and Mr. Jitendra Nath Banerjee and Mr. Mohammad Rafique (Middle Temple) have passed the examination in Roman Law held in the Inns of Court in Michaelmas Term. Mr. M. D. Chowdhuri, Zemindar of Nuddea, who some months ago entered the Tee Side Engineering Works, Middlesborough, is working satisfactorily, and has been advanced in the workshops. He looks forward to establishing a manufactory on his return to India. Arrivals.—Mr. U. D. Banerjee, from Calcutta, for Medicine; and Mir Mahommed, from Delhi. Departures.—Raja Ram Pal Singh, for Oudh; Kumar Gajendro Narayan, M.R.A.C., for Kuch Behar. We regret to announce the death, at Gwalior, on Oct. 20, of Mr. Syed Waris Ali, of Christ's College, Cambridge, who returned to India last year. He was the only son of a high official of Gwalior, and his friends had looked forward to his having a useful career in the service of the Maharaja. His death is much lamented in his own country, and numbers attended his funeral. His refined and amiable character will long make him remembered by his English friends."

The Secretary of State for India in Council has decided to extend to the officers of the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers, now serving under Indian pension rules, the recently revised and improved scale of pensions as laid down for officers who entered the Indian Staff Corps subsequent to September, 1866, with this stipulation, viz., that increased rates—i.e., 20 years £250, 24 years £305, 28 years £500, 32 years £700, and 38 years £750—shall not be given to officers availing themselves of the extra annuity provided for in the Royal Warrant of June 25, 1881, officers retiring on those terms being restricted to Indian retiring pensions hitherto in force.

Information has reached England from India announcing the appointments which have been made by Mr. Grant Duff to his personal Staff at Madras, with a view to the publication of the names of the several officers in the London Gazette: Captain Ambrose Awdry, Royal Engineers, to be Private Secretary; Major Almeric G. Spencer, the Essex Regiment, to be Military Secretary; Lieutenants Cecil O. Cavendish, Highland Light Infantry, and Arthur H. T. Bagot, Prince Albert's Light Infantry, to be Aides de Camp; Lieutenant William E. Evans-Gordon, Madras Staff Corps, to be Extra Aide de Camp; Surgeon Major John Mackenzie, M.D., Army Medical Department, to be Surgeon; and Sudar Bahadur Oosman Khan, Body Guard, to be Native Aide de Camp.

The Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market for the week ending Nov. 14:—

"Since last mail our market continued very quiet, and there was hardly any cargo offering for shipment. A feeling of uneasiness gradually gained ground, and it was felt that a collapse would probably take place in steam freights."

Rates were for some days unsteady, and tending towards a decline, which developed itself into a drop of ten shillings a ton on Friday last when the London berth steamers took jute and tea at 65s. The demand for forward steamers has ceased entirely, and although many steamers are offering for January and February loading, no offers of any kind were obtainable. Sailing freights have been somewhat better maintained, as there are no ships open to work, but it is not likely that the present high range for sailors can be maintained should steam freights continue to decline which is very probable, unless there is a lasting rally in the wheat market at home, and a corresponding demand for wheat tonnage here. Our unfixed tonnage stands at 3,000 tons

We take from the same source Messrs. J. Thomas and Co.'s report on the Calcutta Tea Market:—

"During the fortnight two public auctions have been held amounting to 15,591 packages, viz., 8,381 chests on the 3rd inst., and 7,210 on the 10th inst. There was no change of importance to notice in the former sales, except for common grades, which closed dearer, while at the sales held last week there was a good general demand, and prices ruled fully one anna per lb. higher, probably more noticeable for useful liquoring pekoe souchongs and good medium descriptions. The following extract taken from the letter of the Melbourne agents of the Calcutta Tea Syndicate, will, we think, be of interest to those connected with the enterprise:—"Darjilings continue in favour with buyers who find their customers take more readily to the fruity flavour of these teas. Large leaf teas sold far better than we expected, and a demand is springing up for broken teas with thick liquors. We think our market is now ripe to take about 2,000 half chests per month, and will keep up steady monthly sales if you can send us full supplies of tea." We are indebted to the honorary secretary of the Tea Association for the following statistics which enable us to arrive at a very close approximation of the season's crop. The figures furnished in response to his circular show actual manufacture to October 31, with an estimate of the quantity to be made during the remainder of the season. Up to date the returns sent in amount to thirty-four millions, which quantity is 300,000lb. only in excess of the crop of 1880 from the same concerns. This should fairly represent the ratio of increase on the total crop, and on this basis the total increase on last seasons outturn may be put down at about half a million pounds only.

MESSRS. WILLIAM MORAN AND Co's circular has the following on indigo for the fortnight ending Nov. 14:—

"Native indigo has continued to arrive freely from the north west during the past fortnight, and further sales have daily been effected by private contract at about previous prices. The quantity now disposed of in this manner amounts to about 800 chests. The first public sale of the season is announced for to-day; but scarcely any indigo of European manufacture has yet arrived in the market, and business for the next week or ten days will be chiefly confined to native oudes. The Times of India gives the following obituary for the week ending Nov. 17:—Sayyid Self, eldest son of the Sultan of Zanzibar; Munshi Chinniam Lal, extra assistant commissioner, Dera Ghazi Khan.

A TELEGRAM from Calcutta to the Bombay Gazette, dated Nov. 16, and rightly headed "An Extraordinary Affair," runs as follows:—

"The Englishman hears that the whole of the Accountant General's office, with the exception of some of the more superior officers, has been suspended, because, during the change of premises from the treasury buildings to the new offices, vouchers representing a sum of three lakhs of rupees were missing."

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

THERE has been good rain in several districts of the Madras Presidency and in the Mysor State, as well as in Coorg and in parts of the Bombay Presidency. In Mysor, where the want of rain has been especially felt, the rainfall has been the heaviest and most beneficial. Prospects are generally good in Madras, and fair in Bombay. In the Central Provinces and Berar slight showers have fallen in several districts; the prospects of the kharif crops continue good, and the rabi sowings have been, or are almost, completed. In the Punjab rain is wanted in parts, but agricultural prospects continue favourable, and rabi sowings are in progress. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh also the want of rain is felt in the central tract, where the rabi sowings are impeded by deficient moisture; the kharif harvest is nearly complete with a fair average outturn. In Bengal there has been slight rain in a few districts, and the prospects of rice, save on the high unirrigated lands of Orissa and elsewhere, are generally favourable. In Assam and British Burma the condition of crops continues satisfactory; and in the Rajputana and Central Indian States the favourable character of the season is still maintained.

TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE following telegram to the Times, dated Quetta, Nov. 27, again delayed in transmission, did not arrive in time for publication in our last issue:—

"The Ameer appears to be making some progress towards effecting a settlement in Southern Afghanistan, but he has many difficulties to contend with, the chief being the selection of the governors and the satisfying of the rival claimants. Although desirous of returning himself from Kandahar to Cabul, his camp still remains outside the former city. It is said that differences between Sirdar Abdul Kudus Khan, who captured Herat for the Ameer, and Sirdar Mahomed Yusuf Khan, who had been directed to proceed from Fara to assume the governorship, have caused the Ameer some anxiety, and made him contemplate the sending of reinforcements of Cabuli regiments to Herat. This misunderstanding appears to have been removed. At Kandahar the Ameer is now said to have selected Sirdar Abdul Rassul Khan, a grandson of Newab Jabbar Khan, for governor, and to have summoned him from Cabul. This has given umbrage to Sirdar Mahomed Aziz Khan, an executive person, whom the Ameer will now for safety take with him to Cabul. Two regiments recently recruited in Kandahar, with one Herati regiment, who are supposed to be in sympathy with Aziz Khan, are, it is said, about to be sent away to Cabul under the charge of Mustaufi Mir Hassan Kazilbash. On the other hand, some Sirdars of Ayub Khan's party are said to be giving in their allegiance to the Ameer. Winter has set in at Quetta with ten degrees of frost and strong winds. The Brahew inhabitants have all left the uplands for their winter quarters in the plains near Sibi, and thither, also, the Khan has repaired from Khelat. The work on the suspended railway between Sibi and Peshin is sadly missed by the frozen-out Pathan labourers. Large caravans pass southwards daily from Kandahar to Hindustan. The new agent, Colonel Waterford, reached Quetta to-day."

THE following is the telegram of the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, dated Dec. 4:—

"An official communiqué, published yesterday, states that a careful inquiry has failed to elicit any confirmation of the rumour regarding British prisoners in Western Afghanistan; but news has been received from Herat that after Ayub's first flight from Kandahar several Mahomedans arrived from that place, who described themselves as natives of Peshawur and deserters from the British army. One of them, having murdered a Kandahari soldier in a quarrel, was put to death by Ayub's orders. The remainder are said to have been treated kindly and accompanied the Herat army to Kandahar last summer. Another report from Herat is that some time ago a man, who looked like an Englishman, arrived there via Ana-Dara. He gave himself out as a native of Cabul, but appeared to know nothing of that place. Ayub, therefore, put him under arrest, but he was soon afterwards released and left Herat. Since then nothing has been heard of him.

"The Ameer appears to have left Kandahar for Cabul with three regiments ten days ago. He is said to have appointed Sirdar Abdul Rasool Khan Governor of Kandahar, and it is reported that this appointment has caused some discontent among the disappointed aspirants to the post.

"An up-country paper publishes a rumour from Cabul that most of the people there disbelieve the story of the occupation of Herat, and assert that the Ameer and Ayub have come to a private understanding.

"A feeling of astonishment—I might almost say of consternation—has been excited throughout India by a rumour that the Government intends to make the abolition of the remaining cotton duties and the substitution for them of an income-tax the main feature of the next Budget. When the report was first started no one was disposed to believe that Major Baring, who was supposed to be a warm admirer of Lord Northbrook's financial policy, would lend himself to a scheme for reviving the hated impost which that nobleman had swept away. Unfortunately there is only too good ground for accepting the correctness of the rumour, at least to this extent, that some such plan has been sent home by the Indian Government for submission to the Secretary of State. So profound is the distrust with which the people of this country regard both political parties in any matter in which the interests of India and those of Manchester come into collision that no one feels any doubt as to the view Lord Hartington will be inclined to adopt. Unless, therefore, a strong popular agitation is raised in India and is supported at home, there is every reason to fear that next March may witness the reimposition of a tax which the people of India hoped had been finally consigned to the limbo of obsolete abuses. The Indian press has begun to raise its voice and is repeating the well-known and unanswerable arguments to prove that an income-tax is utterly unsuited to the country; that it is at once the most unpopular, the most oppressive, and the least productive of all forms of taxation. The trade returns clearly show that the partial remission of the duty on gray piece goods granted some time ago has produced a confusion which Lord Lytton and Sir J. Strachey did not anticipate, and as it would be hopeless to expect a return to the import duties abolished in 1875, it may be admitted that the next best thing would be to sweep away the remaining duties. If that can be done, however, only at the cost of the reviving of the income-tax, then it were infinitely better to let the confusion continue some years longer until India can better afford the loss. I have no hesitation in asserting that a return to that tax, after the experience which the Government has already had of its working, will do more to alienate the affections of the natives of India, and to loosen our hold on the country than any other official act of this century. Lord Northbrook, by repealing the tax, earned for himself a popularity with the native community surpassed by none and equalled by few of his predecessors. Lord Ripon has already won the respect and esteem of the people, but the fabric of the popularity which he has been building up during the last eighteen months will fall to pieces in a day if he ventures to identify himself with the income-tax.

The Lieutenant Governor of Bengal is still travelling in Behar. Last Wednesday he received at Bankipore an address of the Behar Landowners' Association, in which his attention was called to the great improvement in the condition of that province within the last three years. Sir A. Eden, in replying, expressed the pleasure with which he had witnessed the extraordinary amelioration in the condition of the peasantry. He attributed it, first, to the plentiful harvests of the past three years, and next to the general awakening of intelligence. He hoped that still greater results would follow the increased railway communication now in progress, and he trusted that the association would give every help to the Government in the task it had undertaken of revising the law of landlord and tenant.

"The Viceroy arrived in Calcutta on Friday. He starts for Burma about the 16th inst., returning about the end of the year. In January he will be visited here by Holkar.

"The Abor expeditionary force, under Major Beresford, arrived at Bonjour, opposite the first Abor village, on the 17th ult., and occupied Nizamghat without opposition on the 19th, stockades being erected at both places. A deputation of the Abors arrived at the camp on the 25th, and the views of the Government were explained to them, after which they withdrew. The rumour of a combination of the Abors and Mishmi against the expedition is generally discredited.

"A survey party, under Colonel Bramfil, has left Calcutta for the purpose of verifying and completing the survey of the Megin Archipelago. The work, including the measurement of the base line, is expected to occupy about six months. Dr. Anderson, Superintendent of the Indian Museum, has accompanied the party and will take the opportunity of instituting a thorough investigation of the local fauna.

The completed totals of the Bombay census shows an actual decrease of 550,244 of the population of 1873 and a decrease of 963,843 on what the population should have been had it increased as in ordinary times. Three of the districts affected by the late famine—namely, Khandeish, Nassick, and Suttara—show some increase. In the other famine districts the percentage of decrease is as follows:—Ahmednugour, 3'48; Puna, 2'45; Sholapore, 19'02; Belgaum, 8'56; Dhwar, 10'78; and Kaladje, 21'77.

"An interesting letter from Mr. Dalglish, a gentleman who has gone to Yarkand on a commercial venture, appears in a late number of a Lahore paper. He states that he has been most hospitably received by the Chinese authorities, and has obtained permission to dispose freely of his goods. The Amban, or Governor, of Yarkand asked many questions about India, and spoke of the lasting friendship between England and China. Mr. Dalgleish describes the Chinese army of occupation as a disorderly rabble, armed with rusty spears and tridents, and whom a few hundred Cossacks could easily put to flight. No Russian merchants have yet appeared in Kashgaria, and he thinks that they would not be well received if they came, as the natives of Russian Turkestan coming to Kashgaria are not allowed to live in the city, but only to enter in during the daytime. On the other hand, the English name stands high, and entire freedom was accorded not only to Mr. Dalgleish, but also to native traders from British India.

"A memorandum issued from the Press Commissioner's office states that extensive military preparations are going on in Yarkand and Kashgar. Their object is unknown, but it is commonly rumoured that the troops are to be sent to Ili from various garrisons in Chinese Turkestan, probably to occupy that province after the Russian evacuation."

NATIONAL INDIAN ASSOCIATION.

A MEETING of the National Indian Association was held on Nov. 29, at the rooms of the Society of Arts, John-street, Adelphi, at which a paper was read by Colonel R. M. Macdonald, late director of Public Instruction, Madras, on Home Education for Indian Ladies; Colonel G. B. Malleon, C.S.I., occupied the chair, and in a few introductory remarks referred to the important bearings of the education of the women of India as the increase of social intercourse between Europeans and the natives of that country. The following is an abstract of the paper read by Colonel Macdonald:—

"It is generally known that female education in India, notwithstanding the efforts which have been made to foster and develop it, is still in a very backward condition; but persons who have always lived in Europe and are accustomed to the influence which refined and highly cultivated women exercise in their homes and in society, can perhaps scarcely fully realise the great gulf between husbands and wives which our system of education is creating. In India law, tradition, and custom have for ages been opposed to anything like a general diffusion of female education. No doubt if we go back to the Vedic period we shall find women occupying a high position and learn that some of the most beautiful hymns were composed by ladies and queens, but at this time the institution of cast, in its later sense, had not come into existence, and life was patriarchal. If we pass from these early times to the more recent, but still remote age, represented by the Code of Manu, we shall find that already a great change had taken place in the position of women in India. In the ninth chapter it is laid down that 'women have no business with the text of the Veda; thus is the law fully settled; having therefore no evidence of law, and no knowledge of expiatory texts, sinful women must be as foul as falsehood itself.' Women are reduced in the code to a state of complete dependence and are constantly spoken of as standing on the same level as slaves, servants, and children. Minute directions are given regarding the choice of a wife, but nothing is said about her mind. It is probable that even in these times women were subjected to less social restraint than they are at present, but although the precise period at which the seclusion of women began cannot be ascertained, there seems reason to conclude that it prevailed at a very remote period, although it has never been universal. We have very little real information as to the state of education among Hindu women prior to the British period, but the testimony of such writers as the Abbé Dubois and Sir Thomas Munro in Southern India, of Mr. Ward and Mr. Adam in Bengal and Behar, of Sir John Malcolm in Central India, and of Colonel Tod in Rajputana, seems to show that girls' schools were unknown, and that such female education as then existed was altogether of an exceptional kind and confined to particular classes. The daughters of rajas, chieftains, and zemindars were often taught to read, write, and keep accounts, because this knowledge was necessary for the management of their affairs. Dancing girls strove to be accomplished, because accomplishments made them more attractive. The female followers of Chaitanya and the Jain priestesses, known by the name of Arjah, learned to read and write, but unfortunately neither class had a high reputation for morality. In many parts of India education was regarded as unbecoming the modesty of the sex and as facilitating intrigue. In some parts no man would marry a girl who was known to be capable of reading. A superstitious feeling prevailed that a girl taught to read and write would soon become a widow, the greatest of all calamities in the eye of a Hindu. All the evidence seems to confirm the conclusion arrived at by Mount Stuart Elphinstone. 'Women,' he says, 'are everywhere almost entirely uneducated.' Christian missionaries were the first in the field to combat the strong prejudices which existed against female education. The honour of the earliest and completest victories belongs to them. They have been most successful among their own converts, among the lower castes and among the outcast tribes, but they have also succeeded in establishing numerous schools for girls of the higher castes. The example set by the missionaries have been followed by a few Hindu gentlemen, who have had the moral courage to rise superior to the prejudices of their age and country, among whom the late Maharaja of Vizianagram may be specially mentioned. Besides the mission schools and secular schools of various sorts there are a certain number of girls' schools supported by municipalities, local fund boards, and Government. The general result of all these combined efforts is summed up for 1877-78 in Dr. Hunter's Imperial Gazetteer. Total girls' schools, 2,002; pupils, 66,615. Mixed schools for boys and girls, 2,955; pupils, 90,915. Total amount expended on girls' schools, £78,729. The statistics laid before Parliament for 1878-79 show only a slight advance on these figures, but it must be remembered that statistics of this kind are never complete as regards schools which receive no aid from the State. The great majority of the pupils in these schools never get beyond the elementary stage of education, because Hindu girls leave school when they are about eleven. In boarding schools and in day schools, in which the teaching is entirely intrusted to women, it is beginning to be found that they remain to a later age, and this circumstance shows one direction in which progress may be expected, but the same obstacles which interfere with the progress of ordinary girls' schools are at present impeding the success of normal schools. The burden of maintaining a girls' school is often considerable, because the parents, instead of paying school fees, expect to be bribed with presents of money and clothes for their children, and require a staff of servants to be kept up to conduct them from and to school. Again, many parents are unwilling to send their girls to any school, although they are not unwilling to allow them to receive instruction in their own homes. It is to meet these difficulties that most of the missionary societies have found it necessary to resort to what is called the system of zenana teaching. Under this system a teacher goes from house to house, giving lessons at stated hours on fixed days to young married women who have already attended school in their childhood, and also to young women and girls who have not had the advantage of any previous instruction. This system has the disadvantage of being very costly and somewhat ineffective, but at present it seems necessary. The missionary agencies, of course, combine religious teaching with the ordinary subjects of education, and there are many homes into which they are not allowed to penetrate, because parents and husbands fear that attempts may be made to tamper with the religious belief of their daughters and wives. These homes offer a field for philanthropic enterprise, based on the principle of religious neutrality, on which Miss Carpenter organised the National Indian Association. In Bengal this work was taken up about two years ago by the local branch of the association. As yet it is on a small scale, only two teachers being employed. Under the excellent supervision of Mrs. Knight the work has been carried on regularly and successfully, but the fees cover very little more than the conveyance hire of the teachers, and the branch has been obliged to appeal for special assistance. It is probable that the same kind of work will be taken up by the Madras Branch, and that additional funds will be needed there also. The Parent Association is not at present in a position to render much pecuniary assistance to any of its branches, but a special fund has been opened for this purpose, and one of the objects of this meeting is to endeavour to create more general interest in the subject. The experience of the past shows that every kind of education in India, as at first started needed artificial support, and female education is still in its infancy. It is also desirable that the work should be systematically taken up by some permanent association. Many persons, who are quite willing to have their daughters and wives educated, may not have the leisure or skill to organise and carry out a proper scheme for this purpose. In matters of this kind it is very important that we should carry the natives of India with us in our reforms, and that the best and most enlightened of them should be associated with us in the planning and execution of our schemes. The opinions expressed on this subject by Mr. Shooshee Chander Dutt, Rai Bahadur, in "India: Past and Present," seem to be those generally held by Indian gentlemen, who are friendly to the cause of female education. He does not think that the European model is the best to imitate. The education of European females would, he thinks, "make woman a wild animal beneath the burning sun of the tropics." The kind of teaching which seems to commend itself to most native gentlemen is education of somewhat elementary type, conducted entirely through the medium of the vernacular languages of India. It seems best at present to accept that decision. This is home education in its least costly form, and a comparatively small sum will suffice for the continuance and extension of the operations which have been commenced at Calcutta, and for the gradual establishment of agencies of the same kind in other large towns. A time may perhaps come when men, who have themselves received a wider and deeper culture, will not rest satisfied with an education of this humble type for their wives and daughters.

The discussion which followed was opened by Col. R. H. Keatinge, V.C., C.S.I. He showed that, while many well supported societies do a great deal of educational work in India, their instruction is joined with religious teaching; and he considered that a serious obstacle is thus placed in the way of their educational success. The peculiarity of the efforts commenced by the National Indian Association is that the instruction given is not connected with religious instruction. It thus tends to bring the intellect of women to a level with that of their husbands, without teaching them to believe a religion which their husbands do not accept. He urged that the system inaugurated by Miss Carpenter was a wise one and ought to have a fair trial, and he believed that it might obtain influential support if properly placed before the public.

Mr. Hodgson Pratt spoke of the importance of not leaving education alone where religion cannot be introduced. He considered that the results of the educational system adopted in India had been excellent in a moral point of view, and it ought to be extended to women. We shall do what we can, and not lose all by trying to do more than we can. He urged that English ladies in India had great responsibility in regard to social intercourse. Mr. E. J. Khory spoke hopefully of the probable progress of female education in India. Mr. Hamid Ali Khan also spoke of education for women as an inevitable result of men's education. Mr. C. C. Macrae made some practical suggestion as to how teachers could best accomplish the results aimed at, by leaving the vernacular by trying to assemble native ladies in each others houses for classes. He did not agree with Colonel Macdonald that English education may be left alone at present. He thought vernacular literature would not suffice for Indian ladies. Mr. B. Mukerji said education was a matter of demand and supply. Bengali literature of a good kind was increasing and education was gradually spreading partly by the efforts of Indian graduates and students.

The Chairman proposed a vote of thanks to Colonel Macdonald for his able lecture, and concluded by expressing his decided opinion that secular education for Indian ladies was of the highest importance. A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

A BOOK OF DAILY DEVOTIONS.

DR. E. J. WARING, late of the Madras Medical Service, is well-known among Anglo-Indians as the author of several valuable medical works, his "Manual of Therapeutics," and "Bazaar Medicine," having had a large and useful circulation throughout India. His book on "Cottage Hospitals and their Objects" led him by a natural transition to a work of even higher usefulness, the "Hospital Prayer Book." In the little book before us we have the same excellent idea carried further, and adapted for all that large class of persons who, whilst desirous of never neglecting those daily devotional exercises which are the first and highest duty of those who would be "members of the household of faith," are, nevertheless, precluded by circumstances or position from devoting a lengthened period day by day to the exercise of private reading and meditating on the Word of God. It provides, for every day in the year, a short passage—only a verse or two—from the Bible, and about twenty lines of devout meditation suggested by the selected passage. Travellers, busy men of the world, soldiers on active service, and many others whose time is fully occupied, may find, in the daily use of such a book as this, great help in observing what should be a rigid rule of every Christian man's life. As Dr. Waring well observes in his preface, "A single verse from God's Word, pondered over and received into the heart, will tend more effectually to promote spiritual life than a whole chapter, with a learned commentary, read in haste and speedily forgotten amidst the business or pleasures of life."

LETT'S DIARIES FOR 1882.

ONE of the pleasures of the approach of the new year is an inspection of the marvellous series of diaries and almanacs of all sorts and sizes that are produced every year in greater variety and with additional conveniences by Messrs. Letts, Son and Co. (Limited.) There is to be found, in Messrs. Letts's list, something to suit the requirements of everyone—from the lady's pretty little bijou pocket book up to the huge but useful scribbling diary. As a handy and convenient diary for the desk or pocket, we prefer the long narrow size No. 29, price one shilling, or one-and-sixpence if interleaved with blotting paper. For an edition de luxe, we might choose No. 13, in "Royal Exchange Russia leather wallet, lined calf, diary covered satin, very strong, fastening with elastic band;" but as this costs one pound, most people will prefer to get it as a Christmas present from a sister, cousin, or aunt.

THE JOURNAL OF THE NATIONAL INDIAN ASSOCIATION FOR DECEMBER.

THE December number of the Journal of the National Indian Association contains an unusually large amount of interesting matter. We are glad to see that the editor has done us the honour of reprinting two of the articles that have recently appeared in Allen's Indian Mail on the "Support of High Education in India." The contents of the number are as follows:—Home Education for Indian Ladies, The Place which the Rig-Veda occupies in the Daily Morning and Evening Prayers of the Hindus, The Support of High Education in India, Professor Max Müller's Lectures on the Science of Religion, Women Doctors in India, Hindu Widows, The Legend of Sakuntala, Sanskrit as a Living Language in India, Review—Mahomedan Education in Bengal, Indian Intelligence, Personal Intelligence.

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE METEOROLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

THE supplement to the Gazette of India contains a resolution of the Governor-General in Council on Mr. Blanford's scheme for the improvement and further development of the Central Meteorological Department. With a view of improving and extending the distribution of the present daily weather bulletins, Mr. Blanford proposed:—

(1.) To attach a chart, showing the distribution of pressure, wind, and rainfall, to the daily weather statements, and to elucidate these by a verbal description throughout the year instead of during the Simla season only.

(2.) To distribute the daily reports to all divisional and district officers stationed within one or two days' post of the place of publication, and to any others who may wish to have them; to make them available to the public generally on payment of a subscription of Rs.2 per mensem, and to furnish them gratis to such newspapers as agree to publish them.

(3.) To telegraph to presidency towns and other seats of Local Governments, for the information of Government and the public press, a condensed summary of the remarks which accompany the daily weather reports.

(4.) To put the Meteorological-office at Simla in direct electrical communication with the Telegraph-office, and to lithograph the report and chart in the Meteorological-office, so as to issue them as far as possible on the afternoon of the day to which they relate.

To enable these changes to be carried out, he further proposed that a scientific assistant to the meteorological reporter should be added to the existing establishment.

With the exception of that for the publication of a daily chart, those proposals have been sanctioned by the Government of India.

With a view of extending the distribution of the information recorded, the Meteorological reporter proposed:—(a) To publish a periodical report (monthly during the rains and bi-monthly during the fine season), giving such a resumé of the character of the season as can be gathered from the daily weather bulletins supplemented by the weather and crop reports received in this department, and indicating, where this can be safely done, the ensuing prospects of the season.

(b) To publish a popular treatise on Indian meteorology founded on the data already collected.

(c) To publish on the 1st January and the 1st June in each year a short historical summary of the weather phenomena of the half-years 1st May to 31st October and 1st November to 30th April.

These proposals have been sanctioned tentatively. It was further proposed to establish seven new observatories; to allow salaries to the observers at Utakamand, Sambhar, and Katmandu; to appoint a well-trained European observer to visit the various observatories, and instruct, where necessary, the observers in charge, and to increase the allowances of certain meritorious observers. These measures have also been sanctioned, with the exception of the appointment of a trained European instructor, whose duties, it is considered, can be undertaken by the scientific assistant already referred to.

In order to facilitate the extension of our knowledge of the meteorology of the Indian seas, Government has further, on Mr. Blanford's recommendations, sanctioned, experimentally, the establishment of a system of collecting information regarding the weather on those seas from pilots and logs of vessels coming to Calcutta, and the reduction and discussion, at a cost of Rs.5,000, of the twenty years' statistics of Indian marine meteorology received from the London Meteorological-office.

As the best means of carrying out the suggestion of the Famine Commission that the investigation of the coincidence between rainfall fluctuations and sun spots should be continued, Mr. Blanford recommended that a trained European observer should be sent up to Leh, to start actinometric observations there and instruct the permanent native observer. This has been sanctioned, together with the cost of a Winstanley instrument, and the Solar Physics Committee have undertaken to send out a competent sapper from England for the work. These changes will involve, in the aggregate, an annual outlay of Rs.25,721 and a special grant of Rs.7,800.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE VICEROY'S TOUR.—His Excellency the Viceroy has been stationary in camp at Agra during the past week (Nov. 15) except for a brief visit to Futtehpore Sikri. His Excellency exchanged visits with the native Princes—Scindia, Bhurtpore, and Dholepore—which, however, were regarded as private, the salutes in consequence being omitted. On the 10th the Viceroy visited the city, and was enthusiastically received by the people; in the evening an address was presented by the Municipality, to which his Excellency replied at length, complimenting the inhabitants upon the beauty of their buildings and monuments, and then passing on to the subject of the harvest and agriculture, the institution of the new Agricultural Department and the means of famine prevention. While on this subject his Excellency paid a high tribute to the manner in which a policy of agricultural development had been forwarded in the North West Provinces by the Lieutenant Governor, Sir George Couper. The Viceregal party were to leave for Jeypore on Nov. 16.

THE P.N.S.R.—The opening of the Northern Punjab State Railway line to Nowshar for public traffic is fixed for Dec. 1, and to Peshawur on Jan. 1, but there will be no opening ceremonies, as on the occasion of the opening to Haji Shah. The completion of the Attock Bridge is, however, still an affair of the future.

MR. THORNTON.—The resignation of Mr. T. H. Thornton, D.C.L., S.C.I., Judge of the Punjab Chief Court, which was recently mentioned as on the cards, has now, we hear, actually been sent in.

THE MILITARY ACCOUNTS DEPARTMENT.—Not indeed before it was needed has a deputy been appointed to Major Newmarch, Financial Secretary in the Military Department, one of the most laborious of our public servants.

THE OPIUM REVENUE.—The statement of the opium revenue up to the commencement of the present month shows that a sum of Rs. 1,425,825 has been realised in excess of the return estimated. The sales too of Bengal opium have produced more than was reckoned; on the other hand, the Bombay export duty has made less, but a comparison of the two figures discloses a balance above the estimates of Rs. 8,99,122.

THE CALCUTTA BENCH.—Sir Richard Garth, chief justice of Calcutta, is reported to be ill, having been attacked by fever during a holiday shooting excursion, and had a relapse since his return. The two additional judgeships talked of for the Calcutta High Court are not likely to be sanctioned it seems, and Mr. O'Kinealy, who would have been raised to the bench if they had been, returns to his old post of legal remembrancer.

THE GWALIOR RESIDENCY.—Col. John Watson, V.C., who will succeed Mr. Melville at Baroda, has taken over for the present the political agency at Gwalior, left vacant by the death of Col. Willoughby Osborne.

THE JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER, OUDH.—It is understood that Mr. Sparks, Commissioner of Lucknow, will succeed Mr. Capper as Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

CASH BALANCES.—The following were the balances held in the civil treasures of the Government of India and at credit of Government in the presidency banks and their branches on the last day of October, 1879, Rs.12,61,71,000; 1880, Rs.9,27,54,000; 1881, Rs.11,46,41,000.

THE "CLAN MACDUFF."—Intimation has been received by the director of the post-office in India of the loss by the wreck of the steamer Clan Macduff of 3,516 letters and 2,314 newspapers for soldiers and seamen.

PRIVATE ENTERPRISE.—A short railway is to be constructed in Bengal, from Baidyanath to Deoghur and Rohini (six miles), by Messrs. Burn and Co., of Calcutta, entirely as a private enterprise.

PUNJAB MORTALITY.—There were 53,921 deaths registered in the Punjab in September (as compared to 31,476 in the corresponding month of last year), including 2,560 from cholera.

THE P.W.D.—We hear that new pension rules have been sanctioned for officers of the P.W. Department guaranteeing a retiring allowance of Rs.6,000 per annum after twenty-five years' service, and also making provision for every assistant engineer becoming a 1st grade executive within twenty years of his joining the service.

A VERY BIG GOOSEBERRY.—The big gooseberry season in Calcutta having produced a rumour that Sir Ashley Eden was about to retire shortly, an official denial has been published that the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal has any intention of leaving his post before the expiration of his term of office in October, 1882.

THE CAPUAN OFFICES.—The new Central Government offices at Simla are estimated to cost at least fifty-five lakhs of rupees.

MARRIAGE REFORM.—A society has been formed at Durb-hanga through the exertions of Munshi Peary Lal to promote social reforms, especially in regard to marriage. The Hindu Patriot states that the Maharaja of Durbhanga is lending most efficient support to the society, by contributing Rs.1,000 annually to its funds, as well as assigning a building, and making grants towards the travelling expenses of the Munshi.

REDUCTION OF DEBT.—An important notification has been issued by the Government of India, announcing the application of 75 lakhs provided under the head of famine insurance money in this year's Budget, and of about seven lakhs in that of next year, to the reduction of the public debt of the country in the discharge of certain specified loans.

REORGANISATION OF THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.—A resolution has been issued by the Government of India reorganising the superior grades of the telegraph department. The deputy director-general and the two directors obtain a slight increase of salary; superintendents of the second grade are also given an increase, which enables them to earn the higher pension of Rs.5,000, per annum; the pay of third grade superintendents is fixed at Rs.800; and sixteen new appointments of superintendent, fourth grade, on Rs.600, are created. Promotions under the revised scale are to have retrospective effect from the 1st April, 1880.

THE SURVEY IN BURMA.—A large party of the officers employed in the survey of India will leave Calcutta for Mergui about the 5th or 6th inst. Amongst them are Colonel B. R. Branfill (in charge of the party), and Lieut. the Hon. M. G. Talbot. A base line is to be measured at Mergui, about Jan. 18 next. This party will probably be engaged about Mergui, for about six months, in verifying and testing former calculations and surveys.

THE ACCIDENT TO THE VICEREGAL TRAIN.—From the official report on the subject of the late fatal railway accident which occurred on the East Indian Railway line at Bally, on the morning of Sunday, the 9th instant, it appears that Mr. Campbell, the acting agent, after carefully inquiring into the circumstances of the accident, is of opinion that the breaking of the tire was due to the inequality in the manufacture of the steel, and states that, in 1870, the year in which the tire in question was manufactured, the manufacture of Bessemer steel, of which the tire is made, was comparatively in its infancy, as the castings differed very much in quality. Mr. Campbell says that he has known steel tires of engines to break suddenly while they were simply standing in their sheds without any apparent cause. As no other conclusion than the above can be arrived at, it is by no means reassuring to think that the steel tires manufactured eleven years ago, and of which the East India Railway have a stock on hand, are liable at any time to similar sudden fracture as that which was the cause of the late fatal accident.

RETIREMENTS FROM THE I.M.D.—The following is a list of the medical officers to whom annuities have been assigned from the Bengal Medical Retiring Fund for the year 1882:—Surgeon Major J. B. S. Brown, retired; Deputy Surgeon General W. H. Adley; Deputy Surgeon General J. A. C. Hutchinson, M.D.; Surgeon Major J. B. Scriven, retired; Brigade Surgeon J. Pichall, M.D.; Surgeon Major H. W. Graham; Brigade Surgeon P. Ringer, M.D.; and Surgeon Major P. F. Bellew.

CHARITABLE NURSING IN CALCUTTA.—Three sisters from the Clewer Sisterhood are expected in December next to undertake the superintendence of the nursing at the General Hospital in connection with the Canning Fund. They are, therefore, not in any formal connection with the Oxford mission, though they probably would not have come had that mission not been already in existence here. Some good ladies and sisters are coming out at the same time to work in the Scott's-lane mission.

THE BAKR EED IN CALCUTTA.—Thursday being the festival of the Bakr Eed, the Sunni sect of the Mahomedans congregated together on the maidan at nine o'clock in the morning to offer up prayers under the conduct of the great Moulvi—better known as the "Pir Sahib." There perhaps has never been—certainly not within the last ten years, the last occasion being when the Moulvi's father held a similar service near the Ochterlony monument—such a concourse of natives seen within a limited space. The devotees had arranged themselves in about sixty lines in close order, each averaging 350 men (the whole body numbering over 20,000, and covered a tract of the Maidan about five acres square near the Golf Club ground. The Moulvi, who was dressed in black silk with a choga of the same material of purple over the former, led the service with the latter garment over his head during prayer. The crowd was most orderly throughout, but when prayer was over a rush was made for the Moulvi, and hundreds of pairs of hands were laid on his clothes, feet, legs, &c., with a view to attaining some of that virtue which it is believed is in this saint's peculiar province to dispense. Hundreds also were there with earthen pots of waters to be blown upon with a view to its being imbued with healing and curing properties, but these people were disappointed, as the Moulvi, after having been hemmed in by a dense crowd for an inconvenient period, eventually, and with difficulty, managed to escape from his, so to speak, worshippers in a gharry.

THE CALCUTTA TRAMWAYS.—Mr. Kittredge, the manager of the Bombay Tramway Company, visited Calcutta a few days ago, and while there inspected the Calcutta Tramway lines, and inquired into their working. He is said to have expressed satisfaction with all that he saw, and suggested some slight improvements. The tramways committee connected with the Calcutta Municipal Corporation object, from all accounts, to steam engines being employed on the tram line in Chowringhee, but the objection came in too late, since the engines have been ordered and are expected to arrive in a very few days. They are coming out on board the s.s. Discoverer, in charge of Capt. Hughes, consigned to Messrs. Peel, Jacob, and Co. So soon as the engines arrive and are fitted up a trial trip will be made. Mr. Souttar, of the tramway company, the chairman and engineer of the corporation, the commissioner and deputy commissioner of police, accompanied by a few friends, made a trial trip on the Chowringhee line, the result of which was satisfactory.

MADRAS.

THE GOVERNOR.—His Excellency the Right Hon. Mr. Grant Duff held his first levee on the evening after his arrival at Madras. A large assembly of European and native gentlemen attended to pay their respects to the new Governor.

STORM AT MADRAS.—A storm of great severity burst at Madras on Saturday, Nov. 12, causing great damage to the new harbour works. The titan cranes on both piers were carried away, and about seven hundred feet of the east pier are reported to have been lost. Two barges, which had been engaged in laying moorings in the harbour, capsized and sank, fourteen of those on board being drowned. A boat returning to shore at Coconada from a steamer was overtaken by the storm and capsized, by which the French Consul and two daughters of the Master Attendant, Capt. Gilham, lost their lives.

THE LATE MR. P. R. CHETTI, C.S.—A meeting has been held at the Cosmopolitan Club, Madras, at which Hon. T. Muthosawmy Iyer Avergal presided, for the purpose of addressing a letter of condolence to Mr. P. Remasawmy Chetti and his family on the death of Mr. P. Ratnavelu Chetti, of the Madras Civil Service.

WIDOW MARRIAGE.—A Hindu gentleman at Coconada Madras, is trying to form public opinion in favour of widow marriage by means of popular songs, which he causes to be recited among large assemblies of people.

PERSONATING THE VICEROY'S CHAPLAIN.—At the opening of the sessions on Tuesday, Edward Seymour Austin Burch, who was charged with forging the name of the Rev. Father Kerr, the Viceroy's private chaplain, and defrauding the Very Rev. J. Colgan of the sum of Rs.200, was placed at the bar, and Mr. Tarrant said that an affidavit had been filed for the examination of Father Kerr by commission, and he did not know if the prisoner had anything to say or wished to forward interrogatories. His Lordship observed that sufficient ground had been shown for the examination of Father Kerr by commission, and he wished to know if the prisoner had anything to say to it. The prisoner said that he had no questions to ask the Rev. Father Kerr. His Lordship said that the only question which remained for decision was, whether this case should be adjourned. According to the Crown Prosecutor's statement the Commissioner was not likely to return till next month, and as his evidence was material the case must be adjourned. As he was an under-trial prisoner he did not wish to keep him in gaol, and, again, he did not wish to put other people to inconvenience by making them to attend on another day. His Lordship said that if he was prepared to give bail he would release him. The prisoner was unable to give bail, and said that if there was no alternative the case must be adjourned. His lordship adjourned the case to the next sessions. The commission is made returnable within six weeks. The witnesses in connection with this case were ordered to return to Bombay and Bandora, with directions to be present at the next sessions.

BOMBAY.

WOOLLEN MILLS FOR BOMBAY.—Mr. J. E. O'Connor, in his latest trade review, suggests that woollen mills should be started in the Bombay Presidency, and possibly some enterprising Parsee may take up the idea. Woollen mills are working in the North West Provinces, in the Punjab, and in Mysor, but none in Bombay.

TELEPHONES IN BOMBAY.—At a meeting held lately the corporation considered the town council's resolution with reference to the application of the Oriental Telephone Company for permission to place telephone wires throughout the city. The municipal commissioner said he proposed to levy some small rental for the right of putting up wires, and to make such rental subject to revision after, say, five years, when it would be seen how the company worked, and what their prospects were. He also thought that it should be stated in the agreement that no posts or wires should be put up in the streets without his permission, and that when brackets were fixed they should be fixed by the officers of the municipality, and that full compensation should be given for any damage done. It was proposed by Mr. Nanabhoy Byramjee Jeebhoy "that, as recommended by the town council, the municipal commissioner be authorised to give permission to the Oriental Telephone Company to place telephone wires throughout the city; that the permission hold good for the term of ten years, and be granted subject to such conditions, and to the payment of such rent by the company as the municipal commissioner, with the sanction of the town council in the interests of the municipality, may see fit to impose." Khan Bahadur Muncherjee Cowasjee Murzban seconded the proposition. The chairman proposed "That the consideration of the town council's resolution No. 7842 of 1881 be postponed until the corporation have perused the draft agreement which it is proposed to enter into with the Oriental Telephone Company, and that in the meantime the proposed agreement with the company be printed and circulated." The proposition was carried by a large majority.

PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.—A branch of the Bombay S.P.C.A. was opened at Ahmednagar on the 29th ult. A correspondent of the Bombay Gazette thus describes the proceedings:—A large and influential public meeting was held here yesterday afternoon. Mr. Richey presided; and General Schneider and a number of European gentlemen of position were present. Addresses in English and Gujarati were delivered, and a branch of the Bombay Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was formally established. The collector has accepted the office of president of the branch, and Rao Sahib Mahipatram Rooram was appointed one of the joint honorary secretaries. A large sum was subscribed on the spot, and promises of liberal donations to the branch are made by some of the trade associations in the city. The movement is highly approved of by the Jains and other classes.

ACCIDENTAL DEATHS.—The inquest concerning the deaths of three labourers of the Bombay Health Department through being sent into a sewer and suffocated by mephitic gases, resulted in a verdict being returned to the effect that the deaths were purely accidental, and that no blame was attached to any one.

MORE BHIL TROUBLES.—We hear that in consequence of the threatening attitude of the Bhils in the Edur district, two companies of the 26th Regiment N. I., under the command of Captain Yates, left Ahmedabad on Monday last. The despatch of troops, it is understood, is a matter of precaution only. Major Probyn, who is on special duty in connection with the Bhils, has also left for Edur.

THE C. IN C.—His Excellency General Harding has left Bombay for Sind.

BARODA.—A small military camp is to be formed at Baroda on the occasion of the investiture of his Highness the Gaekwar, which will be maintained for purposes of drill and manoeuvres up to about the middle of January. It will be composed of one Battery of Artillery, the headquarters, and 200 men of the Royal Lancaster Regiment, one Regiment of Native Cavalry, and three Regiments of Bombay Native Infantry.

THE GOVERNOR.—Sir James Fergusson was expected to return to Mahabaleswar, after his tour in the Southern Mahratta Country, on the 28th Nov.

THE SOUTH MAHRATTA RAILWAY.—It is stated that Col. J. G. Lindsay has been appointed engineer in chief of the Southern Mahratta Railway, and that the system will include the Bellary and Hubli line and the Bombay Eastern Decca Railway.

THE BOMBAY THEATRE.—Miss Wilson has succeeded in engaging artistes to supply the places of the unfortunate ladies and gentlemen who were lost by the wreck of the Glan Macduff. The company are to come out by the Peninsula and Oriental steamer, Khedive, which leaves London on the 23rd inst., and it is expected that the Gaiety season will open on Christmas eve.

ART IN INDIA.—At the Puna exhibition of the Western India Arts Society, curiosities and works of art other than pictures have for a second time been added to the collection. Many specimens of art furniture were exhibited by the Ratnagherry School of Industry, and there was fine wood carving, ivory work, and silver manufacture. The vases in bidri work (iron inlaid with silver) sent by H. E. Nawab Sir Salar Jung from Hyderabad were greatly admired.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

On Wednesday bar silver remained at 51½d. per ounce. Business in Mexican dollars was restricted, but the amount of these coins received by the West India steamer was disposed of at the previous quotation of 51¼d. The firmness of the market for the uncoined metal was supported by the increased demand for remittance to India, as shown by the allotment made of the India Council drafts. Rupee Four-and-a-Half per Cents. improved 1-16, to 91¾d. to 7½d. The exchanges from the East were steady, but unaltered.—On Thursday there was no movement to report in the silver market, bars being unaltered at 51½d., and Mexican dollars at 51¼d. per ounce, without any considerable business. Telegraph transfers from Calcutta were quoted ¼d. higher, at 1s. 7 15-16d. At the same time Rupee Four-and-a-Half per Cents. were dealt in at an advance of 1-16, the price being 91 13-16 to 15-16, while the Four per Cents. improved ½, to 84 9-16 to 11-16. The exchanges from Bombay and Calcutta were telegraphed at 1s. 8 3-16d. respectively, the rate from Hong-Kong being 3s. 9¾d. and from Shanghai 5s. 1¾d.—On Friday the market was without the least movement, the quotation for bars being 51½d., and Mexican dollars 51¼d. Telegraph transfers inclined downwards at 1s. 7½d. to 15-16d.; Bombay, on the other hand, being a shade better at 1s. 7 15-16d. Rupee paper was unaltered, and the only change in the Eastern exchanges was a fall of ¼d. in the Shanghai rate, to 5s. 1½d. The same remarks apply to Saturday.

MONDAY, DEC. 5, 1881.

THE EXTENSION OF GENERAL EDUCATION IN INDIA.

In discussing the question of Indian education, we believe it is impossible to insist too often or too urgently on the great fact that it is to the higher education of our Colleges and High Schools that we have to look, for the creation of the class that is to improve the social condition of the people of India, and to develop alike the civilisation, the intellectual enlightenment, and the material resources of the country. To those who view India solely from the English standpoint, this important fact is apt to be obscured by sentiments of philanthropy, as well-meaning and as mistaken as those that provide flannel petticoats and moral pocket-handkerchiefs for the South Sea Islanders. Here in England we have an enormous number of highly educated men, far more than sufficient for all possible requirements, belonging to a class generally wealthy, and having all the benefit of the vast endowments of many centuries; whilst, on the other hand, we have—or, at least, had, within the last few years—a proletariat steeped in the grossest and most appalling ignorance. In England, then, it has long been impossible to doubt in which direction the educational efforts of the State ought to be most strenuously applied. But in India, as we trust we have shown with sufficient clearness, the conditions are entirely altered; but it would be well if English philanthropists carefully studied the altered conditions, before lending their names to an agitation that, if successful, must do infinite harm to the future of the country they wish to befriend. If it be possible without harm to the higher education, by all means let us endeavour largely to extend the beneficent influence of our primary education among the masses of India. But let us never, for one moment forget that if, in order to give to the Indian ryot the not inconsiderable blessing of a knowledge of the three R's, we in any way maim the higher education, we shall be cutting at the very root of both the material prosperity and the moral and intellectual advancement of the country.

But is it entirely impossible to extend the education of the masses without aiming at the higher education that blow, the striking of which seems to be the first aspiration of the reverend and philanthropical members of the "General Council on Education in India?" We are very confident that the cause of General Education in India has suffered more from the disunion that has ever existed among those who are interested in it than from any other thing; and most of all from the ill-judged and misdirected efforts of those who take upon themselves to advocate the extension of mass-education at the expense of the State colleges and high schools. Such proposals outrage native feeling in one of its most sensitive points. Any attempt to carry them out will be met with the utmost force of native opposition; whilst it must ever be difficult for conscientious local officers to support with any enthusiasm a policy that is manifestly as unjust as it is unpopular—and that is, moreover, as inexpedient as it is unjust, except for the lowest and most contemptible reasons of race-antagonism, or the less criminal but not less mistaken motives of religious propagandism. Sir George Campbell, when Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, advanced but a little way on this path; he cut down some colleges to provide for his schemes of primary education, but he largely supplemented the funds so obtained by grants from the general revenues. Nevertheless, what was the result? The name of Campbell became a bye-word in the native community for everything that was unjust and tyrannical; nor did the gentlemen of Bengal rest until they obtained from wiser and less despotic successors more than all that had been taken from their collegiate education by Sir George Campbell. And as for the usefulness of the grants then made to the pathshalas of Bengal, it was notorious that when a gurumahashay obtained a grant of Rs.25 from Sir George Campbell, he was commonly "cut" to that extent by the parents of the boys, the net result being pro tanto to pauperise the parents without improving the education. Of course, the enormous increase then made in the grant for primary education did ultimately—under the more cautious regulations of subsequent Lieutenant Governors—result in a proportionate increase of the number of primary schools brought under cognisance of the Education Department, and doing good work. But it is fairly certain that at least equally good results in this line would have been obtained if not a single rupee had been taken from the colleges; whilst in that case, much individual hardship to students interrupted in a promising career, and much public irritation, would have been avoided. It was the suddenness of the extension—district officers having to go out into the highways and hedges to compel roadside schools to accept grants—as well as the improper source from which was wrung part of the money granted, that caused all the mischief. And these circumstances should be a warning to Lord Shaftesbury and the other philanthropic gentlemen, of the evils that may be produced, with the best possible intentions, by the thoughtless adoption of an unjust and inexpedient policy.

We will now try to answer briefly the question proposed at the beginning of the last paragraph. We do most unhesitatingly think it quite possible that much good might be done by the Reverend Mr. Johnston and his powerful "Council" in extending the education of the masses in India, if they only went the right way to work. The great mistake they make, we venture with all respect to think, is, that they offer no practical constructive scheme; they have been hitherto content with destructive proposals. Secondly, they should endeavour to carry native opinion along with them, instead of arraying it in bitter opposition against them; even Lord Shaftesbury—clarum ac venerabile nomen—may be very sure that the wise and thoughtful men of India know better than he does what accords with the highest interests of their own country and their own people. And, lastly, they should most studiously avoid even the appearance of urging on the Christian Government of India a policy, offensive and injurious to its Hindu and Muhammadan subjects, and beneficial chiefly to Christian Missionary Institutions.

To put these suggestions into a more definite shape. Instead of calling on Lord Ripon's Government to maim the high education of the country, the "Council" should use its influence to induce that Government to assign a larger proportion of the general revenues to the purposes of education—the increase to be entirely devoted to primary instruction on a cautious and well-considered plan. At present, the total amount given to Indian education from all public sources—including provincial revenues and local and municipal funds—is hardly more than a million sterling per annum; the portion contributed from provincial revenues is about £780,000—what a miserable percentage on an Imperial revenue of more than £60,000,000 per annum! Mr. Ranga Charlu has just announced that a larger proportion of the revenues of the native State of Mysore will be applied to education; surely Major Baring might be stirred up to emulate Mysore, even if it be impossible for him to aspire to the liberality of an ordinary European State?

Again, the "Council," instead of vaguely asserting their belief that private enterprise would step into the gap if the Government were to shut up the State colleges, might well do something to make that belief a less unreasonable one than it is at present. For instance, they might raise subscriptions for the purpose of endowing the Metropolitan College of Calcutta, a private institution, and other similar colleges, to an extent that would enable them to compete on equal terms with the richly-endowed missionary colleges. When the "Council" has provided in this way for the fair treatment of private colleges, it may justly hope that such colleges will exist and thrive. At present, there is absolutely no reasonable ground for such a hope. The Government colleges, as we have shown, compete with no one. They frankly charge a very high fee, relatively higher than the fees in any college of Oxford or Cambridge, much higher than those of the missionary or private colleges; and in return for this, they maintain a staff that costs more than all the fees. Were they swept away, it would be impossible for the private colleges to compete with the missionaries; for the latter could employ all the revenues derived from the subscriptions of the wealthy English societies, either in the overwhelming reduction of fees, or in the great improvement of the collegiate staff, whichever might best succeed in attracting to their class-rooms the crowds of students shut out from the Government colleges.

It has been ruled that in future all officers of Government, not being military officers subject to military rules in the Military, Public Works, Marine, Ordnance, and Commissariat Departments, will be required to appear before military boards when applying for leave on medical certificate, or retiring on pension under circumstances requiring medical certificate. The local head of the department to which the applicant belongs will have to apply to the general officer commanding the division or district for the assembly of a board to report on the case.

HOME NEWS.

"THE INDIA."—The British India Steam Navigation Company has just added to its fleet a powerful steel steamer called The India, constructed by Messrs. William Denny and Sons, of Dumbarton. Her registered tonnage is 4,065, and the dimensions are—length 390 feet, breadth 42 feet, and depth 31 feet. She is propelled by engines of 3,000 indicated horse-power, and maintained on trial a mean speed of fourteen and a-half knots. She is classed 100 A1 at Lloyd's, and has the Admiralty certificate, which guarantees the thorough sub-division of the steamer by water-tight bulk-heads, and the assurance that the piercing of no single compartment can sink the vessel. The India is a flushed-decked steamer, but with the peculiarity of carrying the greater number of her first-class passengers in a citadel house, extending for about 140 feet amidships, and enclosing all the vital openings of the machinery spaces. The saloon and passengers' cabins are lighted with Swann's electric light. The India sailed on Wednesday from Gravesend for Colombo, Madras, and Calcutta, after embarking 80 cabin passengers. The steamer, however, grounded near Sheerness the same evening, but was towed off and brought back to London. The cargo is not believed to have received any damage.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders were received on Wednesday at the Bank of England for £450,000 in Government bills on India. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, £202,000; and to Bombay, £248,000. Tenders on both Presidencies at 18.7½d., being the minimum posted, will receive 23 per cent. Compared with last week this price shows no alteration. The same amount will be offered for tender on Wednesday next.

THE LOSS OF THE "MATTHEW CURTIS."—Judgment was given on Tuesday at Cardiff in the Board of Trade inquiry into the circumstances of the stranding and abandonment of the Matthew Curtis steamer, of Cardiff, while on a voyage from Calcutta to Dundee with 10,000 bales of jute. The vessel went ashore near Cape Gardafui. The court recapitulated the facts that had been stated in evidence, and pointed out the discrepancies in the log-books kept by the master and the chief mate. They found that the stranding was due to an error of navigation on the part of the master, who had not, in their opinion, made proper allowances for the tide and the currents. No measure appeared, either, to have been taken to verify the position of the vessel. The lead was not used, and this was unjustifiable. The master made every effort to save the lives of his crew, and, after she struck, was justified in abandoning her. With regard to the crew's fear of natives, Captain Foster gave several instances to show that English crews wrecked on their coast had been treated with uniform kindness. Finally, the master's certificate was suspended for six months.

THE VICTORIA CROSS.—On Thursday the Queen conferred the Victoria Cross on the following officers:—Major Arthur G. Hammond, Bengal Staff Corps, for gallantry in defending the top of the hill with rifle and fixed bayonet against a large number of the enemy, and carrying off wounded Sepoys at Asmai Heights, near Cabul, on Dec. 14, 1879; Lieut. W. H. Dick Cunningham, 2nd Battalion Gordon Highlanders, for gallantry and coolness in holding his position at Sherpur Pass on Dec. 13, 1879. Her Majesty also conferred the Victoria Cross on the Rev. S. W. Adama, Bengal Ecclesiastical Establishment, for gallantry in saving some men of the 9th Lancers at Kille Kazi on Dec. 11, 1870, when chaplain of the Cabul Field Forces.

the 26th ult. for the Cape to convey troops from Natal to India, encountered the full force of the violent gale which raged throughout the night. The steering gear was put out of order, and she sustained other damages, necessitating her running into Portland roads for shelter. During the storm one of the seamen was washed overboard and was immediately lost to sight.—The Jumna, Capt. Church, which left Bombay on the 4th of November, arrived at Spithead at midnight on Wednesday. She was detained twenty-four hours in quarantine at Suez in consequence of cholera in Aden, but had no cases of sickness on board. Private Norris, of the 1st Leicester Regiment, died on the passage. The Jumna brings home the 1st Battalion of the Royal Scots Fusiliers (late 1st Battalion 21st Foot), consisting of 20 officers, 430 men, 33 soldiers' wives, and 74 soldiers' children. In addition to the Fusiliers, the troopship had on board thirteen individual officers (whose names have appeared), twenty-three invalids, 518 time-expired men, sixteen women, and thirty-eight children.

THE PIANO FOR THE TROPICS.—The pianofortes manufactured at Dresden by M. Emil Ascherberg of 71, Queen-street, Queen Victoria-street, London, may be described as constructed with full iron frames, with metal tuning plates, overstrung, check action, and with patent compressed sounding board extending over almost the entire surface of the instrument. By means of this last named arrangement—one that may be almost said to be peculiar to this firm's productions—the volume of sound is very largely increased. While from these particulars it will be seen that the construction of the back, or framing, of Mr. Ascherberg's instruments has been very carefully considered with a view to their durability and their power to standing in tune, no less pains have been taken by the manufacture of the outer ornamental case enclosing and covering the whole. With the view of withstanding the trying climatic conditions of tropical countries, and the scarcely less severe conditions of our own land, as many as three veneers are used—one upon the interior and two on the exterior surface. The inner veneer gives the interior of the instrument a particularly elegant, finished appearance; the application of the two coverings on the outside of the case renders anything in the way of warping impossible. In connection with the internal mechanism or action of the pianos two somewhat special arrangements call for notice—one known as the Ascherberg prolongation pedal, the other a contrivance for producing half notes. Both devices are of a particularly ingenious character and well bear out the reputation of the firm for skilful mechanism. The first named has the effect of sustaining the tune or melody during the continuances of the accompaniment. For the rendering of airs with elaborate variations, for the execution of Beethoven's sonatas, Chopin's polonaises, and music of a similar character, and for accompanying singers, this patent arrangement has proved itself specially serviceable. The value of the second of these mechanical devices speaks for itself; as an aid to the musician's power it is particularly useful. In a description such as this it is, of course, impossible to enter into details; general terms only can be employed, otherwise much could be said, especially as regards the internal mechanism of the instruments turned out of this Dresden establishment. But, as has already been observed, words altogether fail to convey any idea of the exquisite finish that characterises every detail of construction, and the verbal painter who essays the task is glad to fall back upon facts that save all necessity for description. The simple statement that the high qualities of Emil Ascherberg's pianos have been recognised and acknowledged by the leading musicians of Europe renders further comment unnecessary. From a long list of artists who have publicly used these instruments, and who have expressed their extreme satisfaction with the manner in which they have answered their requirements, mention may be made of the names of Sir Julius Benedict, Mr. Charles Hallé, Herr W. Kuhe, Herr J. Schullhoff, Herr H. Scharwenke, Herr F. Spindler, Herr W. Ganz, Messrs. Ad. Henselt, Anton Door, and Alfred Grunfeld; Fraulein M. Krebs, Miss F. Waud, Miss Maggie Okey, Mdle. V. Timanoff, and Mdme. L. Rappoldi. These high authorities in the musical world have endorsed the favourable opinion of the public, and have concurred in extolling the perfect register of the instruments, it being absolutely impossible to detect any break between the plain wires and covered strings. Equal praise has been accorded to the roundness and fullness, as well as clearness and brilliancy, of the tone of these pianos, which is at the same time so well balanced and full of expression that powerful, brilliant, or sweet effects can be produced with equal ease and certainty. Directed as our remarks at all times are to foreign and colonial rather than home readers, the foregoing description of instruments specially designed to meet export requirements will be regarded with special interest. "Fireside concerts," is no meaningless phrase to colonial ears. Practically speaking, without the means or opportunity of enjoying any form of public amusement save at rare intervals, colonists prize even more highly than residents in the Mother Country do the possession of an instrument that ensures them the pleasures and delights of music within the four corners of their own "castle." Possessed of merits such as have been catalogued above, and offered at prices which, considering the high-class character of the manufacturers, are exceptionally low, Ascherberg's pianos and colonial buyers should not long remain strangers to each other. With a view of being in a position to meet the large demands that are expected to follow from the cultivation of a foreign and colonial trade, as well as to provide against the growth of current requirements, Mr. Ascherberg has in contemplation the erection of new and extensive works. All the preliminary arrangements are completed, and it is anticipated that by next spring the building will be in occupation. As the new establishment will be the largest and most comprehensive of its kind in all Germany, we purpose, when in possession of further particulars, to refer again to this subject.—European Mail.

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

Nov. 29.

(Present—Sir BARNES PEACOCK, Sir MONTAGUE SMITH, Sir ROBERT COLLIER, Sir RICHARD COUCH, and Sir ARTHUR HOBHOUSE.)

RAMANUND KOER v. RAGHUNACH KOER AND ANOTHER.

This was an appeal preferred from a decree of the Additional Judicial Commissioner of Oude of July 17, 1878, affirming a judgment of the Commissioner of the Fyzabad Division of Nov. 17, 1877.

Mr. Leith, Q.C., and Mr. J. H. W. Arathoon were counsel for the appellant; Mr. Cowie, Q.C., and Mr. Woodroffe for the respondents.

The arguments had no public interest, though they lasted over three days.

Their lordships, in the end, took time to consider their decision.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.—CHANCERY DIVISION.

Nov. 29.

(Before Mr. JUSTICE CHITTY.)

IN RE MADRAS IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY.

This was an application under the Companies' Arrangement Act, 1870, by certain bondholders in the company for leave to convene a further meeting of the bondholders in the above company to consider an offer by the Secretary of State for India to purchase the property and assets of the company in accordance with the terms of a letter of Viscount Enfield on his behalf of the 6th of November, 1880. On the 20th of July last a similar application was made to the Master of the Rolls to sanction the then proposal, which was in the terms of £106 per cent. being paid to each stockholder, and of £75 per cent. to each bondholder, the proposal being open during the last session of Parliament. At the first meeting of the bondholders the liquidator of the company had held a large number of proxies; but, on the matter being mentioned to the Court, the Master of the Rolls held that the proxies were not valid, inasmuch as the liquidator was not himself a bondholder, and therefore the Master of the Rolls directed a second meeting of the bondholders to be called for the 3rd of August. The latter meeting was held and the necessary statutory majority was not obtained. On August 4 the matter again came before the Master of the Rolls, when he refused to confirm the scheme. The Secretary of State has now renewed his offer, and the same is open until the end of the year. This application was now made for a further meeting to be held to consider the same on the ground that some mistakes had arisen in counting the votes on August 3, and also that several bondholders, who had then voted against the scheme, had since changed their minds, and now approved the same, and that other bondholders not present proposed now to vote in favour of it, and that, in fact, there was now the necessary statutory majority in favour of the scheme. The stockholders have unanimously approved the scheme.

Mr. Romer, Q.C., and Mr. W. Barber appeared in support of the summons; Mr. Westlake, Q.C., and Mr. Alexander Young for the liquidator; Mr. Benjamin, Q.C., Mr. Ince, Q.C., Mr. Buckley, Mr. Whittaker, and Mr. Somervell, for dissentient bondholders, opposed the application; Mr. M'Naghten, Q.C., and Mr. Stirling were for the Secretary of State for India.

Mr. Justice Chitty said he thought he should be properly exercising his discretion in directing another meeting to be held. It appeared that the offer of purchase had been before two meetings, but that at the first meeting there were certain errors in the voting, which compelled the court to set the result aside on a scrutiny. At the second meeting there was a large majority in number of the bondholders in favour of the scheme, but the majority in value fell short by some £9,000 or £10,000 of the necessary statutory majority. The Secretary of State had now renewed his offer, but his counsel stated that it would not be renewed after the end of the year. In effect, he looked upon the offer as a new one, and it was one which he thought the bondholders should have an opportunity of considering. As, however, the offer was in substantially the same terms as before, he should not have sent the matter back to a third meeting unless he thought there had been a bona fide change of opinion among the bondholders. There had been a careful analysis of the figures at the last meeting and the present state of opinion, but without stating the exact result, which might be inconvenient, he thought the applicants had made out a case showing a change of opinion sufficient to justify the new meeting. He would not at present pronounce any opinion on the merits, but simply say that in his judicial discretion he considered there was a reasonable probability of a statutory majority being obtained in favour of the scheme. The meeting would be held on Dec. 15, and the matter would come before him again on Monday, Dec. 19, if the meeting confirmed the proposal.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—DEC. 1.

SHEPHERD v. HENDERSON.

This was an appeal from the Second Division of the Court of Session in Scotland, and it raised certain questions under a policy of marine insurance.

Mr. Butt, Q.C., and Mr. Pollard appeared for the appellant; Mr. Cohen, Q.C., and Mr. F. W. Hollams for the respondent.

The appellant was the registered owner of the iron crew steamship Krishna, and the respondent had underwritten a policy of marine insurance upon the vessel for the sum of £50. While on a voyage from Goa to Bombay the ship encountered a hurricane and was in such danger of foundering that her master beached her on a shore of fine, shifting sand. He made every effort to get her off again when the weather moderated, but without success, and, as the "burst" of the monsoon was daily expected, the appellant gave notice of abandonment to the underwriters. The underwriters refused to accept the notice of abandonment, whereupon the appellant commenced an action in the Sheriff's Court at Glasgow against the respondent on the policy as for a total loss. Subsequently an agent of the underwriters succeeded in getting the vessel off and had her towed to Bombay, where she was repaired at a cost of £1,400, and was then worth £6,000. In her then state she was offered to the appellant, who refused to have anything to do with her, and persisted in his claim for a total loss. The sheriff found that at the date of the action the Krishna was not in any risk of sustaining further damage where she lay, and that, regard being had to the usual course of the monsoon, there was a reasonable prospect of her being got off the sandy shore where she lay without greater expense than a prudent uninsured owner would reasonably incur, and that, therefore, there was not at that date a constructive total loss of the ship such as to entitle the owner to abandon her to the underwriter. The court affirmed the decision of the sheriff. The main question raised by the appeal was whether the findings of the court below were justified by the circumstances of the case. On behalf of the respondent, however, the preliminary question was raised that the appeal was incompetent, inasmuch as it sought to reverse a decision of the Sheriff's Court of Lanarkshire on a question of fact as to the constructive loss of the vessel, a matter on which there could be no appeal.

At the conclusion of the arguments on behalf of the appellant on the preliminary point,

Their lordships gave judgment for the respondents, on the ground that the point involved being one of fact, they had no power to entertain the appeal.

Judgment affirmed, with costs, accordingly.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

SUGAR remains very quiet. Sales of West India are beneath report. There have been no public sales. Privately, some Ylloib sold at 15 1/2d. Clyde telegrams report more doing.

COFFEE.—The public sales were again small, and went without quotable change; 101 casks, 46 barrels and bags low middling to middling, 77s. to 84s. to 101s. for bold. A few lots East Indian and foreign withdrawn.

RICE.—A cargo of Rangoon off coast sold at 7s. 7d. per cwt. ex quay terms. New crop spring shipments easier, with sales at 8s. 3d. per cwt., basis Rangoon open charter.

JUTE remains dull. In auction 2,205 bales withdrawn or bought in. COTTON.—There has been a strong demand, and prices are again higher. Sales about 3,000 bales, including Tinnivelly at 5 1/2d. to 5 3/4d.; Western, at 4 1/2d. to 4 3/4d., and Bengal 4 1/2d. to 5 1/2d. per lb. For arrival, Bengal, November-December. Suez, 4 13-16d. for good f.g.f.c. Forward delivery, American, June-July, 6 15-16d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that, with some few exceptions, the markets remain very dull and unsettled, transactions being limited in extent. At the public sales of China tea common red leaf congois sold slightly under the depressed quotations reported by the last mail. Rather a better demand prevails for common to fair grades at the low rates now ruling. Comparatively small supplies of Indian have been brought forward. The tone is, however, quiet, with prices unchanged. In the coffee market no improvement is apparent. The Brazil advices show extended operations for Europe, and distant shipments can be bought at lower prices than for many years past. Fair Channel Rio is worth about 42s. per cwt. A few parcels colony plantation Ceylon have realised last week's valuations, but old crop is easier. Guatemala has barely maintained former terms, and to-day Costa Rica partly sold at low rates. Rice meets with increased attention, numerous cargoes of Burma, of the new crop, selling at a slight advance. The sugar market is dull, with a small amount of business passing at the reduction noticed on the 24th ult. Refiners' produce now meets with rather more inquiry. Beet sugars are again easier. At the cinnamon sales on Monday the unusually large supply (6,200 bales) partly found buyers, prices ranging from 3s. to 6d. per lb. under those in August. Many of the withdrawn parcels have since been disposed of at sale rates to 1d. per lb. recovery. Other spice markets generally exhibit a quiet appearance.

COFFEE.—The market is still very flat. 101 casks, 99 barrels and bags plantation Ceylon went rather lower for last year's crop—low to good middling, 73s. 6d. to 86s.; rather bold, 88s.

BLACK PEPPER.—A few transactions are reported, including Penang, at 4 1/2d. per lb.

RICE.—Two cargoes new Burmah, spring shipment, sold at 8s. 3d. per cwt., basis Rangoon, open charter.

INDIGO.—Messrs. Layton and Co. state that the public sales in Calcutta have resulted in establishing rates in many instances 6d. per lb. above those current here. Several auctions have been held, and some marks have been sold privately, including the J & R W at 290 rupees per factory maund. Here, during the month, there has been a fair demand, chiefly for Russia, at the full prices current at the October auctions. Some parcels of new Kurpah have also been sold for the Continent at a good advance on October valuations. Proprietors have exercised a wise discrimination in quitting recent arrivals, for they are all more or less cold and likely to lose in weight.

JUTE.—Messrs. Falconer and Co. state that the demand for dock or near at hand parcels has been extremely limited, and although the arrivals have been unusually light, the pressure to sell has continued, and prices are 7s. 6d. to 10s. lower. To arrive, the market has exhibited a downward tendency throughout the fortnight, and an extensive business has taken place, a fair proportion being to cover previous sales and on speculation, the decline established reaching fully 5s. per ton. With the heavy sales of the last few weeks both consumers and speculators seem fairly well supplied, and if a further decline in freights could be relied on they would no doubt see still lower prices. The sales for the fortnight are estimated at 50,000 bales afloat and 5,000 bales in dock and ex quay.

COTTON.—With a good demand, a considerable business has again been done at hardening rates. Sales about 3,500 bales, including Tinnivelly at 5d. 9-16d. to 5 1/2d.; Western, at 5d. Bengal at 4 1/2d. to 5 3-16d., and Tahiti at 12d. per lb. For arrival, Concomaria, December-January, 4 3/4d. for fair red. Forward delivery, American, February-July, 6 13-16d. to 6 15-16d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

From the official report of the 24th inst. we extract the following figures, viz.:—Imports for the previous four weeks 279,700 bales, sales to the trade 318,700, for actual export 38,300, estimate stock 455,700, at sea for Great Britain from America and India 219,000, showing an increase in the former of 21,000, but a decrease in the latter of 17,000 bales as compared with the same period of last year.

FRIDAY, EVENING.

INDIAN TEA.—The market has been less active, but there is no pressure to sell, and prices remain at last week's level. The catalogues have comprised 12,700 packages; including 1,050 chests of the Assam Company's growth, which sold for nearly 1s. 6d. all round; and 1,000 packages from the Land Mortgage Bank's garden, chiefly Darjiling tea, which brought an average of 1s. 9 1/2d. per lb. The November deliveries were 4,200,000.

COFFEE is dull, and 122 casks 110 barrels and bags plantation Ceylon in auction sold at 1s. decline on last week's rates, excepting for colony qualities. 1,400 bags foreign partly sold without change in prices.

RICE.—Another cargo of new Burma rice, February-May shipment, sold at 8s. 3d., open charter basis; Rangoon, and a coast cargo of Bassein, at 7s. 4½d. During the week Madras sold on the spot at 7s. 3d. to 7s. 4½d. per cwt.

COTTON.—With less difficulty, the market is firm and unchanged. Sales about 1,500 bales, including Western at 5½d. Coconad at 4¾d. to 5d., and Sind at 4d. per lb. For arrival, Tinnivelly October-January, Suez, 5 9-16d. for good fair; Coconada, December-January, 4¾d. for fair red; forward delivery American, January-February, 6 23-32d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

CASUALTIES.

The British India Company's new s.s. India, from London, for Colombo, Madras, and Calcutta, went ashore on the Ouse End Sand, near Southend, on the evening of Nov. 30. Tugs were sent to her assistance, and she was got off the next day, and has returned to London.

The John M. Clerk, from Glasgow to Manila, has put into Plymouth with sails split.

The Leverrier (s), from Calcutta, shipped a sea on Nov. 6 in lat. 33 N., lon. 28 E., damaging lifeboat and bridges, and carrying away jibboom, ventilator, bonnets, &c.

Hippolyta, from Rangoon, on Nov. 21, when about 250 miles S.W. of Fastnet, had a very heavy gale, with mountainous cross sea; ship was hove on her beamends, and several heavy seas passed over her, doing great damage, sweeping everything movable from the deck and gutting the houses. The ship remained in the position all night, the crew having taken to the mizen rigging. On the 22nd the gale moderated, and ship was trimmed upright. On the 24th, off Tuskar, had very heavy gales, with dangerous sea.

The City of Calcutta (s), Robertson, from Liverpool for Calcutta, put into Malta on Nov. 21 with low pressure piston rod broken. Alexandra, from Liverpool to Calcutta, has put into Holyhead with boats stove in.

The Hong Kong (s), which left the Tyne on Nov. 22 for Hong Kong, entered Plymouth on the 29 in a half-wrecked condition. From the time of leaving she encountered terrible gales. The decks were clean swept, and the saloon and the officers' quarters were stove in and gutted and partially filled with water. The Hong Kong was run head to sea, and bore up for Plymouth.

MISCELLANEOUS

NOW READY.

CANADA — including Ontario, North-West Territory, Manitoba, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, &c. With New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo., 288 pp. Cloth, 6s. "Athenæum," June 25, 1881. — "Full of information and statistics, which ought to prove very serviceable to any visitor to the Dominion."

"Times." — "Under the above title Messrs. Silver have brought out much more than a mere 'Handbook to Canada,' an historical, political, social, geographical, and topographical guide for the use of travellers and settlers over the greater portion of our North-American possessions. The need of such a work, at once handy, comprehensive, and trustworthy, has long been felt both by intending settlers and by readers at home, who are surprised, and not unnaturally, at the scanty information about so important a territory which is accessible to them. The volume is illustrated by a map, showing the whole extent of the Canadian Confederation from the shores of the Atlantic to those of the Pacific, and exhibiting all the details of inland communication, whether by Railway or the long chain of inland lakes. Those who have friends in British Columbia, Manitoba, &c., will find this map most useful; and it may be added that the historical chapters are full of materials for the future historian of Canada, or for the writer of an article on that subject in an encyclopedia."

"Manitoba Daily Free Press." — "Comprised in this book is a mass of valuable information, which cannot fail to impress every reader with an intelligent idea of the great resources and capabilities of our country. In fact, we are convinced that in the words of the preface, a comprehensive, reliable, and at the same time cheap and handy work has been produced, which will furnish the kind of information most sought for in regard to the Dominion, and especially in regard to Manitoba and the North West territories. We have every reason to think that this handbook to Canada is one of the best contributions to immigration literature yet produced. It is also very handsomely got up tastefully bound, and very well printed."

"Graphic." — "We are already acquainted with Messrs. Silver's Handbooks to Australasia and South Africa. They are concisely written, accurate in information, and full of practical details. The same praise may be accorded to the volume now before us, which comprises a survey of the whole of British North America, the reader's researches being aided by an excellent map. To the intending emigrant the descriptions of Manitoba and British Columbia will be especially attractive."

SOUTH AFRICA (New Edition) including the Cape, Natal, Orange Free State, &c. Illustrated. With Coloured Map. 676 pp. Price 6s.

AUSTRALIAN DICTIONARY OF DATES AND MEN OF THE TIME By J. H. HEATON, Sydney. Royal 8vo. 550 pp. Price 12s.

"The 'Times.'" — "A remarkable work. . . Shows more impressively than probably any other kind of publication could the immense activity of our Australian Colonies and the rapid advances they have made since their very recent foundation. . . It is a creditable and useful and, we believe, trustworthy publication."

ASTHMA, CHRONIC COUGH, &c., AND ALL CHEST DISEASES

ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-THREE CASES ARE GIVEN.

From Allen's Indian Mail :—"Mr. George Thomas Congreve, of Combe Lodge, Rye-lane, Peckham, has discovered a remarkably successful treatment of Consumption; and, to make it more widely known, has published the little book before us. A large number of cases are cited; and, as reference is made in very many of these cases to persons in well-known and responsible positions, there seems to be no reason whatever to doubt the perfect bona fides of all of them. And the book gives a particularly simple and clear account of this terrible disorder and its cure, as well as chapters on the cognate pulmonary diseases. The chapters on 'Cough accompanied with Liver Derangement,' and on 'Chronic Bronchitis,' will be found useful by many Anglo-Indians."

LAMPLOUGH'S EFFERVESCENT PYRETIC SALINE.

USE NO SUBSTITUTE.—See perpetual injunction against imitators, also the unanimous judgment before the Lords Justices Bramwell, Brett, and Cotton, Jan. 22, 1878, in H. Lamplough's favour.

Important to all, more especially English Ministers, British Consuls, and Europeans seeking to reside in safety in Tropical and Foreign Climates.

Her Majesty's Representative the Governor of Sierra Leone, in a letter of request for an additional supply of PYRETIC SALINE, states:—"It is of great value, and I shall rejoice to hear it is in the hands of all Europeans sitting the tropics."

SICKNESS, HEADACHE, and NAUSEA are in most cases immediately relieved by taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of cold water. This can be repeated once or twice in two hours, if needful.

SEA VOYAGES.—It is a very valuable accompaniment, and should on no account be omitted. It instantly allays the sea or bilious sickness.

For BILIOUS CONSTITUTIONS, giving rise to vitiated secretions, Indigestion, and Eruptions on the Skin, a teaspoonful should be taken daily with the dinner in a tumbler of water and the same quantity on going to bed. May be obtained of the Proprietor,

A RIDE TO KHIVA

BY CAPTAIN FRED. BURNABY

Royal Horse Guards.

Says page 18:—"Two pairs of boots lined with fur were also taken; and for physio—with which it is as well to be supplied when travelling in out-of-the-way places—some quinine and Cockle's Pills, the latter a most invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the natives of Central Africa with the greatest possible success. In fact the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines when I administered to him five will never fade from my memory; and a friend of mine, who passed through the same district many months afterwards, informed me that my fame as a "medicine man" had not died out, but that the marvellous cure was even then a theme of conversation in the bazaar."

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, DEC. 12, 1881.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Our advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Nov. 24; Madras and Allahabad, Nov. 22; Calcutta, Nov. 21.

We are so frequently compelled to criticise unfavourably the measures of the present regime in India that it is with real pleasure we applaud Lord Ripon's new appointment to the Legislative Council, announced in the Times Calcutta telegram to-day. Mr. Evans disputes with the Advocate General of Bengal the almost unquestioned leadership of the Calcutta bar, and has already done first-rate service in Council. His speech on the passing of the Vernacular Press Act was one of the most powerful of that memorable debate; and it argues well for Lord Ripon's impartiality, that, on the eve of another debate on the same subject, he has appointed to the Council one of the most forcible supporters of the doomed Act. By Mr. L. A. T. Crosthwaite must be meant Mr. C. H. T. Crosthwaite, commissioner of Nagpur, one of the ablest men in the Civil Service of Upper India, and the brother of the acting secretary to the Government of India in the Legislative Department. Mr. A. B. Inglis, of the firm of Begg, Dunlop, and Co., is an acknowledged leading authority in Calcutta commercial affairs, and has won his spurs in the Bengal Council.

The telegrams from India become more and more disquieting. With the return of the Viceregal Court to Calcutta, we get some glimpses of the unfolding of Lord Ripon's domestic policy, as well as clearer information about the working of his foreign policy, the general nature of which is already too well-known. Earnest well-wishers of India will grieve to discern, in both domestic and foreign policy, the same fatal tendency to sacrifice the future to the present; the same craving for petty momentary advantages, the same recklessness of future penalties. To gain the Manchester vote and a little immediate financial ease, we hear of preparations for imposing what the Indian papers call (we are told) "an iniquitous tax"—a tax condemned alike by Lord Mayo and Lord Northbrook, and one which Lord Lytton would never consent even to discuss—a tax that, if persisted in, may shake the very empire to its foundations. To gain a cheap popularity in England on the cuckoo-cry of "education for the masses," and to please some injudicious friends of a sacred cause, that of Christian missions—which will in reality be injured by such mistaken kindness—we hear of attempts to maim the State Colleges so dearly cherished by the loyal and intelligent body of educated Indian gentlemen. With the more complicated question of the repeal of the Vernacular Press Act, announced in to-day's telegrams, we deal very briefly in our leading columns. We shall return immediately to the discussion of the questions involved; but whatever may be thought of the general merits of the proposal for repeal, it will be felt by most impartial and competent observers that the measure, as represented to us in the telegraphic summary, is ill-considered, inopportune, and of a piece with the general tendency of our present Indian policy to cut away all disagreeable safeguards in order to gain the undiscerning applause of the multitude.

It has, of course, been all along clear that the full harvest of disaster, that must ultimately attend our Kandahar policy of surrender, can only be gathered in the future; and it is the certainty of this respite, added to the vague hope that something may in the meantime turn up to save us from the penalties of our cowardice and folly, that has doubtless emboldened the supporters of that policy to disregard all the warnings of prudence and experience. But to those who are not blinded by the madness of party feeling, the Calcutta telegrams in to-day's Times will be regarded as the cloud on the horizon that tells of the coming storm.

All our guns and subsidies have failed to secure for Abdurrahman even the semblance of a firm government in Southern Afghanistan. In Herat the local chiefs and the pretended lieutenants of the Ameer are already commencing the struggles that must infallibly bring the Russian once more on the scene. And, almost simultaneously, we receive confirmation of Lord Salisbury's statement—a few days since so stoutly contradicted, more suo, by the defenders of the Ministry—that the Transcaspian Railway, glorious agent of civilisation and conquest, has been completed to Askabad, and the Russian power thus brought within striking distance of Herat.

In view of the confirmation, in the Times Calcutta telegram to-day, of the rumour about the proposed reimposition of the Indian income-tax, it would be interesting to know whether Sir William Muir has had the opportunity of laying before Lord Hartington, in detail, the conclusion derived from his own experience of the working of that tax in the North West Provinces in 1871-72? Most of our readers will remember that Lord Mayo's conversion to the views of the anti-income-tax party was mainly due to the astounding disclosures made by the Hon. Mr. Inglis, in his speech on the Budget of 1871-72. Those disclosures were referred to the Lieutenant Governor for investigation; and it was universally believed in India, at the time, that Sir William Muir's remarkable Report—which more than confirmed all that Mr. Inglis had said, though it apologised for the warmth of his language—had buried the income-tax beyond all hope of resurrection. That was, at any rate, we believe, the opinion both of Lord Mayo and of Lord Northbrook.

What will the Radicals say, when they hear that Lord Ripon is vigorously pushing on to completion the Trans-Indus section of the Northern Punjab State Railway? The Viceroy, if we may judge from this, does not seem to have altogether the courage of his convictions; nor does it look as if he fully shared Mr. Gladstone's sublime trust in "moral barriers." But perhaps Mr. Bright has been assured that this line is to be pushed on for the sake of its commercial or civilising advantages; and it would keep up the pleasing illusion, if the public were to be informed that Major Baring has consented to entrust the line to "private enterprise."

We are glad to observe that the ceremonies connected with the installation of the young Maharaja of Burdwan have passed off with success; and have been made the occasion for a gratifying rapprochement between the European and Indian sections of Bengal society. Those who really have at heart the welfare of our Indian Empire will turn with pleasure from the meddling and muddling in vogue at Imperial head-quarters to the quiet and unpretending but steadily progressive administration of the Government of Bengal.

The committee of the Staff Corps and Indian Army Fund has received an important accession of strength this week. It has been joined by the following additional members:—Lord Crofton; Sir John F. Dillon, Bart.; General J. C. Innes, late Bengal Army; Lieut. General Fitzroy Mundy, late Bengal Army; Reginald Harris Temple, Esq., J.P.; James Inch, Esq. (of Messrs. Maynard, Harris, and Co.); R. M. Maclean, Esq., (of Messrs. W. Watson and Co.). Many of our readers will peruse with interest the letter from Mr. Allison, the Secretary to the Fund, which we give elsewhere.

Is Sir Charles Dilke aware that Indian carpets when imported into France pay a duty of 30 per cent., whilst English, Persian, and Turkey carpets only pay 10 per cent. ad valorem? This, it is true, is only an Indian grievance; and grievances that do not affect votes are generally believed to sit lightly on the conscience of the Foreign Under Secretary. But so many Liberal professions of a tender regard for the interests of India are now crying aloud to Heaven for fulfilment, that Sir Charles Dilke may perhaps attend to this very little matter for very shame.

The "Sportsman's Exhibition" will be held at the Agricultural Hall on Feb. 9, and following days up to the 18th idem. The show of requisites connected with coaching, hunting, and riding, shooting, racing, coursing, fishing, and sport at large, ought to be most interesting.

INFORMATION has reached the India Office that Major General J. Watson, V.C., C.B., who has lately vacated his appointment as Queen's aide de camp, has been chosen to act as British Resident at Gwalior pending transfer to Baroda, whither he is to proceed at the end of next year in relief of Mr. Melville, who returns to England.

MAJOR A. R. HEYLAND, Bombay Staff Corps, deputy-assistant adjutant-general, Bombay, has been appointed military secretary to the Right Hon. Sir J. Fergusson, K.C.M.G., Governor of Bombay, in succession to Lieut. Colonel Stracey, Scots Guards, who vacates that appointment on account of ill health.

WE understand that the Afghan war medal, which has been so long in preparation, is now almost ready, and that the issue will be proceeded with early in the new year, when the medals will be distributed among the officers and men of regiments now in the United Kingdom who formed part of the expedition. The bronze star, to be granted in commemoration of Sir F. Roberts's march from Cabul to Candahar, will not be ready for some little time.

THE recommendations of the Simla Army Commission will, it is understood, come into effect early next year, so far as relates to the abolition of the posts of Commander in Chief in Bombay and Madras respectively. Each of the officers holding these posts will become the commander of an army corps, with a diminution of pay in each case from about £5,500 to about £4,500 a year.

THE statement of the opium revenue, which is brought up to the commencement of November, shows that Rs. 14,25,825 have been realised in excess of the estimated return. The sales of Bengal opium have been more productive than it was reckoned they would be; but the Bombay export duty is under the estimated return. Nearly half the aggregate value of Indian produce is represented by opium. The following figures, showing the value of the trade during the last five years, are from Mr. J. E. O'Connor's recently published "Statement of the Trade of British India":—

Years.	Chests.	Ruppes.
1875-76	11,005	1,35,18,835
1876-77	9,701	1,19,09,695
1877-78	9,357	1,15,21,524
1879-80	10,586	1,18,96,842

THE export of tobacco from India is steadily increasing. Five years ago the exports were valued at less than 9 lakhs; last year their value had risen to over 14 lakhs. India exported during the first five months of the current year 1½ lakhs' worth of manufactured tobacco to England. Mr. J. E. O'Connor, in commenting upon the tobacco trade, in his latest review, expresses great satisfaction with the tobacco and cigars of Poosa, and the Madras cigars also he find to be improving. In October last, 4,398lb. of tobacco and cigars was shipped from Madras to Rangoon and Yokohama. It is known that in the estimation of the London agents and merchants the Indian leaf only requires the labour of skilled curers to compete successfully with the produce of America and the Manillas. The native agents in India are the persons who are chiefly responsible for the wretched manner in which the leaf is treated in preparation for the market. The trade should advance with more rapidity now that the Spanish Government have withdrawn from the Manilla monopoly.

THE number of visitors to the Indian collections at the South Kensington Museum for the weeks ending Oct. 8, were 2,372; Oct. 15, 1,812; Oct. 22, 1,388; Oct. 29, 1,598; total for the month of October, 8,444. The number of visitors for the weeks ending Nov. 5, 1,234; Nov. 12, 1,453; Nov. 19, 1,622; Nov. 26, 1,742; Total for the month of November, 6,457. Total from the opening, May 15, 1880, 288,156.

WE have the best authority for stating that the rumour, to which we referred a fortnight ago, of the retirement, on colonel's allowances, of General Cailell, R.E., is entirely without foundation.

THE Englishman states that the Calcutta Freight Market, for the week ending November 21, had been quiet, the only noticeable feature being a demand for sailing tonnage for New York. The unfixed tonnage in port at date stood at 5,400 tons.

MESSRS. W. MORAN and Co.'s market report gives the following account of the Calcutta Tea market for the same period:—

"On Thursday last, the 17th inst., the public sales consisted of 8,611 packages, all of which sold. The quality of some of the lots offered showed some improvement, but, taking this into consideration, we quote a general rise of about one anna per lb. Finest teas and fannings were least affected. Regarding the outturn of the crop of the present season, figures have now been received from the principal agents to the extent of 43,000,000lb. On this quantity we may fairly base an estimate as to what the export to the United Kingdom is likely to be for the season of 1881. These returns would indicate that the total outturn will probably not be more than one million in excess of the crop of 1880, which was forty-six and a-half millions pounds. Putting down the exports to the Australian Colonies and America at three-quarters of a million pounds (which amount at least, we have every reason to believe will be shipped) and putting down seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds for the country consumption, this leaves for Great Britain an available total of forty-six million pounds. It is hardly within our province to say whether the recent rise in prices is justifiable or not, but considering the largely increased consumption over last year, which may be put down at the rate of seven millions pounds per annum, the position of the article appears a strong one. At the same time it must be remembered by those interested in the industry that there must be a point, when it would actually be prejudicial to the enterprise, if prices became extreme and stocks became abnormally low. Both such results would have the effect of checking consumption, and would probably cause the dealer to have to revert to China produce, if he found that out of the reduced stock of Indians he was unable to match former purchases. We take the following figures from Messrs. J. C. Sillar and Co.'s circular, dated October 28, regarding China shipment:—'Telegrams from China, dated the 21st instant, report the shipments to this country to have reached 111,000,000lbs. against 123,000,000lbs. at the same time last year, 123,000,000lbs. in 1879, and 143,000,000lbs. in 1878. Private telegrams put the figures at 130,000,000lbs. this year, against 125,000,000lbs. last year.' Considering these figures, it is interesting to note that the price of sound common Congou, notwithstanding the gradually decreased supplies, has declined from 9d. per lb. in 1878, to 6½d. in 1881; while on the other hand, although supplies from this country have risen considerably, prices for good common broken, as compared with last year, show a rise of from 1d. to 2d. per lb., evidently proving the increased favour with which the Indian produce is now regarded by the trade."

FROM the same authority we take the following report on Indigo in Calcutta for the same period:—

"The public sales commenced on the 15th instant, and during the week 1,750 chests have been offered, but of this quantity, only some 200 chests were of European manufacture, and of the remaining 1,500 chests, about 600 were bought in, native proprietors being unwilling to sell at current rates. European markets from Behar and Bengal are now arriving in the market, and we may look for a larger business next week. By private contract the sale is reported of forty-two chests C M K. Kurburree, Tirhoot, at Rs. 265 per Fy. Maund. The demand for native oudes has been rather less brisk, and prices, except for very desirable lots, show a decline of Rs. 5 per maund, as compared with those obtained by private contract before the auctions. The total quantity disposed of up to date is about 7,000 maunds."

WE take from the Times of India the following obituary of the week ending Thursday, November 24:—Major W. Banbury, Staff Paymaster, Bedfordshire Regiment; Lieutenant E. C. Waud, 1st (King's) Dragoon Guards; Lieutenant A. M. Brabazon, Suffolk Regiment; Mr. W. H. Paulson, Bengal Educational Department; Dr. H. L. Cox, A.M.D.; Rao Sahib Vishwanath Govind Cholekar.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

THE reports on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending Nov. 15, state:—

"There has been slight rain in parts of Central and Eastern Bengal, but its want continues to be felt in Orissa and in some other places; general prospects, however, continue good; the earlier sorts of rice are being harvested, with a good average outturn; fever is more or less prevalent. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh there has been no rain; the rabi crops are everywhere in need of moisture, and irrigation has commenced in some districts; fever still exists, especially in Oudh. In the Punjab rabi sowings are progressing and the kharif harvest is almost over, the yield being generally good and prospects favourable. In the Central India and Rajputana States the weather is seasonable and agricultural prospects continue good on the whole. In the Central Provinces rabi sowings are nearly finished and rain is now wanted in one district; the weather is, however, reported to be cloudy; there has been a little rain; and prospects continue good. In the Bombay Presidency there has been good rain in the Southern Mahratta Country and elsewhere, and agricultural prospects, except in two districts where rain is urgently wanted, have much improved. In the Nizam's territories and Berar kharif crops are being reaped; there has been some rain, and prospects are favourable. Rain has again fallen copiously throughout the Mysor State and in Coorg, and crops are now everywhere in good condition; the harvesting of ragi and other minor crops has commenced in Mysor, and rice and coffee will now ripen better in Coorg. In the Madras Presidency there has been further rainfall, more or less heavy, in all districts except one; and general prospects are good, although a few districts still need more rain. In British Burma and Assam crop prospects are favourable everywhere; the harvesting of rice has commenced in the latter province. On the whole it may be said that recent rains have materially improved crop prospects in Southern and Western India; that in the central tracts of the country the weather is seasonable, and agricultural condition satisfactory; and that in the greater part of Northern India general showers would be beneficial.

TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE following telegram has been received at the India-office from the Viceroy, dated Dec. 6 :—

"Ameer marched on Nov. 20 for Cabul, with one regiment of Kandahari-Duranis, 1,000 strong; one Herati, 500 strong; two Cabulis, each 400 strong; ten guns, two cavalry regiments."

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs, under date of Dec. 11 :—

"The latest news from Afghanistan does not promise well for the future tranquillity of the country. The Ameer started from Kandahar for Cabul on Nov. 20, taking with him one regiment of Kandaharis, one of Duranis, one of Heratis, two regiments of Cabulis, two cavalry regiments, and ten guns, and leaving Sirdar Habibullah and Mustaufi Mir Mahomed Hussain Kazilbash to act as temporary governors of Kandahar pending the arrival of Abdul Rasool. He appears, however, to have failed in conciliating the Duranis or attaching to himself the leading Kandahari sirdars. Two of these—namely, Gul Mahomed Khan and Gholam Mohinddin Khan—he is taking to Cabul as hostages; while he is deporting to India Shere Mahomed and Gholam Mahomed Khan, brother and cousin of the ex-Wali.

"Jealousy almost amounting to open rivalry exists at Herat between Abdul Kudus Khan, the Ameer's cousin, and Yussuf Khan, his uncle, and it is rumoured that Ishak Khan, Governor of Afghan Turkestan, wants Herat for his brother. The Kohistanis are said to be discontented, while from Cabul come reports that Asmutullah Khan, a Ghilzai, is restless, and that some of the Lughman tribes are showing symptoms of uneasiness.

"Many of these reports may be exaggerated, but there can be no doubt that the situation is far from reassuring, and is one which will call for the exercise on the Ameer's part of great tact and administrative ability. He has yet to prove that he possesses these qualities.

"The report regarding the proposed reimposition of the income-tax, which I mentioned last week, has now taken fuller form and shape. It is rumoured that a feature of the next Budget will be the abolition of the majority of import duties, leaving taxation only on imported luxuries. It is expected that the Government will argue that, protection being thus swept away as far as possible, direct taxation will be required to supply the place of the lost revenue. The general belief here is that the measure has been forced upon the Indian Government by the Secretary of State in the interest of Manchester, and public opinion is almost, if not quite, unanimous in condemning the scheme. Most of the papers have raised their voices in strong protest, and some of them are urging a popular agitation against what they describe as an iniquitous tax. It should be remembered, however, that the thing has not yet got beyond the stage of rumour, although there is good reason for believing that it is one which the result will show to be well founded. Should it turn out that this measure is really in serious contemplation, it will add one more to the many instances we have had during the last few years of the unfortunate tendency now prevailing at home for interference with the details of Indian administration and for forcing this country into fresh expenditure, while at the same time cutting down or sweeping away old and well-established sources of income.

"At the meeting of the Legislative Council on Wednesday Mr. Gibbs obtained leave to introduce a bill for the repeal of the Vernacular Press Act. He spoke very cautiously, and refused to commit himself to any opinion as to whether the Act was ever really needed. He mentioned, however, that it had never been fully put into operation against any vernacular publication of British India and only once against foreign publications—namely, to prevent the importation of some objectionable pamphlets issued in Turkey. He believed that the penal code would be sufficient to enable the Government to deal with Indian seditious publications, and a section would be added to the Post-office Act to empower the seizure of seditious matter coming from abroad.

"In connection with this question there have been published some statistics regarding the Vernacular Press from which it appears that there exist in the whole Bengal Presidency 111 vernacular papers, with 36,000 subscribers. Forty-five of these, with a circulation of 20,000, are published in Lower Bengal, and the remainder in the North West Provinces, the Punjab, Central India, and Rajputana. The largest circulation—viz., 4,000 copies—is enjoyed by a Bengali monthly paper, and the most extensively circulated paper outside Bengal proper is a Lahore bi-weekly, having 1,700 subscribers. There are six daily vernacular papers in Bengal, all published in Calcutta, and the leading one has a circulation of 700. The only daily paper outside Bengal is one published at Lucknow, with 715 subscribers. Of course, the figures given as the circulation of these journals afford a very fallacious test of the true number of readers.

"The Trade and Navigation returns for October show that the export of Indian tea to Australia amounted, during that month, to 109,993lb., valued at Rs.78,145, as against 41,092lb., representing Rs.26,637, in October, 1880, and 10,240lb., worth Rs.7,444, in October, 1879. The total export of tea to Australia during the seven months of the current official year amounted to 533,323lb., valued at Rs.390,415. These figures, proving as they do the rapid growth of the trade with Australia, are most encouraging to the India tea planters.

"Great exertions are now being made to complete the Trans-Indus portion of the Northern Punjab Railway. Two engines have been ferried across the river on rafts, and it is hoped that the line will be opened as far as Nowshera on Jan. 1. The section from Nowshera to Peshawur can hardly be ready before March 1. The new scheme of a railway from Rawul Pindi to the hill station of Murree is being taken in hand, and the Government has deputed an engineer to survey the line. When his report is submitted an attempt will probably be made to float a company.

"It is announced that a regiment of European cavalry will in future be stationed permanently at Rawul Pindie. A sum of a lakh-and-a-half of rupees has been sanctioned for barracks.

"Mohurram passed quietly at Mooltan, and no attempt at disturbance was made either by Hindoos or Mahomedans. A Lahore paper states that the bad blood has now in a great measure subsided, and that the local authorities had abandoned all apprehension of trouble even before the critical period of the festival.

"The Lieutenant Governor of Bengal returned to Calcutta on Friday last. A few days of his tour was spent at Burdwan, where a series of fetes was held in honour of the installation of the young Maharajah of that place. The festivities passed off in a highly successful manner, and were attended by a large number of European and native guests, who were entertained by the Maharajah with princely liberality. The actual installation ceremony took place on Wednesday. Sir A. Eden, in a speech which he made on presenting the khilut, spoke of the great public services rendered by the late Maharajah, and expressed a hope that the young man, on taking his place as one of the leading noblemen of Bengal, would follow the worthy example set by his father.

"Messrs. Evans, barrister, L. A. T. Crosthwaite, Civil Service, and A. B. Inglis, merchant, have been appointed members of the Supreme Legislative Council.

"According to last reports, the Mysor crops continue good. The condition and prospects are favourable. There is no material change in prices.

"The public health is good.

"The Viceroy starts for Burmah next Saturday."

A Times telegram from St. Petersburg, dated Dec. 10, gives the following about Central Asian affairs :—

"A Mahomedan priest who left Kashgar in August gives some interesting details as to the state of affairs there. He arrived in Kashgar in June last to visit his father and found the Chinese so hostile to the inhabitants that, in order to avoid all unpleasantness, he gave himself out as an Afghan, as the Chinese consider the Afghans to be British subjects, and, therefore treat them well. A Russian merchant named Zinovieff, who had arrived in Kashgar, and endeavoured to sell 114 horses which he had brought with him, met with great difficulty and trouble. His horses were driven into a stable and kept under a guard of soldiers, so that the inhabitants were afraid to offer to buy them. At last Zinovieff was forced to sell them to a Tartar merchant, and had the pleasure of having his lodging surrounded every night during his stay by fifty soldiers. The priest states that an Englishman calling himself a commissioner, and who visited Kashgar during the last war, was again expected there; also that there were fifteen Englishmen at Yarkand learning Chinese.

"There have been two revolts in Yangi Hissar in the course of the last four months. In the first case the Chinese authorities were forewarned, and arrested a number of the rebels, and in the second instance, although the rebels attacked the Chinese troops, they were speedily put to flight, and 400 of the ring-leaders beheaded. The immigrants into Kashgar, coming from the Afghan province of Badakshan after the Afghan disasters, requested the Chinese authorities to accept them as subjects, and to free Padaksh from the Afghan yoke; but they met with a refusal, on the ground that the Afghans were subjects of England, a friendly Power. With regard to the rumours that a rising of Mussulmans had taken place at Yangi Hissar against the brutality and violence of the Chinese, and that 200 of the Chinese garrison had been massacred, the military commander at Nargi now corroborates the fact, but states that the agitation has been suppressed. In August last one of the Chinese frontier officials was sent to Kashgar in irons for having, it is said, voluntarily received twenty-three families of Russian Kirghiz who had strayed over the border."

The following telegram to the Times, dated Quetta, Dec. 4, was again delayed in transmission, and did not arrive in time for last issue:—

"The Ameer has now left Kandahar for Cabul, taking with him, under surveillance, several chiefs of doubtful loyalty, his recently-raised Kandahari regiments, and those from Herat. With him, also, is Mahomed Alam Khan, who lately separated from Ayub Khan when the latter started for Meshed for some purposes of his own. The Ameer is said to treat him with much consideration. Ayub Khan will probably communicate with our Government from Meshed unless he is persuaded that he has fair hopes from other quarters. The political atmosphere is not yet clear. Still, the Ameer seems to meet his difficulties with good heart and more judgment and resource. He cannot be ubiquitous, and has to turn and face the danger that may for the moment seem most pressing. It is generally supposed that he would gladly have remained in Kandahar during the winter, from which place he might have hoped the better to watch Herat. Now other matters draw him towards Cabul. As Governor of Kandahar he has selected and summoned from Jellalabad Abdul Rassul Khan, whose brother will remain as Governor of Jellalabad. Before leaving Kandahar the Ameer attempted to conciliate the inhabitants of that place, condoning their past disloyalties and reassuring the religious party of the purity of his motives notwithstanding his connection with the Nazarenes. This is probably but a wise offering to their ignorant fanaticism. Such malcontents as he cannot keep under his own eye the Ameer will, perhaps, deport into British India. This would be very inconvenient, and we should receive credit with him for their maintenance. Once established and strong, the Ameer may be asked to recall some and support others whose property has generally been subjected to unreserved confiscation. At Kandahar itself little danger, perhaps, remains. Although the continuance of our moral support just over the border may be for the present advisable, towards Herat the Ameer must still look with anxiety on the future. Mahomed Yussuf Khan, who was ordered to Herat as Governor has not been able to proceed beyond Fara, although he has been reinforced from Kandahar. Abdul Kudus Khan, who captured Herat from Ayub, is said to have warned both the Ameer and Mahomed Yussuf Khan that the Heratis are not prepared to accept a further change and interference. It is supposed by some that the actual danger threatening the Ameer is from a coalition between Mahomed Ishak Khan, his governor in Turkestan, and Abul Kudus in Herat. The former is reputed to be intriguing with officers of the Ameer's army. The latter does not appear to be very subordinate. Other suspicions may well arise that there is some exterior influence at work to detach Turkestan with Herat from adherence to the Ameer. This should be watched. As matters stand, Mahomed Yussuf Khan will probably not feel that he can proceed towards Herat. Meanwhile, he is well placed at Fara, keeping the Zamindawars at peace and influencing in the Ameer's interests a large extent of country. Sirdar Mahomed Ishak Khan can, no doubt, with some show of justice put forth claims upon the Ameer. When Abdurrahman was summoned from Turkestan by us to rule in Cabul, Mahomed Ishak held that province for him, and lost his own brother, Mahomed Sarwar, at the hands of Gholam Hayder Wardak. As a son of a former Ameer, Mahomed Azim Khan, his disinterested loyalty may well be questioned by Abdurrahman, who probably anticipates some claim being made for partition and independence. Probably it is a fear of this branch of the family that makes the Ameer decline to leave another brother of Mahomed Ishak—namely, Mahomed Aziz Khan—as governor of Kandahar. It may be that it is not such clouds on the horizon of distant Turkestan, beyond the passes of the Hindu Kush, now closed by snow, that are drawing the Ameer towards Cabul, but local difficulties, which, although of lesser proportions, require immediate treatment. In Kohistan, in Lughnan, and on the road between Cabul and Jellalabad, Sadu and Dadu, brother freebooters, too well known on that, our former, line of communication, are said to be giving trouble. Having dealt with these, the Ameer will probably lie by during the winter, and, in the early spring, about the Nauroz, or New Year's Day, resolve to appear before Herat in person. Meanwhile, the Ameer unquestionably shows strength, if not much diplomatic skill. He will doubtless be able to deal with the obstructions which it was certain he would have to meet, and he will probably secure peace. The management of the chiefs seems his principal difficulty. A good native agent from British India at his Court might give him much disinterested and, therefore, valuable advice, but he should ask for this.

"Of local news there is little. The health of the troops at Quetta is improved and generally good. The weather is bright and clear. The Bozdar column has passed through without molestation, examining carefully this unknown country and its coalfields. On the 2nd inst. communication was opened between it and the convey from Dera Ghazi Khan which went to meet them. It is supposed that the Khyber Pass arrangements are somewhat endangered by the inflicting upon the responsible tribes heavy fines for offences committed by individual robbers in the adjacent districts of Peshawur and Kohat. It is a little doubtful whether our settlement with the Afridis is old enough to bear this first test. Education is coming upon them rather quickly.

"The Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab is now at Peshawur, and will no doubt deal with the independent tribes justly and generously."

MEDICAL WOMEN IN INDIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "TIMES."

SIR,—Your notice on the practice of women doctors in China, following the highly-interesting leading article which lately appeared on the subject of "women doctors" in India, induces me to send you the following notice of a long conversation which I had with Sir Salar Jung when he was in England in 1876. He stated his views very fully on this matter. His opinion was that it would be a great benefit to India—a benefit which could not be exaggerated—if English medical women, completely educated in England, could settle in the chief towns to act as teachers as well as practitioners. He said that in the rural districts a class of ordinary practitioners, not of the stamp of teachers, would be very acceptable to the vast native populations. He was of opinion that both classes would obtain a suitable and an honourable professional maintenance; and though it would be impossible to give any precise estimate of the required numbers, 250 of the first class and 1,000 of the second might be safely named. If the attempt were successful, these numbers would probably prove wholly insufficient. An English lady who had had the opportunity of examining many Zenanas under exceptionally favourable circumstances confirmed these statements to me in an emphatic manner. They were strongly supported by no less experienced a person than Dr. Macdougall, Bishop of Labuan. It appeared to me a duty to lay the views of so able a person as Sir Salar Jung before the Medical Council in 1877; and I think it equally right now to ask you to allow his statements to appear in the Times for the judgment of the many persons interested in his opinions and competent to advise upon them. To some the numbers will at first sight seem excessive. They are about one of the higher and four of the lower class to 1,000,000 of the population. An experienced Indian would form his own estimate of the mode of distribution in the several provinces or areas. In any way the introduction would be very slow, and would follow the ordinary law of supply and demand.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

Oxford, Dec. 6.

HENRY W. ACLAND.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

The annual meeting of the shareholders was held in the board room at the offices, Leadenhall-street, on Tuesday, for the purpose of receiving a report and statement of accounts and declaring a dividend. Mr. THOMAS SUTHERLAND, chairman of the company, presided.

The report states that the net profits for the year, including £4,862 brought forward from last year, amount to £153,801, which, after deducting the interim dividend of 2½ per cent., admit of a further dividend of 2½ per cent., which the directors now recommend to be paid, a balance of £8,801 being carried over to next year. In their last half-yearly report the directors announced the sale of the following steamers this year, viz., the Mooltan, Baroda, Delhi, and Gokulnath, and they have now to add to this list the name of the Ceylon, which which has done faithful service to the company for twenty years. As already explained, all these steamers had to be disposed of to make way for vessels of a more modern type. Of the eight new steamers which were contracted for last year only the Brindisi was at work at the date of the last report. Since then the Rome, Carthage, and Clyde have been delivered by their respective builders and despatched on their first voyages. Considerable delay has been experienced in the completion of the remaining ships, viz., the Thames, Shannon, Ganges, and Sutlej, but within the next two months it is hoped that these steamers will be at work. During the summer the directors invited tenders for the construction of two additional steamers, and the order fell to Messrs. Caird and Co. These vessels will be 4,500 tons, and will have engines to indicate 4,000 horse power. They appear in the fleet list as the Ballaarat and Parramatta. The Surat and Assam have received new boilers and a general refit, and the Lombardy and Nizam are at the present moment in the builders' hands for this purpose. Contracts have also been made for similar work in case of the Thibet and Teheran. During the period now under review the fleet has been efficiently navigated, and the mail service has been free from the smallest interruption. The distance run during the year was 2,000,000 miles, nearly the whole of which was traversed at a high rate of speed. As the proprietors are aware, the company's steamers coming to England have been loaded and discharged in London for some years past, while at the same time they continued to call at Southampton to embark and land passengers and mails. But Southampton ceased to be a mail port when Government determined, with the commencement of the present contract, to despatch and receive the Eastern mails exclusively via Brindisi, and accordingly the directors resolved as soon as their arrangements would permit of doing so, to concentrate their traffic in London, and to abolish the delay and expense entailed by the steamers calling at Southampton. The outward steamers have already ceased to call at that port, and the last homeward steamer to call there will be the vessel which will arrive at the end of December. The directors believe that this change, by which they will embark and disembark passengers in London, will be as welcome to the public as it will be advantageous to the company. At the same time, in order to meet the convenience of passengers who, on their way home, may wish to avoid the Channel passage, it has been decided to allow the inward bound steamers to call at Plymouth, and the Great Western Railway have agreed to afford every facility for landing and forwarding such passengers on to London or elsewhere. It is with deep regret that the directors have to record the death of their late colleague, Mr. George Carleton L'Estrange. Mr. L'Estrange joined the board in 1866, and from that time to the day of his death, which took place immediately upon landing in England from a voyage in one of the company's steamers in September, he devoted himself with the utmost assiduity to the services of the proprietors. The directors who retire by rotation this year are the Hon. Ronald Leslie Melville and Mr. Edward Thornton, C.B. These gentlemen will offer themselves for re-election at the annual meeting, and the board have much pleasure in recommending them to that honour at the hands of the proprietors. The auditors will also have to be elected by the proprietors, and Mr. William Samuel Deacon and Mr. Henry John Baddely, who at present fill that office, will offer themselves for re-election. The ordinary charge against revenue has been made for insurances and depreciation, and £216,701, being 5 per cent. on the original cost of the fleet, has been written off the book value of the fleet as usual. It will be observed, however, that the directors have laid aside a further sum of £75,000 on account of extraordinary depreciation, which, added to the sum of £33,000 similarly treated last year, places the company in the position of having upwards of £100,000 standing to the credit of their fleet over and above the normal depreciation of 5 per cent. per annum on the life of every ship. The directors in their last annual report explained the necessity for making a special provision of this kind to enable them to sell such ships, as it would clearly be to the interest of the proprietors to replace by larger vessels before what is held to be the ordinary term of their service should have expired. Formerly, no doubt steamers might generally be depended upon for an efficient service of something like twenty years in the trade for which they were originally built, but this is no longer the case, and to keep a business such as this company's up to the level of surrounding progress in the present day new ships must be built and old vessels removed to other and smaller spheres much more rapidly than was the case some years ago. Clearly, therefore, the old rate of depreciation must be insufficient unless supplemented from time to time by additional appropriations, such as the directors in the present and last year have been happily enabled to make, and which a due regard to the stability of the company will doubtless induce the proprietors to confirm. The directors feel justified in recommending the payment of a bonus from the profit on underwriting account for the present year equal to 2 per cent. on the paid-up capital. In their last annual report the directors were enabled to state that the freight receipts during that year had advanced £180,000 beyond the returns of 1878-9, and up to the close of the first half of the present year this advance was maintained and exceeded. It was, however, explained in the half-yearly report for the present year that there had been a reaction from the buoyant state of things which prevailed at the beginning of 1880, and that, although the company's freight revenue had been maintained, that result had been secured by additional work, which had necessarily entailed a higher level of expenditure. The company's general trade has continued in a fairly satisfactory condition, and a moderate increase might have been expected in the freight returns for the year, whereas, unfortunately, the result shows a decrease of £15,063, which is mainly due to local competition between Bombay and China, and to unfavourable rates of freight between London and Bombay. On the other hand, the passage money, which was £592,768 last year, amounts in the present year to £672,179, thus showing a most satisfactory increase of £79,411. As the former mail contracts were in operation for some months during 1879-80, the payments received by the company for the postal service were then larger than for the year now under review, so consequently the credits under that head in the accounts now submitted are £22,000 less than they were last year. The present is therefore the first year when the new mail contracts stand on their own merits in the accounts submitted to the proprietors, and the financial results of the year have been attained under the disadvantage of a reduction in the revenue from the mail services of £75,000 per annum as compared with the revenue from the former contracts. During the year under review the company's operations have been pushed briskly, and the mileage performed by the ships has been increased. An addition to expenditure must therefore necessarily have followed, but as there has been a large saving in coal freights the net result is only a practical increase in the expenditure to a very small extent. The directors trust that, upon the whole, the result of the year's operations will not be considered unsatisfactory, and they believe that if trade is fairly maintained the advent of the new and improved vessels now being added to the fleet will enhance the company's reputation and produce larger returns.

The CHAIRMAN desired to express the sincere regret of his colleagues and himself at the loss the company had sustained by the decease of their friend and colleague, the late Mr. Carleton L'Estrange. The deceased gentleman was for fifteen years a director of the company, and brought the most untiring energy and great ability to the conduct of its affairs. Dealing with the report and accounts, he reminded the meeting that in June last he laid much stress upon the fact that the fundamental test of the prosperity of a company must be the amount of revenue it could earn, a point which was too often lost sight of in the discussions which took place at those meetings. It would no doubt be gratifying to the shareholders to see from the report and accounts that the last vestige of the debenture debt had been written off, the remaining debentures having been paid off in full. When in a very humble position in the office, some years ago, the debentures were issued, and he had to write the name of each original holder or subscriber on each debenture; when doing that he little thought that he should be the chairman presiding over the meeting in 1881 at their funeral obsequies. The debenture debt involved a fixed interest payable by the company of between £30,000 and £40,000 a year. Now that large charge had been got rid of. If shareholders dived deep into the accounts it would appear something almost wonderful that, whilst the directors had increased the company's fleet and augmented the business, they had also relieved the company of the burden of a fixed interest on the debentures by redeeming them. The value of the fleet had also increased, and now stood at £16 14s. per ton. When shareholders considered the expensive character of the ships, and that the average age of each vessel did not exceed eight years, they would be convinced that it stood at a very moderate valuation indeed. In addition to that during the current year between 30,000 and 40,000 tons of new shipping would be added to the fleet, giving it greater cargo-carrying capacity, and more facilities for accommodating passengers, which would have the effect not only of increasing the value of the fleet and reducing the age, but at the same time augment the revenue of the company. As he stated at the outset, it was the earning power of the company's fleet which was the test of prosperity and success. The fleet might stand at nothing in the company's books, and yet yield no profit if it had not the earning power. Those who wished to properly understand the position of the company in the present day must remember that it was virtually a new company grafted on an old one. Before the opening of the Suez Canal the company had a small business, and at the same time a most lucrative one, and practically enjoyed a monopoly. Since the Suez Canal was opened, times had changed. Instead of a slight monopoly, there was great competition for business of all kinds. In consequence of the bad harvests in India and the general stagnation in trade, the company's income fell off in one year to the extent of £262,000. He believed, however, that the company's business was more assured and safer now, depending upon the broad general platform of open competition than it was when dependent upon the erratic, and, he might say, the somewhat exotic, resources of the past. It was the glory of the company that it had been able to adapt itself to the altered circumstances of the times, to hold its own against all competitors, and maintain its position as the first carrying company in the world. The revenue from passage money showed an increase of £80,000 on the year, which was the largest the company had seen for many years. Some might ask whether that would be continuous. His answer was that he believed it would. The company was able to offer greater facilities than heretofore, it had reduced the rates of passage money by issuing return tickets at a reduced rate, which enabled officers of the Government in both civil and military services to avail themselves of what was termed the "privilege leave," and pay a short visit to England, occupying in the whole three months, instead of being obliged as formerly to go up to the hills. As to the permanent increase in the revenue, shareholders must judge for themselves. It must not be forgotten that next year the Messageries Maritimes de France took up its stations in Australia, but it had little fear that this company would be able to hold its own. It was a matter for regret that the company's business was not done in Egypt in the same facile manner since that country had come under practically European rule. It was not half so prosperous or so well conducted as under the old rule of the Khédive, because the company's ships were practically treated in the same manner in respect to quarantine as the Arab dhows bringing people to Mecca. Having gone through various items in the report, and explained the great extent of the mail service performed by the company, and the smallness of the subsidies as compared with the services rendered by the company, he concluded by moving the adoption of the report and accounts.

Mr. W. FANE DE SALIS briefly seconded the motion.

Dr. CARSON thought the results recorded were highly satisfactory, and desired to compliment the management of the company thereon. He rejoiced at the disappearance of the item of debentures from the accounts. He, however, could not give his unqualified support to the amount carried over, and thought that 5 per cent. for depreciation was far too high.

Mr. HURST congratulated his fellow-shareholders upon the report, and also upon the very satisfactory explanation of the company's affairs conveyed in the address of the chairman. The valuation of the fleet was, he thought, very gratifying.

The motion for adopting the report was then carried unanimously.

The CHAIRMAN then moved the formal resolution declaring the dividends and bonus, together making a payment of 7 per cent. per annum.

Mr. EDWARD THORNTON, C.B., briefly seconded the motion, which was carried by acclamation. The retiring directors and auditors were unanimously re-elected, and the proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

INDIAN MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

The 22nd Regiment N.I. from Belgaum, is to embark at Vindhygarh for Aden on the 26th instant.

We learn from Bolaram that Colonel Lindsay, R.E., superintending engineer, H.P.W.D., proceeds on a tour of inspection through the Baras at the end of the current month.

Captain F. J. Curtin, 2nd Battalion Gloucestershire Regiment, is appointed to be provost marshal at Quetta in addition to his other duties, vice Captain E. R. H. Torin, 13th Hussars, proceeding to India with his regiment.

Another victim of the warrant of July, 1881, the Englishman says, is Lieut. Col. W. T. Corrie, of the 2nd Battalion Devonshire Regiment, commanding at Jalandar, who has to proceed home previous to retirement under its provisions.

The Englishman thus writes on a question of interest to military men:—"The vacancy in the Adjutant General's Department, which will be occasioned on the 1st proximo owing to Lieutenant Colonel Thompson, Bengal S.C., now on furlough, having completed his five years' tenure, will, it is reported, most probably be filled by the appointment of Major Ford of the Royal Artillery, to the establishment, he being now officiating as Assistant Adjutant General of the Shirdind Division for the permanent incumbent, Lieutenant Colonel Thompson. To those uninitiated in the mysteries of appointment to the staff of the army, it would appear strange that an officer of the Royal Artillery should succeed one belonging to the Bengal Staff Corps, but the fact is Major Ford belongs to the old Bengal R.A.; consequently, according to the wishes of the Commander in Chief, he may be considered of which ever service is found most convenient. In this instance, it is convenient to consider him of the Indian service, not as it was in the case of Colonel, now Major General, Sir J. Hills, for with him it was found more conducive to the happiness of all concerned to consider him a Royal, pure and simple, so as to fill the vacancy caused by the late Lieut. Col. Brooke, appointed Deputy Adjutant General of the Army. The officers of the late Bengal Artillery, it will be seen, have a great pull over all others as regards appointment to the army staff. Now, however, comes a difficulty which, if the appointment is given as reported, has to be tided over. Major Ford, it is well known, has got the first refusal of Lieutenant-Colonel Goldie's berth at head-quarters as assistant adjutant general, when that officer rejoins his regiment in March to take command. Colonel Goldie belongs to the British service, the 6th Carabineers, so Major Ford would have to change his colours, chameleon-like, and become once again a British officer. If this phenomenon takes place it will be interesting to watch what follows. Will he be considered as holding the appointment at head-quarters as a British officer or as an Indian officer? If the latter, then there will have to be a change as regards the deputy assistant adjutant generalship, which should fall—to equalise the services—to a British officer. The mystery will unravel itself, and we shall soon know what are the arrangements found most convenient. There wheels within wheels all over the world, and Simla is no exception to the rule; we cannot, however, think it possible that so chameleon like an arrangement can be contemplated, but lean more to the belief in the rumour that the appointment on Dec. 1 will be given to Lieut. Col. Biscoe, 19th Royal Lancers, so that Major Ford can be accommodated at headquarters, thereby sticking to his colour^s as a Royal."

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

Representatives of the mercantile and native communities were present, and the scheme was unanimously and warmly supported. A large portion of the capital was at once offered. The Commissioner and Brigadier-General were also present. The Lieutenant Governor has already ordered a survey of the proposed line.

Department, will attain his fifty-fifth year on the 29th instant, he will be relieved on that date of the charge of the ex-Gaikwar of Baroda and revert to ordinary duty. It is rumoured that Captain Curzon Wylie, Bengal Staff Corps, will succeed him. It appears that Dr. Seward was promised the appointment until the end of his Indian service, and much sympathy is felt for him.

A DIVORCE CASE.—The matrimonial suit in which Major Peat, of the 1st Bombay Lancers, sued for a divorce from his wife on the ground of adultery with Mr. A. T. Goodfellow, an assistant engineer in the P. W. D., was heard on Monday. A rule nisi for a divorce with costs against the co-respondent was granted.

LONDON PRODUCE MARKETS.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—(From Messrs. J. C. Sillar and Co.'s Circular.)—The tea market remains in a state of great depression, and prices have been irregular. Common Congous have again declined in value, new season's having been sold as low as 5½d. to 5¾d. per lb., while medium to fine descriptions have met with more ready buyers. The deliveries from the bonded warehouses last month were almost the same as those of last year—viz., 17,067,000lb. the stock still showing the same excess—viz., 12,000,000lb. The future prospects, however, are much brighter. Telegrams from China report a falling off in the export of 17,000,000lb., while reports from India still point to a deficiency of several million pounds from the first estimates of the shipments to this country for the present season. Indian Teas.—The deliveries of Indian teas for the eleven months ended 30th ult. show an increase over those of last year of between 5,000,000lb. and 6,000,000lb., and of 13,000,000lb. over those of 1879. The imports for last month, however, were heavy—viz., 7,875,000lb., against 5,391,000lb., while the deliveries for the month were only 4,172,000lb., against 4,566,000lb. in November last year, the stock on the 30th ult. being 16,810,000lb. against 18,382,000lb. last year. Common and medium descriptions up to 1s. 6d. per lb. in value remain very firm, common kinds being quoted as much as 4d. to 5d. per lb. higher than at this time last year. For fine and finest Pekoes, however, it is difficult to find buyers. Recent telegrams from Calcutta state that the export to this country for the present season is not likely to exceed 45,000,000lb. to 46,000,000lb. As we pointed out in our circular of September last, the demand for Indian teas is now greater than the production.

COFFEE.—The public sales have been too small to affect quotations and the tone is dull. 41 casks 125 barrels and bags plantation Ceylon sold; small, 69s.; middling, 80s.; 45 barrels good ordinary Jamaica at 48s. to 48s. 6d. Part of 510 bags foreign, including good colory Costa Rica, at 88s.; one lot, 85s. 6d. per cwt.

RICE.—A large business done in Madras rice, during the last few days, at 7s. 3d. to 7s. 6d. per cwt.

COTTON.—A moderate business done at about 1-16d. per lb. decline for arrivals. Sales about 1,500 bales, including Tinnevely, at 5 9-16d. 5½d.; Western, at 4¼d. 5½d.; Scinde, at 4¼d. 4¾d.; and Salem, at 5¾d. per lb. For arrival, Tinnevely, November-December, 5 9-16d., for good fair; Western Madras, September-October, 5d. for fully good fair, g.f.c.; Bengal, December-January, 4¾d. for good f.g.f.c.; for forward delivery, American, February-April, 6¾d. to 6 21-32d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that there is no improvement to report in the markets for colonial produce, and quotations in several cases show further weakness. The demand for coffee is still so inactive that part of the small quantity at public sale had to be withdrawn, and prices generally remain unsettled. The Brazil advices denote a further increase in the stock at the shipping ports, which at latest date amounted to 497,000 bags. A cargo about fair Channel Rio sold at or near 39s. per cwt. for Trieste. The sugar market is in a very depressed state. Crystallised Demerara has sold to a moderate extent at the late decline. The trade are well supplied with the beet, and for prompt shipment prices are lower. Refined sugars have fallen 6d. per cwt. Rice has become quiet. The low value of Madras attracts attention, a large quantity having sold on the spot. In Burmah of the new crop no fresh transactions of importance have taken place. China tea is inactive, but prices without further change. The telegram giving 17,000,000lb. decrease in the shipments this season has not influenced the market. The public sales of Indian have passed off without animation, last week's rates being maintained. Penang black pepper has declined fully ¼d. per lb. Zanzibar cloves are unsaleable on previous terms, owing to the arrival of 2,000 bales. Other spice, with few exceptions, quiet.

COFFEE.—No change in the small quantity sold by auction to-day, viz., 648 bags East India, 82s. 6d. to 95s.; Mysore, medium to bold, 108s. 6d. to 117s.; small in proportion. Seventy-three packages Jamaica dull-greenish, 59s.; 616 bags foreign—good to fine ordinary pale, 51s. 6d. to 57s. 6d.; palish grey to colory Honduras, 66s. to 75s.; pale and greenish, 54s. to 59s. 6d.; fine washed Rio, 78s. per cwt.

RICE.—A cargo new crop Burma sold 8s. 4½d. per cwt., basis Rangoon.

PEPPER.—Singapore, black, has sold 5¼d. to 5¾d.; white, 6¾d. per lb.

JUTE.—Moderate sales for arrival at steady rates.

COTTON.—A fair business has been concluded at about 1-32d. decline. Sales about 2,500 bales, including Tinnevely at 5 9-16d. to 5¾d., and Western at 4 15-16d. to 5¾d. per lb. Forward delivery, American, January-February, 6 17-32d.; March-April, 6 21-32d.; June-July, 6 23-32d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

FRIDAY EVENING.

Many of the public sales, including those of coffee and sugar, had to be withdrawn on account of the darkness of the weather throughout the day.

INDIAN TEA.—The market has been lightly supplied, 10,700 packages only having come to the hammer, which have nearly all found buyers at prices on a par with last week's rates, good common to medium kinds meeting with the best competition.

RICE.—A cargo of Bassein off the coast sold at 7s. 3d. ex ship London, and one of new Burma, spring shipment, at 8s. 4½d., basis Rangoon, open charter.

PEPPER dull. Singapore black, 5¾d. per lb.

COTTON.—Very few transactions are reported on the spot, a dark fog having prevented business. American futures show a recovery of 1-32d. per lb. Sales about 750 bales, including Tinnevely at 5¾d. per lb. For arrival, Bengal, December-January, Suez, 4¾d. for good f.g.f.c. Forward delivery, American, March-April, 6 23-32d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

THE OPIUM TRADE.—A meeting to protest against the enforced opium trade with China was held on Thursday night, at the Albert-hall, Sheffield, and was very largely attended. The Archbishop of York presided, and in his opening address said it was a disgrace and a shame to this country that the heathen people should have had to ask for the abolition of such a trade. He referred at length, in a severely critical manner, to the letter of Sir G. Birdwood which appeared recently in the Times, and proceeded to state that it was no business of the objectors to the traffic if they should hamper the Government. This was not a Government question, it was a question of right and wrong. In presiding over that meeting he felt he was thoroughly in his place. It was a question affecting the whole of the human race. It affected this great country in its honour; it affected the population of China more vitally still, for it destroyed and paralyzed the people; and it affected the manufacturers of England, because exports to China were visibly hindered by this traffic. As a Christian minister, he felt, now his attention had been called to the subject, that the Government had no right to raise money in this way, and, as a Christian country, we ought to help the Emperor of China to diminish the consumption of opium in his country. The Rev. Canon Stowell moved, "That this meeting is of opinion that the British Indian opium trade for the sake of revenue inflicts grievous wrongs upon China and British Burma; is the cause of much misery and crime, endangers the peacefulness of natural relationships, restricts legitimate trade, and obstructs the progress of Christianity, and that the trade is a dishonour to the British name and nation." Mr. H. Richard, M.P., seconded the resolution. The effect upon the Indian revenue was, he knew, the chief cause that it was not abolished, but, he asked, were financial considerations for ever to overrule questions of justice, morality, and religion. The resolution was supported by the Rev. David Hill, missionary to China, and unanimously carried. A second resolution was passed, calling earnestly upon the Government to devise the means necessary for the suppression of the British Indian opium trade.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, DEC. 12, 1881.

INDIAN LOYALTY AND ENGLISH SYMPATHY.

THE gracious reception accorded by the Queen to the Maharani of Panna's pathetic message about the need of medical aid for the ladies of India, has caused a thrill of gratitude and loyal affection in her Majesty's Indian subjects—among whom, we venture to assert, the sentiment of personal loyalty is to the full as strong as among the European-born subjects of the British Empire. In no other part of the empire have the Princes of the Royal and Imperial House been received with more enthusiasm than in India; and we are very sure that there is no other portion of the Queen's dominions where there is a warmer appreciation of the tender sensitiveness to the voice of suffering, ever characteristic of her Majesty's true womanly heart. It is by the multiplication of incidents such as these that we hope to see the real love of India won, both for the dynasty and for the empire; and we would fain infuse the spirit of such incidents into the general administration of the country, where a grain of real sympathy with the people is worth pounds of hard political economy and rough-shod "good government." The confidence in Indian troops, and the respect for their soldierly qualities, displayed by Lord Beaconsfield when he ordered the Malta expedition, raised a flame of loyal enthusiasm throughout the land, that was with difficulty snuffed out even by the sneers and sarcasms of the London Liberal Press. We have always held that that measure, if it had not been maimed by factious opposition, and if its spirit had been carried out in our further dealings with our Indian fellow-subjects, would have had the most far-reaching consequences; it would have inaugurated the entry of India into the British Imperial Federation, not in its former character of a weak and unwilling dependency of England and a source of anxiety, but in that of a powerful member of the Federation, as loyal to the common Sovereign and as proud of the common Empire as any other of the Federated States. So in regard to the proclamation of the Queen's Imperial title.

Posterity has realised the fact that Maria Theresa's Magyar subjects rallied with enthusiasm to the Queen of Hungary, and formed an invincible phalanx around her flag, when they would have regarded an Archduchess of Austria or an Empress of the Holy Roman Empire with suspicion and distrust, if not with open hostility; and history has applauded the policy that secured the devotion of a gallant nation, by thus appealing to the one touch of nature that makes all the world kin. Lord Beaconsfield, alone of modern statesmen, possessed the genius to apply the teachings of this lesson to the problem of the delicate relations between governors and governed in India. Bengalis and Madrasis, Hindustanis and Mahrattas, Sikhs and Gujaratis, all the various nationalities of India, have a feeling in their hearts for the Empress of India ruling India as such, that could never be there for the Queen of England ruling India by the might of English bayonets. That loyal sentiment, again, has doubtless been damped by the sneers of English party-spirit and by the insidious suggestions of English Radicals; but as we now see, it is not all dead, and can still be fanned into a flame by such touching incidents as that which has suggested this article. We English are too apt to forget that our fellow-subjects are human beings like ourselves, more easily led by the kindly emotions than driven by the merciless logic of hard facts and unsympathetic reasoning. We satisfy ourselves that, according to the highest teachings of political economy, a certain form of direct taxation is theoretically the best; and forthwith, with the best intentions, we thrust down the throats of Indians an income-tax that is simply an abomination to them, and that outrages some of their most cherished sentiments. Guided by the dry light of reason, we divine that protective duties on imports are the invention of the Evil One; and then, with a light heart and a clear conscience, we abolish the cotton-duties, and sacrifice precious revenue that can only be made up by letting loose the tax-gatherer on the sacred homes of the people. We are 'invited by a "General Council on Education," to contemplate the beauty of an arrangement by which the "ryot-log" shall be able to read, and the Colleges and Universities of the country shall be manned by missionaries; and we immediately talk of withdrawing the one boon—that of the State colleges and high schools—which the Indian community values more highly than any other result of the English rule. And be it ever remembered, in nine cases out of ten we do these foolish things—things often theoretically right, but practically very wrong and foolish—not at the suggestion and with the goodwill of the local officials who have learnt to know and love the people, but rather because we are forced or persuaded to do them by the crochets mongers who call themselves "reformers" in England, or by headstrong politicians fresh out from home. These misguided people love to treat Indians as naughty children who do not know what is good for themselves. They regard the abolition of State colleges and the transfer of high education to the missionaries, as good wholesome fly-blisters; they look upon the income-tax and the abolition of the cotton duties as cleansing doses of jalap or castor oil. And when the Hindoo Patriot, or Indian Mirror, the Bengalee, or Indian Spectator, offer objections or protests they think it is merely the wry face of the child at being compelled, for its own good, to swallow the health-giving draught. It would be equally easy, and surely far more just as well as generous, to adopt an attitude of kindly feeling, respect, and consideration towards our fellow-subjects. That is the lesson we should learn from the example of the illustrious Lady who is, and shows that she feels herself to be, equally the Sovereign of both nationalities. But such an attitude is, alas, incompatible with the Pecksniffian affectation of virtuous infallibility, and the contempt for other people's opinions, that is now fashionable in the dominant school of English politics.

MEDICAL LADIES FOR INDIA.

Most of the ladies of India of the higher classes are precluded by their national customs from availing themselves largely of the aid of English or Indian doctors. To minister to the medical needs of so many suffering sisters is a mission that may well be regarded as a noble one by those English ladies who have qualified themselves to attempt it. The exertions of our medical departments, and the singularly successful labours of our Indian schools of medicine—that of Calcutta is now the largest in the world in point of numbers—have brought the western scientific methods of the curative art to the doors of a large proportion of the Indian populations. But among the higher classes, oriental habits of seclusion have to a large extent prevented those methods from penetrating behind the sacred veil of the zenana. The ladies of Hindu and Muhamadan families who are "purdahna-sheen" have thus been deprived of all those alleviations of pain and [those remedies against disease which are the common heritage of modern civilisation. And, moreover, the same customs that very commonly cut off from an Indian lady the valuable help of an English or English-taught doctor, offer—at any rate for the present—an insuperable obstacle to any plan, that might otherwise be attempted, of training Indian ladies for this important and benevolent work. Under the present conditions of Indian society, it may be affirmed that it is absolutely impossible for an Indian lady to become a doctor. This undoubted fact will obviously suggest the necessity for very great care in making suitable arrangements to secure the comfort and the self-respect of the courageous Englishwomen who may be induced to undertake the proposed task. But there is nothing in it to deter those who have the necessary pluck and knowledge, and whose friends are in a position to arrange for their proper care and well-being in India; whilst it clearly emphasises the call for English volunteers to attempt the work, since without such volunteers the attempt will not be made at all.

We have little doubt that there will be found many among the ladies of England who will respond to the invitation of the Maharani of Panna, that has been so graciously sympathised with and sanctioned by her Majesty the Queen. The interest that has been excited in England by the incident is fairly illustrated by the letters of Sir William Muir, and Dr. Acland of Oxford, that have appeared in the Times. Dr. Acland only professes to write by the light of a conversation held with Sir Salar Jung some years ago; and as it will doubtless be the case with the majority of those who take up the subject, that their personal acquaintance with its merits is an indirect one, it may serve a useful purpose if we indicate in this place some of the most important points to be considered by those who are inclined to essay the task proposed.

We are very confident that Sir Salar Jung, if Dr. Acland remembers his figures accurately, greatly over-estimates the present capacity of India to afford remunerative occupation to English medical ladies. Except in a few rich centres, like the Presidency towns and the provincial and native capitals, we doubt whether the occupation is likely—at any rate for the present—to prove remunerative at all. There are several reasons why this should be so. The practice would be chiefly confined to the zenanas of the higher classes, and would therefore be limited in extent. The people themselves are generally by no means rich, according to English notions of wealth; and their exceedingly simple habits of life make the large fees that are paid to English doctors seem excessive. There are many poor gentlemen in India who are obliged to support themselves and their families on an income of Rs. 20 a month (say £24 per annum) or even less; and to such the ordinary Indian fee of a gold mohur (Rs. 16) is an outlay not to be thought of except in cases of the direst necessity. It will not do, then, for a number of English ladies to qualify themselves for this field of labour, under the mistaken notion that it will prove a lucrative one. It need not, and should not, involve a life of privation—which means in India an almost certain sacrifice of life itself; for the various Societies will provide for the proper maintenance of medical ladies going to India, and no one should think of going out (unless it be to one of the great centres) except under the auspices of a Society. There is no more courteous gentleman in the world than an educated Indian; and an English lady going out in the way we have indicated will be certain to meet with nothing but respect and courtesy from all classes. But it will be well for her to be vouched for by a Society, and taken under the guidance of its local representatives—unless, indeed, she has private friends who will receive her under their hospitable roof.

THE REPEAL OF THE VERNACULAR PRESS ACT.

A CALCUTTA telegram in to-day's Times informs us that Mr. Gibbs has obtained leave to introduce a bill for the repeal of the Vernacular Press Act. Mr. Gibbs is stated to have spoken "very cautiously." It is said that he "refused to commit himself to any opinion as to whether the Act was ever really needed." The refusal must, of course, have been a tacit one—for Mr. Gibbs's opinion on the point is perfectly well known, and is, indeed, on record in the Parliamentary blue-book on the subject; and it was clearly unnecessary for him to express any opinion as to the necessity of the Act in 1878, when he only desired to justify the conviction of the Government that it is unnecessary in 1881. Whether this conviction is due mainly to the honest, disinterested, and skilled advice of the local European and Indian experts, or to the burden imposed on the Indian Government by the rash and ill-informed denunciations of Mr. Gladstone when in Opposition, will doubtless appear in the course of the debate in the Legislative Council. In any case, it is clearly unfortunate that the bill comes into the Council weighted and discredited by the undoubted fact that the present Government is pledged up to the hilt by those mistaken and reckless denunciations to carry it through, "on whatever terms" of future danger; and we can only trust that this embarrassment, which must be felt and admitted on all sides, will act as a warning against irresponsible criticism dictated by the exigencies of opposition.

We have never made any secret of our belief that Lord Lytton, if he had remained in power another year, would have repealed the Act; under circumstances that would have alike justified its patriotic and courageous authors, satisfied the just and reasonable wishes of the Indian press, and pro vided for the public security against possible remains of the old danger. The Act had done its work without a single case of individual hardship; and had it not been for the incitements to discontent offered by the misguided criticism of Opposition orators in England, it would have done its work without arousing any dissatisfaction more general than that which must always attend a measure directed against evil-doers. At first there were few, except the evil-doers themselves, that felt aggrieved; the position of the great bulk of the Indian press, loyal, intelligent, and good in tone, was improved rather than weakened by it. The gratitude of the Indian officers of Government and of the Indian aristocracy generally—peculiarly sensitive to journalistic attacks—was undoubted. It was only when English oratory had taught the Indian press and the Indian peoples that the Act was an undurable grievance, that the complaints against it became embittered; and by that time—by good fortune, and no thanks to the unpatriotic orators—the object aimed at had been to a great extent attained. The tone of the Indian press, as a whole, was admirable. The small minority of ill-conditioned and vanity-stricken writers who preached sedition without troubling themselves about the consequences had received a warning that effectually quenched what the Maharaja Jotindra Mohan Tagore, rightly termed “the spirit of braggadocio.” The vast majority, of “just men who needed no repentance,” were encouraged by the discussion to persevere in their efforts to enlighten their fellow-countrymen, and to guide them in the right way. The latter class had derived nothing but good from the legislation of Lord Lytton's Government; their withers were unwrung by the provisions of the Press Act, whilst they enjoyed all the collateral advantages—such as the institution of a Press Commissioner's office—which the benevolence of the Government had devised for their benefit.

It is of course obvious, to Englishmen and Indians alike, that to Lord Ripon's Government, burdened by the pledges of its chief when in Opposition, the existence of the Act is only an encumbrance and a political disability. And it is not unlikely that the Legislative Council may repeal it under this conviction. But circumstances have so much changed since Lord Lytton's resignation, that it will probably be impossible now to repeal it unconditionally—though this appears to be contemplated by Mr. Gibbs's Bill. We shall look with interest for the speeches of the debate; and will return to the discussion of the general question in an early issue.

HOME NEWS.

MEMORIAL TO LIEUTENANT MACLAINE.—A memorial to this young officer, in the form of a stained-glass window, has just been completed in his native parish church at Thornbury, Gloucestershire. The subject of the memorial window is the angel delivering St. Peter out of prison (Acts xii.). A brass plate beneath the window bears the following inscription:—"To the glory of God, and in loving memory of Hector MacLaine, lieutenant Royal Horse Artillery, eldest son of William Osborne and Anna MacLaine, of Kyneton, in this parish. He was taken prisoner in the retreat from Maiwand, and, after five weeks' captivity in the camp of Ayub Khan, was murdered in the hour of British victory near Kandahar, September 1, 1880. This window is erected by many sorrowing friends." A memorial volume containing a sketch of the stained-glass window, a copy of the inscription, and the names of the 193 subscribers has been presented to the family at Kyneton. The total cost of the window has been £213 3s. 10d., and after defraying the cost of the memorial volume, &c., the Memorial Fund Committee have a surplus balance of £66 11s. 6d., they having received the sum of £300 6d. for the fund. At a meeting of the subscribers, presided over by Mr. E. Stafford Howard, M.P., the following resolution has been unanimously adopted:—"That this meeting, understanding that a wish has been expressed by the family at Kyneton that the memorial should take the further form of a drinking fountain in the town of Thornbury, desires to place the surplus balance of the fund at Mr. and Mrs. MacLaine's disposal for that purpose."

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders were received on Wednesday at the Bank of England for £450,000 in Government bills on India. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, £352,200; to Bombay, £90,600; and to Madras, £7,200. Tenders on all presidencies at 1s. 7 15-16d., being the minimum posted, will receive 71 per cent. Compared with last week this price shows an advance of 1-16d. The same amount will be offered for tender on Wednesday next.

HER MAJESTY'S TROOPSHIPS.—Since her return from Bombay last week serious cracks have been discovered in the necks of the midship high-pressure crank of the Jumna, as well as in the after crank. A spare crank is always kept in hand at Portsmouth, but, though it has been determined to work night and day to get it ready, the fitting of the eccentrics and other parts will take about a month to complete. The Jumna was fixed to sail to India on the 16th inst., but her turn on the roster will have to be taken by some other vessel, probably by the Serapis, which it was intended to relieve from her second voyage.—The Crocodile, Capt. Cardale, which reached Malta on the 5th inst., and is expected to arrive at Portsmouth on the 14th inst., brings the following officers from Bombay:—Capt. Brown, 17th Lancers; Lieut. Young, R.E.; Lieut. Garnett, 2nd East Yorkshire Regiment; Col. Chads, 1st Wilts Regiment; Hon. Lieut. Wood, Board of Public Works; Lieut. Heywood-Jones, 6th Dragoon Guards; Col. Davis and Lieut. Fowler, R.A.; Lieut. Col. Sillery, 1st Suffolk Regiment; Major Heywood, 2nd West York Regiment; Major Collins, 1st South York Regiment; Capt. Gronow, 1st Manchester Regiment; Lieut. Frickleton, Connaught Rangers; Capt. Bathurst, Rifle Brigade; Surgs. Major Brodie, Hoysted, Wikely, and Rutledge, Army Medical Department; Major Smythe, Capt. Barrow, and Lieuts. Probyn, Peile, and Worledge, of the Staff Corps. The Crocodile has also on board 310 invalids, 186 time-expired men, 38 men for disposal, 58 women, and 137 children. Her Majesty's troopship Serapis arrived at Malta on Wednesday from Port Said. The Malabar, Capt. Hands, left Portsmouth on Thursday afternoon for Bombay. She took out 57 officers and 420 troops, chiefly belonging to the 1st Suffolk Regiment, the Royal Irish Fusiliers, and the 9th Brigade Royal Artillery. Surgeon Major Kirkwood was added to the passenger list, while the names of Lieut. Lynch, 2nd Dorset, and Capt. Raikes, Rifle Brigade, were withdrawn. At Queenstown the Malabar will embark 19 officers and 650 men, belonging to the 2nd Bedford, 1st Worcestershire, 1st South York-shire, 2nd Middlesex, 2nd North Stafford, and other regiments, besides women and children.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.—The following is the official statements of the movements of her Majesty's ships:—From the East Indies.—Letters have been received from the Commander in Chief, Rear Admiral W. Gore Jones in the Euryalus, at Trincomalee up to Nov. 10. Was there on Dec. 6. The Euryalus would leave on Dec. 1 for Colombo, Aden, Suez, and Malta. INDIAN COTTON.—The question of the promotion of the growth of cotton in India in order to render Lancashire independent of America has for some time received the attention of spinners, but difficulties have presented themselves. It is the belief that, although Indian cotton is inferior generally to American, it might by proper cultivation be greatly improved in quality. The great obstacle that stands in the way is the means of transit. The Lancashire spinners think that now they have some claims upon the good offices of Lord Hartington. The great fall in the cost of textile machinery, more especially in cotton, was strikingly illustrated in Oldham on Wednesday, where a fireproof mill is being built for 22s. per spindle. Five or six years ago fireproof mills ranged from 35s. per spindle; indeed, in one instance, a mill non-fireproof cost 35s. per spindle.

WOMEN DOCTORS IN EASTERN COUNTRIES.—The following extract from a letter just received from a gentleman travelling in the north of China is dated Oct. 14, 1881. It is sent us for publication by Miss Isabella Thorne, hon. secretary for the London School of Medicine for Women:—"While at Tien-tsin I called on Miss Howard, M.D., the lady doctor who so successfully treated Lady Li, the wife of the Viceroy Li Hung-Chang. I found her exceedingly pleasant, and she invited me to be present at the opening of her hospital for female patients on the 8th inst. This was a grand affair. Li Hung-Chang, attended by many mandarins, came to take part in the ceremony. The Hon. A. Angell, the American Minister, was passing through Tien-tsin on his way home, and was asked to say a few words on the occasion. It was a curious coincidence that he had been president of the University in America where Miss Howard had studied, and he himself had signed her diploma. This made it exceedingly interesting to him, and he did not fail to allude to it in his speech. Ladies did not take part in the ceremony, but Miss Howard came into the reception hall and by an efficient interpreter expressed to Li Hung-Chang her thanks for the support he and Lady Li were giving to her undertaking. Li stood while Miss Howard was there. She then retired to her own apartments, and Dr. Mackenzie, of the London Mission, did the honours of the reception. After we had walked round, we returned and partook of tea, coffee, cakes, &c., and shortly afterwards Li retired also, and an interesting ceremony came to an end."

INDIAN APPEAL CASES.—In the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on Friday, the case of Deva Narayanan v Tharanavar and others was decided. This was an appeal from a decision of the High Court of Madras on Dec. 11, 1878, reversing a judgment of the subordinate Judge of South Malabar, in that presidency. Mr. Leith, Q.C., and Mr. J. D. Mayne were counsel for the appellant; Mr. Done for the respondents. The appellant sued the respondents to recover possessions of lands which, as he alleged, had been conveyed to them in 1820 for a distinct period of fifty-five years by a usufructuary mortgage. The respondents denied the mortgage, and claimed to be the real proprietors of the lands, and they also averred that the suit was barred under the Statute of Limitations. Their lordships, at the close of the arguments, which had lasted some days, affirmed the judgment of the High Court, and dismissed the appeal with costs.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.—On Wednesday a further advance in bar silver took place, to 52d. per ounce. The amount purchased, however, was for the execution of a special order for the Mint, and it is doubtful if the above figure in the present state of the market can be maintained. Mexican dollars were unaltered, at 51½d. per ounce. The exchanges from Bombay and Calcutta were steady, at 1s. 8 3-16d. to ¼d., the rate from Hong Kong being 3s. 9 3-4d., and from Shanghai, 5s. 1 3-4d. Rupee Four per Cents. fell ½, to 83 15-16 to 84 1-16; and Four-and-a-Half per Cents., 7-16, to 91 1-16 to 3-16.—On Friday, principally owing to the limited supply of silver, bars continued to be quoted at 52d., though the tendency was not specially firm at that figure. Mexican dollars remained nominally at 51½d. per ounce. Rupee Four and a Half per Cents. were stationary, but the Four per Cents. receded ¼d., to 83 15-16d., to 84 1-16d. The exchanges from Bombay and Calcutta were telegraphed as previously, at 1s. 8 3-16d. to ¼d., Hong Kong being 3s. 9 3-4d., and Shanghai 5s. 1 3-4d.—On Saturday the price of bar silver was maintained at 52d., but the market showed a weak tendency. In Mexican Dollars no business was transacted, the quotations being nominally 51½d. per ounce. Telegraph Transfers, Rupee Paper, and Eastern exchanges were unaltered.

LORD LYTTON.—The Earl of Lytton presided at the anniversary meeting of the Birkbeck Literary and Scientific Institution, on Friday night, and the Countess of Lytton distributed the prizes. It was stated that the classes had outgrown the accommodation provided for them, and that plans had been prepared for a new building adjoining the Record Office, to be erected at a cost of £19,500, funds for which had already been provided to the amount of £17,500. In his address Lord Lytton remarked that never before had the form and body of the times been so deeply stirred as at present by the same instinctive, spontaneous desire for self-improvement among the masses of society—the same widespread popular consciousness of those higher intellectual aspirations and enjoyments which in ancient times were confined to the porticoes of Grecian sages or the colleges of the cloistered monks. Forty years ago, men as eminent in literature and science as the late Lord Brougham and many others as eloquent, who laboured with him in forming the popular education of the country, were constrained to commend that great cause to public support by appealing to the lowest of the many mingled motives which led us all to the acquisition of knowledge, and by endeavouring to show how the acquisition of knowledge could be turned into pounds, shillings, and pence. But how immeasurably loftier was the standard by which popular education was now measured! The working classes of this country, instead of requiring to be coaxed into the acceptance of mental culture, had long ago taken the lead in the great national educational movement which year by year was appreciably improving the education of every class in the country. But the mere acquisition of knowledge did not constitute the highest or most essential acquirements of individuals or nations. Knowledge without character was as the possession of money without credit. At every age of life, in every condition of society, the highest aim of men and their greatest achievement was the formation of noble character. No prince was ever more variously accomplished, or more intellectually in advance of his time, than Cæsar Borgia; and yet no human being was more morally infamous. The same was to be found if they took the example of communities. His lordship recalled these facts because he looked upon the students of the Birkbeck Institution as training themselves for the greatest of all causes—to become the future guardians of the national character of England. The people of this country in all classes were fifty times as wise, at least fifty times as well instructed, as they were as many years ago; and the students of the institution would be much more and better instructed than their fathers and mothers.

COLONIAL HANDBOOKS, &c.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND; including the Fiji Islands. Third Edition with New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 449 pp. Price 5s.

"Sydney Morning Herald."—"The compilers have evidently been careful to make this book suitable to all classes and interests, and so to arrange its matter as to anticipate all possible inquiries."

AUSTRALIAN DICTIONARY OF DATES AND MEN OF THE TIME. By J. H. HEATON, Sydney. Royal 8vo. 550 pp. 12s. 6d. "Times."—"A remarkable work. Shows more impressively than probably any other kind of publication could the immense activity of our Australian Colonies and the rapid advances they have made since their very recent foundation."

AUSTRALIAN GRAZIER'S GUIDE. No. 1, Sheep. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 2s. 6d. "Field."—"This little work is intended to supply, as fully as may be in a small compass, an admitted want in colonial literature, and is indeed exactly the sort of 'Guide' for the assistance and instruction of those who propose to try their fortunes as stock-risers abroad, and who so frequently inquire of the Field for such help as is afforded by its pages."

No. 2, Cattle. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 2s. 6d. SOUTH AFRICA (New Edition) including the Cape, Natal, Orange Free State, &c. Illustrated. With Coloured Map. 576 pp. Price 5s.

"Athenæum."—"A mine of information." "Eastern Province Herald."—" (Caps).—Got up in a highly creditable manner, and contains a large amount of valuable information. Superior to anything of the kind we have seen."

CANADA—including Ontario, North-West Territory, Manitoba, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, &c. With New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo., 288 pp. Cloth, 5s. "Athenæum."—"Full of information and statistics, which ought to prove very serviceable to any visitor to the Dominion."

"Times."—"Under the above title Messrs. Silver have brought out much more than a mere 'Handbook to Canada,' an historical, political, social, geographical, and topographical guide for the use of travellers and settlers over the greater portion of our North-American possessions. The need of such a work, at once handy, comprehensive, and trustworthy, has long been felt both by intending settlers and by readers at home, who are surprised, and not unnaturally, at the scanty information about so important a territory which is accessible to them."

"Pall Mall Gazette."—"S. W. Silver and Co.'s 'Canada' comes to us with the high reputation gained by the preceding volumes of the series to which it belongs."

"Manitoba Daily Free Press."—"Comprised in this book is a mass of valuable information, which cannot fail to impress every reader with an intelligent idea of the great resources and capabilities of our country. A comprehensive, reliable, and at the same time cheap and handy work has been produced, which will furnish the kind of information most sought for in regard to the Dominion, and especially in regard to Manitoba and the North West territories. One of the best contributions to immigration literature yet produced."

"Graphic."—"We are already acquainted with Messrs. Silver's Handbooks to Australasia and South Africa. They are concisely written, accurate in information, and full of practical details. The same praise may be accorded to the volume now before us, which comprises a survey of the whole of British North America, the reader's researches being aided by an excellent map. To the intending emigrant the descriptions of Manitoba and British Columbia will be especially attractive."

IMPERIAL FEDERATION. By FRED. YOUNG. Small 4to., handsomely bound, 6s. "Westminster Review."—"Brings all the aspects of the subject forward in a controversial form."

UPS AND DOWNS: A Story of Australian Life. 812 pp. Price 2s. "Saturday Review."—"It is not often that stories of colonial life are so interesting."

COPY OF LETTER FROM MAJOR BRINGHURST.
SPRINGFIELD LODGE, Chelmsford, Sept. 19, 1880.

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your letter with respect to the Cholera and Diarrhoea Medicine, Aspaodyne, I can perfectly vouch for its efficacy in such cases. By the recommendation of the late Sir John Tyrell, more than twenty years since, I took it with very great benefit, and since that time I have never been without it in the house. I quite agree that it ought to be more known.—I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully,
J. H. BRINGHURST.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered. CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague. CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manila, to the effect that Cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st Dec., 1864.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF REBACED AND IMITATIONS.

CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was, undoubtedly, the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say had been sworn to.—See Times, 18th July, 1864.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1d., 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanied each bottle.

KEPLER MALT EXTRACT,

AN AGREEABLE SUBSTITUTE FOR COD-LIVER OIL.

A CONCENTRATED NUTRITIOUS DIGESTIVE FOOD

*VERY DESIRABLE AS A RESTORATIVE WHEN
THE SYSTEM HAS BECOME REDUCED
BY WASTING DISEASES.*

Kepler Malt is free from Alcohol, and one tablespoonful contains more nutritive and digestive value than one pint of the strongest Beer, Ale, Porter, or any alcoholic or fermented Extract of Malt.

Ziemssen's Cyclopædia of Medicine says:—"Malt Extract is preferable to Cod-liver Oil, being more palatable and more easily digested."

The Lancet says:—"Kepler Malt Extract is very good and may be used with confidence."

"The Kepler Malt Extract is reliable, and is manufactured in such a careful manner as to ensure the preservation of its valuable constituents."

THE KEPLER COD-LIVER OIL WITH MALT EXTRACT

(CONTAINS 50 PER CENT. MALT EXTRACT).

"The taste of the oil is agreeably disguised. Its nutritive powers are greatly increased, and it is rendered easy of digestion."—British Medical Journal.

The Lancet says:—"The Kepler Cod-liver Oil with Malt Extract has hardly any of the taste of the oil. Many could take it easily who cannot take the oil."

Royal Horse Guards.

Says page 18:—"Two pairs of boots lined with fur were also taken; and for physic—with which it is as well to be supplied when travelling in out-of-the-way places—some quinine and Cocker's Pills, the latter a most invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the natives of Central Africa with the greatest possible success. In fact the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines when I administered to him five will never fade from my memory; and a friend of mine, who passed through the same district many months afterwards, informed me that my fame as a 'medicine man' had not died out, but that the marvellous cure was even then a theme of conversation in the bazaar."

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, DEC. 19, 1881.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Dec. 1; Madras and Allahabad, Nov. 29; Calcutta, Nov. 28.

LORD RIPON's Government has formulated its views in regard to "the establishment of an Agricultural Department under each local Government." We are told that these new departments are intended to teach Government how to "preserve the stability of agricultural operations" — whatever that may mean. The departments are also, as an additional function, intended "to gauge the stability of agricultural operations in every part of the province"; and they are also to "classify areas according to the result of careful investigation." It is, of course, clear that when all this is done there must be abundant harvests, and the ryots will live happily ever after. And there will be lots of nice snug appointments to be created; and Dowb will be found to have a heaven-sent talent for gauging the stability of agricultural operations. Take care of Dowb: it is meet and right so to do.

THE Afghan news of to-day, given in the Times telegram, is of the same vaguely gloomy character as last week's. The clouds will continue to gather until the storm bursts. And when that burst comes, it may safely be predicted, Russia will have something more to say in the matter than she had in 1878 when we boldly anticipated her plans.

AND, à la bonne heure, the "British column returning from Quetta" was broken up last week.

It will be noticed, in to-day's telegrams, that the Punjab trade returns, just published, show that English piece-goods and Indian sugar have been almost entirely ousted from the Bokhara market by Russian manufactures. When the English people get to learn that the policy of surrender also involves, not only the surrender of honour, but also the surrender of cash in the shape of trade profits, perhaps we may hope for a check in our downward career.

WE have already shown, in these columns, many reasons why at the present time any attempt to introduce such an obnoxious impost as the income tax is specially to be deplored. The Englishman gives another: To follow up the census by an income tax would be an act of criminal folly.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times, in noticing the gaities which are to distinguish Lord Ripon's Burmese tour, expresses a hope that they will not distract the Viceroy's attention from the disgraceful state of our relations with Upper Burma. That those relations are in a state even worse than disgraceful, is abundantly clear. But whether Lord Ripon is likely to improve matters, by merely "giving some attention to them" in the intervals of the Rangoon junketings, is another question. Theebaw knows something of our doings on the Afghan side, and of the present tendency of our policy.

THE Archbishop of York's attack on Sir George Birdwood for the straightforward expression of authoritative professional opinion in regard to the effects of opium-smoking put forward by the latter in his letter to the Times, was neither very logical nor very relevant. We give Sir George's rejoinder in another column, and to most readers it will be convincing, at least, from a medical point of view. But however that may be, the contention of the Archbishop and his friends lack practical interest. The bitterest enemies of the opium revenue have not, as yet, attempted to show how that revenue can be made up from other sources. Until they will condescend to show the Government of India how it can pay its just debts and maintain the empire without the opium revenue, the question is beyond the range of practical politics. If it were our own money we were dealing with it might possibly be another matter. But the Government of India is a trustee of the Indian revenues in a more strict sense, if that be possible, than is the case with any other Government in the world.

It is announced that Major General T. F. Wilson, Bengal Staff Corps, having attained the age for compulsory retirement, and been removed from the active establishment of general officers of the Indian army, it has been decided, with the sanction of the Secretary of State for India in Council, to allow him to continue in his appointment a military member of the Council of the Governor General of India, for which he was elected last year, vice General Sir E. B. Johnson.

THE Press Association understands that it is by no means unlikely that the Duke of Connaught will be allowed to carry out his desire of visiting India, and that he will probably be selected for an Indian command.

A VERY important memorandum has just been drawn up at the India-Office, notifying precisely the latest and ultimate rulings in regard to Indian Pension Regulations. The terms, in which the modifications specified therein of previous pension regulations have been notified to the Government of India, are evidently intended to indicate the finality of the arrangements now made. We give the memorandum in extenso in another column.

THE late Mr. R. B. Shaw, C.I.E., when resident at Mandalay, succeeded in making a satisfactory temporary settlement of the great "shoe difficulty" at the Burmese Court; but it is of course a question that is always liable to recur. Colonel Laurie, who has made the subject of our relations with Burma peculiarly his own, discusses the history of this question in considerable detail in his forthcoming work, "Ashé Pyee, the Superior Country." The appearance of Colonel Laurie's book will be looked for with very great interest.

THE Anjuman-i-Punjab gives the following information about proposed arrangements:—

"We understand that the following financial arrangements are to be shortly applied to the Civil Service. 1. 'Acting allowances' which, at present often offer such difficulties in the adjustment of pay, will be abolished and the officiating officer will draw the pay of the permanent incumbent during the time that he acts for him. 2. There will be no 4 per cent. deduction for pension, Government undertaking to give the whole amount of a civilian's pension of £1,000 a year, the officer receiving so much 'net pay' during his period of service, which, of course, means after deducting what has hitherto been paid as the civilian's share towards his pension. Subscription to the funds does not enter into this calculation. It has also been determined, for immediate application, that the number of civilians to be indented for yearly is to be reduced to a minimum, so as to prevent, in future, the block in promotion from which civilians now suffer, and to enable the lower ranks of the commission to be recruited from below. Finally, it has been settled that no civilian shall draw less than say, Rs. 900 per mensem after ten years' service. The above statements indicate the rough outlines of a scheme that has been under contemplation for some time and is now to be carried out without further delay."

The same authority says:—

"We understand that the Secretary of State has ruled that no more than one year's sick leave shall be allowed at a time from India, any extension of the leave that may be necessary being obtained from the Medical Board at the India-office. We consider that this ruling is not a very wise one. People may leave this province with 'Punjab head' or chronic dysentery, get apparently cured after a year's sojourn in Europe, and return to India, when they are sure to get a relapse of their old complaint. If then they are to wait for three years before they become entitled to another year's sick leave, they will long before have returned to mother earth, and Government will have saved their salary or pension; so that, perhaps, from this point of view the rule is not a bad one. If, however, as is believed, the three years' interval is to be abolished, the patient will merely save the trouble and expense of proceeding a second time from India to Europe. All this 'chopping and changing' does an infinity of mischief to the credit of the Indian Government."

We take from the Englishman the following report on the Calcutta freight market for the week ending Nov. 28 :

"The business in our freight market during the past week was confined to the chartering of two forward ships, and one for immediate loading for Dundee, and another, to arrive, for New York, and some engagements in the loading steamer liners, as well as to arrive, at last week's rates. Two other steamers have been chartered, one for Marseilles, and one for Barrow, in substitution of previous charters which have fallen through. Our unfixed tonnage remains small, only two ships being available, which are held at high rates."

MESSRS. W. MORAN and Co's report gives the following account of the Calcutta Tea Market for the week ending Nov. 28 :—

"At the auctions held on the 24th instant, 7,859 chests were offered, of which 7,470 sold. The demand was not so brisk as at the last few sales, and we quote a decline of one anna per pound on all teas over twelve annas, especially for Pekoe kinds. Souchongs and Pekoe Souchongs were nearly half an anna lower, but good common sorts and all Darjeelings sold well at previous rates."

THE Indigo Market in Calcutta, for the same period, is thus reported on in Messrs. J. Thomas and Co.'s Price Current :—

"Four auctions have been held since our last issue, at which 1,864 chests were offered, and 1,653 chests sold. There is no change to quote in prices, but there has been a better feeling in the market during the last few days, and the demand has been more active. Natives have shown more disposition to sell, and the auctions have consequently been more animated. The quantity out of the market is about 16,500 maunds. We hand at foot particulars of private sales, among which will be noticed that of the fine J and R W mark 'to arrive' at Rs.290.

THE Times of India gives the following obituary for the week ending December :—Mr. C. H. Tyler; Mrs. Terraneau, widow of Major W. H. Terraneau, R.E., aged 108 years.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

THE following are the reports on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending Nov. 22, 1881 :—

"More rain has fallen in the Madras Presidency and has much benefited the standing crops, but some localities are in need of a further supply. In the Bombay Presidency prospects continue much the same as in the previous week, rain being still urgently required in Ahmednagar and Nasik. The reports from Mysor, Coorg, the Berars, Hyderabad, Central India, and Rajputana continue favourable. In Bengal the prospects of the rice crop are generally satisfactory, but in parts of Orissa the outturn in unirrigated lands has been damaged through want of rain; rain is also required for rabi sowings in some districts. Reaping of sali paddy has commenced in Assam, and both in that province and in Burma the standing crops continue to thrive. There has been no rain in the North Western Provinces and Oudh, though it is urgently needed in parts and would everywhere be beneficial to the young crops. Fever is abating, but cholera has made its appearance in two districts of Oudh. The want of rain for the rabi is also making itself felt in the Punjab; at present, however, the prospects in that province are generally favourable."

TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE following telegram to the Times, dated Gulista, Dec. 11, was received too late for our last issue :—

"During the past week very little has occurred to throw light on the various points noticed in my last telegram. What little there is tends to show that the understanding between Sirdar Abdul Kudus Khan and the Heratis is not so good as was at first supposed. It is stated, for example, that Abdul Kudus Khan gained the support of the Heratis in the recent struggle with Ayub by promising to save them from the presence and interference of Cabuli troops. Since then three Cabuli regiments have arrived in Herat, and the people, fearing, very justly, a repetition in Herat of the oppression exercised by the Cabulis in Kandahar, consider themselves deceived, and regard Abdul Kudus Khan with anger and suspicion. The arrival of the Cabuli regiments suggests that Abdul Kudus Khan has at present no intention of breaking with the Ameer; on the other hand, it is reported from Kandahar that Sirdar Mohsin Khan, a brother of Mahomed Ishak Khan, has suddenly arrived in the city from Turkestan, via Maimenah and Herat. He is said to have come merely for the purpose of marrying a daughter of Mahomed Ameer Khan, now in Kandahar; but his arrival appears to have been totally unexpected, and has created quite a flutter among the Ameer's officers. The Ameer appears to be determined to get rid of all possible sources of disturbance in the country. He has recently deported to India all the principal remaining Mahomedzai Sirdars, known as the Kandaharis, with their wives and children. The refugees have arrived in Peshin in a state of great destitution. For the present they will be sent at their own request to Kurrachee by the Indian Government to join their relative, the ex-Wali. The Ameer has also, as a precautionary measure, either taken or summoned to Cabul a large number of the chief Barakzai Khans in the neighbourhood of Kandahar and the result is that, taking into consideration those who have fled with Ayub, there is not a single man of local influence left in Kandahar to head a disturbance against the Ameer's authority. The Ameer's conduct might appear harsh and cruel, but he is probably the best judge of what is necessary to support and maintain his authority, and there is no disguising the fact that his position is a difficult one, owing to his intense unpopularity among the Duranis of Southern Afghanistan, and the initial dislike with which he was viewed in Kandahar having been much increased and embittered by the conduct of his troops after the defeat of Ayub Khan. The Ameer passed Ghazni five days ago, and has probably reached Cabul by this time. Taj Mahomed Khan Seismani, the Persian refugee, is said to have just returned from Karan to Kandahar with some 100 followers."

A REUTER'S telegram from St. Petersburg, dated Dec. 16, gives the following news from Central Asia :—

"The Turkestan Gazette received here to-day states that Tekhme Sirdar, one of the chiefs of the Tekke Turcomans, arrived at Askabad from Merv on the 21st September last, accompanied by 24 Merv Turcoman Elders, and an escort of 110 men belonging to the same tribe. The Tok-Tchami and some other Turcoman tribes in the Merv district are stated to have decided to ask the protection of Russia, and to have despatched to Khiva with this object twenty-four of their Elders. M. Kidaieff, who has been a prisoner for some years past in Merv, has been set at liberty, and a letter written by him has reached Askabad. Traders bringing sheep and agricultural products are gradually arriving at Askabad from Merv. Tekhme Sirdar states that all the inhabitants of the Akhal Tekke territory are returning to their homes, but are in a condition of great destitution, some of them travelling on foot. Every day small parties arrive in the territory in question. Nearly all have already left Merv, and only a few families still remain in the city. Mahmud-Kuli-Khan has not yet arrived. He is stated to intend travelling to Khiva in order to present himself to the Russian authorities there. Besides the letter which was brought to Turkestan by the deputation from Merv, letters have also been received from Baba Khan, chief of the Tok-Tchami tribe of Merv Turcomans, and from Murouf Khan, while a third letter was brought by 21 representatives of the Tok-Tchami tribe. In all three letters the writers declare their submission to the Russian authorities, and announce the despatch of 24 more Elders by way of Khiva, accompanied by M. Kidaieff."

THE following is the telegram of the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, dated December 18 :—

"Last week's Afghan news consists chiefly of vague rumours, all of which seem to point to possible troubles in store for the Ameer. He is said to have taken to Cabul or deported to India almost all the influential Sirdars of Kandahar, and complaints continue to be made of the oppression exercised by his troops. Reports come from Herat of a combination against the Ameer between Abdul Kudus Khan and Ishak Khan, who, as son of the former Ameer, Azim Khan, may consider he has some claim to the throne. Little or nothing is known of the state of things in Cabul. The Ameer should have arrived there by this time. At the date of the latest advices from him he had passed Kelat-i-Ghilzai.

"Trade between India and Northern Afghanistan has been proceeding for some weeks without interruption by the border tribes. The receipts from the Khyber tolls during November amounted to 7,475 rupees.

"The column returning from Quetta by the Border route arrived at Dera Ghazi Khan on the 11th, and was to have been broken up last week. Brigadier Wilkinson, who commanded it, returns to England.

"The Viceroy and Lady Ripon left Calcutta yesterday morning by the Government steamer Tenasserim. They will arrive at Rangoon on Tuesday, and will remain there until the 26th, when they will proceed to Moulmein. After a stay there of three days they will re-embark for Calcutta, which they are expected to reach on Jan. 2. Great preparations are being made in Burma to give them a fitting reception, and a series of festivities is being organised in Rangoon and Moulmein.

"It is to be hoped that, in the midst of the various distractions of the visit, the Viceroy will be able to give some attention to the very unsatisfactory state of our relations with Upper Burma, and to mature some plan for placing them on a better footing. Major Baring and Mr. Grant, Foreign Secretary, accompanied the Viceregal party.

"The news that the English Press has expressed disapproval of the revival of the income-tax, telegraphed to us last week, has been received here with general satisfaction, and hopes are now entertained that the Government will see the folly of again having recourse to that obnoxious impost and will quietly drop the scheme. No one now doubts that the remaining cotton duties must sooner or later be abolished, but neither does any one doubt that the time for their abolition has not yet arrived, nor can it be argued that the good which will follow their remission will at all counterbalance the evils of direct taxation. Late reports of the Boards of Revenue of Bengal and the North West Provinces on the working of the license-tax—a kind of modified income-tax—clearly show how distasteful it has been to the people and with how much oppression it has been enforced.

"The Pioneer, a paper which is usually looked upon as the Government organ, goes so far as to say that so long as the license tax remains in existence, with its brother scandal, the 2 per cent. cess on land in breach of settlement obligations, it would be continuing the old breach of faith to abolish any more customs duties, even if that could be done without imposing fresh taxation, and that if the next Budget introduces the income tax, it will be the most disgraceful Budget ever brought forward in this country.

"The Calcutta Englishman points out that among the stories afloat when the late census was taken none was more widely prevalent than that it was the prelude to fresh taxation. Should the income tax be introduced, it would carry to the native mind a complete conviction of the reality of these suspicions, and would have a very bad effect as regards the trust of the masses in the good faith of the Government.

"An important State paper has been published on the establishment of an Agricultural Department under each local Government. The views of the Supreme Government on the subject are summed up thus:—The work of the Indian Agricultural Department should be an accurate investigation of facts with a view to ascertaining what administrative course is necessary to preserve the stability of agricultural operations; therefore the new departments should be constituted so as to give the fullest effect to this policy. Then efforts should be devoted to the organisation of an agricultural inquiry, including gauging the stability of agricultural operations in every part of the province, classifying areas according to the result of careful investigation, and deciding what method of administrative treatment is suitable for each, so as to maintain agriculture up to the highest standard of efficiency possible under the present conditions. The foreign trade and navigation reports for October show that the total imports, excluding Government stores and treasure, amounted to Rs.39,591,344, against Rs.43,499,539 in October, 1880, and Rs.32,714,506 in October, 1879. The total value of the merchandise exported was Rs.52,955,222, against Rs.48,448,289 in October, 1880, and Rs.46,433,173 in October, 1879. For the seven months ending October the total imports amounted to Rs.266,808,884, against Rs.272,564,898 in the same period of 1880, and Rs.205,790,028 in 1879. The Punjab trade returns for the last official year show an increase of 30 per cent. in the foreign land trade of that province. The greatest increase in both imports and exports is in trade with Cashmere. Cabul absorbed 45, and Cashmere 44 per cent. of that trade, but the rise in exports to Cabul is in a great measure due to the requirements of our army. Piece goods and tea, both Indian and Chinese, take an important place among the exports, and there is said to be a growing demand for Indian green tea. In Bokhara, on the other hand, it appears that English piece goods and Indian sugar have been almost entirely ousted from the Bokhara market by Russian manufactures."

THE MORALITY OF OPIUM.—SIR GEORGE BIRDWOOD AND THE ARCHBISHOP OF YORK.

TO THE EDITOR.

From Sheffield the Lord Archbishop of York has sounded a counterblast to opium worthy of the horn of Ulphus, which has lain so many centuries in silence within the hallowed walls of his Grace's own Minster since last it woke the East Riding to the wild German hunting of the son of Thorald. It would have been more to the purpose, however, if instead of hounding on his audience against a momentary antagonist, his Grace had been content to wield—as none can better than the acute and learned author of "Laws of Thought"—the quiet sword of reason, keen, cold, and thoroughly-going as a true tempered "Sheffield whittle."

As Sir Rutherford Alcock is going to read a paper on the opium question, early in January, before the Society of Arts, I shall not attempt before then to further develop the arguments with which, in my letter to the Times of the 6th inst., I endeavoured to support the morality of the Indian opium revenue. I propose for the present only to protest, as briefly as possible, against the Archbishop's misrepresentations of my argument, which I am sure were quite unintentional, and due probably to his having had time to no more than glance at my letter before addressing the Albert Hall meeting. I said that opium smoking was, of itself, absolutely harmless, admitting that I had known cases of desperate suffering, apparently from excess in it, but explaining that they were all instances of moral imbeciles, addicted to a generally depraved life, and that the opium pipe was merely the last straw laid on their already broken-down backs. His Grace's reply is this:—"If it is absolutely harmless, like a mutton chop, how would it sound to say, 'So-and-So was very ill, and we gave him a mutton chop, and that was the last straw that broke the camel's back, and he died.' " Well, the Lord Buddha actually died of eating pork chop; and, undoubtedly, since him many another vigorous and hearty-minded man, forgetful that the stomach grows old and weak, has killed himself before his due time through eating heedlessly of mutton chop, or chop of other flesh, absolutely harmless under ordinary circumstances. Let me add that in fourteen years I never saw a case of death of an opium smoker in Bombay that could be attributed to his smoking opium.

All through his speech his Grace identifies opium eating and drinking, with opium smoking, and expressly refuses to believe that there are any differences in their effects!—imputing inconsistency to me because I distinguish between them. There is just as great a difference between them as between those of tobacco administered internally and tobacco smoked. Even tobacco chewing and snuffing are quite different in their effects from those of tobacco swallowed.

Worse than inconsistency, his Grace charges me with "want of earnestness," because he wrongly understood me to say that while "alcohol acts with doubly destructive force in tropical climates—yet all the while I was in India I was an advocate of the use of all stimulants in moderation, and it was only when I came to England and saw on all sides of me, and every day, the evil effects of the abuse of alcohol, that I was gradually led to sympathise with those who were voluntary abstinent from every form of stimulant." His Grace makes great fun out of this strange wresting of my words. The simple fact is, that, whilst living among opium eating and drinking populations, to whom alcohol has, on account of its rapidly destructive action, been forbidden for centuries by their ecclesiastical laws, I saw so little evil resulting from their habitual and often apparently excessive use of opium, that all the while I was among them I advocated moderate indulgence in all stimulants; and it was only when I was brought face to face with the loathsome public house organisation of wholesale intoxication, depravity, and crime, in London and our other great cities, and with the outcast dangerous population created by it, such as exists nowhere else in the world, that I was gradually led to sympathise with the total voluntary abstinence movement in this country.

Worse again than "want of earnestness," I am charged with having "some private reason for doing away with the effect of the whole thing—i.e., the alleged immorality of the Indian opium revenue. What does his Grace mean? Again he urges—"His letter is written for a purpose; the real matter of it is this"—as his Grace puts it even into my mouth—"I won't get rid of opium smoking because it produces £7,000,000 a year . . . but you can drink alcohol at home." "This (i.e. the £7,000,000) is the text of the whole letter." What I really said, in effect, was, that I no longer advocated drinking alcohol at home but that opium smoking is, of itself, absolutely harmless, and affords no justification whatever, for the honest, hardworking grinders and cutlers of Sheffield trying to abolish the £7,000,000 to £9,000,000 opium revenue of India, for any immorality there may be in it. Opium smoking in China is not half so injurious to human life as the grinding of knives and forks in the noisome factories of Sheffield, and that for the enriching and sumptuous pleasures of others. Of course the Indian opium revenue must be considered in this controversy, but that is no part of the line of argument I am taking. Others must deal with the enormous political and financial interests involved. I restrict myself to the medical view of the question. It is only because I am convinced that opium smoking is really not deleterious that I have taken any part in this discussion. The overwhelming induction of verified facts is that opium is in the same category with alcohol, and opium smoking with tobacco smoking; while my own opinion, whatever may be its worth, of opium smoking is that it is absolutely harmless. It is probably less injurious than sucking sugar-stick, and is certainly less injurious than tea-drinking; and the Chinese will no more be driven from it than the rest of the world from tobacco smoking, betel chewing, tea and coffee drinking, and other analogous national indulgences. It may be abused by the vicious, as well as used by the virtuous; but I am defending the virtuous use, and not the vicious abuse of the opium smoking.

"Satan with apples Eve beguiled,
But sin not apples, her devil'd

—I have the honour to be, Sir, your most obedient, faithful servant, GEORGE BIRDWOOD, M.D., Late Bombay Medical Staff.

P.S.—If the Chinese ever cease to be provided with pure Indian opium, while alone is fit for preparing the chandu they use in smoking, on account of its small proportion of morphine, they will either take to opium eating, or, worse, to drinking alcohol, and that unfortunately, not probably of European manufacture, but of their own detective and poisonous distillation.—G. B.

THE ABOR EXPEDITION.

THE Englishman publishes an interesting narrative of the progress and prospects of the above expedition, of which the following is a brief summary. A detachment of 300 rifles of the 43rd Regt., under command of Major Beresford, left Dibrughur on Nov. 5 by route march for Sadiya. Much enthusiasm prevailed in the regiment at the prospect of so soon again seeing active service after their late campaign in the Naga Hills. The ordinary route from Dibrughur to Sadiya, the starting point of the expedition, is five marches, 65 miles, but the orders received being to carry out the movement as expeditiously as possible, the distance was accomplished in four marches. The road marched over was in a bad state of repair, and the bridges were barely passable for carts, which had in consequence to be assisted over the bad parts. Owing to the heat, most of the marching was done at night, the average rate of progress being fifteen miles daily. The worst part of the journey was crossing the Brahmaputra, $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles from Sadiya, at a place called Saikhwa, where the troops had to cut a ghat to the river. Fortunately five regimental boats, with three large rafts to aid in crossing, were present; also a fatigue party from the Sadiya detachment of the 43rd, and some regimental elephants which were sent for immediately the troops reached Sadiya. Otherwise the passage of the river would have occupied three or four days, the only provision made by the Public Works Department immediately concerned and responsible being a small mar, or ferry boat. While the men were occupied cooking and eating their food, the camp equipage was taken across and pitched on the north bank. The elephants which accompanied the expedition were swum across. The whole detachment, elephants, and baggage were across and encamped on the north bank three miles from Sadiya by 4.30. Here the troops encamped for the night, waiting for the steam-launch Lark, containing provisions, ammunition, and other stores. Dum Duma, eighteen miles, was left that morning, Nov. 7, at 3 o'clock, and Saikhwa Ghat was reached at 9.45 a.m. The passage of the river occupied six hours, mostly spent in dragging carts across the sands. The whole force, without a single accident, landed on the north bank after fourteen consecutive hours' work. Heavy rain commenced falling during the night. The detachment marched into Sadiya next day, headed by bugle band and drums. The steamer Lark, with Colonel Evans, who commands at Sadiya, arrived at noon on the 10th, two days late. The force advancing to Nizamghat in the first instance will consist of 312 of all ranks of the 43rd N.L.I., and some Kampti militia or volenteers, excellent scouts and guides. The above force is to be supplemented later on by 100 rifles of the frontier police, commanded by Mr. Livesay. The whole force immediately it crosses the frontier line will be under the immediate command of Major Beresford. A fleet of boats and some elephants accompany the force. The former will have to be guarded along the whole line of route. After both detachments have stockaded themselves at Nizamghat and Bomjur, they commence road making in both directions, so that constant patrolling may be maintained along the whole line of communications to keep a good watch on the river, used for the transport of stores to and from the base of operations at Sadiya and Dibong outposts. One month's provisions are taken, full complement of ammunition, entrenching tools, and hospital establishment. No camp equipage was taken. The original idea of the expedition was to send a much smaller force. No news has yet been received as to the probable attitude the Bor Abors will assume on hearing of the advance of the expedition. It is quite likely that they will cross to Dibong before the force has reached Nizamghat, or try to harass the advance by attacking the boats or baggage. They are capable of combining and acting in concert, and herein lies their element of strength. If they neither openly oppose nor submit unconditionally, but remain quiescent and sulky, and hold aloof, the Abor question will remain unsettled and unsatisfactory, as for the last twenty years.

Sadiya, the base of operations, is 65 miles from Dibrughur. It cannot be calculated certainly when the force will reach either Bom-jur or Nizamghat, but probably three or four days to the former place and two or three days to the latter; so news ought to be received by heliograph on the 19th or 20th at Sadiya from Nizamghat.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

THE CASE OF GENERAL STANNUS.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL STANNUS has put forth a pamphlet, under the title of "My reasons for leaving the British Army," which puts his case against the military authorities in a very strong light. The pamphlet contains a mass of correspondence bearing on the subject, as well as a large number of articles from various papers. From a perusal of these, it appears clear that the real reason of the harsh treatment which General Stannus has received is to be looked for in an unfortunate expression of his in regard to Lord Napier of Magdala, used in an official appeal to the Horse Guards; and it is equally clear that all impartial observers, who have looked into the case, consider it a particularly cruel one. Many of our readers will be already acquainted with its details. Those who are not, will read with interest the following letter from the General, which appeared in the United Service Gazette of Sept. 27, 1879:—

"SIR,—Adverting to your editorial of the 6th inst., in which you speak of my being 'cruelly dealt with,' and being the victim of 'cowardly and disgraceful subterfuge,' I would observe that nothing even so tangible as a 'pigeon-holed confidential report' was assigned as a reason for my being passed over for a divisional command. Something far more vapoury, more undefined, and less substantive in character was adduced, as the correspondence will show. The facts are these:—When I was promoted to major-general I applied to the Horse Guards for employment at home, but was told, to my astonishment, that I must first sound the military authorities in India. To this I demurred, as I had ceased to be connected with the Indian Army or with India, and I naturally concluded I ought to be amenable to the same regulations as all other British officers. In my bewilderment, however, I addressed Lord Napier's military secretary; and although I carried on a correspondence with him for nearly seven months—if that can be called a correspondence which was all on one side—I only received one letter in reply, and that at the expiration of the above period. This letter was marked 'private,' and no reference whatever was made to any pigeon-holed report, as to my 'want of energy,' for the simple reason that there was none in existence. The words used, as the letter which appears in full at page 20 of the pamphlet will show, and on which I was condemned, are:—'It was said there was a want of energy.' Now, as I had been writing for six months to Lord Napier's military secretary, and had marked my letters 'demi-official,' it did, indeed, astonish me to get only one reply from him, and that marked 'private.' There was the less necessity for anything of a confidential nature between the military secretary and myself, as I had never in my life spoken to him except at his office; but the letter, instead of pacifying me, as was no doubt intended, exasperated me beyond anything I can ever remember. I addressed Lord Napier in vain. I then, in my happy innocence, thought the Horse Guards would come to my assistance, and I sent a number of public and private documents to the military secretary of that institution. As these papers bore the highest testimony to my character as an officer from several general officers under whom I had served, and as all these officers by a strange coincidence used the word 'zeal' in referring to the manner in which I discharged my duties—one of them spoke of my 'anxiety and zeal'—I thought I had at last a chance of obtaining justice, as I pointed out (at page 35 of the correspondence) that I did not see how 'zeal and anxiety' in discharge of one's duty could be co-existent with the display of a 'want of energy.' I protested, moreover (v. page 16), against anything of a 'secret character' being received to my prejudice. Meeting with scant courtesy at the Horse Guards, and having failed to get the authorities either in India or England to read or answer my letters, extending over a period of two years, as a last resource I addressed the Duke of Cambridge; and as my two juniors, old acquaintances of Lord Napier's, to whom I was almost a perfect stranger, had been appointed to divisional commands, I described the treatment I had received as a 'cruel wrong.' The proverbial placidity and Christian resignation, however, with which some people can bear the losses and misfortunes of others are intensified in a remarkable degree among the Horse Guards officials, and my complaints were finally disposed of by the very simple expedient of a reply of some half-dozen lines characterising my letters as intemperate. I would ask the favour of your publishing this letter, as very few have seen the correspondence which embodies in detail the above facts.

A SIXPENNY INGOLDSBY ILLUSTRATED.*

MESSRS. RICHARD BENTLEY AND SON have brought out an edition of the Ingoldsby Legends, well and clearly printed, and charmingly illustrated with the artistic productions of Cruikshank, Leech, and Tenniel, at the astonishing price of sixpence. The lead given by Lady Brassey in the marvellously cheap reproduction of the "Voyage of the Sunbeam," which we noticed a few weeks ago, has been here followed and improved upon. Messrs. Bentley and Son will doubtless obtain a prodigious sale as a reward for their venture.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE LICENSE TAX.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—After the turmoil and extravagance of Lord Salisbury's reign we appear to have sunk into a state of apathy and listlessness, which forebodes no good to India. We cannot govern that country, as England is governed, by doing nothing or doing a little very slowly. We must answer quickly, when forty millions of Mohammedans require to be informed. On the 28th of October, last year, I urged the folly and wickedness of continuing the license tax, which has demoralised our subjects, and has worried and vexed the best officers of Government with very little benefit to the Exchequer. Are we placed in India for the purpose of teaching one portion of the population to prey on the other by extortion, bribery, and lying? Is all of our boasted education to end in making our subjects servants of the Evil One? If not, why have we gone to sleep while the license tax is disgracing our government? Last year Government honestly gave us information regarding the iniquities and absurdities which were being practised. This year it has attempted to conceal the ulcers which are eating the life of the British Empire in India. Notwithstanding our efforts to hide wickedness from our own eyes, it is patent to our subjects, who must feel hopeless when they see the somnolent and feeble attitude of the British Government. The public require to be informed how far the existence of the license tax has been employed as an opportunity for extortion; how far it has demoralised the people by teaching them to make false returns; and the employés of Government by giving them opportunities for illicitly making their fortunes. What do officers, experienced in collecting the tax, really think about it? Why should we vex and irritate our subjects, by continuing a profitless tax? Nobody can say that any of the assessments are just; we recklessly continue our feeble injustice, because everybody thinks that he is not responsible for the wrongs which are being perpetrated. We can rule India only by justice and firmness; let it not be said that the British Government is dying of senile decay.—Your obedient servant,

Dec. 13.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

AFGHAN RUMOURS.—Various accounts come from Afghanistan regarding the intentions of the Ameer. The latest report brought by merchants, and communicated to us officially, is that Abdul Rahman was encamped outside Kandahar at Deh Kwaja, and was collecting carriage for an early march to Kabul. Another report says Abdul Rahman intends to winter at Herat. The country is quiet, and trade has recommenced between Kandahar and Herat.

BUDDHIST REMAINS.—The Government of India have placed the services of a company of Bengal Sappers and Miners, under the command of a Royal Engineer Officer, at the disposal of the Punjab Government, for carrying on the exploration of Buddhist ruins in the Peshawur valley, which was commenced in 1873 and 1874.

THE "JOHN DAVID."—The ship John David, of Glasgow, from Calcutta, laden with jute, was on fire on the 25th Nov., off the bar at Chittagong.

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.—During the second quarter of the present year, ending June 30, there were 100 persons killed and 113 injured from causes connected with the working of trains on the Indian railways, as compared to 80 killed and 164 injured in the corresponding quarter of 1880.

THE B.B. AND C.I. RAILWAY.—Memorials to Government in favour of the continuation of the Godhra branch of the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway to Gwalior and Cawnpore are being submitted from the natives of Suraj, Broach, and other districts concerned. The total length of the extension from Godhra (to which point the line is nearly completed) to Cawnpore would be 532 miles.

THE RAJPUTANA STATE RAILWAY.—The passenger fares on the Rajputana line are to be increased from 12 to 18 pies per mile first class, and from 8 to 9 pies per mile second class. The first class fare between Sabarmati and Delhi will thus be increased by Rs.18, and the through fare from Delhi to Bombay will be raised from Rs.55 to Rs.73. The fare by the longer route over the East Indian and G.I.P. lines is Rs.115.

THE SAME.—The enhancement of the grain rates on the Rajputana Railway, against which the B. B. and C. I. Railway authorities protested, has had the result of putting almost a complete stop to the export of grain from the North West via Bombay. Upwards of 100 wagons daily were being received up to the date when the new rates came into force, and immediately the average was reduced to three wagons per diem.

THE SAME.—The Government of India will take over the management of the Rajputana State Railway, now over 1,100 miles in length, from Dec. 1. Major Bissett will be manager of the line.

THE TELEGRAPH TARIFF.—A new tariff for Indian inland telegrams has been adopted. There are to be three classes of messages—"urgent," "ordinary," and "deferred," the rates for which will be Rs.2 for eight words, and four annas for each additional word; Rs.1 for eight words, and two annas for each additional word; and one anna per word, respectively.

THE NORTHBROOK SOCIETY.—The Maharani of Vizianagram has subscribed £1,000 to the Northbrook Indian Society.

THE VICEROY'S TOUR.—After the very successful and interesting visit to Chittoor, the Viceroy and party travelled to the sacred City of the Ganges, where Lord and Lady Ripon are the guests of his Highness the Maharaja of Benares. They went from Benares back to Calcutta, where they were expected on the 6th instant.

THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.—Sir Donald Stewart was expected to return from Assam to Calcutta on the 2nd inst.

THE ABOR EXPEDITION.—The troops despatched to Nizamat arrived there on Nov. 19, and entrenched themselves without opposition. They had a hard march, having to cut their way for a considerable distance through dense jungle. A deputation of the Abors visited the camp on the 25th idem, and the views of Government were explained to them. It is reported that the line of telegraph is to be extended from Dibrugarh to Sadiya, and from Kachar to Manipur.

TROUBLES ON THE AFGHAN FRONTIER.—There are rumours of impending troubles with the Aka Kheyl tribe in the Khyber and at Tirah, and it is said that the tribes in the vicinity of Kohat are restless and dissatisfied with Atta Mahomed Khan. This chief is reported to contemplate the reconstruction of a fort formerly known as Ghurri Dariya Khan, which was taken and destroyed by the Sikhs in former days, and the rebuilding of which has always since been prohibited. Though it has been finally decided that the proposed Allai expedition will not come off this year, the Allahabad paper understands that the idea has not been finally negatived, and the matter may be reconsidered in the spring. The Bozdar column, returning from Quetta, under the command of General Wilkinson, arrived at Thul on the 18th ult., and left on the 21st. The direct route via the Chamalang valley was to be attempted. The Mahsud final settlement promises now to be speedily effected. Yarik, the last of the ringleaders, whose son was given up as a hostage on his behalf, has surrendered, and the tribe has given up the Hindu they recently kidnapped from the Bannu district.

MR. STRAIGHT.—We are sorry to see that Mr. Justice Straight, of the Allahabad bench has not yet recovered. In consequence of his illness Mr. Justice Tyrrell had to preside at the Criminal Sessions of the N.W.P. High Court, resumed on Monday before mail day.

MR. PRIMROSE.—Mr. Primrose is reported to be progressing very satisfactorily towards a recovery from his illness.

ARCHDEACON MATTHEW.—Archdeacon Matthew is dangerously ill at Simla. The malady which has attacked him, crysipelas, is believed to have been caught in the course of a visit to a sick person at Jutogh.

THE SIMLA OFFICES.—The report that the Government of India proposed to spend 55 lakhs of the public money on building new Government offices at Simla was a mistake. The estimated cost is 3½ lakhs, and allowing a good margin for excess over estimates in actual construction, the outlay may amount to 5 lakhs. Some one had added an extra figure.

H.M.S. "DRAGON."—We regret to learn from a report brought by the steamship Zambesi that there had been serious sickness on board H.M.S. Dragon. When the Zambesi left Aden, the Dragon was in quarantine there. She had lost three men from cholera, and had twenty more on board sick, whether with cholera or not is not stated.

MADRAS.

SIR FREDERICK ROBERTS.—Sir Frederick and Lady Roberts arrived at Madras on the 27th inst. in the P. and O. steamer Australia, and landed the same evening. The next morning the General took his seat as a member of the Governor's Council by virtue of his office of Commander-in-Chief. Sir Frederick and Lady Roberts are at present guests of the Governor at Guindy.

THE ADAM MEMORIAL FUND.—It is announced from Ootacamund that his Excellency the Viceroy has recently forwarded a subscription of Rs.300 to the Adam Memorial Fund, expressing at the same time his entire approval of the form which it is proposed the memorial should take. The plans and estimates for the new market, including, presumably, the fountain which is to be raised therein in memory of Mr. Adam, have been completed and laid before the municipality for approval.

DIAMOND MINING.—A Madras paper says that "the company called the Bellary Diamond Company have addressed Government with a view to secure certain concessions for diamond mining in the Bellary and adjacent districts."

A SHORT WAY WITH CENSUS PAPERS.—At Madras a native clerk who tore up some census papers, instead of counting the figures that they contained, has been fined Rs.50 and sent to gaol for one month.

BOMBAY

THE GOVERNOR.—Sir James Fergusson, we believe, has now returned to Mahabaleswar; General Hardinge is still on tour.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS.—Among the passengers by the mail steamer Surat, which arrived in Bombay on Tuesday, Nov. 28, were the Right Hon. W. E. Baxter, M.P., Mr. Hamilton, M.P. for Lanarkshire, Mr. Johnson, M.P., and Sir William Abdey.

AN ILLEGAL GRATIFICATION.—Rao Saheb Mandarao Hingoli, subordinate judge of Bejapur, a man sixty years of age, and a very old servant of Government, has just been sentenced by Mr. Shaw, sessions judge of Belgaum, to six months' imprisonment and a fine of Rs.1,000, with the alternative, in case of non-payment, of nine months' additional imprisonment, for obtaining an illegal gratification, in the shape of a field, for a dependent, by means of an unjust judgment.

THE NORTHERN COMMAND.—General Schneider has, we hear, resigned the command of the Northern Division of the Bombay Army, and will go home at once. He will be succeeded by Major General Wood.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.—Mr. J. B. Peile, C.S.I., has been appointed an official member of the Bombay Legislative Council in place of the Hon. C. Gonne, who has just been granted leave to England.

CEYLON.

GOLD IN CEYLON.—The Ceylon Observer hears that Mr. Joseph Nowell has discovered a quartz reef in which there are such evident signs of gold in paying quantity that he has applied to Government to learn their claims before he imports machinery for working it. In Hewaheta, Maskeliya, and Ramboda specimens of quartz have been found which have been pronounced to contain appreciable quantities of gold.

THE MEDICAL AID BILL.—The Ceylon Times says:—"Since the date of our last, there have been two sittings of the Legislative Council; one of these was occupied mainly with the discussion on the amended Medical Aid Bill, the unfairness and impracticability of which was dwelt upon with great force by two of the unofficial members, the planting and commercial representatives, but without avail. The Government, with an official majority at its back, was enabled to force through council one of the most objectionable measures which it is our duty to record for many years."

COLOMBO HARBOUR.—The harbour works continue to make excellent progress, although at the present moment the work with the dredger is suspended to enable fresh pins to be fixed to the buckets. The work at the sea wall has been carried on almost unremittingly, and by the end of the present month there will have been about 260ft. laid during the present season, slightly in excess of the work done in the same period of last year.

THE SEASON.—The continuance of steady north-east rains, which have extended to nearly every part of the island, is a good augury for the planters next year, as well as of material assistance in filling out and maturing the crops on the trees; these are, in consequence, coming on rapidly, and picking is now general throughout the coffee districts, and we are glad to be able to report with generally very favourable results.

COLOMBO COMMERCIAL.

EXPORTS.—The past fortnight has not shown much activity in shipments of produce as may be seen by the distribution of crops to date:—

Plantation Coffee.

COFFEE.—Although the weather up-country has been favourable for ripening crops, and picking has made good progress, the arrivals in Colombo from high localities are still behind-hand. Business was transacted in the early part of the fortnight to some extent, but scarcity of ready estate coffee of desirable quality at the present time, checks operation. Business has taken place in crops for forward delivery at Rs.50 f.o.b., whilst for a small quantity of a very favorite mark ready for shipment, as much as Rs.51 paid. Fine high-grown parchment has passed at Rs.10 per bushel. Garden parchment has been very freely on offer, but the only quotable transactions have been Rs.7 to Rs.7.50 per bushel. A small business has been done in native coffee at Rs.26 to Rs.26.50 for picked and dried, but there are no longer buyers at these figures.

COCOANUT OIL.—There has been business in f.o.b. oil at Rs.282.50, but at closing the market is extremely quiet. Dealers oil may be quoted nominally at Rs.11.75.

CINCHONA.—Supplies have been heavy with a decided downward tendency in rates.

IMPORTS.—Since the date of our last circular the arrivals from Great Britain have comprised the s. s. Eldorado, the s. s. Australia, and the s. s. Durham, from London, with part cargoes for this port.

GREY GOODS.—There is no improvement in our market for these goods, for which the inquiry has been limited to a very few bales of the heavier weights.

WHITE GOODS.—Only a retail trade has prevailed at indifferent rates.

PRINTED AND COLOURED GOODS.—The Christmas season has opened very sluggishly as regards all of these none but the most suitable goods being in any request.

RICE.—The landings have again been on a good scale and with a fair up-country demand rates are about maintained.

HOME NEWS.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—The tenders for Rs. 45,00,000 in bills on India were received on Wednesday at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—To Calcutta, Rs. 11,00,000, Bombay, Rs. 3,00,000, and Madras, Rs. 10,000, at the average rate in each case of 18.775d. Tenders on all Presidencies at 18.775d. received in full. Bills for only 14,10,000 rupees were thus sold, and this notwithstanding a reduction of $\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. from the price obtained last week, when the whole of the 45 lakhs offered were allotted. Next Wednesday 45 lakhs more are to be offered.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.—The home demand for refined bar silver, which a week or so ago kept the price at or about the level of 52d. per oz., has now entirely disappeared. Arrivals this week have been very much larger, and the consignments by the Don and the Ville de Brest were on Wednesday sold at 51 $\frac{3}{4}$ d.—a fall of $\frac{1}{4}$ d., which is equivalent to the reduction of 1-16d. in the price of the India Council drafts allotted. The weakness of the market was aggravated by the receipt of the lower rates of exchange from India, the quotation for telegraphic transfers being now 18.775d., an additional element of uneasiness being the recent statements of the American Secretary of the Treasury as to the expediency of suspending the coinage of silver. Similarly lower exchange rates prevail in China, the respective quotations received from Shanghai and Hong-Kong being 58.1 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. and 38.9 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. Rupee paper was also very inactive, and the final prices were 91 and 84. On Thursday bar silver was dealt in to a limited extent at 51 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. per ounce, the price of Mexican dollars being further reduced $\frac{1}{4}$ d. to 50 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. per ounce. Rupee Four per Cents. were unaltered, but the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. declined $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to 90 11-16 to 13-16. The Indian exchanges were stationary at 18.8 $\frac{1}{4}$ d., but from Hong-Kong the rate was weaker at 38.9d., and from Shanghai at 58.1 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. On Friday the Silver Market was quiet, without any alteration in prices. A few dealings in bars were noted at 51 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. per ounce, Mexican Dollars being flat at 50 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. In the latter case, however, the figure was regarded only as nominal. Eastern Telegraph transfer rates ruled at 18.775d. 15-16d., but Rupee Paper was unchanged. From India the exchanges were 18.8 $\frac{1}{4}$ d. 3-16d., Hong Kong being 38.9 $\frac{1}{2}$ d., and Shanghai 58.1 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. On Saturday business was dull, and but few transactions were recorded.

HER MAJESTY'S TROOPSHIPS.—The Crocodile, Captain Cardale, which left Bombay on the 15th of November and was due at Portsmouth on Tuesday, but which was detained in consequence of having to assist the Serapis in the Red Sea, arrived at Spithead during Wednesday night and steamed into harbour on Thursday morning. Mrs. Allen, wife of Surgeon Allen; the wife of Private Dowson of the 10th Regiment, and Private Crawley 13th Hussars, died during the passage. The Crocodile brought to England Capt. Brown, 17th Lancers; Lieut. Young, R.E.; Lieut. Garnett, 2nd East Yorkshire Regiment; Hon. Lieut. Wood, Board of Works; Lieut. Heywood-Jones, 6th Dragoon Guards; Col. Davis and Lieut. Fowle, R.A.; Lieut. Col. Sillery, 1st Suffolk Regiment; Major Heywood, 2nd West York Regiment; Major Collins, 1st South York Regiment; Capt. Gronow, 1st Manchester Regiment; Lieut. Freckleton, 1st Connaught Rangers; Capt. Bathurst and Lieut. Colville, Rifle Brigade; Surgeons Major Brodie, Hoysted, Wilkly, and Rutledge, Army Medical Department; Lieut. Thompson, Leinster Regiment; and Majors Phillips and Smythe, Capt. Barron, and Lieut. Probyn, Staff Corps. Col. Chads, 1st Wilts Regiment, and Lieuts. Peile and Worledge, of the Staff Corps, though accepting passage did not embark. In addition to the above officers, the Crocodile brought home 310 invalids, 186 time-expired men, 38 men to join depots, 58 women and 137 children, the whole of whom were forwarded to their destinations.

MADRAS RAILWAY COMPANY.—The half-yearly report of the directors, to June 30, shows a gross revenue of £293,882, against £289,128, or an increase of 2 1-3 per cent., and a working expenditure of £193,675, against £203,293, or a reduction of nearly 5 per cent. The net earnings were thus raised by nearly 19 per cent., from £85,835 for the first half of 1880 to £102,207 for the half-year under review. So far, £10,184,298 has been spent on capital account, and it is estimated that £67,656 more will be required, of which £15,583 is for the service of the current half-year.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—The directors recommend a dividend of £1 9s. per cent. on the deferred annuity capital, in addition to the guaranteed interest at 2 per cent., for the half-year.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.—The 64th half-yearly general meeting was held on Friday, at the City Terminus Hotel. Colonel James Holland presided, and after stating that the present number of proprietors was 13,805, he moved the adoption of the report, and congratulated them on its satisfactory character. Excluding certain items from the totals the receipts of the last half-year had exceeded those of 1880 by 21.79 per cent., against an increase in the expenditure of 8.47 per cent.; and, as the report stated, excepting the items of passengers' luggage and carriages, horses, &c., every heading of the coaching traffic had shown some improvement, the ordinary passenger traffic, excluding the service for Government, having increased by 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. As proving one of the benefits the Government derived from the railway, he mentioned that in the past half-year they had saved more than £40,000 in the traffic of their troops and stores by the reduced rates at which they had carried them. He concluded by quoting from their traffic manager's report to show the increasing means of traffic on their line. Mr. H. Wollaston Blake seconded the motion. The chairman, in reply to questions, stated that they had now laid between 400 and 450 miles of their line with steel rails. As to the prospects of the current half-year, from their latest returns, he was confident that the Government would not have to contribute £50,000 to make up the guaranteed dividend at their next meeting, and that amount would be as against £230,000, which they had to pay the company in the corresponding period. The report was then unanimously adopted, and a dividend of 15s. per cent. declared out of the surplus profits of the half-year.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—The half-yearly general meeting was held on Friday, at the offices, Finsbury-circus, E.C., Lieut. Col. P. T. French presided, and in moving the adoption of the report, observed that he did not know that he could do better on that, the fifty-second, occasion of their meeting than express a hope that the report would meet with their approbation. Their gross receipts for the half-year had been £550,272, being an increase of £82,507, and the net earnings £363,254, being an increase of £56,805 over the corresponding period of the previous year. The surplus revenue had been Rs.825,000, which, at the current rate of exchange, 18. 7½d., had produced £68,277. Out of that sum they proposed to pay a dividend, in addition to the guaranteed interest of 17s. 6d. per cent. That was by far the largest surplus dividend they had ever distributed, and he trusted that it would be a good deal more in future. There had been an enormous increase in the third-class ordinary passenger traffic, a satisfactory increase in other passenger traffic, and a large increase in goods traffic. With regard to the traffic of the current half-year, up to the 19th ult. the receipts had been £211,178, which showed an improvement of £25,224. He concluded by eulogising the services of the staff generally. Mr. William Hartridge seconded the motion, and in reply to questions, the chairman stated that the proposal as to the Gwalior line was in a very crude state at present. The report was unanimously adopted, and the surplus dividend of 17s. 6d. per cent. was afterwards declared.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.—The half-yearly report shows a gross revenue of £1,649,234, against £1,324,930, and a working expenditure of £736,301, or £88,877 higher than in the corresponding period. The company's moiety of the surplus after provision has been made for the payment of the guaranteed interest enables the directors to recommend an additional dividend of 15s. per cent., leaving about £2,500 to be carried forward.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY.—An ordinary meeting of this company was held on Dec. 6, at the offices, Gresham-street, Mr. John Farley Leith presiding. The chairman moved the adoption of the report, and, in doing so, said their stocks ranged higher than that of any other of the railways that were placed in similar circumstances; but still he believed some of the shareholders thought that the high price at which their stock was quoted did not fairly represent its value, having regard to the large payments made annually out of the revenue in the shape of surplus dividends. The aim of the directors was always more and more to develop traffic and keep down the working expenses. Notwithstanding the past half year being the least prosperous of the two, they had not only earned enough to pay the 5 per cent. guaranteed interest, but a small amount beyond, which would be divisible between the Government and themselves, and which enabled them to pay a dividend of 2s. per cent., making altogether £2 12s. per cent. The gross earnings of the half-year amounted to £172,811, and the working expenses to £91,068, leaving the net earnings £81,743, or an increase of £9,761 on the half-year. There had been an increase in all classes of passenger traffic, except the third-class, which was accounted for by the greater facilities given for travelling in the fourth class. There had been a gross increase of 80,000 passengers, or 777 per cent. The goods traffic had also increased in quantity, but the receipts had fallen by £627. He was glad to say that the prospect for the current half-year was very bright down to Nov. 5, for in nineteen weeks they had earned £255,605, which was an increase over the corresponding period of £47,883, or 21 per cent. If they continued at the same rate they would, at the end of the half-year, be able to pay a surplus dividend of £2 16s. per cent. The report was adopted.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—The 52nd half-yearly report shows a gross revenue of £550,272 against £467,765, a working expenditure of £187,018 against £161,316, a net revenue of £363,254, or an increase of £56,805, the proportion of expenses to receipts being about ⅓ per cent. lower than in the corresponding period at 33'99 per cent. The company's moiety of a surplus revenue of £158,450 is, at the current rate of exchange, £68,277, out of which a dividend of 17s. 6d. per cent. on the capital stock, which will absorb £66,065, will be payable with the guaranteed interest for the current half-year in January next. The amount remaining in hand in London will then be £2,997, and in Bombay Rs.38,699.

OUDE AND ROHILKUND RAILWAY.—The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders in this company was held on Wednesday, at the City Terminus Hotel, under the presidency of Mr. John Pender, M.P. The report of the directors for the half-year ended June 30, 1881, states that as compared with the corresponding half of 1880 there is in the number of passengers an increase of 111,045, or 8·86 per cent.; gross receipts, £11,799, or 4·82 per cent.; gross expenditure, £11,341, or 8·68 per cent.; profit, £458, or 0·41 per cent.; and expenditure on gross receipts, an increase of 1'96 per cent. In the half year under review the receipts and charges on account of revenue stores are entered for the first time by order of the Government of India, and the expenditure includes the sum of £3,390, the approximate amount, which, under the system in force in 1880, would have been debited to capital on account of work done by revenue establishments. The percentage of expenditure to receipts would then have been reduced from 55'34 to 52—or 1·38 less than in 1880—instead of showing an increase of 1'96. The statement of capital account shows a total receipt of £6,211,487, and a total expenditure of £5,891,028, leaving a balance in hand on June 30, 1881, in cash and stores (less outstanding balances) of £320,459. The chairman congratulated the meeting upon the upward tendency of the receipts, which he alluded to at the previous meeting, being satisfactorily maintained during the six months ending June 30. The increase had not made rapid strides, but that need not cause any disappointment to the shareholders, because trade and commerce had not as yet had time to recover from the severe depression which had prevailed during the past two most disastrous half years. At the same time he might fairly congratulate the shareholders that, with good harvest and improved trade, it would not be long before they found themselves earning the full guaranteed dividend, and also within sight of surplus profits. The company had suffered so much from floods during the past that it was a matter for sincere congratulation that the floods had come and gone, and that the bridges, culverts, and embankments, and all works had stood firm, without any damage being done. The receipts showed an increase of £11,799, and that would have been much greater but for the fact that the Government insisted upon certain expenditure, for works being for the first time charged to revenue which had hitherto been charged to capital. The indent for the construction of the bridge connecting this with its sister company had been received, and the plant sent out was more elaborate and complete than any hitherto sent to India. The works would be proceeded with day and night, during the latter by means of the electric light, and the board hoped that within three years through communication would be established. The motion for adoption and report was seconded by Major General Beadle, R.E., and carried mem. con.

MADRAS IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY.—The following letter in reference to this company has appeared in the Times:—"Sir,—I observe that a meeting of the bondholders of the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company has been called for Thursday next, Dec. 15, in order that the offer of the Secretary of State for India may be finally considered. It should not be overlooked by the bondholders that the bonds, having been issued at 82 for each nominal £100, bearing 5 per cent. interest, could hardly be considered a first-class security, and, that, if the present offer is refused, the bondholders will receive no interest for eight years, and that there is some uncertainty whether the principal will be paid in full on the bonds maturing in 1890. The offer of the Secretary of State is declared to be a final one." In reply to this a correspondent, signing himself "A Mortgagee," writes as follows:—"The letter of 'W.T.' which has appeared in the Times, may mislead the mortgagees of the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company. The Secretary of State has never declared the present offer to be a final one, and if it be now refused the Government will be free to, and naturally will, acquire the undertaking for nearly half-a-million less money, out of which the mortgagees will be paid in full." At the meeting held on Thursday at the offices, Coleman-street, E.C., in connection with the offer of the Secretary of State for India as to the purchase of the company's undertaking, the representatives of the press were not admitted.

MOYAR COFFEE COMPANY.—The following is from the report of the directors, to be presented at the annual meeting on Wednesday, the 21st Dec.:—"The directors beg to submit the accounts of the company for the year ending the 30th September, 1881. There is also appended a supplementary account, showing the disposal of the proceeds of the sale of the Devala estates, from which it will be seen there is still an unappropriated balance of £2,433. The last year's operations in the cultivating have been the most unfavourable since the formation of this company. The directors were given to understand that a crop of twenty-five tons was anticipated from the Devala estates, but towards the end of the year drought set in, the trees suffered, and the crop picked and dispatched turned out only fourteen tons. Crops considerably below the estimates were general in the South East Wynaad, but the loss to this company on the year's working is £1,589. This, however, is after providing for the up-keep of the young coffee now coming into bearing. One hundred acres of coffee have been cleared and planted up this year, thus increasing the acreage under cultivation to 303 acres. The further extensions will be regulated by circumstances, and more particularly by the monetary resources of the company. Cinchona, both for shade and profit, have been largely planted, and 97,000 plants have been put out this year. The directors are happy to add that the crop now coming forward is estimated at 40 tons. Everything points to favourable results in the future. The Moyar Estate in former years gave larger returns than any of the other properties, and if water can only be diverted, at moderate expense, from the Pykara River, this will again become a very valuable property. In December last the shareholders were paid £2 10s. per share in the shape of dividend, arising out of the sale of the Devala properties, and the directors had hoped long ere this to have returned £2 10s. per share on account of capital, but, owing to the law's delay, and to no other cause, the required authority from the court has not yet been obtained. It is now, however, the directors are assured by your solicitors, daily expected, and then an immediate return will be made. This payment will reduce the capital of the company to £30,897, and new share certificates for the reduced denomination will have to be issued in exchange for the old shares."

THE EASTERN TELEGRAPH COMPANY announce the payment on the 14th of January next of a dividend of 3s. per share on the Six per Cent. Preference Shares, less income tax, for the quarter ended the 31st of December, 1881. An interim dividend of 2s. 6d. per share on the ordinary shares has also been announced, tax free, and will be paid on the same date in respect of profits for the quarter ended September 30, 1881.

BORELLI TEA COMPANY.—The directors have declared an interim dividend on the current season's profits of 5 per cent., payable on the 20th inst.

DEVALA MOYAR GOLD MINING.—The general meeting of this company was held at the City Terminus Hotel on Thursday—Sir David Lionel Salomons, Bart., in the chair. The chairman said that the last occasion on which the directors had the pleasure of meeting the shareholders was on Nov. 5, 1880, so that a little more than a year had elapsed since that period. Since that time Mr. Brough Smith proceeded to Australia and obtained mining and gold-saving appliances, so that a considerable time elapsed before he returned to India, where he arrived on May 31. The monsoons commenced in June, and lasted till October, so that they had not had much fine weather, still they had been working as far as possible all through the monsoon. The roads and bridges had been very much improved, which was of great importance to the company, seeing that they had to get the whole of their machinery, &c., to the mines by road, there being no railways. They had a very large estate, less the small amount they had sold. They had been prospecting another portion of their property and had made valuable discoveries. The Salomons reef had been put in a position to work upon, and the site for the machinery fixed upon. It was proposed to alter the name of the Kintail reef to that of the Empress reef, after the Queen. They had had an offer for the purchase of the Salomons reef, but they hoped that event was not far in the future. The Rhodes reef was sold on the condition that all the machinery ordered at that date should go over to that company, and the twenty stamps and the engine power was so transferred, and duplicate machinery was at once ordered. The delay in the registration of the deeds had been overcome, and they had received the balance of £30,000 outstanding, and had paid off the temporary loan to the company. After the payment of the whole of the preliminary expenses and the cost of the machinery, the balance in hand was still £68,000. The Rhodes Reef Company would, it was expected, be at work by the end of the year or the commencement of January. It was no use testing two or three tons, but they must wait until 200 or 300 tons of ore had been crushed before they could know if the Rhodes Reef Company was a success, and it that turned out to be the case, the property of the company would be worth anything they liked to name. In the meantime they were prospecting and preparing other reefs ready for sale. The report was adopted.

ASSAM COMPANY.—The directors have declared an interim dividend of 5 per cent. to shareholders registered in the books on the 31st inst., payable on January 10, 1882.

THE EASTERN EXTENSION, AUSTRALASIA, AND CHINA TELEGRAPH COMPANY have declared an interim dividend for the quarter, ending 30th September last, of 2s. 6d. per share, or at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, tax free, and payable January 14.

MONDAY, DEC. 19, 1881.

LORD HARTINGTON ON INDIA.

THE Secretary of State spoke at some length on the affairs of India at Manchester last Friday, in reply to two deputations—one from the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, and one from the manufacturers of Oldham. His lordship's reticence in regard to the coming Budget, the prospect of which is exciting such diverse hopes and fears, was probably very disappointing to the eager gentlemen who had given him such a very tempting opportunity of making disclosures. In the interests of India, we may express a regret that he was unable to announce that the Government had resolved to withdraw from the insane project of a reimposition of the income-tax. It may be admitted that the announcement would have been a little ungracious on that particular occasion. We trust, however, that it will be made before long. The absolutely trustworthy character of the Times Calcutta correspondent, and the positive terms in which he speaks of the existence of such a project, render it impossible for us to doubt for a moment that it has really been under the consideration of the Government of India; and this fact is calculated to cause so much disquietude in India, that the sooner the matter is set at rest the better. Except the imposition of the income tax, it is probable that no other measure of Government would be more generally unpopular than the abolition of the cotton duties, which was intended to accompany it. Much uneasiness has been caused also by the rumours that Lord Ripon had some idea of cutting down the State colleges. These feelings, with the general impression of vacillation and weakness on the part of the British Government caused by our flight from Afghanistan, combine to make the present time a particularly unfortunate one for the bare mention, even, of such a detested impost as the income tax.

Lord Hartington assured the public, somewhat unnecessarily, that he had not put any "pressure" on Lord

Ripon's Government to frame their fiscal measures in accordance with the requirements of Lancashire. It is not likely that any intelligent man ever supposed that influence of such a coarse kind had been brought to bear, at any rate in this blunt way. But the Secretary of State acknowledges that the Home Government had kept "the Government of India fully instructed, as we were bound to do, as to the effect here and in India of the operation of these partial duties." We very much fear there will be found cynical folk in India who will think that these "instructions" have been as seed sown in good ground.

The attacks of the Archbishops have evidently frightened the Secretary of State for the future of the opium revenue. He spoke of the agitation as threatening "to destroy—at all events greatly to impair—one principal source of Indian revenue;" and implored his hearers to pause before they lent the weight of "their great influence" (poor Lord Hartington here spoke feelingly) to this movement. Armed with Sir George Birdwood's professional testimony, which the Archbishop of York so ruthlessly contemns, Lord Hartington hinted that he was prepared to defend the opium traffic, even on highly moral grounds; but he wisely descended to lower regions, and made a very stirring appeal to the practical intelligence of Lancashire men to decide in favour of opium, if only on purely financial and purely economical grounds. This sally into the enemy's lines enabled his lordship gracefully to turn away from the knotty points at issue, and to give us a very useful and by no means uninteresting disquisition on the public-works policy of the Indian Government. Neither on this subject, nor on any other, did he tell us anything that we did not know quite well before; but the points were put well and clearly, with that air of candour and good sense that always adorns Lord Hartington's speeches and pleases his hearers. In his review of Indian commerce, his lordship quoted a most effective passage from one of Sir John Strachey's speeches, in favour of the absolute freedom of Indian trade; and skilfully endeavoured, though without marked success, to make his Conservative predecessors generally responsible for the proposed abolition of the cotton duties.

RUSSIA'S OPPORTUNITY.

THE last number of the Turkestan Gazette, as summarised in a telegram from St. Petersburg to the Times, dated December 16, announces officially the surrender of the Merv Turcomans to the Russians. Thus is accomplished, in the old familiar way, by far the most important and most difficult portion of the Russian advance to the Indian frontier. Here we get the usual ending of a long series of Russian pledges and protestations, and of an even longer and bolder series of denials and misstatements on the part of those politicians in England who have constituted themselves the champions of Russian aggression.

Will England understand the tremendous import of this tardy Russian confession? There can be little doubt that the majority of intelligent Englishmen look upon the rapid advance of Russia towards Herat as a serious menace to England's empire—or, at least, to England's peace—in the East. But the prodigious torrents of abuse that were poured, during the last election struggles, on the devoted heads of those patriotic men who dared to avow such a conviction have undoubtedly produced some amount of reticence among those who most fully understand the gravity of the situation. Telegrams, that in

Lord Palmerston's time would have set the kingdom in a blaze, now appear in the papers almost unnoticed; or at best elicit a repetition of the fine old crusted Ministerial joke about "Mervousness." Can it be that this fatal apathy will continue, now that the surrender of Merv tells us that the danger is nigh at hand, even at our gates?

The advance on Merv seems to have been accompanied by a general ebullition of energy along the whole Russian line. Military roads are being vigorously constructed along the entire western frontier of the empire. At the other end the Transcaspian railway is finished up to Askabad—a Russian Kandahar, and one from which there is no intention of scuttling. Fort-building and road-making are being pushed on in the direction of Herat; and only just before the telegram, announcing the surrender of Merv, a message of December 9 from Odessa to the Times announced that "it is proposed to strengthen the Russian fleet in the Black Sea by adding to it two armour-plated ships and some clippers, and that it is also proposed to improve the naval shipbuilding establishments at Nicolaieff and Sebastopol."

The Russians know how to make hay while the sun shines. A Gladstonian Ministry is Russia's opportunity. During the last Gladstonian régime, the Black Sea clauses of the Treaty of Paris were abjured, Khiva was annexed amid Russian laughter at the pledges made to England, the "Transcaspian Military District" set up under Lomakin and Petroosevitch, the Yomood Turcomans harried by the Governor-General and Ivanoff, and Russian power firmly consolidated on the Oxus. This was fairly rapid progress; but it is not for a moment comparable with the rush made since the spring of last year. The news of the formation of the Gladstone Ministry was telegraphed to St. Petersburg early in April, 1880. On April 25, General Skobelev was gazetted "Commander-in-Chief of the Active Army across the Caspian." On June 2, he advanced from Tchikishlar. On June 23, Bami was occupied. In August the "Michaelovsk to Kizil-Arvat" Railway was commenced. On January 4, 1881, the final siege of Geok Tepe commenced. On January 24 Geok Tepe was stormed; and on January 30 Askabad was occupied. In September the "Michaelovsk to Kizil-Arvat" Railway was completed, and the "Kizil-Arvat to Askabad" Railway commenced. In October negotiations for the occupation of Merv were on foot, and Russian engineers were building forts and making roads on the "best route" from Askabad to Herat. In November the railway to Askabad was completed, a large force concentrated on that advanced post, and preparations made for strengthening the Black Sea fleet. In December the Turkestan Gazette announces the falling of the curtain at the close of the penultimate act of this great drama, amid the salutations of the Merv chieftains to their new lord and master, the Czar.

This well-sustained and most successful rush can have but one objective. Is there no point of the advance at which the solicitude of a Liberal Ministry can be aroused? Whilst we have been retreating from Afghanistan, the Russians have been advancing, not only further into Turkestan, but almost up to the Afghan frontiers; and this not slowly, at the present moment not even stealthily—the official Gazette proclaims the triumph of Russia to the world of Asia. Is there no point, short of the Indian frontier, at which a Liberal Ministry will at last confess that it has been deceived and betrayed?

THE GROWTH OF TRUE COURAGE IN ENGLAND.

It used to be acknowledged that Englishmen could fight, and were always ready to fight, in a good cause; and it was foolishly inferred therefrom that the average Englishman was a man of courage. Mr. Herbert Spencer, as a philosopher, and Mr. Gladstone, as a politician, have taught us how utterly beneath contempt was the old-fashioned notion of force being a remedy for anything under the sun; and how still more absurd it was to suppose that courage could in any way be concerned with the will and power to apply force. Mr. Gladstone told us at Leeds that he had lost faith in guns and rifles, and preferred to trust to "moral barriers;" such, it appears, is the lesson to be derived from the recent history of France, of Germany, of Italy, of Austria, of Russia, of Turkey. This philosophy is an exceedingly comforting one under present circumstances in Ireland, in South Africa, in Central Asia. It is pleasant to learn that the Englishman has all the more true courage, when he honestly confesses that he does not want to fight. The moral courage displayed in the Transvaal surrender alone is sufficient to avenge us, as a nation, for a dozen such affairs as Majuba Hill. And there is a double advantage about this kind of courage. It not only puts us on a higher platform than our less philosophical adversaries, it also enables us to live to fight, or rather not to fight, another day.

We have recently displayed moral courage of a high order in this way, and the supply seems unlimited. This is fortunate, for the demand is apt to grow rapidly. Our adoption of the philosophy of surrender, if convenient and comforting to ourselves, is even more convenient to those nations whose interests happen in any way to clash with ours. "Ask, and ye shall have," is a precept that seems to commend itself to those peoples who have not risen to the heights of this philosophy; indeed, they are quite willing to leave us happy in the guidance of Mr. Gladstone, whilst they follow the example of Oliver Twist, and ask for more. In the former administration of the apostle of moral barriers we only gave up the Black Sea clauses to Russia and the "Alabama claims" to America. It was long a matter of doubt whether a sufficient number of American subjects would be forthcoming sufficiently impudent to claim our lavish smart-money; but no sooner was Mr. Gladstone in power again than further payments were demanded, and promptly made, to hush up the Fortune Bay fishery claims. And now the American Government, seeing how much moral courage Mr. Gladstone had displayed in "frankly" (that is the word) allowing Russia to tear up the Black Sea clauses, mildly and with the most convincing arguments informs us she is about to treat the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty in the same way, in order to exclude British merchants from the Panama Canal. With the growth of the Australasian world, the Panama Canal is likely to be of greater political importance than even the Suez Canal has proved to be; so here will be a grand opportunity for the further display of the moral courage of running away.

We have run away from the Land Leaguer until he has actually collared us and forced us to do something. We have scuttled out of Kandahar. We have humbly surrendered to the victorious Boer. We have smiled a trembling smile as the French have politely pushed us aside, alike in the Mediterranean and in the Pacific Ocean. We have laughed in an ecstasy of "moral courage," when Lord Dufferin has had his nose put to the grindstone at Constantinople, and when the "Nationalist" colonels at Cairo have successfully imposed on the Khedive an anti-English Ministry. We have, ostrich-like, buried our brains in the sand whilst Russia has been advancing towards Herat "by leaps and bounds." We have turned the other cheek to the smiter whenever and wherever we have been smitten; and all this in the short twenty months that have elapsed since the elections of last year. May we not boast of the rapid growth of the new philosophy in England?

Of 142 barrels Jamaica few lots sold, 42s. to 51s., and of 2,063 bags foreign a small part at 50s. to 56s. for Guatemala, 64s. to 74s. for Savanilla, and Santos 56s. per cwt.

JUTE dull on the spot, but steady forward, with moderate transactions.

COTTON.—The market continues quiet, but business to the extent of 1,000 bales has been reported, principally in Bengal, to arrive, at 5 1-16d. for the fine fully good clause. December-January, shipment by steamer. American futures are nearly 1-16d. lower. The sales include also Tinnevely, on the spot, at 5½d per lb.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that operations in the leading markets have been further restricted, as usual, at the close of the year, and, with large supplies, prices remained unsettled. For plantation Ceylon coffee a further reduction of 2s. to 4s. per cwt. has been accepted in order to make sales. Part of the foreign in public sale found buyers at previous rates to 1s. per cwt. decline. The total shipments of Brazil coffee to Europe from July 1 to the end of November were about 73,000 tons, or nearly 13,000 tons more than to same date last year. Deliveries here have improved. In the sugar market the feature of the week has been the very large supply of crystallised Demerara at auction, which met a better demand than expected, and chiefly found buyers at recent quotations to 6d. per cwt. under. Low brown descriptions are cheaper. A steady business is reported in refined at firmer rates, and in the Clyde at a recovery of fully 6d. per cwt. There has been little alteration in the market for China tea, although buyers now show rather more inclination to operate at present low prices. The public sales of Indian have gone at easier rates in some instances, the supply at public sale being increased, but the tone is better at the close. Rice is without further alteration and the business of fair extent, including new crop Burmah. In the spice markets quotations keep very irregular. There has been an active demand for pimento, and the sales yesterday went at ¾d. per lb. advance from the late lowest point. Zanzibar cloves are receding in price. White pepper firm, with a better demand. Black does not move. The saltpetre market is tending downwards.

COFFEE.—The sales of plantation Ceylon, 563 casks 230 barrels and bags, went flatly, and in many cases at 1s. to 2s. decline; small and common, 63s. to 67s.; middling to good middling, 78s. to 82s.; fine middling to rather bold, 85s. to 99s.; and fine bold, 110s. to 113s.; 20 barrels Jamaica, 41s. to 45s.; 136 bags foreign, small part sold, ordinary to fair greenish, 49s. 6d. to 58s.; Costa Rica, 50s. 6d. to 63s. 6d.; new Grenada greenish, 63s. to 66s.; color, 79s. 6d. to 82s. 6d. per cwt.

RICE quiet. Some business in Madras at late value.

COTTON.—The market is slow, and rather easier for East India to arrive, but American futures are 1-16d. dearer. Sales about 1,500 bales, including Tinnevely, at 5½d. to 5½d. per lb. For arrival, Bengal, December-January, Suez 5d. for fine f.g.c., 4 7-16d. for fully good fair f.g.c.

FRIDAY EVENING.

INDIAN TEA.—About 16,000 packages have been offered at auction, and nearly all sold at prices favouring buyers for common descriptions, fine grades maintaining their value. A small quantity only will be brought forward before January, business having mainly ceased for the year.

COFFEE.—The small public sales to-day went without further change; 84 casks, 14 barrels plantation Ceylon sold at 3s. to 4s. lower than Friday last; 111 packages Jamaica sold at 43s. to 51s. 6d. per cwt.

RICE.—Sales on the spot this week include 4,000 bags white Bengal at 9s. 5d. to 10s., and two cargoes Burma, new crop spring shipment, at 8s. 3d.; basis Rangoon open charter.

PEPPER.—Steady business in Singapore white at 6¾d. and Penang at 6¾d. to 6 9-16d. per lb.

COTTON.—A firmer market, with more business doing. American futures being about 1-16d. dearer. Sales about 2,500 bales, including Western, at 4 15-16d., and Bengal at 5½d. per lb. For arrival Bengal, December-January, Suez 5d. for fine f.g.c., 4 11-16d. for good f.g.c. Forward delivery American January-April, 6 21-32d. to 6¾d. per lb. for middling l.m.c.

COLONIAL HANDBOOKS, &c.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND: including the Fiji Islands. Third Edition with New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 449 pp. Price 5s.

"Sydney Morning Herald."—"The compilers have evidently been careful to make this book suitable to all classes and interests, and so to arrange its matter as to anticipate all possible inquiries."

AUSTRALIAN DICTIONARY OF DATES AND MEN OF THE TIME. By J. H. HEATON, Sydney. Royal 8vo. 550 pp. 12s. 6d. "Times."—"A remarkable work. Shows more impressively than probably any other kind of publication could the immense activity of our Australian Colonies and the rapid advances they have made since their very recent foundation."

AUSTRALIAN GRAZIER'S GUIDE. No. 1, Sheep. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 2s. 6d. "Field."—"This little work is intended to supply, as fully as may be in a small compass, an admitted want in colonial literature, and is indeed exactly the sort of 'Guide' for the assistance and instruction of those who propose to try their fortunes as stock-raisers abroad, and who so frequently inquire of the Field for such help as is afforded by its pages."

No. 2, Cattle. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 2s. 6d. SOUTH AFRICA (New Edition) Including the Cape, Natal, Orange Free State, &c. Illustrated. With Coloured Map. 576 pp. Price 5s.

"Athenæum."—"A mine of information." "Eastern Province Herald."—"Cape."—Got up in a highly creditable manner, and contains a large amount of valuable information. Superior to anything of the kind we have seen."

CANADA—including Ontario, North-West Territory, Manitoba, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, &c. With New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo., 288 pp. Cloth, 5s. "Athenæum."—"Full of information and statistics, which ought to prove very serviceable to any visitor to the Dominion." "Times."—"Under the above title Messrs. Silver have brought out much more than a mere 'Handbook to Canada,' an historical, political, social, geographical, and topographical guide for the use of travellers and settlers over the greater portion of our North-American possessions. The need of such a work, at once handy, comprehensive, and trustworthy, has long been felt both by intending settlers and by readers at home, who are surprised, and not unnaturally, at the scanty information about so important a territory which is accessible to them."

"Fall Mall Gazette."—"S. W. Silver and Co.'s 'Canada' comes to us with the high reputation gained by the preceding volumes of the series to which it belongs." "Manitoba Daily Free Press."—"Comprised in this book is a mass of valuable information, which cannot fail to impress every reader with an intelligent idea of the great resources and capabilities of our country. A comprehensive, reliable, and at the same time cheap and handy work has been produced, which will furnish the kind of information most sought for in regard to the Dominion, and especially in regard to Manitoba and the North West territories. One of the best contributions to immigration literature yet produced."

"Graphic."—"We are already acquainted with Messrs. Silver's Handbooks to Australasia and South Africa. They are concisely written, accurate in information, and full of practical details. The same praise may be accorded to the volume now before us, which comprises a survey of the whole of British North America, the reader's researches being aided by an excellent map. To the intending emigrant the descriptions of Manitoba and British Columbia will be especially attractive."

IMPERIAL FEDERATION. By FREDK. YOUNG. Small 4o., handsomely bound, 6s. "Westminster Review."—"Brings all the aspects of the subject forward in a controversial form."

A MILITARY HISTORY

OF THE

MADRAS ENGINEERS AND PIONEERS.

VOL. I.

Compiled by Major H. M. VIBART,

Royal (late Madras) Engineers.

The Work will be completed in Two Vols.

THESE Corps were raised last century by the Honourable East India Company. As the power of the Company increased, these bodies were enlarged from time to time. Up to 1740, the Company being mere traders, it was of course unnecessary to call in the assistance of Engineers. Shortly after that time, however, it was found imperative to obtain Engineers to enable the Company to hold its own in contests with the French and the Native Powers.

Up to 1770 the Company found it sufficient to obtain Engineers from any sources which were at the time most convenient to them, but in that year it was considered necessary to establish their Corps of Engineers on a strictly military basis, with an experienced officer of Royal Engineers as Commandant.

It is proposed in this compilation to trace the gradual increase of the Corps, and in doing so to detail the manner in which it has been utilised to assist in extending the dominions of the Company.

COPY OF LETTER FROM MAJOR BRINGHURST.

SPRINGFIELD LODGE, Chelmsford, Sept. 19, 1880.

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your letter with respect to the Cholera and Diarrhoea Medicine, Aspaodyne, I can perfectly vouch for its efficacy in such cases. By the recommendation of the late Sir John Tyrell, more than twenty years since, I took it with very great benefit, and since that time I have never been without it in the house. I quite agree that it ought to be more known.—I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully, J. H. BRINGHURST.

ASTHMA, CHRONIC COUGH, &c., AND ALL CHEST DISEASES.

ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-THREE CASES ARE GIVEN.

From Allen's Indian Mail:—"Mr. George Thomas Congreve, of Combe Lodge, Rye-lane, Peckham, has discovered a remarkably successful treatment of Consumption; and, to make it more widely known, has published the little book before us. A large number of cases are cited; and, as reference is made in very many of these cases to persons in well-known and responsible positions, there seems to be no reason whatever to doubt the perfect bona fides of all of them. And the book gives a particularly simple and clear account of this terrible disorder and its cure, as well as chapters on the cognate pulmonary diseases. The chapters on 'Cough accompanied with Liver Derangement,' and on 'Chronic Bronchitis,' will be found useful by many Anglo-Indians."

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Our advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Dec. 8; Madras and Allahabad, Dec. 6; Calcutta, Dec. 5.

THE Times telegram this week is full of the Viceroy's visit to Burma. At the public dinner in his honour at Rangoon Lord Ripon made the profound observation that "much might yet be done to develop agriculture" in Burma; and doubtless delighted the hearts of Mr. Bernard and the other local officials by adding that "in order to have the best advice on that subject he had brought with him Mr. Birch, Secretary to the Supreme Government in the Agricultural Department."

WHEN the Agricultural Department was supposed to have been abolished, it really only went into the chrysalis state, in the body of Mr. Birch, a very able and energetic young civilian of the North West; and Mr. Birch is certainly now Secretary to the Supreme Government in that Department. So Lord Ripon's Mr. Birch, who is to teach Mr. Bernard and the Burmese wisdom in agricultural matters, is doubtless Mr. Buck. This conjecture becomes almost a certainty, when it is remembered that Mr. Buck's agricultural experience has been obtained in the North West Provinces; which must clearly make him an authority in Burma.

SOMEWHAT on the same principle, it may be presumed, Lord Ripon is supposed to contemplate asking the Director General of Statistics to take in hand the reform of the Indian Educational Department.

BURMA deserves to have a great future. The worthy Rangoon folk have "fully occupied" Lord Ripon's time with dinners, garden-parties, and "entertainments of various kinds"; and have asked his Excellency to create a Rangoon High Court of three judges. Lord Ripon has promised that the matter shall be considered.

HIS EXCELLENCY has also promised to "propose to his colleagues to send a further remonstrance to Mandalay," in regard to King Theebaw's monopolies. And so, we are told, "great hopes are entertained of the good to result from Lord Ripon's visit."

DR. HUNTER, who has finished his Gazetteer, and Mr. Plowden, who has finished his census, are now to help the Viceroy to make laws. Sayyid Ahmad, who has already done good service in the legislative council, is also reappointed.

PROFESSOR VALANTINE BALL's third volume of the "Manual of Indian Geology" reveals Chota Nagpore as a veritable Eldorado. A Calcutta mining syndicate, working on lines suggested by Professor Ball, has acquired mining rights over 800 square miles of auriferous land. To measure gold reefs by the square mile must be a pleasant sensation for the owners. In Ceylon, too, rich gold reefs are being discovered.

THE Indian Spectator, one of the best of the Anglo-native journals, pays Mr. Primrose a high compliment. Lord Ripon is fortunate in having, for his private secretary, a gentleman who recalls memories of the most popular private secretary ever known in India. The Spectator says:—

"Much concern was felt at the indisposition of Mr. H. W. Primrose. The duties of the Viceroy's private secretary are more difficult and more delicate than those devolving on most other members of the administration—we, of course, write of conscientious men like Colonel O. T. Burne and Mr. Primrose. In several respects the latter gentleman appears to be to Lord Ripon what Colonel Burne was to Lord Mayo. We are glad to hear Mr. Primrose has already got over his slight illness."

We regret to observe that strong objections are being made in the native press to the provisions of the Assam Labour Emigration Bill, which is described as "a new Slave Bill." As the Hindoo Patriot and the British Indian Association have headed the agitation, it seems probable that some of the objections may be reasonable. A bill of the kind is absolutely needed for the future prosperity of Assam, or, at least, some decisive measure to facilitate the importation of labour. For the sake of this promising province, we trust that the objections of the British Indian Association will be carefully considered. An unworkable law would make matters worse than they are at present.

We give elsewhere a letter that has been addressed to a provincial journal by Mr. W. Martin Wood, the veteran journalist of Bombay, on the public works policy of the present Government of India. There is much reason in Mr. Wood's indictment of Major Baring's rash eagerness, in the pursuit of the ignis fatuus of "private enterprise."

THE Journal of the Anjuman-i-Punjab says:—

"We congratulate Dr. W. H. Bellew, C.S.I., on his long-deserved and long deferred promotion to the rank of deputy surgeon-general; a very slender recognition after all of his long and eminent professional services. His political work has, however, yet to receive the reward to which it has so long been entitled."

We take from the Pioneer an account of Archdeacon Mathew's illness, which will be read with interest by the Archdeacon's many friends and admirers:—

"We have received from Simla some additional details of Archdeacon Mathew's illness. It appears that about the beginning of this month he frequently visited a soldier's wife at Jutogh who was suffering from erysipelas and who succumbed to that disease. At this time the Archdeacon was in such a bad state of health that he had to take a trip to Narkunda. Soon after his return he overexerted himself at a school treat and caught a chill. On the 16th symptoms of erysipelas showed themselves, attacking the face; by the 19th the affection had extended to the throat and ears and was accompanied by very high fever. From the 19th to the evening of the 21st the patient was in an extremely critical state and there appeared scarcely any hope of recovery, but during the Monday night and throughout Tuesday a change for the better set in, so much so that he insisted on seeing the clergyman who is carrying on the chaplain's duty to discuss business matters. During Tuesday night he had a relapse and extreme exhaustion continued; this was still the existing condition when our informant wrote on Wednesday, and it is evident that the Archdeacon was by no means out of danger. He is attended by Dr. Owen with Mr. Marston as consulting physician, but Dr. Crawford and all the medical officers on this spot take the greatest interest in the case and nothing that science can do is being left untried. Mrs. Mathew, who was to have left for England on the 20th, as was to be expected, been indefatigable in nursing her husband and is quite knocked up with fatigue and anxiety. Several ladies take turns to render what assistance is possible and the bulletins issued by the doctors and posted at the approach to the parsonage are perused with the greatest anxiety by all classes of the residents."

It is with sincere regret that we have to announce the death, on the 21st instant, at his residence, 12, Pembridge Gardens, Bayswater, of John Charles Mason, Esq., in his 84th year, beloved by all who knew him. He had held for 30 years the position of Marine Secretary in the late East India Company's Home Service, and at the India Office, Whitehall. A further obituary notice of Mr. Mason will shortly appear in these columns.

A TELEGRAM to the Calcutta Statesman from Chitor, dated Nov. 25, strongly condemns the arrangements that were made for the installation of the "Sun of the Hindus"—his Highness the Maharana of Udaipur—as a Grand Commander of the Star of India, on the occasion of Lord Ripon's visit. Considering the veneration that is felt for this prince by every Hindu in India as representing the most ancient and the noblest of the Rajput dynasties, it would be a matter for the deepest regret if any negligence in matters of ceremony were allowed on such an occasion. The descendant of ancient Hindu Emperors, who were lords paramount in India long before the arrival of our predecessors, the Muhammadans, the Maharana's lineage and rank might fairly claim the highest consideration from the representative of his Highness's Suzerain Lady. The correspondent of the Statesman expressly exonerates from all blame the local officials and the Udaipur Durbar; so it is implied that the fault lay at head-quarters. The telegram is as follows:—

"The investiture ceremonial of the Maharana of Udeypore to-day was disappointing and mismanaged. The feeling of dissatisfaction was too general to pass unnoticed. Considering that the Maharana has already expended over five lacs of rupees to render the occasion worthy of itself, and pains had been taken by the Resident and Sirdars to make everything a success, the ceremonial was nothing else than a failure. No Junior Knight Commanders were present to constitute the Chapter, which, considering the Maharana's rank, might have been arranged for. The Viceroy exchanged visits with the Maharana to-day, and visited the fortress of Chittore. There will be a banquet this evening."

THE Journal of the Anjuman-i-Punjab, of Lahore, gives the following interesting account of current politics in the remote and almost unknown countries lying between Kashmir and Cabul on our Punjab frontier:—

"There can be little doubt that the present winter will see a combination of the tribes to turn the Kashmir troops out of Gilgit. We understand that, at the intercession of the Khan of Dir, Pahlwan, the former ruler of Yasin, who some time ago wanted to cut up Major Biddulph at Gilgit, has been allowed by Aman-ul-Mulk, the ruler of Chitral, under whose surveillance he has hitherto been, to resume his former post of Yasin, under the general suzerainty of Chitral. The restoration of Pahlwan, it is feared, will be followed by an attack on Gilgit, in which case the Maharaja's troops will find it difficult to hold their own, unassisted by our moral or military support, of neither of which there is any probability or the faintest necessity. The former attack of Pahlwan in the direction of Gilgit has achieved, what is supposed to have been the object of its instigators, namely, the removal of the British agency from Gilgit. We believe that the Government of India have a document in their hands, signed by the principal men of Gilgit, Sher Kila and Gao-kuch, throwing an unexpected light on the real instigators of that attack. Then, it will be remembered, Major Biddulph created a diversion in the rear of Pahlwan by causing Aman-ul-Mulk, his father-in-law, the Ruler of Chitral, to attack Pahlwan and to take Yasin. This being successfully effected, Pahlwan was taken prisoner, and was kept under surveillance at the Chitral Fort, from which he is now said to have been released. If ever 'non-interference' was a golden maxim it is now. We are not bound to protect Gilgit or compel its people to remain under Kashmir rule. Our frontier, traced both by nature and the treaty of 1846, is the Indus at Bunji and, as long as that is not crossed, and it will never be crossed, it does not matter to us who is in occupation of Gilgit. If ever a man exerted himself successfully to promote the prestige of Kashmir, it was Major Biddulph. The coolness between him and the ruler of Hunza is entirely due to his declining to interfere in the matter of the Chaprot Fort, to which we alluded in a previous issue. There is reason to believe that Major Biddulph has been suspected and thwarted, but, whatever be the case, there is no reason why we should restore the Gilgit Agency, even as a summer Residency, and thus continue to be a thorn in the side both of Maharaja of Kashmir and of the tribes that want to cast off their allegiance to that Feudatory."

We are glad to announce that the Sunday Mirror, of Calcutta, is very sanguine of the success, even from a pecuniary point of view as well as in higher ways, of "any right-hearted and earnest lady that seeks to benefit her sex in India by bringing medical aid to the ladies of India." The Mirror says:—

"We may assure the British public that there is a large field for such doctors in this country. Income, honour, and position are open to any right-hearted and earnest lady that seeks to benefit her sex here."

THE Sunday Mirror, of Nov. 27, gives an interesting account of a kind of "religious conversation" that had taken place on Nov. 25, at Lily Cottage, the home of the reverend apostle of the "New Dispensation" of the Brahma Somaj:—

"An interesting conversational meeting took place at the Lily Cottage on Friday last. There were nine Christian gentlemen, European and Native, and a number of Brahmoe. The discussion turned on the subject of salvation. The interchange of thoughts was free and frank on both sides. At the conclusion Mr. James sang two striking Bengali hymns on Christ. We never heard Bengali songs better sung by a European before."

THAT clever and well-informed Anglo-Native paper, the Indian Spectator of Bombay, fully confirms our estimate of the rapidly growing importance, power, and value of the Vernacular Press of India. The Spectator says:—

"To friends of vernacular journalism we would recommend a perusal of last week's Rast Goftar, in which will be found a record of the sacrifices and triumphs of several public characters, notably Mr.

Dadabhai Naoroji. Since 1850 the growth of the Native Press in this city has been rapid; and in the next ten years or fifteen, if we can judge aright, the local Vernacular Press will be a power. The signs are very cheering."

The Rast Goftar is an admirably conducted paper. So is the Indu Prakash, which divides with the Rast Goftar the leadership of the Bombay Vernacular Press. The Indu Prakash, we are glad to see, is republishing our articles on State Colleges.

Here is another learned Pandit starting a revival of the Vaidik monotheism:—

"Another instalment of Pandit Satyabrata Samadhyayi's commentaries on the Bhagavat has appeared in the Dharma Tatwa. It is, like its predecessor, full of learning, ingenuity, and piety. We observe a commendable zeal in the Pandit to explain away idolatry as much as possible. In one respect we think his opinions are likely to be questioned. Speaking of the best ways of practising asceticism and subduing evil desires, he holds that one way to 'do so would be by contemplating a perfect man as God, and then when by exclusive devotion to that single object of thought, all other desires of the mind are forgotten and subdued, the reality will appear in its glory and the separation of the Creator from the created will be realised again. For a time it is necessary to think of the two as one and the same; and when your object is attained, the two will get actually separated again. This doctrine does not seem to us to be sound. The thinking of any created object as the Creator is a falsehood; and how can the cultivation of a falsehood lead to the discovery of truth? One untruth leads to another untruth; but no amount of effort on our part will succeed in evolving from it a truth."

AN esteemed correspondent sends us the following:—The visit of the Viceroy of India to Burma, at the present time, is a matter of great importance. Lord Ripon will, for the first time, behold a wonderfully rising country, which is sure ere long to become "the observed of all observers;" and which may even yet be the financial backbone of our Indian Empire. The history of no other country in the East presents such a rapid rise from barbarism to affluence and civilisation; and, therefore, every rising statesman of the day should give much of his attention to Burma. When Lord Dalhousie visited Rangoon in 1852, the prosperity of British Burma began; and it has continued, without any serious interruption till the eventful visit of Lord Ripon. The lamented Earl of Mayo, when he visited the capital of British Burma in 1872—shortly before he fell by the assassin's hand at the Andaman—had the good of the Burmese people at heart; and in his address at Rangoon he wished them to continue to live in "peace, happiness, and prosperity." As regards the former, with a king like Theebaw in Upper Burma, the issue must, during his reign, be very uncertain; and, doubtless, one grand object of Lord Ripon's visit, in the interests of commerce, will be to see about putting our relations with Upper Burma on a footing in accordance with the dignity of our position in the East.

THE India Office has offered the appointment of Director of the Indian Marine to Captain Harry Brent, R.N.

AFTER full consideration the Secretary of State for War has approved of the proposal which emanated lately from the Government of India, that a reduction should be made in the number of batteries of artillery in India, and in view of the withdrawal of eleven batteries now borne on the Indian establishment and maintained out of Indian funds, Mr. Childers intends in the forthcoming estimates to modify the existing regimental establishments of the Royal Artillery.

AN experiment of a somewhat novel kind with special reference to the candidates for the Civil Service of India will be tried at Cambridge in the Lent term. An organisation has been formed, consisting of teachers in the various subjects of the competitive examinations, for the purpose of preparing candidates. The India Civil Service is the primary object of the scheme, but the association will also accept candidates not only for the home Civil Service, the Army, &c., but also for the various entrance scholarships and exhibitions at the University. It is contemplated to select lodgings where pupils will be under similar supervision to that of undergraduate members of the University who are not resident in college. It is open to students, if thought desirable, to become members of the University, either by entering a college or by becoming non-collegiate students. To candidates for the India Civil Service this scheme offers an advantage, as by entering the University a year before the competitive examination, they may, if successful, by remaining at the University during their two years of probation, take the degree of B.A. before proceeding to India. In any case, whether members of the University or not, professors' lectures, the University laboratories, workshops, &c., are for the most part open to them. The manager of the new scheme is the Rev. G. B. Atkinson, M.A., Lecturer at Trinity Hall, and formerly Fellow and Assistant Tutor at that college, of whom further details can be obtained on application.

MESSRS. CARRITT AND Co's Fortnightly Market Report gives the following account of the Calcutta tea market to the 5th instant:—

"Since our last, two series of public sales have been held, on the 24th ultimo, and 1st instant. At the former, 7,859 chests were catalogued, of which 7,370 changed hands. There was less animation in the bidding, and the sales passed off rather heavily at a decline in prices. We quote Souchongs and Broken Teas $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per lb. lower, whilst Pekoes and Broken Pekoes showed a fall of 1d. per lb. At the sales of the 1st instant, 9,257 chests were offered and 9,039 sold. A firmer tone was noticeable, and the decline on Souchongs and broken teas, especially the lower grades, was fully recovered. Pekoes and Broken Pekoes were also in better demand, and occasionally sold rather dearer."

We take from the Englishman this report of the Calcutta Freight market for the week ending Dec. 5:—

"Our freight market has been somewhat more active during the week under review, and rates are well maintained for steam as well as for sailing tonnage. Three forward charters for Dundee from January to March loading are reported at previous rates; for London one ship and for Liverpool another, a third for New York being taken out of the market. Our unfixed tonnage stands again reduced to the small figure of 6,600 tons. There has been likewise more inquiry for forward steamers for dead weight cargoes. January loading; business would have been possible last week at 60s. to 62s. 6d., but Bombay having largely chartered at 40s., all the available steamers were disposed of."

The following report on the indigo market, Calcutta, for the same period, is from Messrs. J. Thomas and Co.'s circular:—

"The public sales during the week have comprised 3,369 chests, 657 of which were bought in and 2,702 sold. The quantity out of the market, including private sales, is about 28,000 maunds. There has been a brisk demand for good and fine qualities, and indigo of these descriptions, clean and with good shape, has sold at an advance of about Rs. 5 per maund. There has been less competition for defective, middling, and ordinary Bengal and Tirhoot qualities which have declined Rs. 5. Oude's have remained about the same. As compared with the average prices of last year, we quote:—Good and fine indigo, sound and good shape, Rs. 15 to 20 per maund advance. Good but rather defective, Rs. 10 to 15 per maund advance. Middling and ordinary, Rs. 5 to 10 per maund advance. Good Plant Oudes, Rs. 20 per maund advance. Ordinary Oudes, Rs. 10 to 15 per maund advance. Gads, par."

The Times of India gives the following obituary of the week ending Dec. 8:—Capt. J. F. Rivett-Carnac, cantonment magistrate, Barrackpore; Mr. N. P. Pillay; Rev. S. C. Kohlhoff.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

The official report on the condition of the crops and the weather throughout India for the week ending 29th ultimo, is as follows:—

"Winter crops are generally thriving in Bengal, and, except in Orissa, where the late rice crop has suffered to some extent from want of rain, prospects continue favourable. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh no rain is reported; though early winter rains are much needed, the rabi sowings have been nearly completed and irrigation is being generally resorted to. In the Punjab also rain is needed, but prospects on the whole continue good. In the Rajputana and Central India States, in the Central Provinces and Berar, agricultural prospects continue in a satisfactory condition. In the Bombay Presidency the want of moisture is still felt in parts. In the Nizam's territories and in Mysor and Coorg crops are doing well. In the Madras Presidency the rains have done much good to the crops; and, although more rain is required in parts, prospects are on the whole good. In Assam the reaping of sal rice is progressing. In British Burma the late rain has done slight damage to the more advanced crops in parts, but agricultural prospects are generally satisfactory."

TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times, telegraphing on Christmas Day, says:—

"The Viceroy arrived in Rangoon on Tuesday afternoon. Immediately after landing he proceeded to Government House, the road to which had been decorated with eight triumphal arches. The Municipality and the Mogul, Suratee, Chinese, and Karen communities all presented addresses of welcome. A public dinner was given to him on Wednesday, at which Lord Ripon, replying to the toast of his health, spoke of the rapid progress of the province. That progress, he said, was steady and as marked between the last and the present year in due proportion as between the present and ten years ago. The one railway in Burma was paying a dividend of $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Good work was being done in education. Much might yet be done to develop agriculture, and in order to have the best advice on that subject he had brought with him Mr. Birch, secretary to the Supreme Government in the Agricultural Department. He concluded his speech with some graceful compliments to Sir Charles Aitchison and Mr. Bernard, the late and the present chief commissioners of the province. On Thursday several memorials were presented, the most important being one signed by thirty-nine mercantile firms. It drew attention to the disregard by the Mandalay Government of the treaty obligations and to the recent renewal by Theebaw of the system of monopolies, a course of action which paralysed trade, and it recommended that steps should be taken to induce the king to observe the treaty faithfully. The memorial from the Chambers of Commerce dwelt on the same subject, and also urged that a High Court of three Judges should be constituted for Burma at once, inasmuch as the existing superior judicial establishment, consisting only of a Recorder and a Judicial Commissioner, was quite insufficient to dispose of the litigation of the town and the province. The Viceroy, answering these memorials, said that he shared the regret of the deputation at the system of monopolies, and would propose to his colleagues to send a further remonstrance to Mandalay. Regarding the establishment of the High Court, he said that the matter had been under careful consideration for more than a year, and it would be further considered. The above are the most important matters which have thus far occurred during the Viceregal visit."

"In the intervals of serious business Lord and Lady Ripon have been fully occupied in attending garden parties and entertainments of various kinds, and visiting the sights of Rangoon and its vicinity. One feature of these ceremonies, which can hardly fail to have struck their Excellencies by the contrast it affords to India, is the large number of well-dressed Burmese ladies who have invariably been present, for the Indian custom of excluding women has, happily, not extended to Burma. The Viceregal party start for Moulmein tomorrow."

"Great hopes are entertained of the good to result from Lord Ripon's visit. The two matters which most urgently call for attention are those pointed out by the Chambers of Commerce—namely, a strong protest against Theebaw's system of monopolies and the improvement of the superior judicial establishment. If the Government shows some firmness on the one point and does not allow itself to be swayed by a short-sighted economy on the other, it will confer an immense boon on the most progressive province of the Indian Empire. The last administrative report of British Burma treats of the opium question at some length. Mr. Bernard points out that opium is much cheaper in native Burma than in our province, where there have never been more than sixty-eight opium shops to 87,000 square miles of territory. Last April forty licensed shops were closed, leaving only twenty-eight open, and the price of Government opium was raised 30 per cent. It is proposed to close nine more shops next April. Another interesting fact noticed by Mr. Bernard is that, for the first time, Burmese gentlemen have been appointed probationers for the covenanted Civil Service."

"Yesterday's Government Gazette contained a further minute of thanks to the officers connected with the Afghan war. After mentioning the services of certain civil officers in Scinde and of Dr. Bellew and other political officers, it goes on to apologise for the previous omission of any allusion to the medical department, which, it says, arose from the fact that the late head of that department was included in the list of officers recommended by the Commander in Chief; but, as the services rendered by both the Army and Indian Medical Departments, under Drs. Innes, Beaton, Crawford, and Cunningham, were valuable and conspicuous, they are now specially brought to the notice of her Majesty's Government. A few words of thanks are also bestowed on the Survey, Clothing, Commissariat, and Transport Departments."

"Dr. W. W. Hunter, Mr. W. C. Plowden, and Syud Ahmed Khan Bahadoor have been appointed additional members of the Supreme Legislative Council. The first-named gentleman will also retain his post as Director General of Statistics, which he has so long and ably filled, and will supervise the preparation of the new edition of the Imperial Gazetteer, containing all the results of the recent census, and bringing up to date information regarding every district of the empire. This, however, will be a work of some years, and it is hoped that in the meantime the Government will be able to avail itself of Dr. Hunter's assistance in devising a more satisfactory and uniform system of public education than that which is now in force in various provinces. At present great differences prevail. Some local authorities are devoting money chiefly to primary education, while others prefer to subsidise the colleges and higher class schools. Lord Ripon is known to be deeply interested in the subject of popular education, and if he is determined to grapple with the whole question, as his speeches would seem to imply, he could not have a more competent adviser than Dr. Hunter.

"The Assam Labour Emigration Bill, introduced in the Legislative Council some months ago, was to have been passed at the last meeting, but was referred back to a special committee, owing to the receipt at the eleventh hour of a protest by the British Indian Association. Native papers, including even the usually moderate Hindu Patriot, have been writing strongly against the measure, while some of them call it a new Slave Bill. It is clear, however, from the language of their articles that they have wholly misunderstood its provisions, and it is not likely that the committee will make any material alteration, as a bill is urgently called for in the interest of the Assam tea districts. It will be again brought before the council and will be probably passed immediately after the Viceroy's return.

"The Exhibition of the Industrial Products of the Punjab was to have been opened with great ceremony at Lahore yesterday.

"At the present time, when the eyes of European capitalists are being more and more turned towards India as a field for investment, and when it is the avowed policy of the Government to encourage private enterprise, great interest has been attached to a work just issued from the Government Press. It forms a third part of the 'Manual of Indian Geology,' and is devoted to the economic geology of the country. The author is Professor Valentine Ball, of Dublin, a lately distinguished member of the Indian Geological Survey. The volume treats at considerable length of all minerals found in India. It shows what marked abundance of mineral wealth of all kinds lies locked up in the soil of this country, and it traces historically the various efforts which have been made to work it from the earliest times. The raising of coal is the only mining industry which has thus far attained any importance; and of the many coalfields in India, only one, that of Raneeungee, can be said to have reached a stage at all approaching full development. Judging, however, from Professor Ball's book, it requires only time and the employment of skilled labour and the intelligent application of capital to raise India to the front rank among the mining countries of the world, and that not only as regards coal and iron, but also as regards many other minerals.

"It is reported that a syndicate has been formed in Calcutta for the purpose of working on lines suggested by Professor Ball, and has already acquired mining rights over 800 square miles of country in Chota Nagpore which are supposed to be auriferous."

THE correspondent of the Times telegraphs from Quetta on Dec. 26:—

"The news from Afghanistan is that Sirdar Abdul Rasul Khan, the new Governor, arrived in Kandahar on Friday, Dec. 16, and was received with much honour and ceremony, in accordance with the special instructions of the Ameer. The usual salute was fired and the troops of the garrison were paraded outside the city. The delay in his arrival is explained by the fact that the Ameer on his way to Cabul met Abdul Rasul at Mushki, took him back with him to Ghazni, and detained him there two days, discussing matters of business. The new Governor appears to have created a favourable impression in Kandahar, and if the Ameer's coercive measures are at an end, and if the Sirdar is allowed to treat all classes with justice and impartiality, much will have been done to consolidate the present regime. The Sirdar may be expected to succeed well in Southern Afghanistan. Hitherto the Ameer's line of action in Kandahar has been too sternly retributive, and even now disloyal language is not allowed to pass unnoticed by the local officials; but the speech made before leaving for Cabul, and which I reported some time ago, indicates that the Ameer is quite prepared, as soon as he has cleared the way of dangerous opponents, to adopt a more forgiving and gracious policy. His just determination to countenance no antagonism or defiance of his authority has been again exemplified on his return march to Cabul. While at Mukur he destroyed the villages of some of the Southern Ghilzais and carried off the headmen to Cabul as a punishment for having allowed some of the escort or followers to be plundered on the way down and rendering no assistance. This is an enforcing of local responsibility. The Wardaks, the tributaries of Mahomed Jan, the leader of the attack on Sherpur two years ago, are said to be prepared for flight, should the Ameer show a disposition to treat them harshly. It will be remembered that Mahomed Jan himself is a prisoner in Turkestan on account of his well-known sympathy with the Ameer Shere Ali's family.

"The Mustaufi Ameer Mahomed Hussain Kazilbash, who has been carrying on the government of Kandahar pending the arrival of the Sirdar Abdul, has now been ordered to join the Ameer at Cabul.

"From Herat there is no news beyond the report that Ayub Khan had been last heard of at Jizak, a village of the Persian province of Ghani. It was also said that orders had been received from the Persian Government to forward him as soon as possible to Teheran. His removal from the Afghan frontier will have relieved the Ameer of much anxiety.

"There is also a report from the same source that Merv has submitted unconditionally to the Russians. Peshawur merchants say that Russia has prohibited the sale in Bokhara as well as in the Russian territory of cloth and tea imported from India, six months being allowed to the traders to remove such goods.

"I have in previous letters mentioned reports of misunderstandings between the Sirdar Mahomed Ishak Khan, the Governor of Turkestan, and the Ameer, and of the suspicions attaching to him and his two brothers Mohsin and Aziz, whose claims to govern in Turkestan, Herat, and Kandahar might prove a difficulty for the Ameer. The following is the story, which, if correct, shows skilful management on the part of the Ameer Abdurrahman:—It is said Sirdar Mahomed Ishak deputed Abdul Kudus to Herat in the first instance and Yalantosh Khan to Khashk to act in his interests, supplying the money. On hearing of the Ameer's successes at Kandahar and of the capture of Herat Ishak sent his brother Mohsin to the latter place in the hope that Abdul Kudus would make over the Governorship to him, taking a subordinate position. Abdul Kudus, however, at once reported Ishak's plans to the Ameer. The latter immediately directed Mohsin to come to Kandahar and carry out his marriage with the daughter of the Sirdar Mahomed Ameer Khan. Believing that he would find the Ameer still in Kandahar, and, perhaps, obtain from him himself the Governorship of Herat, Mohsin obeyed the summons and started for Kandahar. At Gilisha he heard of the Ameer's return to Cabul and contemplated himself returning to Herat, but he was strongly advised that, having once started, it was better for him to proceed. On his arrival at Kandahar he was received with no honours, as Sirdar Abdul Rasul, the new Governor, had been, and was offended in consequence. Probably, Sirdar Mahomed Mohsin Khan will not find it easy to return to Herat or rejoin his brother in Turkestan. The third brother, Aziz is under surveillance with the Ameer.

"The proclamation of the Ameer issued at Kandahar, warning the people against other members of his family, is said to have reference to these three sons of the late Tamil Mahomed Azim Khan.

"There are reports, which are as yet unconfirmed, that the Ameer has been ill at Ghazni and has been delayed on his return to Cabul.

"In Beloochistan the winter is unusually mild, and the agent and his office have not yet left Quetta for Sibi."

THE following telegram to the Times, dated Quetta, Dec. 18, was not received in time for our last issue:—

"In Afghanistan all continues quiet, and seems likely to remain so. The Mahomedzai Sirdars and their families exiled by the Ameer have reached Quetta on their way to Karachi, and are being treated with every consideration by the Indian Government. It is unknown as yet what their wishes may be, and before making any representation to the Government they will probably desire to see and consult with their relative, the ex-Wali, Shere Ali. Possibly some of them may wish to visit Persia, but the majority no doubt will solicit an allowance from the British Government, with permission to reside in India. The action taken by the Ameer in turning these people out of Kandahar would seem to be justifiable, if the reasons given by my informant are considered, as I suppose them to be, correct. Thus, Gholam Mahomed Khan, the most influential of the exiles, and who accompanied the Ameer from Cabul to Kandahar, was detected in correspondence with Ayooob Khan, a letter of his giving information from the Ameer's camp having been discovered among Ayooob's papers. Two of his sons were also fighting on Ayooob's side. Shere Mahomed, the brother of Wali Shere Ali, another of the exiles, denounced the Ameer as an infidel in one of Ayooob Khan's durbars, and could scarcely expect good treatment after Ayooob's defeat. Ali Sirdar Khan and Ali Akbar Khan, both of whom are dead, were brothers of the ex-Wali, and this, no doubt, was alone a sufficient reason in the eyes of the Ameer for turning their families out of the country. Between the Ameer and the ex-Wali there is a very bitter animosity of long standing, and when the Ameer first took over the government of Afghanistan he gave out distinctly that there were three men with whom he would never come to terms—the ex-Wali, Sirdar Wali Mahomed Khan, now in Peshawur, and Abdullah Khan, who was killed near Girishk, in Ayooob's advanced guard. A further reason is to be found in the fact that a sister of Ali Akbar Khan is the mother of Sirdar Mahomed Hassam Khan, who has figured so prominently as one of Ayooob's supporters. Also there has been throughout an unmistakable bias displayed by the Kandahar Sirdars and their families in favour of Ayooob's pretensions, and the Ameer could scarcely be expected to leave at large in Kandahar people who would certainly be centres of disaffection and intrigue; indeed, the Ameer distinctly accuses these men and their wives of having encouraged and brought about the second advance of Ayooob on Kandahar. Deportation for such reasons is far more merciful than death or perpetual imprisonment.

"So far as can be gathered from further reports received, Mahomed Ishak Khan and his brother, though grieved at the Ameer's neglect of what they considered to be their just claims to the Governorships of Herat and Kandahar, and being suspected in consequence, have committed no overt act against the Ameer, and Afghan factions are likely to move too late if they move at all. It must be doubtful whether they would be supported by the Turkestan army.

"Taj-Mahomed Khan of Siestani has been well received by the Ameer's officers in Kandahar, and has been granted an allowance. It is said that he attempted to go to Persia via Killa-i-Fatah and Chakansur, but was stopped by the Persian Governor of Siestani, whose Beluchis, failing to capture him, are said to have raided into Afghan territory and plundered two caravans near Shoraki.

"The Khan of Khelat has now reached Gundowa for the cold weather, and will be shortly met at Sibi by Col. Waterfield, agent to the Governor General. Between them there is much business to be transacted, and many difficulties between the Khan and his Sirdars to be settled.

"In Pishin and Quetta the cold is still severe, and prevents the garrisons from receiving the desired relief. The thermometer occasionally falls to 15deg., and this is too cold for Bombay and Bengal troops, although the Punjab Frontier troops, and, of course, local levies would stand it well. Beloochistan and the assigned districts are but dull and expensive quarters."

The following is the concluding portion of the telegram of the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, dated Dec. 18, which was delayed in transmission:—

"Some interesting returns derived from the census taken last February have been published lately. Among them is one showing the distribution, according to language, of the population of the Bombay Presidency. From this it appears that Mahratti is spoken by 7,751,497 persons, Guzerati by 3,103,311, Kanarese by 2,101,931, Sindhi by 2,051,726, Hindostani by 871,421, Beloochi by 149,519, Marvadi by 141,229, and Brahmi by 24,520. Other Eastern languages are represented by 5,418 persons speaking Arabic, 634 Bengali, 65 Burmese, 310 Chinese, 26 Cashmere, 26 Korgi, 325 Malaigim, 2,052 negro dialects, 13 Nepali, 23,966 Punjabi, 8,498 Pushtu, 4,230 Persian, 45,541 Goanese, two Singhalese, two Uriya, 7,830 Tamil, 110,237 Telugu, 595 Tulu, and 203 Turkish. European languages are represented by 26,340 Englishmen, two Danes, three Dutchmen, 145 Frenchmen, 322 Germans, 58 Greeks, 80 Italians, 24 Maltese, 4,005 Portuguese (of whom a large majority are, doubtless, Genoese half-castes), 32 Russians, and 23 Spaniards. Twenty-seven Irishmen, all living in Karachi, returned Irish as their language, and five Welshmen described themselves as speaking Welsh; but among the large number of Scotchmen in Bombay no was patriotic enough to return Gaelic as his language.

"The European population of Aden is given as 1,722 English and 78 Swedes. Burma census returns, now nearly complete, show that the province has an area of 87,220 square miles, and a total population of 3,736,771, or about 42 per square mile. There are 1,991,005 males and 1,745,766 females. The total increase since 1872 is 989,623. Rangoon has a population of 134,176, having increased 35,431 since 1872. The census taken according to religions shows that the Buddhists come first with 3,251,584, then the Mahomedans with 168,881; and, thirdly, Mat, or Demon worshippers, numbering 143,581. The Hindoos are 88,177 in number, and Christians 84,219; the Jews number 204; Pariahs, 83; Brahmins, 37; and Jains, 5. After allowing for Europeans, the Christians may be roughly reckoned at 50,000. Married people number 1,439,522; widowed, including divorced, 237,976; and single, 2,059,563. The Burmese-speaking people number 2,642,274; Karen, 514,495; Tulu, 154,553; Shan, 59,724; Chinese, 12,962; Bengali, 99,745; Hindostani, 72,990; Telugu, 33,715; and Tamil, 27,483. There are also several other languages given, each having a few representatives—e.g., Choungteia, Yebein, Kaw, Hak-Chip, Chaw, and Shadoo. Of Europeans, the English-speaking community consists of 10,226 persons, exclusive of 146 Welshmen and four Scotchmen speaking Gaelic. Then come thirteen Danes, five Finns, 111 French, 339 Germans, thirty Greeks, 353 Italians, twenty-four Maltese, twenty Dutch, 256 Norwegians, 160 Portuguese, thirteen Russians, twenty-one Spaniards, and 151 Swedes. Some of the occupations returned are curious. Thus it appears the province contains one poet, 698 tattooers, one scientific person, one tea planter, one dog poisoner, 255 opium vendors, forty-one idol makers, one independent man, twenty-six gamblers, swindlers, and cockfighters, sixteen wizards, and two travellers.

"His Highness Shems-ul-Umra Arneiri, Kabeer and co-Regent of Hyderabad, died on Monday, aged 69, after a long illness. This nobleman was appointed co-Regent by Lord Lytton's Government in 1877 as a check upon Salar Jung. He was not a man of much ability, and his success was hardly such as is likely to induce the Government to repeat the experiment of appointing a co-Regent.

"Dr. Vincent Richards, who is now experimenting on the efficacy of permanganate of potash as an antidote for cobra poisoning, writes to the Indian Medical Gazette that he has obtained some very remarkable results. When permanganate was mixed with cobra poison and hypodermically injected no fatal result followed, although a fatal dose of cobra poison was used and the mixture injected into the vein. He adds, however, that before any definite opinion can be formed many experiments will have to be performed, not only with cobra, but also with viper poison, the latter of which is a septic poison.

"Mr. Rafferty, a delegate of the Queensland Government, has arrived here to confer with the Indian authorities on the subject of Coolie emigration to that colony."

THE SILVER CURRENCY QUESTION.

THE reports of the United States Secretary of the Treasury and of the Comptroller of the Currency, which were described about ten days ago in telegrams from America, contain references to various matters which were either not mentioned in the telegrams or which will require fuller consideration than it was possible to give to them without the text of the documents before us. The following is the passage in the report of the Secretary of the Treasury regarding bimetallicism. After passages referring to the issue of silver certificates by which the currency has virtually been increased £20,000,000, and to the apparent obligation on the United States to redeem its bonds in gold, although, strictly speaking, silver coin as well as gold coin is legal tender, the Secretary goes on to say:—

"The silver question is involved in some embarrassments. The Monetary Conference, to which a commission was sent the past year, after elaborate discussion, reached no conclusion, except to adjourn to meet again for a further discussion next April. Whether a renewal at the present time of the consideration of the subject by it is likely to lead to any practical or acceptable results seem doubtful. That most of the European nations have a deep interest in a proper adjustment of the ratio between gold and silver coinage, and not deeper than the United States, admits of no doubt. We furnish the world with the largest portion of both gold and silver, and our exports command the best money of the world, as they ever should do and will unless we bind ourselves to accept of a poorer. We need not appear anywhere as supplicants when we clearly may be the controllers. Some of the European nations, whose concurrent action is necessary to any result that is sought, do not yet appear ready to accept bimetallicism, and when ready they may ask for a ratio that it will be inconvenient for us to adopt, and reduce the ratio of silver below the standard of our coinage, while the market or intrinsic value of silver indicates the propriety of a considerably increased ratio. That an agreement of the principal nations of Europe with us for a larger use of silver coinage would furnish a larger market for silver, and to that extent increase its value, is certain; but the excess of it over the supply for that purpose would only command the price of a commodity on the market. Therefore, the fixing of any ratio is a matter of extreme delicacy to be fully considered.

"The most potential means of bringing about any concert of action among different nations would appear to be for the United States to suspend, for the present, the further coinage of silver dollars. This is the decided opinion, in both France and America, of the highest authorities on bimetallicism, and of those who wish to bring silver into general use and raise its value; and it is believed that a cessation of coinage would, at a very early day, bring about a satisfactory consideration of the whole subject among the chief commercial nations.

"The silver question obviously is one that demands the early attention of our law makers, or the subject may drift beyond our control unless control is retained at a great sacrifice. A continuance of the monthly addition of our silver coinage will soon leave us no choice but that of an exclusive silver coinage and tend to reduce us to a place in the commercial world among the minor and less civilised nations.

"It may be assumed that people as enterprising and progressive as that of the United States, holding a leading position among nations, will not consent to the total abandonment of the use of gold as one of the metals to be employed as money, and we cannot consent to be placed in the very awkward position of paying for all that we buy abroad upon a gold standard and selling all that we have to sell on a silver standard.

"It is therefore recommended that a provision for the coinage of a fixed amount be each month repealed, and the Secretary be authorised to coin only so much as will be necessary to supply the demand.

"The effect of storing large amounts of silver coin in the Treasury vaults, with the present law requiring the issue of silver certificates, is to furnish a paper currency not payable in gold or its equivalent. This policy is open to most of the objections that can be urged against the increase of United States notes or of gold certificates, and to the additional objection that it furnishes a currency depreciated, from the very nature of the basis on which it rests—that is, silver coin of a debased value as compared with gold coin.

"There is no objection to supplying fully a demand for silver dollars for actual use at home and in some few foreign markets; but so long as generally in the markets of the world they are of less value than the gold dollar, which is our legal standard of value, they must be regarded as subsidiary coin. It is believed that the amount in circulation will be steadily increased, but not so fast as to require for some months, or perhaps years, any addition to the amount already coined.

"In answer to inquiry, it is well to say that what are the profits on the coinage is shown from year to year by the report of the Registrar of the Treasury. The receipt of them into the Treasury is acknowledged in the item of miscellaneous receipts, and they are put to the same uses as any other receipts into the Treasury—that is, to the payment of the expenses or debts of Government."

No words could show more clearly the great embarrassment which the coinage of silver dollars with the accompanying obligation on the Treasury to issue silver certificates against silver dollars deposited with it has caused the United States. A partial bi-metallism has thus been introduced; it is feared that the amount of the silver coinage and its proportion to the gold currency will steadily tend to increase, and that the standard gold money will not be maintained. The difficulty is the more serious in America because there is a strong "soft money" party in the country, and according to the latest accounts there is a majority in favour of an unlimited coinage of silver, or of complete bimetalism, and it is considered fortunate that they will not be able, on account of the President's veto, to pass their measures. We shall certainly hear more of this currency difficulty in the United States. We need hardly say that nothing could be more illusory than the hopes expressed in the above passage as to an agreement among the nations of Western Europe to introduce bi-metallism. Apart from the fact that these hopes are based on the acceptance of a proposal to suspend the coinage of silver dollars which has no chance, opinion in England remains hostile to the adoption of a bi-metallic proposal of any kind, the general feeling here, indeed, being rather one of astonishment that bi-metallism should have gained even the one or two converts it has done.

PUBLIC WORKS IN INDIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MANCHESTER EXAMINER AND TIMES."

SIR,—With the desire (to use the Marquis of Hartington's own words) "to keep alive, amongst those whom you (or I) can influence, a sense of interest in the affairs of India," I must ask you to allow me a brief space in which to draw the attention of Manchester men to one passage only in the highly suggestive speech made in your city last week by the Secretary of State for India. Having to speak under the constraint proper to an uninvited guest, I shall have to be much more concise than is suitable to the nature of my topic. But, besides the chairman of your Town Hall meeting the other day (Mr. J. Slagg), there were two or three then present who may be trusted to follow out the cue that I will give if they can only muster courage to go behind the position which the Secretary of State took upon the Indian public works question.

This is his Lordship's position interrogatively, but very inadequately, stated:—"Is it impossible that private enterprise and private capital should ever come to the assistance of the Government of India in the construction and the development of her system of public works?" Lord Hartington 'trusts that it is not.' On the contrary, I affirm—after a far closer observation of, and much more intimate acquaintance with Indian industrial and financial conditions than his lordship has had—that it is an utter delusion to suppose there are private enterprise and private capital available that will serve to relieve the Government of India of its obligation to directly promote or undertake productive public works. Further, it may be said, that private enterprise and private capital will not have any chance to do their part towards utilising those 'great tracts of country' to which his lordship alluded, unless the Government of India does its own duty, in far more energetic and extensive style than it has done yet, in carrying out those essential works of water storage, irrigation, inland navigation, and railways to and from new ports—works which as chief landlord and rent receiver of the country, it is bound to undertake. Every sentence of Lord Hartington's speeches on India indicates his conscientious desire to do what is best for that country; but in accepting the timid back-sliding policy regarding public works, forced on him, probably by India office men of narrower views than his own, his lordship is making an enormous mistake, as, I think, you Manchester men must perceive. Some of the older men at your meeting could have told his lordship of the very considerable sacrifices made by private capitalists of your community twenty years ago or more to promote certain public works and industrial undertakings in India, and of the disappointment and loss that followed thereon. You can say what were the results in years past of "the experiment of seeing what can be done without the offer of any Government assistance at all." It is from the Indian standpoint that I speak. The true position may be thus summarily stated:—In India there is no capital to spare to invest in works that can only yield such moderate interest as should be expected from paid works. In England there is capital enough, and begging to be employed. But India is too remote. Its conditions are too unmanageable for private capitalists here to control. They can trust the Government of India, better than commercial agents, who are so often at fault regarding the people, the climate, or the resources of the country. Hence the conclusion to which, as it seems to me, your energetic community should direct his lordship's attention is one quite other than that towards which he has recently drifted. He confesses. "We," (i.e., the India-office)

"are necessarily somewhat deficient in economical knowledge and in commercial experience." You should, therefore, urge, both Lord Hartington and the Marquis of Ripon, to revert to the public works policy of Lord Mayo, a policy that was eminently suitable to the economical conditions of India, and which should have been systematised and extended instead of being stunted and restrained as it was by Lord Northbrook and his Council. It is impossible within the compass of a short letter to enter into any argument on what is really a large and somewhat complicated subject; but let me just refer to the figures of current public works outlay cited by Lord Hartington. As to the £5,627,000 of borrowed funds being spent on the purchase of the East Indian Railway and on extending the guaranteed railways, that outlay pays the interest and leaves a small surplus toward repayment; so the more of such self-supporting expenditure, the better it will be for everyone concerned. As to the £2,257,000 put down to be spent from revenue—only a small outlay by a Government that receives 21 millions from land—I say that (except we allow the £750,000 on "famine relief works") none of this 2¼ millions ought to be taken from revenue, and that it is unjust and unwise to take this from "the pockets of the taxpayers." The £717,000 for State railways and irrigation ought to have been borrowed in this country on a parliamentary guarantee at 3 per cent. As to the £790,000 on frontier railways, that is one of the evil and wasteful legacies from the noble lord's predecessors. It is a gross imposition to make the people of India pay, and pay out of current revenue, for these purely military lines directed against remote or imaginary foes.

It appears to me, therefore, that the way is open for the men of Manchester to respond to the Marquis of Hartington's invitation comprised in the closing sentences of his speech, and to do so with good effect on this public works question. Let them tell him that private enterprise can only be promoted in India by British capitalists after and by means of the Government of India—backed by the guarantee of the British Treasury—having obtained the cheap funds of Europe for the carrying out of essential works of communication and water storage, and which can only be done effectually by the authorities, who have all power in their own hands, and can command all the best information and talent that are needed for this truly imperial task.

It does injustice to this grand subject to have to treat it in this fragmentary fashion; but I know there are men who heard Lord Hartington's timid and halting councils, who are themselves capable of going into it fully and so effectively as to compel the India-office to take a new departure. If this should be done, it will be at least some consolation to myself for the pains I have taken during many years past in India to enforce, in hundreds of articles and paragraphs, the convictions very imperfectly expressed in this letter.—ours truly,

INDIAN POSTAGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "TIMES."

SIR,—Some of your correspondents suggested a reduction in our Indian postages, on the ground that, while a letter from India to England pays 5d., only 2½d. is charged for a letter from India to France. The anomaly, however, is much greater, seeing that a letter from India to England, if posted in a French settlement, pays only 2½d., although 5d. is charged for the answer; and newspapers similarly posted in India are charged ¼d., while 1½d. is charged for a newspaper hence to a French settlement in India. I may add that samples similarly posted in India have frequently reached me at reduced rates, a facility to commerce which our post-office has not granted.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, J. DACOSTA.

LAND TENURES IN INDIA.

To the ordinary Englishman it is not known that there is a land problem in India of not less importance than that which occupies the thoughts of home legislators and publicists; and that two schools of Anglo-Indian statesmen have been, and are, increasingly divided upon the comparative merits of the old native tenures and agrarian customs, and the settlement of rights devised by British administrators and theorists. A meeting of officers and gentlemen interested in the affairs of India was held on Wednesday afternoon, under the auspices of the East Indian Association, in the new hall of the society, Bedford-row, for the purpose of considering the various land tenures in the Bombay Presidency. In an elaborate address, Mr. Alexander Rogers discussed the various ancient and modern tenures of the western presidency, as a very general impression exists that tenures in which middlemen of various degrees of proprietary right held an intermediate position between State and the actual tiller of the soil, have been ruthlessly extinguished, and all the agricultural population reduced to one dead level of tenants' holding directly from the State. Mr. Rogers addressed himself to show that, not only was this not the case, but that, on the contrary—with a single exception, the unwisdom of which has been clearly proved and from the position taken up in which the Government has had to withdraw itself—existing tenures have been not only upheld, but fortified and improved. Only where the holding of land directly from the State has been customary has the ryotwara system of the Bombay Revenue Survey and Settlement been introduced in its entirety. Nevertheless, after a full analysis of the Bombay Survey System, Mr. Rogers contended that, pace the advocates of the village settlement system, it provides as favourable a tenure as can well be conceived. It guarantees full proprietary title to the tenant on condition of payment of a moderate land-tax fixed for a generation, at the same time not finding how to retain his entire holding if circumstances should make it desirable for him at any time to relinquish the whole or any part of it. On the expiration of the guaranteed period, and, in fact, for ever, it leaves full benefit of any improvements he may make in the hands of himself and his heirs.—Some general discussion followed Mr. Rogers's address, and at the conclusion of the sitting a vote of thanks was accorded to him and to the chairman.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

THE CASE OF GENERAL STANNUS.

IN our notice last week of General Stannus's pamphlet, "My Reasons for Leaving the British Army," we omitted to state that it may be obtained for one shilling from Messrs. Ridgway, 169, Piccadilly. The following forcible review of the General's case appeared in last week's Vanity Fair :—

"A bulky pamphlet, entitled 'My Reasons for Leaving the British Army,' lately came into my hands. Judging from the title, I fancied at first that I had got hold of a statement made by the ordinary grievance-monger. Something in the graceful and modest preface attracted me, and I finished by studying and carefully annotating all the documents printed in the pamphlet. My conclusion is that every man who is interested in the army, every man who disapproves of the disgraceful set of cliques that now throttle this country's service, should buy and read this astounding collection of letters. They will cause rage, and mortification, and shame to people with deficient self-command; but perhaps shrewd and daring members of Parliament may make use of them when the time comes for cleansing certain very nasty stables. Briefly, the case stands thus: Lieutenant General Stannus served in the army for thirty-five years. In his youth he was a kind of Bayard, and was always doing something extraordinary in the way of chopping his fellow-creatures about. That counts for nothing, because nearly every young Englishman is plucky. What is more to the purpose is that Stannus won rapid promotion by his vigour, tact, administrative skill, and cool resolution. Everyone praised him, and his scores of testimonials are unanimous. By reading between the lines of letters, despatches, newspaper reports, and commanding officers' reports, we gradually get a picture of a modest, daring, scrupulously honest man, who is an honour to his country and his profession. In 1874 General Stannus was passed over by various juniors. A long period of neglect and insult caused him at last to write and ask why his years of service were unreckoned, and why, in the prime of his strength, he should be shelved. The answer came after many delays. In a sprawling, ungrammatical, silly letter, which an ill-tempered woman might have penned, we learn that General Stannus wore a white linen coat on inspection parade during summer weather. This was the reason assigned for passing him over. This sounds like an extract from a burlesque, but it is sober truth. Five years after wearing that unhappy white coat General Stannus was ruined, and the babyish reason which I have given was put forward as a pretext for ruining him. General Stannus seems to be a man who has kept his dignity, so none of us need insult him with pity. He wrote letters which I think model compositions, and asked for consideration. His letters were quiet, convincing statements, with occasional appeals, which I find singularly pathetic. All were of no avail. He was wanted out of the way, and out of the way he had to go. Members of petted cliques must be provided for, and the life of a brave and stainless man counts for little when cliques are concerned. General Stannus did not descend to quarrelsome complaining. When his prayers for justice were rejected he simply left the army. The ten decorations which he had won in honour he refused to retain, and he is now able to condemn the miserable beings who, by a monstrous system of jobbery, were able to break up his life. I do not know General Stannus. I merely comment on a set of documents. Next Session of Parliament may cause certain cliques to feel uncomfortable when the estimates come on. Meantime, I trust that my plain and truthful narrative may set some Englishmen thinking."—Vanity Fair, December 17, 1881, page 337.

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE ANTI-OPIMUM AGITATION.

ENGLISHMEN have been proverbially meddlesome, and they will meddle with other people with or without reason. Whenever they can seize a principle, which they choose to call a principle, they will ride the hobby to the utmost. They have found a hobby horse in the opium question of India, and they are giving their nerves no rest in riding it. Those who have taken to this fancy are otherwise estimable men, but in their fanaticism they cannot see the real truth which lies at the bottom of the question. On the 21st October last, we read, a large and enthusiastic public meeting was held in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House, to support the movement for the suppression of the opium traffic of India. The Lord Mayor, M.P., presided. In his opening speech his Lordship said :—"He did not believe there ever had been a blacker page in the history of the country than that which recorded its transactions with the Empire of China. The war with China was thoroughly unjustifiable." As a general proposition this is undoubtedly true, but why connect it with the Indian opium question? It is a commercial question pure and simple and it ought to be discussed on its own merits. The wars with China had been originally undertaken not with a view to force Indian opium upon China, but with the object of securing British influence and finding an outlet for British trade in China. England has never taken any particular interest in Indian revenues. Surely she would not go to war with a foreign nation for the sake of the Indian exchequer. It is true that British influence in China has facilitated the way to the opium trade in China, but this has been one of the extraneous results of British intercourse with the Celestial empire. The Lord Mayor was so much taken up by his fanatical feeling on the opium question that he did not hesitate to say that the mutinies, wars, and famines in India were manifestations of the vengeance of God for the dire sin committed by England by sending opium to China. His lordship said :—"He felt that great national sins such as that could not be left unpunished, and that famines, wars, and mutinies in India had proved far more costly than the opium trade was productive." But whatever the sin, it has been committed by England, and not by India. The people in India are at least innocent. This is known to the All-Knowing, and we refuse to believe that the Author of All Mercy would afflict his innocent children in India with the miseries of war and famine for the sins of their rulers. If those sins call for the vengeance of the Almighty, surely it should fall on the head of England and not on that of India.

The Archbishop of Canterbury moved the first resolution, but his Grace did not attempt much argument; we will, however, briefly notice what little he did advance in the way of argument. He said :—"He had seen a defence of the opium traffic in which it was stated that the number of persons who smoked opium was an insignificant percentage—something under 1 per cent. of the entire population—and that, therefore, they were exciting themselves about a matter which after all was only a trifling evil. But when they looked into the figures on which that calculation was based, they found that the bodies and minds of no less than 2,000,000 human beings were involved in those deleterious and demoralising practices. The number might be small as compared with the immense population of China, but it involved a collection of individuals equivalent to the whole of the inhabitants of the diocese of London and to about half of the entire population of that metropolis, and the attempt to rescue even 2,000,000 human souls from the thralldom of a destructive habit was surely large enough, and worthy of the energy of every member of the community." Would that the Archbishop had looked at home! Would that his Grace had considered what devastations, physical, social, and moral, are going on in the United Kingdom owing to the drink-crave of the British nation! Has his Grace done anything to stem the tide of misery and demoralisation with which fire-water has flooded society in the British Isles? We humbly submit—charity should begin at home. We have the highest respect for Lord Shaftesbury, but, as usual, his lordship is nothing if not fanatical. His lordship said :—"All admitted the physical mischief which the trade inflicted on our fellow-subjects in India and on the people of India." We beg leave to say that the physical evil of taking opium is not admitted at all. On the contrary the highest medical authorities hold that, taken in moderation, opium contributes to health. We find this to be the case from our experience in all parts of India. We cannot say how many lives have been literally rescued from the jaws of death by a timely and moderate use of opium. His lordship continued :—"They should demand that the Government should be dissevered once for all from the cultivation and sale of opium, than which nothing was more degrading and ignominious, so that at all events it could no longer be called 'a national abomination.'" But grant that the Government should dis sever its connection with the opium monopoly, will that prevent the cultivation and consumption of opium? We fear not. His Lordship added : "He believes the Chinese Government and the Chinese people were thoroughly sincere in their wish that it should be suppressed, and he implored the authorities in India and England to give up connection with what was a mysterious and mighty evil, physically, morally, financially, and religiously." But if the Chinese Government and people have been sincerely desirous to suppress opium, why are they then growing it in their own country? This is a question which is not answered by the agitators.—Hindu Patriot.

THE INCOME TAX.

BOTH the Englishman and the Pioneer have given publication to a rumour which reached us early last week to the effect that the project of doing away with the rest of the cotton duties, and imposing an income tax to make up the loss, is now under consideration. Several members of the India Council have protested against the measure, but the belief is that Lord Hartington is agreeable. Difficult to believe as this rumour is, we regret to say that there is little doubt of the project being already well advanced. Our informants are thoroughly trustworthy, and have excellent means of knowing what is going on in the India House. It is said that the plan is to keep the matter a dead secret until the last moment, and then passing it at one sitting of the Legislative Council, so that no opposition may be raised against it until it is too late. The necessity of keeping Manchester in good humour is urgent, but we can scarcely believe that a Ministry in which Lord Northbrook takes a leading part, and a Government of which Lord Ripon is the head and Major Baring the inspiring spirit, will allow the cession of large slices of our scarcely solvent India's legitimate revenue to bribe local interests in England for local political purposes. And yet politics and justice are such discordant materials in the present day that the contingency rumoured is not improbable. Any how we think it right to give publicity to the rumour, in order that the Government may contradict it if it is unfounded, or if its truth be acquiesced in by silence on its part, the Indian public may adopt what measures they may think proper to avert the impending calamity.—Hindu Patriot.

THE SAME.

It is unnecessary for us to recapitulate the objections which attach to an income tax in India. This subject has been over again dealt with and thrashed out. We had thought that the Government were sufficiently alive to all the curses that this hateful impost (the income tax) entails upon the native community, alike those who pay and those who bribe to escape—that they were aware of the unfairness of the incidence of this tax, owing to the impossibility of ascertaining the real incomes of contributors and the national distaste for the inquisitorial nature of the tax, to resist strenuously any attempt to bring about its re-imposition; but apparently ministerial pressure is of so strong a character that principles will have to be sacrificed and the teaching of past experience be thrown to the winds.—Englishman.

THE SAME.

If "free trade" is outraged by the cotton duties, why does Manchester remain silent about the duty levied in England on Indian tea? Why not bemoan in endless memorials to the Government the hard fate of the English washerwoman, whose cup of tea is made dearer and weaker by the tea-tax? The hypocrisy would not pay: that is the only reason. But the people of this country may very well take a leaf out of the Manchester book. If the Government has weakly allowed itself to be influenced, as alleged, in the preparation of the next Budget public meetings must be convened in the chief cities to protest against the manipulation of Indian finance in the interest of a clique of agitators, and deputations must make known in the proper quarter the indignation and disgust evinced at the unworthy subservience of Indian administrators to the exigencies of party warfare at home.—Bombay Gazette.

THE SAME.

It is the shadow now which hangs over Lord Ripon's viceroyalty. An income-tax imposed on the people of India, simultaneously with the abolition of the remainder of the import duties on British cotton manufactures, would involve the British Government in reflections by all classes of the natives of India, which no loyal and upright Englishman would wish to hear.—Indian Daily News.

THE SAME.

Of course it would be absurd to suppose that the Government of India on its own motion is desirous of courting the public indignation which would follow the revival of the income tax—or let us say of inflicting on the country the profound annoyances which that wretched tax has always brought in its train when planted in this uncongenial soil. But in these days the external phenomena of Indian administration are produced by the play of many complicated forces. The "liberal" Government of Mr. Gladstone has introduced a system of autocratic interference in the details of Indian administration which has never been developed to anything like its present excesses before. The liberality of the Government taking the word as equivalent to democratic sympathies, is only exhibited towards the British populace. To the fluctuating decrees of that authority it may be reverently submissive, but towards this great empire it is more despotic in its demeanour than any previous Government has ever been before.—Pioneer.

A MADRASI ON MR. GRANT DUFF.

MADRAS, like Memphis, is sitting in the ashes of woe and desolation, and the price of piece-goods is falling. The fiat has gone forth, A God-granted Government has decided to fill up our cup of bitterness with Duff. Some communities breed great men, others have great men thrust upon them. Dust heaps don't object to be placarded "Rubbish may be shot here;" then why should "dirty, dusty Madras" object to be the receptacle of great but unpopular politicians for whom the Home Government must provide somewhere? The present Premier is wiser in his generation now than he was before the General Election of '74. Unpopulars like Ayrton and Lowe did as much to bring in the Tories then as did irritating "liberal" measures of penny-saving-pound-wasting economy. With British soldiers beaten by Boers, a British Government Boycotted in Ireland, and a storm of indignation brewing in England and Scotland, it was indeed time to lighten the ship; so Jonah was thrown overboard. Benighted beings that we are, we who would prefer a Huddleston to a Gladstone, we who have had a Lord, and a Duke, and a "Whip"; we now, for our sins, are to be lashed by a political "Scorpion." Lord Palmerston, in the heat of debate, described an opponent as a "political tinker." Called to order, he explained that he meant and ought to have said that the honourable member in question was a political thinker. The heart knoweth its own bitterness, and in likening the Right Honourable ex-Elgin-

Burgher to a "scorpion" we only expressed heart-felt bitterness in a strictly Pickwickian, metaphorical and parliamentary sense. Like Uriah Heep, we Madrassees are so accustomed to be scorned that we rather like it; so like Lord Palmerston, we dropped an "H" and, humbly withdrawing an epithet that was liable to misconstruction, christened our new ruler the Grand Duffer. And in thus dubbing him we humbly hoped to elevate him to the pinnacle he was reported to occupy in his own estimation. Great Mogul—Great Dogmatic—Grand Llama—Grand Duffer! Videsne puer?—D'y'e twig, sir?—Humbly, bitterly, we called to mind how trenchant, truculent Sir Robert Peel moved the Commons of England to shouts of merriment as, rolling his eyes first on Vernon Harcourt and then on Grant Duff, he declared, "We have two historians in this house, and greater bores I do not know!" Oh! the irony of Fate, Oh! the cruelty of destiny which, according to his own account, sent us this—this historian! Similia similibus, as one nail forces out another nail, as one bear drives out another bear, why wasn't he transferred to the Transvaal? Why wasn't he sent to bore the Boers? Why was he sent to madden Madras?—"Roulette" in the Madras Times.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE CHIEF.—His Excellency Sir Donald Stewart, the Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in India, returned to Calcutta from his Assam tour on Friday, Dec. 2.

THE BEAR COMMISSION.—On the return of Sir S. Bayley from furlough, Mr. W. B. Jones, Commissioner of the Hyderabad Assigned Districts, is going on leave for a month.

THE POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.—On the return from furlough of Colonel Powlett, of the Rajputana Agency, about the 15th inst., Colonel Tweedie, C.S.I., will, it is stated, make over charge to him of the Western Rajputana States, and will himself proceed to Gwalior, thus enabling Colonel Watson, V.C., to be present at Baroda during the installation of the Gaekwar at Christmas, and to relieve Mr. Melville on January 1.

LORD LAWRENCE.—Lord and Lady Lawrence are expected to pay a short visit to the Pattiala State between Dec. 14 and 17, and to Kashmir between the 19 and 21.

THE NORTHBROOK CLUB.—Amongst further contributions announced towards the Northbrook Club are Rs.4,000 each from the Maharaja Scindia and the Raja of Rutlam.

TRADE MARKS.—It appears from a Government letter to the various Chambers of Commerce that the intention of passing an Indian Trade Marks Registration Act has been definitely abandoned. A draft bill was drawn up and submitted to the various public bodies concerned, when innumerable difficulties and objections were pointed out on all sides.

THE PUNJAB UNIVERSITY.—On Dec. 1 a meeting, attended by about 2,000 persons, held at Rawul Pindi, adopted a memorial to Government, praying that English might be made a compulsory subject of study in the examination of the Punjab University.

A CHANCE FOR INDIA.—What a glorious chance for India it would be, remarks the Pioneer, if the breakdown of the Persian telegraph lines to Europe were followed by the collapse of the one remaining line via Bombay! Imagine the Government of India completely emancipated from the thralldom of India-office telegrams. If a friendly whale could only be induced to sever the Bombay cable in the deepest caverns of the Arabian Sea, the blessings that might ensue to this country would be quite too too. Some wretches would ultimately mend the wire, but the Government of India might have a whole month to itself before that was accomplished, and so much may be done in a month. The only fear would be that like prisoners released from long captivity the Viceroy and his councillors would really not know what to do with their freedom. Could they sustain the responsibility of governing India for a month?

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR IN BEHAR.—The Lieutenant-Governor's tour through Behar has quite stirred up the Beharis. They are sparing neither expense nor trouble to give a right loyal welcome to their ruler. The demonstrations of loyalty have been made on a most magnificent scale. Whether at Mozufferpore, Bettia, Hutwa, Gya, Tikari, or Bankipore, the flow of rejoicings and festivities has been unceasing.—Hindu Patriot.

THE VICEROY.—The Viceroy and the Marchioness of Ripon returned to Calcutta on Friday from Benares. His Excellency held a levee on Saturday, Dec. 3, which was attended by upwards of 1,000 persons. Lord and Lady Ripon leave for Burma on the 17th inst.

A BURMA COMMUNIQUE.—The statement that the King of Burma intended to send an embassy to Rangoon to meet the Viceroy on the occasion of his visit has been contradicted from Mandalay.

H.H. HOLKAR.—The Maharaja Holkar intends visiting Calcutta in January next.

TROUBLES IN KHELAT.—Affairs in Khelat do not appear to be in a satisfactory condition. It is reported that the Khan exercises such zulm that the bannias and shopkeepers are leaving. Zemindars are also coming into British territory to cultivate, and Khelat itself is nearly deserted. The Khan is expected on his annual tour in the lower districts shortly, and his subjects are beginning to tremble accordingly.

THE AFGHAN DETENUS.—Amongst recent arrivals at Calcutta from Simla are General Daoud Shah, the late Shere Ali's military commander-in-chief, Mastauphi Habulla Khan, and Wazir Shah Mahomed.

THE RAJA OF DEO.—Sir Ashley Eden held a durbar at Gaya on the 30th November, and invested Mahasj Kumar Bhikam Narayan Singh of Deo with the khillut and title of Raja Bahadur.

MR. STRAIGHT.—Mr. Justice Straight is reported to be rapidly recovering his health, and it is expected, that he will be able to preside at the Fisher Defamation Trial on Monday, Dec. 5.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY.—St. Andrew's Day was celebrated in Calcutta by a dinner, which was attended by about 210 persons. In Bombay the Freemasons of the Scotch order gave a banquet, and in Madras the Governor (Mr. Grant Duff) gave a ball in honour of the day.

THE MURREE RAILWAY.—It is reported to be probable that the preliminary survey for a line of railway from Rawalpindi to Murree will be taken in hand very shortly.

MILITARY WORKS.—It has been definitely settled that the administration of the Military Works Branch of the Public Works Department will be handed over to the Military Department from the 1st January.

MR. THORNTON.—Dr. T. H. Thornton, C.S.I., has resigned the Bengal Civil Service, and his appointment of judge of the chief court of the Punjab has been conferred on Mr. A. Brandreth.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.—Mr. G. H. P. Evans, barrister at law, of the Calcutta bar, and Mr. Lewis Forbes, Madras Civil Service, have been appointed additional members of the Viceregal Legislative Council.

SIR HENRY DALY.—It is proposed to erect an Indore, in perpetuation of the memory of Sir Henry Daly's long connection with Central India, a college for the education of native chiefs. Most of the leading princes have promised handsome subscriptions.

PESHAWUR.—It is stated that one night last week eight Martini-Henri rifles were stolen from the barracks of the Queen's Royal West Surrey Regiment, at Peshawur.

MADRAS.

THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.—Sir Frederick Roberts's first levée at Madras, on the 1st inst., was very largely attended. Our correspondent telegraphs:—"A very favourable impression was made by the great courtesy of his Excellency's manner, and the cordiality with which he greeted old acquaintances." General Roberts is about to proceed on a long tour through the districts of his new command. He proposes to visit the chief military stations in the Madras Presidency, and also in Burma.

H.H. THE MAHARAJA OF VIZIANAGRAM.—The Maharaja of Vizianagram arrived in Madras on the 2nd inst. on a visit to H.E. the Governor.

A ST. ANDREW'S BALL.—On St. Andrew's night a ball was given to Madras society by the Governor in the Banqueting Hall, which was most tastefully decorated for the occasion. On the 20th instant his Excellency gives another ball, also in the Banqueting Hall, in honour of the last birthday of the Queen, to which a large number of guests have been invited.

A NEW RAILWAY.—The Government of India have sanctioned the survey of the proposed line of railway on the metre gauge from Tinnevely via Thenkasi and Shencottah to Quilon, with a branch to Trevandrum. Arrangements are being made to carry out the work at an early date.

SIR FREDERICK ROBERTS.—As Sir Frederick Roberts has not taken a house in Madras, it is conjectured, the Madras Mail says, that he intends to make a prolonged tour early next year. The distances between Burma, Kamptee, Palamcottah, and Cannanore are very great, but his Excellency is accustomed to travel quickly, and takes kindly to "roughing it." The paper thinks it is highly unlikely that those recommendations of the army commission which affect the Madras army will be carried out until his Excellency has reported from Madras thereon.

THE NILGIRRI RAILWAY COMPANY.—This company has been busy making a trace of the line from Mettapolliam to Kullar, and, having completed the work, has solicited permission that the trace may be widened in order that more reliable estimates may be framed. Government, in sanctioning the request, have directed that existing roads and crossings in particulars should not be interfered with; and have intimated that their permission to widen and trace is only in regard to Government lands, and that permission to do so on private lands must be secured from the owners of such property.

BOMBAY

THE BARODA RESIDENCY.—Colonel Watson, V.C., succeeds Mr. Melvill as Resident at Baroda on Jan. 1 next.

THE GOVERNOR.—The Governor returns to Bombay immediately from Mahabaleswar. His Excellency will hold a levée here on Wednesday, Dec. 14, before proceeding to Baroda to instal the young Gaekwar. After the Baroda celebrations are concluded, it is reported that Sir James Fergusson will visit Kathiawar to invest the Thakore of Bhavnagar with the K.C.S.I. at Rajkot.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.—General Hardinge is expected back in Bombay about the 11th January. He was to be at Jeypore on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 5, 6, 7; and on his way down country he proposes to halt at Nusseerabad, Neemuch, and Mhow.

THE MILITARY SECRETARY.—We hear that Major A. R. Heyland, of the 1st Bombay Lancers, and Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General, Sind District, succeeds Colonel Stracey as Military Secretary to H. E. the Governor of Bombay. Colonel Stracey, we understand, resigns the appointment owing to ill-health.

H.H. THE MAHARAJA OF JAIPUR.—The Maharaja of Jaipur was married last week to a daughter of the Maharana of Dranghadra, one of the Kathiawar independent States.

THE TELEPHONE COMPANY.—A ten years' agreement between the Municipal Commissioner of Bombay and the Oriental Telephone Company was signed on Dec. 1.

A CHIEF FOR THE CIVIL SERVICE.—Jehanghir Mea, the younger brother of the Chief of Mangrore in Kathiawar, has been selected this year by the Government of India for admission to the Bombay Civil Service. This is the first native chief and the second native appointed in the presidency to the Civil Service.

THE PORT TRUST.—The accounts of the Bombay Port Trust for the six months, April 1 to Sept. 30 last, show that the receipts from the Prince's Dock, which it was so confidently predicted would prove a gigantic failure, like the Hog Island lift, amounted to Rs. 4,40,014. The total estimate of receipts for the entire year was Rs. 5,46,500. It is proposed to put certain of the port trust loans on the London Stock Exchange, and to that end the trustees have asked the Bombay Government for a formal guarantee of the trust bonds.

COTTON FRAUDS.—In consequence of the refusal of the Viceroy to sanction the Cotton Frauds Act Amendment Bill, the whole of the former legislation on the subject of cotton frauds is shortly to be repealed.

THE WEST OF INDIA PORTUGUESE GUARANTEED RAILWAY.—Sir Thomas Thompson, Bart., has obtained the contract for the construction of the West of India Portuguese Guaranteed Railway.

THE CHAIRMAN OF THE CORPORATION.—Sir Frank Souter, Commissioner of police, will probably be the next Chairman of the Bombay Corporation. There appears to have been a canvass for votes, and it is stated that the votes of the majority of members have already been promised to him.

THE SHERIFF.—Major General Hewett, Commandant of the Bombay Volunteer Rifle Corps, has been nominated Sheriff of Bombay for the ensuing year.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

The Mincing-lane markets will be closed for public sales until Jan. 3 1882.

SUGAR continues depressed, and the Clyde telegram shows a slight decline in prices.

COFFEE.—The small assortment of plantation Ceylon in auction to-day, 210 casks 93 barrels and bags, found buyers, and colory kinds brought former rates. Small and common sold at 64s. to 73s.; middling to good middling, 78s. to 85s.; rather bold to good bold, 90s. 6d. to 109s. 6d.; 39 packages Jamaica were bought in; 190 bags foreign sold—Porto Rico, 67s.; Guatemala, 48s. to 59s. per cwt.

RICE.—Two coast cargoes of Basseins sold at 7s. 1½d. per cwt. open charter.

JUTE remains inactive.

COTTON.—The market is quiet, with an easier tendency in American for delivery. Sales about 500 bales, including Tinnevely at 59-16d., Western at 4¾d., and Sind at 4½d. per lb.

THURSDAY EVENING.

The markets very generally are closed to-day, and business will not be fully resumed until the 3rd or 4th prox.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that there is no further change to report in the produce markets, which are now closed until the 3rd prox. Quotations in many cases are at the lowest point of the year, with an absence of speculative feeling, but the general tendency of trade being towards improvement, some increase of demand is anticipated soon after the turn of the year. China tea has been firmer, and a moderate amount of business done at recent quotations, which are still under those ruling in any former season. The small public sales of Indian have gone at last week's rates. Supplies of coffee having fallen off, prices exhibit no material alteration. Good to fine colory plantation Ceylon meets with more inquiry at rather firmer prices. New crop Burma rice is cheaper, also coast cargoes. In raw sugar transactions have been too small to affect quotations, but refined is in some cases rather easier. White pepper attracts more attention, closing at ¼d. per lb. advance. Black firmer. In cinnamon a few sales are reported, chiefly in low qualities, at 1d. to 2d. per lb. above November prices. Other spice remains quiet.

COFFEE.—There is not any change to report in the market. Public sales will be resumed on the 4th prox.

RICE.—A cargo of New Arracan, February-April shipment, by steamer, sold 7s. 9d.; one Rangoon, 7s. 9¾d., ex quay Liverpool.

COTTON.—The market remains very quiet. Sales about 1,500 bales, including Bengal for arrival, December-January, Suez, 4 11-16d. per lb. for good f.g.f.c.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

TUESDAY, DEC. 27, 1881.

A THREATENED INSULT TO THE EDUCATIONAL OFFICERS OF INDIA.

SOME weeks ago, on the return to India of Dr. W. W. Hunter, C.I.E., after many years' employment in England on the preparation of the Imperial Gazetteer, we took occasion highly to eulogise the ability and industry of that officer, who had conducted a long and arduous enterprise to a successful and highly creditable issue. We pressed for some substantial recognition, on the part of the Government of India, of those valuable services; and that recognition has now been accorded, in Dr. Hunter's promotion to the Supreme Legislative Council—which will give him a period of dignified leisure, with an addition of Rs.600 to the substantive pay, Rs.2,250, of his appointment as Director-General of Statistics. Since Dr. Hunter's arrival in India, most of the Indian papers have commented on the difficulty of adequately providing for a deserving officer who has been absent for so many years from active work in India; and the official organ spoke of the "Hunterian problem" as one almost insoluble. Dr. Hunter's appointment to the Legislative Council seems as appropriate a solution as any other that could be offered.

But our readers will observe that in the telegram which informs us of this promotion, a ballon d'essai is sent up, in the shape of a suggestion that Dr. Hunter's leisure in the Legislative Council should be enlivened by his acting as the Viceroy's adviser "in devising a more satisfactory and uniform system of public education than that which is now in force in various provinces." We trust that the gross impropriety of this proposal, from every point of view, will be so apparent, that neither Lord Ripon nor Lord Hartington will consent to listen to it for a moment.

It is, we are aware, too much the fashion to regard the additional memberships of the Viceroy's Council as merely havens of rest for those officials whose standing entitles them to a certain pay, who cannot otherwise be conveniently provided for, and whose only function is to outvote the non-official members. But if the theory is too plainly avowed, it may lead to awkward demands for the abolition of these two comfortable sinecures, on the part of enthusiastic financial reformers. And at any rate, its avowal by the Government itself would be both indecent and indiscreet. Moreover, we have had many instances of late—we need go no further back than to the memberships of Mr. T. C. Hope and Mr. Bazett Colvin—of really valuable work for the State being performed by "additional members." To appoint a member of the Legislative Council to the tremendous task of overhauling the whole elaborate and highly organised machinery of our educational system in India, would be to show cynical indifference to decency, and an utter contempt for Indian public opinion.

But the objection we have mentioned is only the least of many, anyone of which would be sufficient to condemn the proposal. We have spoken of our Indian educational machinery as elaborate and highly organised; but these terms very inadequately indicate the supreme importance of employing the utmost caution and the most thorough knowledge and experience in any meddling with that machinery. The subject is full of the most astonishing pit-falls. Changes that appear to the uninitiated slight and unimportant often produce results utterly unexpected by all those who have not devoted to the subject the study of a lifetime. In India there are many educational officers who have so devoted their lives, and who are thoroughly familiar with every excellence and every defect of the wonderful machine which has been the object of their life-work. It is no disparagement to Dr. Hunter—who has sufficiently established his reputation in other lines of duty—to say that he most certainly is, and must necessarily be, absolutely and hopelessly ignorant of all the nuances of the various sections of the Indian educational problem. A few months of griffinhood spent in "acting" as an inspector of schools do not qualify an officer to be the Viceroy's adviser on that problem. And even if Dr. Hunter had ever been qualified—which no one could seriously maintain—his long absence from India, during the years in which our existing system has been built up and consolidated, would utterly disqualify him.

We have discussed the proposal simply from the point of view of the public interests. But in such a case the personal element cannot with safety be entirely ignored by Government. The appointment of Dr. Hunter would unquestionably be regarded by every educational officer in India as an outrage on the Department and an insult to each of its numerous leaders, many of whom are senior to him in age and standing, superior to him in official rank, and universally acknowledged to be of the highest ability and efficiency. The "Subordinate Educational Service," consisting of the head masters and assistant masters of schools, and the deputy inspectors, is one of the largest and most important services in India; is it well to show all these gentlemen that Government distrusts their appointed chiefs, and is willing to degrade them by submitting their work to the criticism of a junior? The "Superior" or "Classified" Educational Service—consisting of the Directors of Public Instruction, the Inspectors of Schools, and the College Principals and Professors—are appointed by the Secretary of State from the English Universities; and from an academical point of view are probably the most distinguished body of men in the Empire. In a review of the Bengal Educational Service, published a few years ago, it was noted that out of thirty-six "graded" officers, no less than twenty-one had obtained first classes at Oxford or Cambridge; five had been Fellows, and a much larger number had been Scholars, of their colleges. The present Director of Public Instruction was once a College lecturer at Oxford, and a "double-honour" man of that University; he has been an inspector of schools in every division of Bengal, and a principal or professor in nearly every college of the province. Next on the list comes a third Wrangler of Cambridge, who was a Fellow and Tutor of Queen's at a time when Dr. Hunter was still at school. Next comes a Senior Classic, formerly Fellow of Trinity, Cambridge, and a Sanskritist of world-wide reputation. Then we have a Second Wrangler and first Smith's Prizeman of Cambridge; and so on. It may be objected that this very remarkable roll of University distinctions does not prove special insight into Indian educational work, any more than Dr. Hunter's well-deserved reputation as a clever editor of gazetteers. This may be admitted. But it is surely clear that when so many men, whose University careers have proved them to possess a very high order of ability, have devoted their whole lives to the study of a certain set of phenomena, some of them are likely to know more about the subject than one who has had no chance of even observing the phenomena.

We believe that there never has been a time when the Educational Service of India has been more efficiently manned than it is at present. There never has been a time when the educational work of the country could be left with more confidence in the hands of the officers specially selected for its supervision, and trained in its requirements by long years of actual experience. A careful comparison and collation of the various systems and results of the various provinces will very probably prove each and all to be susceptible of improvement. But that comparison must be made by educational officers of experience and ability, not by amateurs in search of employment.

THE SILVER QUESTION.

THE proposals made by the Secretary to the American Treasury in his recently published report are evidently, and indeed avowedly, intended to force the Silver Question into an acute stage before the re-assembling of the Paris Monetary Conference in April next. Should those proposals be accepted,—which, however, is not in the least likely—their effect would be to range the United States decisively on the side of gold mono-metallism, so long as England and Germany refuse to make any further concessions in the direction of bi-metallism. They amount to a repeal of the Bland Act, and the cessation of the coinage of silver dollars; and this, the American Secretary believes, "would at a very early day bring about a satisfactory consideration of the whole subject among the chief commercial nations."

We give elsewhere the text of the Secretary's report on the subject, together with some remarks thereupon, that appeared in the money article of the Times last Wednesday. We agree with the Times in deprecating the adoption by Congress of the Secretary of the Treasury's proposals, but not quite on the same grounds. It is undoubtedly true that public opinion in this country is not yet ripe for bi-metallism in any form. But we are confident that England is to be educated, and will be educated during the lifetime of the present generation, into the belief in bi-metallism and the adoption of some form thereof. A monetary theory that is to-day held (with more or less thoroughness) by such men as Sir Louis Mallet, Mr. Hucks Gibbs, and the Governor of the Bank of England, must, before long, become the opinion of the educated classes generally. We believe, too, that that desirable consummation would be hastened, if America were to adopt the proposals of its Treasury. But in that case the lesson would be enforced by the most terrible disasters; and it is fortunate for humanity that wiser counsels are fairly certain to prevail. Were those proposals to be adopted in America whilst gold mono-metallism is still so strong in England, they would at first have no other effect than that of still further depreciating silver. But the depreciation would again act on American commerce in the way suggested by the Secretary to the Treasury, and would force the country further in the direction of gold mono-metallism. And the same thing would happen in every other country. And thereon must ensue that cataclysm against which M. Cernuschi and the bi-metallists have been warning us all these years like so many Noahs. The bankruptcy of the Indian Government and of everybody who has to receive in silver and pay in gold would be the preliminaries for the demonetisation of silver throughout the world, and for the degradation of that metal to its place and value as somewhat superior to pewter for use in vessels and ornaments. Thereon further would follow the most alarming contraction of the currency throughout the civilised world. All the deplorable results of an exaggerated appreciation of money would ensue; and finally, prices, depending on the volume of the comparatively small quantity of gold in existence, would be subject to the most tremendous and violent fluctuations. Commerce would be at a standstill, or would be conducted with rapid alternations of absurd inflation and hideous panic; untold sufferings would be inflicted on every class of the community in turn, and the progress of civilisation would receive a check from which it could only recover by the adoption of more sensible methods of exchange. Through such terrors as these would an extension of mono-metallism (for that is what the proposals of the American Secretary would mean) lead to the universal adoption of a bi-metallic standard.

But need the world pay such a price? The influential attendance at the meeting of the newly founded "Association to promote the adoption of an international monetary standard," which was held at the Cannon-street Hotel last Thursday, shows that even in England, the home of gold, the madness of trusting to an unstable currency is being found out. Moreover, the Indian interests of England are so huge, that the necessity for reform is pressed home to a large and important section of the community, well able to secure attention and inquiry for its demands. England, the United States, France, and Germany, are the countries whose combined mandates must control the commercial world. America and France are already as thoroughly earnest in bi-metallism as England and Germany would be, sua si bona norint. Germany has suffered so much from her misguided attempt at gold mono-metallism, that she only awaits a lead from England. England, as M. Cernuschi once observed, requires ten years' teaching before she awakes to the necessity for any great reform. But the lessons of the past few years are already bearing fruit; and there are not wanting signs of an approaching awakening. We have little fear that American bi-metallists will be so foolish as to attempt to force her hand by a disastrous measure of violence, such as that recommended by the Secretary to the Treasury.

THE NEW PENSION RULES.

THE NEW Pension Rules, which we published last week, leave little cause for complaint on the part of any section of the Staff Corps and Indian Army, with the exception perhaps of the officers who joined the Staff Corps after Sept. 12, 1881. This happy result is due, in the first place, to the just and liberal sentiments of the Marquis of Hartington, who has throughout shown an earnest desire to remove all the real grievances of the service. It is also due to the indefatigable exertions of the members of committee and the secretary of the Staff Corps and Indian Army Fund, who have left no stone unturned, in their determination to obtain a thorough inquiry into the circumstances of each branch of the service. In Mr. W. Allison, barrister-at-law, the committee were so fortunate as to obtain a secretary, who combined indomitable energy with a happy faculty for putting things in their right light, and literary ability that enabled him to enlist the sympathies of the public on the side of his clients. The committee itself consisted of the following noblemen and gentlemen:—Lieutenant General Spence, late Bengal Staff Corps, (chairman); the Earl of Longford, K.C.B.; Lord Crofton; Sir John F. Dillon, Bart.; Lieutenant General G. A. Leckie (late Bombay S.C.); Major General C. M. Barrow, C.B., (late Bombay S.C.); General J. C. Innes, late Bengal Staff Corps; Lieutenant General C. Watson and Co.); Reginald Harris Temple, Esq.

To these gentlemen, and to their learned secretary, the Services at large owe a heavy debt of gratitude; and now that the battle is fairly won, we would venture to suggest that it would be a graceful thing if some measures were taken to mark the general sense of the value of their exertions. Should this suggestion meet with the approval of those of our readers who are interested in the matter, we shall have much pleasure in putting our correspondence columns at their disposal, as a medium for the interchange of ideas on the subject.

THE BATTLE OF MAIWAND.—The fund for erecting a memorial to the memory of the officers and men of the Berkshire Regiment (66th) who fell at the battle of Maiwand and during the Afghanistan campaign has been, thanks to the energetic action of the Earl of Craven, a great success. The mayor and corporation of Reading have, it is understood, granted permission for the memorial to be placed in the Forbury pleasure grounds. A proposition has been made that the memorial shall bear witness to the gallantry of the Indian native regiments which took part in the disastrous fight at Maiwand.

INDIAN MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

(From the Bombay Gazette.)

Col. C. S. Lane, of the commissariat department, is stated to have withdrawn his application to retire from the service.

The Lahore paper bears from Peshawur that the 13th Bengal Lancers, who were about to commence their relief march, have been ordered to stand fast until relieved by the 9th Bengal Cavalry.

Brevet Lieut. Col. Morton, of the Royal Warwickshire Regiment (late 6th Foot), who is expected out to join the 2nd Battalion of his regiment, now marching from Cawnpore to Calcutta, will probably, the Pioneer states, be brought upon the strength of the Adjutant General's Department. Col. Morton was assistant adjutant general to Sir Frederick Roberts in Cabul, and shared in the march to Kandahar.

The 1st Battalion Leicestershire (late 17th Regiment) is to be relieved in the Indian establishment by the 2nd Battalion Wiltshire (late 99th Regiment) from Natal, which was expected to reach Bombay in December.

Telegraphic information has been received that 1-9 Royal Artillery, at present stationed at the Fort, Allahabad, is to proceed to England this season.

We learn that Government are about to charter shortly transports to bring from Kurrachee to Bombay the undermentioned troops returning from field service:—The 5-8 R. A., No. 3 Company of Sappers and Miners, 4th Regiment N. I., and 9th Regiment N. I.

The following Royal Engineer officers have been ordered out from home for duty in India:—Capt. S. J. Lambert, Lieut. J. G. Lutyens, Lieut. W. Huskisson, Lieut. H. F. Chesney, and Lieut. F. J. Anderson.

Those men of the Royal Artillery belonging to the batteries proceeding to England who have not completed six years' service in India on April 1, 1882, are not to proceed home, provided their time will not expire until 1883. Officers wishing to exchange in order to remain in this country will be permitted to do so.

It has been decided by the Government of India, the Lahore paper reports, that native cavalry detachments shall not, in future, be located at Ferozepore, Jullunder, and Benares. The detachment of the 6th Bengal Cavalry, now at Benares, has been ordered to rejoin the regimental headquarters at Segowli.

Regarding Major Ashe's defence, Col. T. E. Gordon writes to the Englishman, under date Calcutta, November 28:—"Sir,—Your London military correspondent, in the notes published in your paper of that day, alludes to Major Ashe's letter in the Times in answer to Sir Lepel Griffin's criticism on his 'personal records of the Kandahar campaign,' and refers to the impression that Major Ashe received letters from me. I have read Major Ashe's letter; and the very evident inference, from the manner in which he has ventured to mention my name, is that I was one of his 'sources of information.' I desire to state that from some considerable time previous to the commencement of the late Afghan war up to the present I have had no communication on any subject, or in any manner whatever, directly or indirectly, with Major Ashe."

Lieut. Col. Combe, 10th Hussars, of the Quartermaster General's Department, has been ordered to Calcutta to officiate as deputy quartermaster general, vice Col. Sanford, proceeding on three months' leave.

Lieut. Col. Hallows does not alter all, it appears, retain the appointment of inspector of gymnasia in India, but joins the 2nd Battalion East Yorkshire Regiment in Puna.

The reductions ordered in the strength of the artillery of India, the Pioneer says, will be so carried out that the batteries remaining in the three presidencies will be: Ten Royal Horse Artillery, twenty-seven garrison, and forty field—total, seventy-seven. Officers desirous of remaining in India, who may be on the strength of the eleven batteries ordered home, will be posted to existing vacancies in this country. Two, if not more, of the batteries will be disbanded on arrival in England.

The commands of Cawnpore and Benares become vacant on New Year's Day, 1882, on account of both the present commandants succeeding to their colonel's allowances on that date. Col. A. C. Bunbury, B.S.C., who commands at the former station, entered the service on Jan. 1, 1844, and joined the Staff Corps from the 34th Regiment Native Infantry in 1866; whilst Lieut. Col. Franks, who commands the 10th Regiment Native Infantry, as also the latter station, has nearly twelve years' less service, his first commission being dated October 1, 1855. He, however, did not join the Staff Corps, but remained a local; hence his luck in obtaining his off reckonings in a little over twenty-six years' service. Col. Franks has commanded the 30th N.I. since July 2, 1879; he will, it is believed, avail himself of the two years' furlough granted him by G.G.O. dated Sept. 23, 1881, in the beginning of the year. The allowance for commanding at Cawnpore is Rs. 400, whilst that of Benares is only Rs. 200 per mensem. Lieut. Col. C. B. Fisher, of the Bengal Infantry, who came into his allowances on the 27th ult., is even luckier than Col. Franks, for he only entered the service on Dec. 29, 1856, and consequently obtains his £1,100 with a little less than twenty-five years' service. Col. Fisher is at present on furlough.

Col. H. M. F. Boisragon, C.B., commandant, 4th Sikh Infantry, Punjab Frontier Force, has sent in his application to retire from the service under the bonus system, which terminates on Dec. 31. The record of his war services says:—"Served in Burmese war of 1852-55; present at relief of garrison of Pegu, Dec. 14, 1852; commanded a field force in Tharrawaddy district, Burma, against rebel chief Jong Gouneggie, in which operations several of his strongholds were destroyed and a quantity of stores and supplies were captured of various descriptions, medal and clasp; served in campaign in Hindustan of 1857-58; commanded a wing of Kumaon Gurkha Battalion at siege, storm, and capture of Delhi, Sept. 14, 1857, dangerously wounded, medal and clasp; commanded a force in Saharunpore district; and on Jan. 10, 1858, encountered and beat back across the Ganges at Hurdwar upwards of 1,000 of the enemy, with four guns, destroying a quantity of them and capturing arms and ammunitions of war, medal and Bt. Majority."

In consequence of the reduction of artillery in India, the following batteries have been placed under orders to proceed to England this season, viz., 1 Battery A Brigade, Sialkot; A Battery B Brigade, Umballa; C Battery B Brigade, Secunderabad; O Battery 6th Brigade, Bellary; No. 19 Battery 8th Brigade, Lahore; No. 1 Battery 9th Brigade, Allahabad; No. 19 Battery, 9th Brigade St. Thomas's Mount.

Major Kenny Herbert, Military Secretary to the late Governor of Madras, has been appointed Assistant Secretary in the Military Department, vice Major J. Davidson, transferred to the Adjutant-General's Department.

It is reported that there is so little disease of a malignant description among the transport cattle in the Naga Hills, that the Veterinary Surgeon who was deputed there on special duty has been ordered to return to Jullundar.

It is reported from Sialkote that Brig. Gen. Sir C. Palliser, K.C.B., has sent in his application to retire from the service on Dec. 31.

The headquarters of the 14th Hussars, ex Calabra, from Natal, marched for Sholapur en route to Secunderabad before daybreak on the Dec. 7.

HOME NEWS.

THE STAFF CORPS AND INDIAN ARMY FUND.—The following letter has been addressed to the editor of the Morning Post:—"Sir,—Having in view the substantial concessions made to Indian officers by the "Pension Regulations," just published, my committee desire me to thank you very heartily for having aided us in laying the grievances complained of before the public. Will you permit me through your columns to invite officers concerned to at once communicate with me on the improved state of affairs? The case of those who joined the Staff Corps after the 12th of September, 1866, has certainly not been so liberally viewed as could be desired. Hoping that you will find a place for this letter at an early date, I remain, yours obediently, W. ALLISON, Secretary, Barrister-at-Law, 22, Grosvenor-mansions, Dec. 21."

THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.—On Monday, Dec. 19, the members of this society held their second general meeting of the session at their rooms, 22, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. The chair was taken by Col. Yule, C.B., vice president, in the absence of the president (Sir Thomas E. Colebrooke, Bart., M.P.), and there was a numerous attendance. Additions were made by ballot to the society by the election of seven new members—viz., as resident members, Mr. Barclay V. Head (assistant keeper of coins and medals, British Museum), Mr. Arthur Lillis, Mr. Theophilus G. Pinchea (assistant in the department of oriental antiquities, British Museum), Mr. Henry C. Kay, 11, Durham-villas, Kensington, and Mr. Joseph Haynes, of Salem-chambers, St. James's-street; as non-resident members—Rev. John Drew Bate, Allahabad, North West service, and Major Thompson, R.A., Staff Corps. Mr. G. Bertin read the first paper on the abstruse question of "The Origin of the Phœnician Alphabet." He was followed by Mr. W. Simpson, F.R.G.S., who contributed an interesting paper entitled, "A Sculptural Tope on an Old Stone at Dras, Ladok." The author, after describing Dras as a village on the banks of a stream of the same name, about the distance of one march beyond the Bul-tul Pass, on the road from Kashmir to Leh, observed that the topes of India, from Amravati to Manikyala, so far as was yet known, had all round bases. When, however, they crossed to the right bank of the Indus a marked change was found. A square base here appeared. In the drawing given of the tope at Dhas, the author observed, a square base was distinctly visible, showing that the form was derived from the right bank of the Indus, and not from the left. The Jelalabad topes had a passage at the square base a few feet from the ground, thus producing an appearance which might be described as two stages.—The chairman next exhibited a Lolo manuscript of a peculiar nature. Explaining how it came into his possession, he stated that Mr. Baker, now secretary to the British Embassy at Peking, some time ago, when stationed elsewhere in the East, made a promise to a native chief that he would send him a revolver on condition of him (the chief) giving him a book. Mr. Baker forwarded the weapon, and, equal to his promise, the chief supplied the book—that now before the meeting. The book was, the chairman added, a very interesting object, and was the first such that had reached Europe in the Lolo language. The manuscript was on satin, red on one side and blue on the other.—The Rev. Mr. Samuel next made a few observations on the meaning of Plate XXVIII., Figure 1, of "Tree and Serpent Worship." But little discussion took place, on account of the number of subjects brought forward and the limited time of the meeting, which was ultimately adjourned until Jan. 23 in the new year.

H.M.'s TROOPSHIPS.—The Indian troopship Serapis, Capt. Twiss, which left Bombay on Nov. 10, arrived at Portsmouth early on Monday. She was due on the 8th inst., but happening to break three blades of her four-bladed propeller (the seventh within a twelvemonth) she had to be towed to Port Said by the Crocodile, and thence to Malta by the Téméraire. At Malta she was fitted with new blades, one of which was an extra strong one, and left at midday on the 10th, making a rapid voyage to Spithead. She brought home Capt. Chellenor, Capt. Frith, and Lieuts. Walker, Marston, and Vereker, R.A.; Lieut. Hewat, Royal Horse Artillery; Col. Pritchard, R.E.; Lieut. Chapman, 2nd Gloucester Regiment; Lieut. Worledge, 2nd South Wales Borderers; Major Benthall, King's Dragoon Guards; Lieut. Southy, 2nd Northumberland Fusiliers; Lieut. Col. Ridsdale, Norfolk Regiment; Lieut. Eli-combe, Devonshire Regiment; Capt. Noyes, 2nd West Yorkshire Regiment; Major Creagh, 1st Leicester Regiment; Major Shaw V.C., 1st Royal Irish Regiment; Capt. Deering, 2nd Cheshire Regiment; Capt. Wheeler, 2nd North Lancashire Regiment; Capt. Wortham, King's Own Rifles; Quartermaster Murray, 1st South York Regiment; Capt. Stewart, 2nd Seaford Hussars; Lieut. Elton, Connaught Rangers; Capt. Prior and Lieut. Thompson, 1st Leinster Regiment; Lieut. Colville, Rifle Brigade; Lieut. Bradshaw, Bengal Staff Corps; Surgeons Major Garde, St. John Kelly, and Bennett, Army Medical Department; Veterinary Surgeon Ringe; 76 invalids, 893 time-expired men, 17 men to join depots, 63 women, and 148 children. In consequence of the crowded state of the discharging depot at Netley Hospital, it was found impossible to accommodate more than 630 of the time-expired men on arrival at Portsmouth. The consequence was that 56 men belonging to the 2nd West Sussex Regiment were forwarded to the depot at Guildford, 115 men belonging to the 2nd Devon Regiment to the depot at Exeter, and 93 men belonging to the 4th King's Royal Rifles to the depot at Winchester. A child belonging to a soldier of the Royal Artillery died on the passage. The present pattern Hirsch blade is clearly too weak for the work of driving the Indian troopers, and it is the intention of the Portsmouth Engineer Department to provide them with much stronger blades.

OBITUARY.—General Sir William Erskine Baker, K.C.B., died at his residence, the Castle, Banwell, near Weston-super-Mare, Somerset, at the age of seventy-three. He was the fourth son of the late Captain Joseph Baker, R.N., was born at Leith, N.B., and educated at the Royal Military College at Addiscombe, entering the Bengal Engineers in 1826. In 1840 he became a captain, was promoted to the rank of major in 1846, lieutenant colonel in 1854, and colonel in 1857. He became major general in 1865, a lieutenant general in 1874, and was promoted to general in 1877. The deceased held successively in India the appointments of Superintendent of the Delhi Canals, Superintendent of Canals and Forests in Sind, Director of the Ganges Canal, Consulting Engineer to the Government of India for Railways, and Secretary to the Government of India for Public Works. He served in the Sutlej campaign of 1846, and was commended in despatches for conducting the attacking column into the Sikh entrenchments at Sobraon. In December, 1857, he returned to England, and was shortly afterwards appointed to the post of military secretary at the India-office. He was nominated a member of the Council of India in 1861, and a knight commander of the Order of the Bath (Civil Division) for his official and military services in 1870. In 1871 he was appointed colonel commandant of the Royal Engineers. Sir William Erskine Baker, who was a magistrate for Somerset, married, in 1837, Frances, third daughter of Major General Alexander Duncan.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—The tenders for Rs. 45,00,000 in bills on India were received on Wednesday at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, Rs. 15,30,000, at an average rate of 18.7937d., and Bombay, Rs. 14,00,000, at an average rate of 18.7937d. Tenders on both presidencies at 18.715-16d. received in full. Nearly 16 lakhs of the amount offered were not sold, but it is understood that the India Council had previously disposed of a large proportion of former unallotted balances. To-morrow 45 lakhs more will be offered.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGE.—On Tuesday a little bar silver was disposed of at 51 13-16d. per oz. The market at this price was firmer, and evidently responded in part to the higher value of money in India, the Bank of Bengal discount rate having been raised from 7 to 8 per cent. The rate for telegraphic transfers was advised from Calcutta at 18.8d. No business was done in Mexican dollars, but the market was steady at 50½. China advices showed no change in the Shanghai rate of exchange, but an improvement in the Hongkong rate to 38. 9/4d. Rupee Paper was steady, at 90 3/4 to 90 1/2 for the Four-and-a-Half, and 83 3/4 to 84 for the Four per Cent. On Wednesday a further improvement in silver was reported, bars being purchased at 51 1/2d. per ounce, a rise of 1-16 being noted. In Mexican Dollars, however, the tone was inactive, and the price remained at 50 1/4d. per ounce. We are informed that the advance in the Bank of Bengal rate, by which the value of the uncoined metal and the Eastern Exchange rates have been affected, is chiefly due to the withdrawal from the Bank of heavy Government balances, which the Presidency Banks have long been accustomed to hold free of interest. The limited amount of India Council drafts allotted was regarded as indicating a temporary decline in Indian trade. The exchanges from Bombay and Calcutta ruled at 18. 8 3/4-16d. to 1/4d., and 18. 8 1/4d., respectively, Hong-Kong being 38. 9 1/4d., and Shanghai, 58. 1 1/2d.—On Thursday the market for bar silver was steady, a few further small parcels finding purchasers at 51 1/2d. Mexican dollars were nominally quoted at 50 3/4d. Exchange advices from Eastern centres showed no alteration from previous rates, and Rupee Paper was also unaltered, business being almost at a standstill.

NEW STEAMERS.—The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's new steamer Sutlej was successfully launched on Thursday at Barrow-in-Furness. The Sutlej, like a sister ship, the Ganges, which was launched in October last, is built of steel, is of 4,100 tons gross register, and will have engines of about 5,000 horsepower indicated. She is 390ft. long, has 42ft. beam, is 35ft. deep, and will carry over 3,000 tons of cargo. Both ships will be utilised for the India, China, and Australian mail services.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.—The following is the official statement of the movements of her Majesty's ships:—From East Indies.—Letters have been received from the Commander in Chief (Rear Admiral W. Gore Jones, C.B., at Trincomalee) up to Nov. 24: was there Dec. 18; would hoist his flag on board the Ranger on Nov. 28, and transfer it to the Ruby, on her arrival from Bombay about Dec. 20. The Euryalus would leave Trincomalee for Colombo, Suez, and Malta on Nov. 28; due at Malta on Jan. 8. The Eclipse would be docked at Mauritius on Nov. 3, would proceed thence to visit Tamatave and St. Mary's Island, Madagascar, and to cruise on the coast of Madagascar, then visiting Mozambique about December 20; after again cruising, would arrive at Zanzibar by the end of January. The Ready would convey Board of Trade engineer from Colombo to Minikoi on Nov. 24; would land him at Bombay, and then proceed to join the Persian Gulf division. The Dryad and the Woodlark were on the Persian Gulf division; the Dragon and the Arab were on the Aden and Red Sea division; the Seagull and the Philomel were on the East Coast of Africa division.

COLONIAL HANDBOOKS, &c.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND; including the Fiji Islands. Third Edition with New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 449 pp. Price 5s.

"Sydney Morning Herald."—"The compilers have evidently been careful to make this book suitable to all classes and interests, and so to arrange its matter as to anticipate all possible inquiries."

AUSTRALIAN DICTIONARY OF DATES AND MEN OF THE TIME. By J. H. HEATON, Sydney. Royal 8vo. 580 pp. 12s. 6d. "Times."—"A remarkable work. Shows more impressively than probably any other kind of publication could the immense activity of our Australian Colonies and the rapid advances they have made since their very recent foundation."

AUSTRALIAN GRAZIER'S GUIDE. No. 1, Sheep. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 2s. 6d. "Field."—"This little work is intended to supply, as fully as may be in a small compass, an admitted want in colonial literature, and is indeed exactly the sort of 'Guide' for the assistance and instruction of those who propose to try their fortunes as stock-raisers abroad, and who so frequently inquire of the Field for such help as is afforded by its pages."

No. 2, Cattle. Crown 8vo. Limp cloth. 2s. 6d. SOUTH AFRICA (New Edition) including the Cape, Natal, Orange Free State, &c. Illustrated. With Coloured Map. 576 pp. Price 5s. "Athenaeum."—"A mine of information." "Eastern Province Herald."—"Cape."—"Got up in a highly creditable manner, and contains a large amount of valuable information. Superior to anything of the kind we have seen."

CANADA—including Ontario, North-West Territory, Manitoba, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, &c. With New Coloured Map. Crown 8vo., 288 pp. Cloth, 5s. "Athenaeum."—"Full of information and statistics, which ought to prove very serviceable to any visitor to the Dominion." "Times."—"Under the above title Messrs. Silver have brought out much more than a mere 'Handbook to Canada,' an historical, political, social, geographical, and topographical guide for the use of travellers and settlers over the greater portion of our North-American possessions. The need of such a work, at once handy, comprehensive, and trustworthy, has long been felt both by intending settlers and by readers at home, who are surprised, and not unnaturally, at the scanty information about so important a territory which is accessible to them."

"Pall Mall Gazette."—"S. W. Silver and Co.'s 'Canada' comes to us with the high reputation gained by the preceding volumes of the series to which it belongs." "Manitoba Daily Free Press."—"Comprised in this book is a mass of valuable information, which cannot fail to impress every reader with an intelligent idea of the great resources and capabilities of our country. A comprehensive, reliable, and at the same time cheap and handy work has been produced, which will furnish the kind of information most sought for in regard to the Dominion, and especially in regard to Manitoba and the North West territories. One of the best contributions to immigration literature yet produced."

"Graphic."—"We are already acquainted with Messrs. Silver's Handbooks to Australasia and South Africa. They are concisely written, accurate in information, and full of practical details. The same praise may be accorded to the volume now before us, which comprises a survey of the whole of British North America, the reader's researches being aided by an excellent map. To the intending emigrant the descriptions of Manitoba and British Columbia will be especially attractive."

IMPERIAL FEDERATION. By FREDK. YOUNG. Small 4to., handsomely bound, 6s. "Westminster Review."—"Brings all the aspects of the subject forward in a controversial form."

COPY OF LETTER FROM MAJOR BRINGHURST.

SPRINGFIELD LODGE, Chelmsford, Sept. 19, 1880.
DEAR SIR,—In answer to your letter with respect to the Cholera and Diarrhoea Medicine, Aspaodyne, I can perfectly vouch for its efficacy in such cases. By the recommendation of the late Sir John Tyrell, more than twenty years since, I took it with very great benefit, and since that time I have never been without it in the house. I quite agree that it ought to be more known.—I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully,
J. H. BRINGHURST.

LITTLE ARGYLL-STREET, W.DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE,

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.
CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manila, to the effect that Cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st Dec., 1866.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was, undoubtedly the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say he had been sworn to.—See Times, 13th July, 1864.
